John D. Willard, Director of Continuing Education Announces Opening of School.

Establishment of a correspondence school with courses in economics, sociology and home economics, to be ready by Jan. 1, has been announced by John D. Willard, director of continuing education.

Details of the courses and the question of college credit for work will be determined later according to Mr. Willard.

Administration of the school will be handled by the office of continuing education.

Courses which are expected to be ready by Jan. 1 are: Economics, agricultural economics, history and principles of cooperation, and principles of marketing and survey—principles of secondary and rural sociology, home economics, the modern family and household management.

Additional courses will be developed by additional departments of the college as rapidly as possible.

The state board of agriculture at a meeting Nov. 24 approved the general plan of the correspondence work.

The Social Whirl

Edited by Dorothy Showmith

Due to the exodus of students from the campus over Thanksgiving vacation, no social affairs were scheduled last week and most of the sorority houses were closed during this time. Only a scarcity of occupants remained in the fraternity homes. Those who spent the vacation here resorted to Lansing amusements in the way of entertainment.

Collingwood

Helen Coffman returned home for an indefinite time after spending several days at the college hospital. Ruth Hall and Irene Johnston spent Thanksgiving in Pontiac as the guests of Jean Clark. Mae Brinkman visited Pamela Loft at Coldwater.

At Home

Thanksgiving dinner was served at the house Tuesday evening. Clyde Beck was the guest of Pierre Lonsberry at Aleson and Sherwood. Chas. Harting returned home with Don Gardner of Howell. Charles Johnston and Lee Sparling spent the vacation with friends in Toledo and Detroit, respectively.

Practice House

Tea was served to freshmen at the house Monday. Miss Gross, instructor, remained at the house during vacation.

Residence

Florence Huntley returned home with Dorsey Causser of Geneva. Ind and Dorothy Johnson was the guest of Ha Tomner at Sandusky.

Phi Chi Alpha

Harry Newell of Lansing and James Davis of Cedar Springs have been added to the pledge list.

Union Literary

James McElroy, Clarence Cook, Art Anderson and Dean Swift spent Thanksgiving vacation in East Lansing.

Clouston

Freda Deady attended the Lavo stock show in Chicago the week of Thanksgiving vacation.

LaVerne Snyder and Frank Williams remained at the house during vacation.

Python

The marriage of H. Becker of Lansing to Miss Dona Goodrich, also of Lansing, took place Saturday, Nov. 27, at the First Presbyterian church in Lansing.

Phi Kappa Tau

Epsilon

Twenty needy East Lansing boys were served Thanksgiving dinner at the house Tuesday evening. The affair was sponsored by pledges of the fraternity.

John Olson, Ted Stevens, J. B. Edwards and Walter McLean spent the vacation at the house.

The indoor baseball game, which was to have been played with the Phi Kappa Tau on Saturday, Nov. 27, was indefinitely postponed because of the freshmen football game.

Kappa Delta

Miss Nova Lovewell was a dinner guest Tuesday evening.

Alpha Chi

Pledges entertained the pledges of other sororities at a theater party Thursday afternoon.

Kay and Beth Gillis remained at the sorority house during vacation.

Chi Omega

Genevieve Lakin spent Thanksgiving vacation as the guest of Lois Harwood in the Women's building.

Mabel Gettel visited in Detroit during vacation.

Co-ed Edna Says:

"So another vacation is over, and we're back at the same old grind, but not for long now. It certainly is a good thing though, but we mustn't overwork college students. They have two weeks of school and a week of exams in which to recuperate from our Thanksgiving vacation before going home to rush through the Christmas holidays.

And now, I suppose you are all going to settle down to a little honest to goodness studying, my dear fellow students, to make up for the loafing you've indulged in all term. Don't worry, it's never too late to reform. I once passed a course in the last week of school. Of course, back in those days, the profs were not so hard boiled as they profess to be now, and it was easier to put things over on them. Still, it can be done.

The story about weak eyes, you know, always goes over big. And then, if you are a senior, the school is usually so anxious to assist you in departing that they are willing to overlook almost everything in order to get you out of their classes. There is such a thing as being such a pest that it does you a little good, you know. Everyone says, "Oh, for heaven's sake, graduate him and get him out of the way."

So here's the moral of my little tale: Everybody can find his own special means of getting through courses. Some do it through application and hard work, but others have more original ways. If one method doesn't work, try another.

STATE OPENS COURT SEASON DECEMBER 8

ADRIAN COLLEGE COMES TO LOCAL GYM FOR BATTLE

Lineup of State Unknown; Quintet Meets Michigan Away In Second Game.

Basketball, as far as games are concerned at least, will get under way Wednesday, Dec. 8, when Adrian college opposes State on the local court.

Intensive drills got under way Monday night. Coach Ben Van Alstyne plans to hold practices each night for the rest of the season.

Adrian Tough

In Adrian, State is meeting a foe that is exceedingly difficult to topple in an opening contest. Last year the Adrian team achieved quite a bit of success on a trip east. About ten powerful eastern quintets were met and a goodly number of Adrian wins resulted.

The Adrian team this season is a veteran one, and will give State even stiffer opposition than last season.

Probably every effort will be made to give as many State players as possible a chance in the opening fray. Because of Coach Van Alstyne's newness at State it will be necessary for him to find out personally what each player can do under fire.

Michigan Second

Three days after the fray with Adrian, State will tilt the lid on Michigan's court season. Coach Van Alstyne stresses the point that he is not pointing his team for any particular game but rather for the entire season.

Offensive rather than defensive play is likely to be stressed this season, it would seem.

Just who will start for State is unknown. A good guess would be L. Smith and Hood forwards, Colvin center, and Fredericks and Kelly guards. Cunniff, Knickerbocker, Edwards, Stevens and several others will in all probability break into the opening fray.

THETA ALPHA PHIGIVE FIRST PLAY OF YEAR TONIGHT

The play deals with the college student and his blissful ignorance of the trials and tribulations of a struggling family which is attempting to foot the bills as they pour in. Play-acting in the lead roles as the unknown hopefuls are Milton Grams and Marian Trumbull. Grams is seen as Bradley Ingals, while Marian Trumbull plays the part of his sister Lois.

Those who attended either "When Grams Shows Revolt of Youth" or "A Feller Needs a Friend" at the out-door play, "Francisco da Kinsha" last spring will remember the clever work of Grams. In the former he brought down the house with laughter in the role of Jerry, the cook. In the out-door play he held the part of the knowing fool, who was rewarded for his jests with death.

Playing supporting roles are Benjah Watson as Eunice Ingals, the mother of this pair, Warren Brown as Bernard Ingals the father, Ruth Norton as Mrs. Bradley, the mother of Eunice, Clyde Olin in the role of Hugh, the older brother of the family, who is himself in a love tangle with Dagmar, Carroll, played by Beatrice Bohm. Miss Bohm will be remembered for her part in the out-door play last spring as Francesca.

Other members of the cast are Noel Derby, a friend of Bernard's and Elliott Kimberley, a corrupt politician, both played by Forrest Hubert. Leo Day, played by Frank Gustafson, Julia Murchoch, Mrs. Ingals' sister, taken by Ellen Farley, Ronald Murchoch, played by Wayne Barkwell, and Rhode, which is also played by Beatrice Bohm.

G. W. Hobbs, of the mechanical engineering department is on leave of absence, working on design at the Reo Motor Car company in Lansing. He will return the first of the year.

NEW DIVISION FOR COACHES TO OPEN HERE NEXT TERM

erving as head of the department will teach courses in track and football theory, as will Miles Casteel, present assistant coach in both of these fields. Bernard Traxnor, assistant grid coach who came here this year from Colgate, will teach a course in football theory and practice.

Ralph J. Leonard, coming here this year from a successful career at Penn State, will find himself engaged as a specialist in the teaching of wrestling and soccer. He will probably also handle a class in Lat-trosse theory.

Brown National Tank Critic

Under the new athletic coaching division, State will be fortunate to have a course dealing with swimming technique, which can compare to any similar course in the country. W. Sneyd Brown, who is also a new man on the staff here, hails from the I. O. O. F. of Michigan tanksters. He is recognized as a leading national authority on swimming.

John Kobs, former basketball coach, and again named baseball manager for next spring, will teach prospective coaches in the art of the diamond game and in the field of hockey as well. Kobs is also a national authority on this latter phase of athletics, having been a well-known hockeyist at Hamlin College in Minnesota.

Benjamin Van Alstyne, of Colgate, who is now starting his first season as head coach of varsity basketball will devote his classroom activity to that field.

Burbans to Teach Gym Work

I. D. Burbans, former State college wrestling coach, and director of general gymnasium activity, for several years has a broad background of experience, and he will handle a class in general gym work.

Prof. L. Ball in tennis and Martin Mason, whose specialty is cross country and distance running, will round out the teaching staff in their respective fields.

Leon L. Frimodig, assistant director of athletics will probably serve as assistant in the new division to Mr. Young. He has several years of capable ticket sales promotion and intramural athletic management on his record and his service in the new school will undoubtedly consist of a course in athletic management.

Jack Heppinstal, veteran trainer of the college teams, will have charge of a course in this field.

Degree to Be Granted

Students who make their debut in this latest division of Michigan State may cheer to specialize in physical education work leading to recognition for coaching positions, or for mass physical education work as gym instructors. Others will be allowed in any niche chosen within the major group, such as the scope which the new course embraces. The following course will occupy four years, leading to B. S. degree.

A complete outline of courses, hours given, and instructions will be forth-coming prior to the meeting of the winter term under the State Board of Agriculture ruling.

Phelan New Dean

Dean John Phelan will assume the position of dean over the new division since it is to be correlated with his present department, but later developments and the success of the new courses, tend to point toward a separation with the naming of a dean of physical education and coaching tactics.

GRID SCHEDULE FOR NEXT FALL ABOUT FINISHED

Spartans Likely to Meet Elevens of Lesser Power in 1927.

An invitation to play the Army on the gridiron next fall was turned down recently by the Michigan State College athletic department, according to Ralph Young, director, today. The cadets desired to meet State on the day of the Spartan game with Michigan. Consequently the offer was refused.

By Dale B. Stafford, '30

Michigan State College's 1927 football schedule is expected to be made public Saturday after the meeting of the board in control of athletics at Michigan State Friday, according to Ralph Young, director of athletics.

The minor sport schedules are also likely to be made public in the near future as these were practically arranged after the big ten meeting in Chicago over the past week end.

No ideas are available yet as to who Michigan State will meet next fall.

Kazoo Likely Foe

Kalamazoo College is regarded as a certainty on the card while Michigan, traditional rival of State, has already announced the date of our game there.

In an interview late Monday Coach Young declared Lake Forest would not be met next year. The Illinois team has entered a conference and playing State here would have necessitated playing six out of eight games away from home. Adrian also is not expected to be met while Cornell, Colgate and Haskell are all regarded as out on the next season's schedule. Cornell is taking on one more powerful eastern foe next year while Colgate would not promise a return game here in 1928.

Football and tennis failed to prove good drawing cards this fall and consequently are not likely to be played again next year.

Traditionalism Sought

Just what will comprise State's schedule to be seen. Relations are sure to be opened with schools that have not met the Spartans in the past.

An effort to build up traditional rivalry, as well as to be made during the next season. So far Michigan is State's only traditional enemy. Most of these and in adding interest to the schedule of a football team. That is square deal is the keynote of Rickey's character. It is the hallmark of the true sportsman. In his progress from the baseball field of Ohio Wesleyan university to his present position as vice-president and business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, Rickey has been the champion of clean sport. He has been a dominant figure in baseball for 20 years and has won the respect of all who know him for his unflinching adherence to the principles for which he stands.

Sees Future for Athletics

Rickey is a practical, clear thinking business man, as well as a sports man. He has, in fact, been characterized as a combination of baseball player, lawyer, soldier, orator, hunter, bank director and student of men and events. He believes that baseball as well as the game of life should be played above board. His lecture makes a forecast of the future of American athletics. He illustrates his statements with thrilling human interest stories from his baseball experience.

Scorns Sunday Baseball

An interesting sidelight on Rickey's character is his faithfulness in the face of ridicule and scorn to a promise made to his mother. When a little fellow, he gave his word to his mother that he would never attend a Sunday baseball game. This promise he has never broken. Although he has been active on the baseball diamond for 20 years, he
