PREJUDICE AND INTOLERANCE SUBJECT OF KINGDON'S CONVOCATION ADDRESS

Ability to Find Out "What Is What" is the Mark of An Educated Man, Says Rev. Kingdon of Central Methodist Church.

Students of prejudices that become sects in the minds of the ignorant from the basis of a great social evil of the present time, prejudice and intolerance," stated Rev. Frank L. Kingdon in his address to the students of Michigan State college at convocation last Wednesday morning.

"We are up against several difficulties," continued Rev. Kingdon. "The first of these is social apathy and the second is the lack of confidence in intelligence. The trouble is we want to be left alone socially, we can't be aroused easily, and we don't believe that by reasoning we can solve the problem that is facing us. We are too skeptical about the power of right thinking which will change and improve our living conditions. We must have social information and knowledge and breadth and variety of outlook. Our first duty is to find out 'What Is What,' and rid ourselves of prejudice and intolerance."

Rev. Kingdon showed how prejudice is based on ignorance and how knowledge quickly dispenses this social evil and went on to discuss a number of the outstanding social problems of the time. "First," he said, "We have the question of religious prejudices and intolerance. Here, in the case of the Catholic and the Protestant, the Pope, set up as a symbol of Catholicism has become a spectre merely because people have not taken the trouble to find out the facts—to find out 'What Is What.' Secondly, we have the case of the fundamentalist versus the modernist in which evolution is the symbol that has become a spectre in the twilight of ignorance. It is wrong that the symbol of a thing should displace actual information concerning it."

"We have also the industrial question," continued Mr. Kingdon, turning his attention to the problems of America. "Here we find two symbols,

ALUMNI MAGAZINE CHANGED TO MONTHLY

A number of new articles have been added among subscribers to the M. S. C. Record. It has been decided to change the publication from a weekly to a monthly edition.

The equipment consists of two billiard tables and three pool tables all with live cushions. The pool tables are the rotary style. Special lighting equipment designed to give the best effect possible has also been installed.

The tables are to be used by crowds as well as the male population of the college. No girls will be barred who wear the pin and possess the card as evidence of their membership in the Union.

The attempt will be made to turn the department into a sort of club where students can gather for a social hour while studying hard. Later in the year it is planned to secure the presence of some noted billiard and pool experts to explain and illustrate the game to those interested.

Although the billiard parlor is temporarily located on the first floor it is expected to furnish adequate accommodations for the present. Later on it will be moved to the third floor where the accommodations will be greatly increased, and the present location will be utilized for offices.

The kind of play and the men executing it are indicated by the flashing of a light opposite the name of the play or player. The game will start at two o'clock, according to our time. MILK PRODUCERS' ASS'N MEETS HERE

Michigan Milk Producers' Ass'n
Holds Annual Meeting.

The Michigan Milk Producers' association held its annual meeting at the college last Tuesday. Officers for the next three years were elected. Professor J. T. Horner of the economics department also addressed the meeting upon the subject of "Milk Marketing in Eastern Cities."

The association indicated its satisfaction with the work of its officers by re-electing the entire group. N. P. Hull of Lansing, J. C. Near, Flat Rock, W. C. McKinney, Davidsburg, and James Brackeberry, to the board of directors.

Several resolutions were passed, the chief one being a request that the officers study the pooling interests of the milk producers in view of equalizing the price paid to producers all over the state regardless of which distribution station they sell to, and to report at the next regular meeting or a special meeting which may be called for the purpose.

The college was given a vote of thanks for its hospitality and for its cooperation with the association in establishing cow testing associations.

CAMPUS IMPROVEMENTS BEING ACCOMPLISHED

Sidewalks and Roadway to New Hort Building Under Way.

Laying of new walks and roads about the horticultural building is being accomplished under arrangements perfected by T. Glenn Phillips, college landscape architect. There is to be a 20-foot road running east from the old horticultural building to the road on the east side of the campus. Walks will be laid from the new building to the greenhouses of the old hort building, to the bacteriology building, and a diagonal walk is to be laid across to the agricultural building.

A plan at present under consideration is that of a boulevard lighting system. Five simple types of lamp posts are being tried out to determine the most popular kind. The city of Lansing loaned the six which are at the entrance of the boulevard. One at the entrance was built by the Westinghouse Electric company, as was also that in front of the old library building. A light at the western end was furnished by the Westinghouse Electric company. The one in front of the engineering building is being installed with a concrete base. After a short session of watching the various types in operation a more efficient choice of lighting system for the entire campus may be made.

Five Man Cheering Team of First Water Leads Staters

Out of 23 men who have tried out for the cheer leading team under the direction of Larry Skellenger, major cheer-leader who was elected at the beginning of the fall term, four men have been chosen—three freshmen and one senior.

A wealth of experienced material was available this year and this fact has been made evident at the games this season. The team consists of Larry Skellenger, major cheer-leader; P. J. Pinson who was cheer-leader at Wyandotte high school last year; Arthur Whittington who led the cheering at Detroit Northwestern high last year; Wheeler Gray who gained his experience as leader of the East Lansing high school rooters, and Sidney Whittmore who was on the M. S. C. team last year.

A novel idea has been worked out by Larry Skellenger, who is probably the best acrobatic performer who has ever led the State college students. Each of the five men on the team is equipped with a megaphone and they are lettered to spell the word "S-T-A-T-E." Dressed in white trousers and

ON EDUCATION

A picture we have seen has brought this query to mind. A gander, pedgogical in array, occupies a professional seat while in front of him are seated stupid goslings, stupidly waiting for the pearls of wisdom and truth which may drop from inspired mandibles. Has the author, in whose book this sketch can be found, drawn a true picture of modern education?

Oftentimes we have felt it so. Oftentimes we grow restless when we receive assignments from books written by men whose knowledge was fresh in the Old Stone Age but which should be read now only to show the ancients naive ignorance or to glorify our advances.

James Harvey Robinson, one of the wisest men of the times, has recently made an extended examination of our undergraduate schools. He returns to say that "our schools teach everything except something new." Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the largest college in the world, assures us that we "must get back to Greek ideals."

"Why not get forward to some new and refreshing ideals of our own?" asks Albert Edward Wiggam. "The Greeks did, why can not we?" They did it by teaching their youth to think without the fetters of the past facing with courage and gaiety the things that are. Are our youth less to be trusted?" he challenges.

"It seems so," Wiggam states. "Take up any school textbook. Everything has been taken out of it which might offend the Catholics, or Jews, or Presbyterians, the Northerners or Southerners, or Democrats or Republicans or the Irish. After this purgation there isn't much left worth teaching. Votes must be had at all costs for another election is coming soon. As that astute citizen, Edwin E. Slosson, editor of Science Service, observes, "You are already demanding that we teach our young people a Baptist zoology, a Presbyterian chemistry and a Methodist astronomy."

The spirit of pioneering, the jump into the unknown, using the present as a starting point from which to penetrate the great unknown in knowledge, has been mentioned repeatedly by President Butterfield as an outstanding desideratum for Michigan State. And it cannot help but win for it a name unique in the educational world. Ever since its founding, in itself a rare piece of pioneering, it has stood for intelligence on things as they are. The Humanism of the Eastern United States and English schools and the Germanic system of the pure sciences were both dispensed with and a new something was created, sharing of the better characteristics of both great educational systems but distinct, novel and unique.

We feel that Michigan State in many respects is answering the challenge for a new idea in education. But we also know that considerable more must be done along many lines of endeavor before the transformation is complete. We trust the administration will continue to follow the broad lines laid down by the founders of this great state institution and to give to the world education that is now, modern, adequate and capable of filling the needs of a demanding world.

BRINGING HOME THE TEAM

One can imagine the humiliation and disappointment of Notre Dame university when the Army won over Notre Dame by a large count.

Yet, Notre Dame was not beaten. The entire student body tramped for three hours through darkness to welcome home their defeated team. That may be misdirected energy to some, but in reality it is loyalty to a team and to a fighting spirit.

Notre Dame may again be beaten, but with student devotion remaining as in the above instance, that university need never fear extinction.

Michigan State's team is at Penn State this Saturday. Why not meet our team at the train when it returns to Lansing? Win or lose let's bring home the team!

COLLEGE ACCOUNTS

Abuse of credit is a dangerous thing. College students are in the habit of being among the most careful people in the world.

Some are very ready to make use of the credit which their merchants extend to them, and there are a few who abuse this privilege.

Meet your financial obligations when they are due. Remember that the merchant must meet his bills when they are due or his credit is destroyed.

RUDOLPH The College Boy

A Serial Tragedy
By BIFF McBAM

Rudolph Ottenstraet, our hero from Burnips Corners, has just been rescued from durance vlt by a band of farmers and upper classmen. He returns to Wells Hall just in time to put on his old clothes and report for the Class Rush.

Rudolph and his roommate, Al Falfar, dressed hurriedly and hastened across the campus to the People's church. There about 500 freshmen were drawn up awaiting the signal to go. Rudolph and his partner joined the motley crew and soon his face was streaked with red paint and he took on the aspect of a wild Indian. If his mother could have seen him, she surely would have known that his Indian complex was asserting itself. When Rudolph was a small boy he had dreamed of Indians and this no doubt was a fulfillment of those dreams.

After a few minutes of impatient waiting, the yearling column moved forward toward the baseball field. While passing the gym, a crowd of sophs yelled defiance at them and razed them badly. A greater excitement swelled up in the breast of our hero. He vowed that he would smite with a mighty smiter and avenge this ignoble treatment. Soon, both fresh and sophs had filed into the field and the relay race was run off, with the freshmen winning easily. The sophs took the obstacle race with comparative ease and the count was knotted.

Rudolph could hardly wait for the football rush to commence for soon he would be able to strut his stuff for dear old '25.

As soon as the whistle sounded Rudolph sprinted for the first ball and made a dive for it just as his high school coach had instructed him, when he used to play football. Rudy attempted to rise but an overwhelming multitude of arms, legs, feet, heads and various other portions of anatomy descended on him in a veritable cloud and crushed him to the earth. Although an interested soil student, Rudolph did not appreciate the close contact he had with Ingham county soil for the contact was too close. His eyes, mouth and ears were filled with the finest assortment of fertile mud that would delight any muck farmer, but our hero did not appreciate this fact.

When the pile was finally dissembled, Rudolph was neglected. No one knew that he was in the bottom of the pile. The ball was gone and all concerned thought that someone had tossed it to the far end of the field. Rudy finally awoke to the fact that there was no force above him so he dug himself out and crawled out and staggered on the field. He did not know that he was carrying the ball. In fact, no one knew it because he was so covered with mud that the ball seemed to be part of him. He crossed the soph goal line and then fell.

A mighty cheer went up from the fresh stands when they saw that Rudy had scored. His great play had turned the tide for the freshmen and he was their hero. In the meantime Rudolph had collapsed. When he came to, he did not know what it was all about. Several husky sophs carried him to the gym where he reposed happily under the trainer's care while his mates were vainly fighting a fusillade of pepper in the flag rush.

Watch for Rudy Next Week

MISS GERALDINE McHENRY ADDED TO MUSIC STAFF

Increased enrollment in the music department has necessitated the addition of an additional instructor to the staff. Miss Geraldine McHenry, University of Michigan graduate, was chosen to fill the position.

Miss McHenry attended Lansing high school and the Lansing conservatory of music. At Ann Arbor, she was elected to Mu Phi Epsilon, national honorary society.

The new music teacher has participated in several recitals at Lansing and Ann Arbor and has played several numbers for stations WREO and WKAR.

WHY YOU NEED THIS GUIDE

It is safe to say that failure to guide and direct study is the weak point in the whole educational machine. Prof. G. M. Whipple, U. of Michigan.

The successful men in college do not seem to be very happy. Most of them, especially the athletes are overworked. Prof. H. S. Gantt, Yale.

Misdirected labor, though honest and well intentioned may lead to naught. Among the most important things for the student to learn is how to study. Without knowledge of this his labor may be largely in vain. Prof. G. F. Swain, M. I. T.

To students who have never learnt "How to Study," work is very often a chastisement, a flagellation and an insuperable obstacle to contentment. Prof. A. Inglis, Harvard.

"HOW TO STUDY" will show you how to avoid all misdirected effort.

Here's how to set the world afire

EVEN green wood burns, under the concentrated heat of the burning glass. Even this green earth can be kindled by the man who concentrates all the fire of his brain on what he is doing.

Concentration—secret of all great work.

- secret of the winning basket shot by the player who might well have been distracted by "burned" elbows and eyes clouded with perspiration.
- secret of the scholarship prize that might more easily have been allowed to slip by in favor of the twittering birds and the flowers that bloom in the Spring.
- secret of the electrical short cut devised by the engineer too intent on that single task to let the thousand and one time-killers of the business day get the upper hand.

Concentration was their burning glass. And focused ability set their worlds afire.

look good. The Junkaleers at South-eastern are coached by "Chuck" Angell, former Ohio State line mentor.

Wille Plant, one of nature's own who holds the national walking championship, will vie for the national seven-mile title Sunday afternoon down in "Little Old New York." Wille is quite the walker, and will in the near future contest for world's title walking honors.

Michigan Intercollegiate football this season is not showing the same class as in the past years. Perhaps the teams which make up the M. I. A. A. are only keeping pace with the other teams of the country. Practically all of the western eleven are only demonstrating mediocre football this fall. The far west is likewise slumping as was shown last Saturday by the defeat of the University of California at Gonzaga, the Catholic gridiron exemplifiers of Oregon, hold the coast hopes this season.

The eastern area of the United States, within which are the traditional teams of the nation—Harvard, Princeton and Yale—is bringing some real football into the limelight. The south, with its Vanderbilt and its Centre college, is not so hot. The colorful teams of the government, namely the Quantico Marines, Army and Navy, are all going with fairly hot momentum. The Marines oppose the University of Detroit this week at Detroit, and the Navy meets Michigan at Ann Arbor next week. The Army can still visualize its tactics, gaze upon its tackling dummies, and sing the chant which embodies the words, "We licked the Irish."

The stadium arrangements for the 1926 Olympic games at Amsterdam are being completed, and 35 acres will be used by the fighting athletes of every nation in the world.

Michigan State college invades the Atlantic seaboard section this week to do battle with Penn State's scrapping aggregation of clever gridlers. They should take a slight margin over the Penn Staters if they exhibit the same spirit and cooperation which was evident in the Centre college game here last Saturday. It will be a team from the west, imbued with fight, which meets a team from the east, which always fights. It is hoped that the last tinges of the mediocre football shown against Lake Forest has been swept aside by the cries and chastisement of the Michigan State alumnus. The writer is satisfied by State's efforts against Centre and likewise is fully aware that they are capable of giving the slides to Penn, whose record is not overly colorful this year, or marked with the brilliancy which usually features teams from Pennsylvania.

"REMEMBER THE SABBATH," McCUNE'S FOURTH TALK

Mr. McCune will give the fourth of his series of talks on the Ten commandments Sunday evening. The subject of this week's service will be "Remember the Sabbath." Interest in these talks seems to be mounting very rapidly, with each Sunday evening surpassing the previous one in point of attendance.

Co-ed Edna Says:

Another step forward in the evolution from her former condition of servitude! The last most distressing for in the physical education department has stepped aside from her former path and bobbed her hair. If this were a debate we would say "Therefore, it has been proven that a woman cannot be athletic and have long flowing tresses." However, we personally know of a co-ed who keeps up with the rest of them in spite of the handicap caused by her curls.

This idea advanced to the co-ed life savers that every girl bring another girl to practice reminds us slightly of another slogan "Every Aggie Get Another Aggie." Guess the co-eds decided that the unusual results achieved by the latter were worth trying for!

What about this life-saving idea, anyway? I overheard a boy the other day asking if these Life Savers meant an organization of co-eds who would go out on last minute dates.

You can't keep the athletic ladies in their places. Here is Miss Grims' trotting off to Jackson to give a talk when any of the rest of us "athletes" feels we could do it exactly as well, if not better.

Although the football team is going away this week-end with the assurance that the student body is backing them to a man, they will undoubtedly miss the cheery sound of shrill feminine voices urging them to "Smear 'em," and similar gentle actions. Some of the girls, however, are following their sweethearts and heroes to the field of battle and we feel sure their cheering will aid the boys in their fight for the glory of their Alma Mater.

Those of us who are staying in East Lansing over the week-end are going once again, or for the first time, to be initiated into the mysteries of the grid graph. The fellows are asking how girls who don't understand football anyway, can see into the inner secrets of the game as portrayed in that fashion? But we are going to show them. The plan is that we girls are going to sit very quietly until the masculine members of the audience break out into their usual wild cheers. Then we too will burst forth into loud "hurrahs," and if everyone works together this plan should secure us plenty of credit for understanding the great game from "A" to "Z."

It is welcome news that the co-ed hike scheduled for Saturday has been changed from 20 miles to 10. We feel sure now that there will be a few more co-eds attending classes next week than the instructors were counting on a few days ago.

Class practices for hockey and soccer were begun last Monday afternoon. The girls are all working to be chosen to fight for their respective classes and the competition is strong. The inter-class games will be held in about three weeks and the team members are to be picked.

from the girls who are going out for W. A. A. practices.

Life-saving practice is held every Wednesday evening at 7. The girls already attending this as a regular thing are each requested to bring one more girl with them every Wednesday to swell the ranks of the Life Savers.

The first annual cross country hike for co-eds will take place Saturday when they will hike ten miles to Park Lake. They will leave the Union building at 10 o'clock. Be sure to sign up at the gym as soon as possible.

Those who have not exchanged their coupons for a student ticket by the noon of the day of the game will have to pay the full admission price. No securing of tickets at the gate will be allowed hereafter. Hereafter students will have a special gate in the stadium through which they must enter. Student tickets are not transferable and cannot be sold.
