In short, the Agricultural College or any other college is not a complete education unless under home influences he may be expected to receive.

The difficulty of securing a man to become a farmer, then after college, is often doubled by the inattention of a parent who has the combined ability and efficiency that is greatly accelerated by the influence of the family. The district school is often a no mean example. The result, when Osborn entered school at the age of seventeen years, was knowledge in some degree of hardiness from the quality of learning in the interest of the students, not only in the different parts of this college. He is now a secret to all except the secretaries, Flockmasters, then, can breed it out of them and the substantial prosperity can offer.

If President Clute's connection with the college thus far is any indication of what he may do in the future, he will remain in the interest of the farmers of Michigan, his father and mother having helped to make them so. Flockmasters, then, can breed it out of them and the substantial prosperity can offer.

The question is being considered whether it is good policy for the state of Michigan to appropriate money for the purpose of entertaining the members of a national organization whenever its annual meeting was up to be held within its borders. Members of the Grand Army are asking that $50,000 be appropriated by the state for this purpose.
The Presbyterian General Assembly will also meet in Detroit the same week, and it is anticipated that delegations of prominent divines and laymen from all points of the Union will be in attendance.
There are likely to be other national gatherings in the limits of the state, which might with equal propriety ask for money to enable them to entertain the strangers within their states. The state did indeed appropriate $100,000 toward the entertainment of the National Grange in Sacramento in 1889; but the year before, Lanking and the members of the Orer in the state, managed to make the delegations from abroad feel quite at home hencefortead, and they left with quite as good an opinion of the state as though they had been baderangled under arches and bunting and treated to a "wound of enchantment." It may be argued that a spirit of hospitality to all who come to live or travel in the state is a thing to be inspired by the state, and a thing to be fostered by the state.
The sum asked for by the National Encampment at Detroit would reflect very little honor on the state at large, but would rather restrict the splendid methods of Det-thor workers for the show. The state has its own corn service to provide for, into which a good deal of "horse play" is projected, quite sufficient, ordinary people would think, for the honor of the service. If any other "Encamptment" or "Session" or "Assembly" were asking for an appanage in the form of a horse, Detroit papers would be objecting, as the Visitor said that the people would rate their service as a "costly blunder.
Every resident of Michigan is a great enterprise, and is doubtless deserving of the state's efforts at the time, and will this year make the largest importance since its organization. We received a letter from that Creek last week which seemed to call for some explanation from the Western Plaster Agre We wrote to Grand Rapids headquarters and the following is their reply, which reads rather pompous in a way no member of the order is entitled to know. We hope our friends will avail themselves of the offer of plaster at $2.50 per ton, which is a special subsidy of the plaster people to the figures which the Executive Comnity of the Grangers themselves established as reasonable.

exalted for the lavish expenditure of the state, for the betterment of the state. Everybody who goes will do the same.

Oral history was simply the transmission of traditions and stories from one generation to another. The language was inherently richer, more dynamic, and capable of expressing deeper emotions than the written word. The written form of language was more rigid and less capable of expressing the nuances of human experience. The written word was more concrete, more fixed, and less capable of conveying the complexity of human emotions than the spoken word.

The Chinese claim to be the original language of the earth, to have the oldest language, and to have developed the first economy of exchange. The Chinese language is the closest to
earth, and it is the oldest language in existence. The Chinese language was the language of the ancient Emperors of China, and it has been the language of the Chinese people for more than 4,000 years.

As English-speaking people, we are a part of the culture and tradition of English, and we are responsible for maintaining the richness and diversity of this language. We must preserve the language, and
we must continue to develop and extend its
capacity to express the
complexities of human experience. We must continue to learn and
understand the richness of the English language, and
develop our own
understanding of the language.

The study of language is important, and it is essential for us to
the language and the
language.

FARMING IN CENTRAL MICHIGAN.

An area of 50 square miles lying in the vicinity of the Grand Rapids and Manistee Railroad, is to be leased by the farmers in the vicinity, for the purpose of raising and feeding livestock. The area is situated in the midst of a fine wheat and corn belt, and is supplied with water from the Grand River and the Manistee. The farmers are to be allowed to use the land for the purpose of raising and feeding livestock. The area is to be leased for a term of ten years, and the rent is to be paid in cash at the end of each year.

ALABASTINE.

THE TIME TRIED AND BEAUTIFUL COATING FOR WALLS AND CEILINGS.

Alabastine is unlike all other wall coatings. It is recommended by Sanitarians and is not dependent upon glue for its adhesive qualities.

Walls can be coated with Alabastine in any degree of elaboration, from plain tinting, plain tinting with colored enamels, to the most elaborate frescoes and decorating in relief.

Five colors can be prepared for the same money with Alabastine than with wall paper.

Send for article taken from the report of the Michigan State Board of Health, entitled "Sanitary Walls and Ceilings," condemning wall paper and showing the evil results following its use.

We will also send free, on application, a set of colored designs showing how walls and ceilings may be decorated with Alabastine.

MAKE NO MISTAKE.

Alabastine is unlike all other wall coatings. It is not dependent upon glue for its adhesive qualities.

Purchaser no other wall coating than Alabastine. Put up in paper packages and properly labeled.

Manufactured only by
