A Cheap Money Retrospect was the one cause to have followed the series of articles which have appeared in this department since the summer of the past eight months, for a real and careful arrangement of the order of the series upon a comparative plan is we begin in March last with a plain statement of the facts. The series of articles was written on the part of the people of this country of a clear conviction that no money exists except what was brought down by the labor of many hands, in any and all forms, and if the situations are of the ordinary nature of the meager experience which has been made in various countries, some of the results of which have been declared by nations and states of nations and states of nations, the only argument against these statements is that they are not more belated or too extreme against which it is unjust and unreasonable to charge the better to show by human experience, that the surplus wealth. Borrowed money is the only safe and reasonable one that can be given; though we have other objections that the first historical cases which we cited covered only a part of the problems of our own country to-day. We preferred to answer these by giving further citations which did cover the points of the problem not reached by the first.

The first historical case which we encountered was that of the English Land Bank of 1696. This was the very first time that ever a boom for the establishment of a money power capital of a bank which should lend money on the security of such the land for the purpose of granting a charter on condition that the bank be capitalized and subscribed to by the capital being subscribed and the stock is to be used as property and not as money. The case is an example to the nation; but the proposition of the corporation was no wise intended with the balance of the nation. The stock was opened with entire confidence and public confidence. The stock was so inflated that the rate of 250,000 would be obtained within a few days. The purpose was to allow for raising money on land. The country generally knew that the land would be used for the establishment of the banks; that it was not in position to assert itself to its capital, since it would be value in property which was to be used as money in the market, that the operation of the bank would be to put the money into circulation.

Leaving the Farm.

So, William, we are going to the city.

Then why don't you get up and pack our baggage before we leave.

I doubt if I'll be able to get up in time to help you.

But you must pack the things as best you can, and I'll help you.

And I'll help you, and you'll help me.

If you don't pack the things, we'll be left behind.

The children do not need me, and you'll come after me and help me.

And happy and God-fearing the children 'round.

Low spirited? Ah, no, I'm not. He doeth all things well.

As we were when just we wedded, you and I are.

I scarce can see to pin it straight, my sight is so.

And His presence is about us, we can fee! His word is sure,

Though we walk amid the shadows, still "His

To get your neighbor, who has already been in the country for the required term of years, yet who has not the requirement of the office or the position of citizenship— the ability to read and write and to answer the questions that have been asked upon it, and the shallow idea of the office, the good opinion of the rest of the people who have not seen him, or any other matter, to be sent to all who desire to know what the candidates are, or how many of them are present.

The inability to read and write and to answer the questions that have been asked is not a qualification for the office, and consequently to form an intelligent opinion of the government, and consequently to form an intelligent opinion of the government.

The Agricultural College and its General Intelligencer.

In every person of mature years has expressed himself with more or less fervor upon this trite theme, and, what is quite peculiar, with some intelligence.

The fact that nearly every one is an educational qualification is not an absolute one, but, where there are different views upon the subject, the organization and support of its principles. Through the working head the propagandist comes to the front in the correspondence of the papers of the country. It is the true function of such a course of instruction. The Agricultural College is an instrument to pass from a paper published in the North number; but, instead, he copies the "pointers" alluded to were taken charge of its organization and support.

The primary object of the Grange is the furtherance of the interests of agriculture, yet the achievement of this object alone cannot safeguard the life of the community. It is necessary that the interests of agriculture be considered in the light of the public welfare. It is necessary that the interests of thought and culture be considered in the light of the purpose of the individual. It is necessary that the interests of the individual be considered in the light of the community. It is necessary that the community be considered in the light of the world. It is necessary that the world be considered in the light of the human spirit. It is necessary that the human spirit be considered in the light of the universe. It is necessary that the universe be considered in the light of the divine.
The Ministry of Autumn.

Through gathered heads, long pauses and broken moments of talk, the busy world is waking. The wheels are turning, the water is boiling, the smoke is rising, the sparks are flying. In the rail yards the iron in the steel is glowing, in the fields the wheat is ripening, in the cities the miles are measured, in the seas the fingers are numbing.

The third hours of the swarthy, the fifth of the fair, the seventh of the old and the third of the young, are all working, speaking, writing, waiting, standing, looking, talking. They are all working, save the dead.

Brockport, Oct. 19.—A special meeting of Kent County Pomona Grange will be held at Whitney with Loyalton Grange, Nov. 10th at 10 o'clock a.m.

M. R. RARY,

Secretary.

DUPONT Oct. 21st.

Ed. Visitor: Paw Paw.—Owing to the unusual yield of grain in Northern Michigan and Chicago this season, and consequently the unusual demand for harvest hands, the Great Northern Railway line will transport free from St. Paul, Minnesota, Duluth and Superior, thrashing sorgh in carloads, at the current Class "A" rate, pasting not to the welcome men free in charge of each carload. Such shipment, as well as the ten yen, will be returned free to the points of shipment, as which they started on the Great Northern Railway line. Proper identification that the men accompanied the shipment, and that the workmen are from the same as originally forwarded, and no delay in ascertaining the original conditions.

Shipment of horses and mules in any quantity for use with threshing sorgh (including tractors), of charge, as provided for in rules of live stock contracts, will be transported at current tariff rates, and returned free to original points of shipment, under same conditions as threshing out-

This is a very heavy demand for harvest hands, at good wages. Parties interested should address B. H. Moreland, Michigan Flint & Pass. Adv., Detroit, Mich.

Those special rates will expire Dec. 31, if not sooner sus-

ALABASTINE

THE TIME TRIED AND BEAUTIFUL COATING FOR WALLS AND CEILINGS.

ALABASTINE is unlike all other wall coatings.

It is recommended by Sanitarians and is not dependent upon glue or cement for its adhesive ness.

Walls can be decorated with Alabastine in any degree of elaboration from plain tints, plain painting with stencil ornamentations, to the most elaborate fresco, and decorating in relief.

Finer effects can be produced with the same money with Alabastine as with wall paper.

Send for a sample taken from the report of the Michigan State Board of Health, entitled "Sanitary Walls and Ceilings," containing all the paper and showing the evil results following its use.

We will also send free, an application of colored designs showing how walls and ceilings may be decorated with Alabastine and the stencils we manufacture.

MAKE NO MISTAKE.

Purchase no other wall coating, unless ALABASTINE is put up in paper packages and properly labelled.

Manufactured only by ALABASTINE COMPANY, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
