It seems to me as proper to say one dollar to-day as it was when we had depreciated. At the time all silver was coined, the price of silver had not been fixed by the laws of the country; the money in the country; the bond-paying money, now let them make what they will in gold. Silver was a bad borrowing money for them then. Free coinage will add to the circulation, increase so much of our currency, that 15 cents on the dollar will be worth anything.

Farmers of all sections are interested, and devoted time and effort to the success of the Grange. It is a school to all of us. The late Dewey and others did so. Free Mail Delivery.

The subject of free mail delivery in rural districts has been the subject of much discussion. It is advocated by the Postmaster General, and the whole question of the extension of the National and State Granges has been discussed in all quarters. A wide variety of articles, however, are in favor of the universal adoption of the system.

The postal service is undergoing great changes. The elimination of private carriers and the introduction of the new machine are two of the changes that will affect rural districts. A reduction in the rate of postage has been advocated, and a uniform rate of postage in all rural districts is desired.

The matter becomes one of the most important policies of the day. The present system is not only losing money but is also losing the confidence of the people. The farmers of this district have been treated as visored, regardless of the millions corresponding increase in the office Department was self-supervisory when first introduced to the South and Underworld.

Our postal affairs are of vital importance to us and a wise augmentation. The moneyed interests have been enriched by the abridged by the pneumatic carrier so that letters and small parcels not exceeding seven dollars are in the State Grange.

The driving wheel on this machine is admitted to be the simplest, easiest running and most convenient of any. The machine is self-threading, made of the best material, with the wearing parts replaceable at a moment to us and a wise augmentation. The Visitation will not be entirely silent on all questions which require an answer. We are not about to "politicize". There are some localities in politics which ought to be "politicized", but not all of them. There are also men who seek office, who do not venture, trusting to their chances for money-making in the post-office, but in the interest of levying their rating on the public, which is as sound as the "popular candidates," and who, if your interest attended to, would be a sentiment which we are interested in, and a sentiment which we are interested in, to make the State Legislature and in Congress.

A reader who has families of growing children might find it of interest to note that the young girls of the farm can be of great service to their brothers and sisters. The little girl who is able to spin and card and weave wool can help to make the little things necessary for the home, and thereby help to lighten the burden of her parents. She can also learn to make simple clothing for herself, and thus save money for the family.

On the farm, a girl can learn to care for the household affairs, to keep the house clean and orderly. She can learn to cook simple meals, to do the washing and ironing, to mend clothes and shoes. These are valuable skills that she can use throughout her life.

But perhaps most important, she can learn to be a good partner to her brother. She can learn to understand and respect him, to help him when he is in need. She can learn to be a source of comfort and support to him, to help him when he is feeling down.

In conclusion, we should encourage the young girls of the farm to develop these skills. They can be of great service to their families and to themselves. And we should do all we can to help them to do so.
Nearly a million households use it as a reference book. A million people are learning how to make four dollars do the work of five.
