

GREAT INTEREST FOR UNION REVUE SHOWN AT MEET

First Informal Meeting Brings Out Many Good Suggestions; Thirty-one Attend.

TYRELL MANAGER

To Use New Plan in Selecting Cast for 1927 Production; Hire Outside Director.

Some thirty interested students, men and coeds alike, responded to an informal call by Norval Tyrell, student manager and fully authorized director of the 27 production of the Union Revueville. Though everything taken up at this first meeting of the year came only in the manner of suggestions, a well formed student opinion was brought to light concerning the many problems met with in previous years.

Tyrell has been selected by the Union Board of State college as general manager of the production this year, after much discussion was apparent last spring over the manner in which the supplanted Union Revueville was conducted.

Five major phases of the production were brought up for suggestions and discussion. First came the selection of the personnel committee, which would select the parts, assign the parts, and select the chorus. This idea was amended to entertain a counter idea that the personnel committee only choose through a process of elimination a group of twenty candidates for the chorus, whom they would recommend to the director. The director will be an outsider, having a professional hearing. From this group of coeds recommended by the committee he will make the final selections. This is not definitely decided upon as yet but as brought up Wednesday night was only in the shape of a suggestion.

CONVO SPEAKER NAMES SUBJECT

Dr. Harold Hough to Talk on "Living With Great Minds" October 12.

Announcement has been made of the subject of the address to be made by Dr. Lynn Harold Hough at convocation, Tuesday, October 12. The title of his talk will be "Living With Great Minds." Dr. Hough is the first of a group of notable personalities to appear before the student assembly.

Dr. Hough has been in turn editor, professor, university president, author and minister at large. Born at Colio, Ohio, in 1877, he entered the ministry in 1898, at the age of 21. From the ministry, Dr. Hough was placed in the faculty of the Garrett Bible Institution. Occupying the post of historical theology, he remained here from 1912 to 1914, then going to Northwestern university as president. Dr. Hough held the office of president for five years, resigning in 1919 to accept the pastorate of the Central Methodist Episcopal church at Detroit, where he is located at the present time.

Dr. Hough published his first book in 1906, at the age of 29. Since then he has written a number more, making 25 in all. In addition to being pastor of the Detroit church, Dr. Hough is also contributing editor to the Christian Century.

During the literary and theological career of Dr. Hough, he has been the recipient of nine degrees from as many colleges.

CONTRACT LET ON CAMPUS ROADS

Let Contract to Edward Cousins of Lansing; to Open Bids on New Reservoir.

The contract for the new roadway around the campus has been awarded to Edward Cousins of Lansing. The state highway department announced that construction of the new boulevard will start immediately.

The campus drive will be completed by the first of next year. It is expected that the total cost of the new roadway will be more than $15,000. The plans call for about two-thirds of a mile of gravel-surfaced road with concrete curb and gutter. In some places the new roadway will follow the old one and at other points will cut through the campus proper. The drive will start at the present campus entrance, striding around the campus in front of the home economics and women's buildings, pass the agricultural building, to the gymnasium and ending at the west entrance, making a complete circuit. It is expected that an asphalt surface will be applied some time in the future.

Bids for a new reservoir, to be constructed under ground, will be opened some time this week. The new storage tank will displace the necessity of pumping unfiltered water from the Red Cedar into the college water mains in case of emergency.

NEW RESIDENTS ARE RECEIVED BY CHURCH

A reception was held at the People's church on Wednesday evening, Oct. 6, for the benefit of the strangers in the college and new residents of East Lansing.

The guest were received by the old members of the church and the church officials. The meeting was full of friendliness and good fellowship, and it is hoped that it will do much to stimulate the cooperative spirit of the church with the college and city, since it was with this end in view that so many of these parties have been and are being planned.

Russian Wins Education in Face of Difficulties

Curiosity, imagination, adventurous spirit, all these have led many a man into the realm of fame and success. On the campus of Michigan State we have a man who has really attained success in his own little way. He is not conceited or self-satisfied but has truly overcome many obstacles in life to gain his ultimate goal, greater educational opportunities. To those who travel the soft and comfortable path through life without worry or care, this may mean nothing but to Stephen Antonoff it means everything in the world.

Stephen Antonoff was born in a small town in White, Russia, near Rost-Latvick. As a boy he was a great reader and student. Stories interested him and not content with Russian authors' descriptions he would set off to see the places for himself.

Schools of Russia were very strict and requirements for entrance in high schools necessitated high social prestige or practically perfection in every study. Stephen with profound determination passed the examinations and began high school. However, at the age of 17 his loving spirit led him to venture away from home in a thirst for knowledge and understanding.

With a small supply of money in his pocket, he set off for the capital of Austria. From there he went to Paris. Paris did not appeal to him because of its frivolity. He wanted to learn something and pleasure stood in the way of education. He set out for Havre, France, then to London, England. At school in Russia, Stephen had learned to read English and picked it up as best he could as he went along. After a few months wandering about London he went to Liverpool and from there to New York.

In New York, Stephen had his first taste of discouragement. He immediately began to look up the quickest way to get back. The trip across the ocean again did not appeal to him so he remained in New York. He met another Russian who asked him credit in learning English and securing a job. Stephen bought an English Russian grammar which he memorized in a month, all of 32 lessons. Priding himself on his ability, he wandered west to Detroit. There he secured a job in a factory and attended night school, taking courses in English, history and physics.

When the war broke out, Mr. Antonoff having taken out his citizenship papers early in his life in the United States, was drafted in the army. He served 16 months in Russia and returned to Detroit. He tried to get into a college but they required his high school credits which, of course, he could not supply. Undaunted he resolved to return to high school. He entered a technical high school in Detroit and afterwards entered college in Detroit as a special student, going to school during the day and working nights.

Stephen Antonoff's intentions were to attend Columbia. He visited New York and found it too hopped in and too expensive. Michigan State was then brought to his attention. He came here and was pleased. He lived the rural atmosphere and the friendly spirit and enrolled in the engineering department from which he will graduate this year.

In this Russian-born, United States citizen, there is an excellent example. His ambition is to know things. His advice is that culture makes a man want a diploma that he will truly be contented and education is culture. He is proud to show and one he will be able to prove that he has earned. When he has graduated he plans to go to Siberia to see his family and then to take up seriously structural engineering.

But for more important in Stephen's outlook on life is the actual attainment of a broad, constructive, and understanding education. To him a diploma is a step past representing his progress and without the advance designated the diploma is meaningless to him. He is not ashamed that little knowledge is humble to dodge, but has the diploma as a goal of attainment to be desired.

He is one of the seldom found college men who really need play. How much better the aim of life are when it is play instead of work that must be proscribed.

OUR ANNUAL FOOTBALL HYSTERIA

If a man who is handicapped chooses a number of beans one at a time from a pile of beans that contain in equal numbers both black and white, eventually it will be found the man will choose approximately an equal number of each color. If the test is continued long enough the colors will be chosen exactly the same number of times. If five times more black beans than white ones are placed in the pile then the man will choose five times as many blacks as he does whites. The law of averages says so and experiment has proved the law to the hilt.

Satisfied approximately 1,000 people are, because a mild form of football hysteresis has been found to exist in the minds of the spectators and being up to its reputation. The excitement of the University of Michigan is approximately five times as great as of Michigan State college and the ratio of men going to the football is probably greater than five to one.

If men had no more individual characteristics than beans, the odds would be five to one that Michigan State never beats Michigan and this year, not next year, not ever.

However, men are not beans in a college that includes individuality in its curriculum. That has been proved in those past years winners of the Green and White cup in the various sports the "colors" that beat in the sky.

On one occasion in M. S. C. Michigan football played the Green and White marked down the field through M. S. C. signs that in a few days with "the five yard line" and heard the time keeper call the ball before the rough-down could be started over. Later in the game a Michigan man kicked a ball into which gave them a three-pointing victory. You say, Michigan luck. It was not Michigan luck. M. S. C. was beaten because the man who had the power to carry the ball for M. S. C. carried Michigan's goal and was given the ball for the first play he had the ball ended.

In another occasion M. S. C. played Michigan in a football until the M. S. C. safety man allowed a punt to rebound off his hands. After that the Michigan side moved along the customary channels.

Both of these incidents were not due to the fault of the players but to the fault of the M. S. C. head Michigan spirit. That spirit said, Beat Michigan or someone's head goes in the basket.

M. S. C. has been challenged to M. S. C. but the spirit of the institution has not changed appreciably, as far as it concerns this annual football game.

Three weeks of hysterical pursuit of hope, three weeks of driving the team three weeks of compelling the dope, then the deluge.

The Michigan game has been compared up to a monster that oozes up the football boys and aspirations of M. S. C.

That man personated an M. S. C. quarter back to attempt the personal harvesting of the glory and adulation which would follow a touchdown that brought victory over Michigan. The urge stood at the elbow of an M. S. C. fullback all set to catch an easy punt. The urge shouted, "catch it, beat Michigan". The ball changed from a chunk of wood in a leather overcoat into a vehicle freighted with the curses of the universe. As previously stated the back became so enmeshed in the workings of the spirit that he failed to close his arms when the punt dropped. He was immediate-any one year's schedule. The football schedule at M. S. C. contains plenty of work for any team in the United States. A creditable showing in the games to be played should awaken pride in the heart of every M. S. C. student and every alumnus of the institution regardless of the outcome of the Michigan game or any other single game.

The coaches should not be placed under the burden of a demand to use all of this institution's football resources to beat Michigan. Michigan regards the annual battle as a practice game. There is no reason why they should not. No one seems to have conceived the idea that M. S. C. could use this game for the same purpose. The season at M. S. C. does not end after the game. The players could get much valuable experience from playing one of the best teams in America if they could go into the game without the handicap of a burden of a demand that they defeat a combination of the U. of M. and the law of averages.

M. S. C. players this year have already remained glued to their seats while the team won two games; one against a school of equal enrollment. The shoes squeaked like a consumptive tickling his nose farewell. At that, the cheering section beat the record of some M. S. C. gatherings.

The news of Michigan's win over Oklahoma was welcomed. The writer has heard M. S. C. letter writers who said "hats off" at the announcement of Michigan's probable defeat. An exhibition of that kind and a cry to stop amicable relations with the U. of M. are the two evils in a dictionary of the corruption.

The M. S. C. players from the Michigan game should be given M. S. C. athletics through their own ears, and these same players should carry the load of some athletics at M. S. C.

The U. of M. game viewed in the proper light could be made into a source of much benefit to each team in the season.

There is little hope of changing Michigan's opinion about this game. The result of the M. S. C. team could go the other way when the Michigan game was one of the best of the end of the football trail. Teams that were going to be so dangerous to the college of Central Wisconsin, Wisconsin and Harvard Indians were not found on. All that M. S. C. should demand of its team in the U. of M. game is that eleven M. S. C. men should be a good game gang playing to the limit of their natural ability with the knowledge that M. S. C. students and faculty, past, present, and future, stand behind them fifty-two weeks each year.

The student body at Hinnover college recently "walked out" in protest to a rule compelling all coeds to be in their dormitories or houses after six o'clock—a case of coeducation minus cooperation. We wonder what the Hinnover faculty will do during the winter when it gets dark before six. Classes seem to have learned something from the masses in staging a walk out.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION GAINS POPULARITY

The good physical education department reports an enrollment of over 500 girls for this term, indicating that physical training among the fair members of our campus is gaining in popularity.

Beside the regular courses offered in individual gymnastics, hockey, soccer and swimming, 25 girls are taking the course in fencing under the direction of Joseph Waffa.

An increase in the number of junior and senior girls in the department is shown with 26 upperclassmen minor-ing in physical education.

Co-ed Edna Says:

Well, boys and girls, ladies, gentlemen and freshmen, here I am again. Just when you thought you were finally rid of me, too.

But, you see, there is no such thing as getting rid of a campus pest. A new one only comes along to take his place. And so with me.

Doesn't it make you feel old, you dignified juniors and seniors, to see that handsome "30" on your water tower? Why, I feel as though some one might say to me, "my minute." "Edna, you should really have that last tooth pulled. And why don't you start in dyeing your hair?" Does it affect you that same way?

Well, anyway, we're all back again and the goose hangs high, or at least I understand that it's going to soon.

All the sororities and fraternities are either going under new names or praying that they soon will. And what's the use, anyway? A homely girl is just as hard to look at when she's a member of the Anybody's Literary Society as when she goes by the term of a Sappo Sappo.

Some of us have new dining rooms; others of us are still rusing last year's cook for Thursday evening's custard and Friday noon's tuna fish. While others are saying,

"Oh, my dear, it certainly is such an advantage to eat in one's house! You can't imagine how we are enjoying it." And just the other day I heard of a sorority which is using a cow bell to call its girls to their meals. Draw your own conclusions, and don't blame me—heaven knows I didn't want to tell it.

I'll tell you a funny thing. Go over and watch the freshman girls swimming class. It's simply a scream! Actually, Elizabeth, the water washed every bit of rouge off a girl's face this morning, and you can imagine how she felt! Her nose was actually shiny. Miss Grimes simply would not excuse her to replace it, so she had to go the whole period looking a perfect fright. I don't see how she ever stood it.

All right, then, I won't bore you any longer with this silly discourse. See you at the Michigan game. But one more warning—don't even consider going to Ann Arbor Saturday unless your fur coat gets here in

HISTORIC RIVALS TO CLASH IN ANNUAL EVENT AT FERRY FIELD

Spartan Coaches Make No Predictions; Michigan Has Powerful Passing Team; Several Injuries In Spartan Squad; Danziger Declared Eligible Thursday; Hard Games of Season Remain On Schedule.

Those historic rivals, Michigan and Michigan State, will stage their annual clash Saturday on the gridiron of Ferry Field at Ann Arbor. In all probability this will be the last clash of the two schools on the historic Ferry Field. Michigan is building a new stadium and it will probably be ready for use by next fall.

Spartan coaches have made absolutely no predictions this season. Michigan possesses its wonderful passing game of last season again this year. If the aerial game of the Wolverine can be repeated, State should have a very hard time.

The game will be a great one for both sides. Michigan's football squad has been playing better of late, and it is expected that they will be able to give the Spartans a good game. The Spartans, on the other hand, have been playing poorly and it is expected that they will be unable to give Michigan a good game.

Paul Smith, hero of every game to date, has an injured ankle that has been giving the trainers plenty of work.

The Michigan tilt will open the major part of State's 1926 schedule. The game at Ann Arbor this year is of less importance than the game at East Lansing. Michigan's season looks to be a very good one. State has its other games to look to. From Saturday until Nov. 13 it will be one tough struggle after another for the Spartans.

Danziger Ready

An unusual announcement was made in the football camp of the Spartans to the effect that Danziger was removed from scholastic discipline and stands ready for action on Friday. He was a star of the team last year but has been ineligible so far this season. In prep school days Danziger was one of the greatest players who ever played a Detroit gridiron.

For the last time students are warned to be sure and take their student books to the Michigan game. The ticket handed out by Michigan State, which is expected to be a real and the work done by the Michigan State football team through the game at Ferry Field.

SELL OUT INDICATED FOR GAME TOMORROW

Indications Friday were that for the first time in history the University of Michigan-Michigan State game at Ann Arbor Saturday would be a sell-out. Michigan is completely sold out on all its other games and the State tilt has been the only one many of the Wolverine followers will be able to witness.

STATE'S GRID FOES MAKE GOOD RECORD

Haskell Indians Run Up 177 Point Total In Three Games; Colgate Strong.

State's foes on the gridiron this fall are making an enviable record. The Haskell Indians have run up a total of 177 points in three games played so far this year.

They have defeated Indiana and Colgate in two games and are now playing Colgate on Saturday.

Colgate had a victory in the game of Saturday but the latter was composed of men who played with their State and Pennsylvania teams.

Colgate has not been going so good but it has been a surprise over the 177 points. It is expected that the Haskell Indians will play a very good game on Saturday.

MASON VIEWS CROSS COUNTRY TEAM UNDER FIRE

All-College Run Next Saturday; Meet Notre Dame Following Week-End.

Coach Horton Mason had his first opportunity to see what his cross-country team can do under the big Friday afternoon when the nation was staged over the East Lansing short course. Any man who had not won a letter in cross-country was eligible to compete, and this ruling barred only Captain Severance and Waterman, the lone veterans on the team.

Next Saturday the all-college run will be held over the full course with several prizes offered by the coaches. On the following weekend comes the first dual meet of the season with Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind.

Cross-country prospects are not at the greatest order in the East Lansing camp. The fact that State has only a handful of promising material and even at that nearly all of it is a season together with assistance from the three State opponents that their teams are the best in their territory has caused the Spartans to be in a considerable slump.

It is a known fact that Notre Dame was never stronger in cross-country and that Marquette, led by the great Melvin Shimlock, will bring a strong aggregation to East Lansing. The University of Michigan, which will be met over the local course, has never been known to have a weak team and State chances for winning a single four point with the national at hand are far from good.

For the medical students who have a lot of questions regarding the health of the team, they should consult the physician in charge of the team, Dr. J. W. Knapp.

TRIMORIANS WIN BOWLING MATCH

The Trimorians won their bowling match at the University of Michigan on Friday night with a score of 2-1.
