THETA ALPHA PHI STATE DEBATERS READY TO GIVE "THE YOUNGEST" OVER U. OF D. TRIO

Will Be Last Play of Winter Term; Date Will Be Announced Soon.

GIVE LIGHT COMEDY Expect to Name Play for Spring Term Within Short Time; Plan Summer Play.

The date for the production of the first play to be presented this term by Theta Alpha Phi national honorary dramatics fraternity, "The Youngest" by Philip Barry was set at a meeting of the dramatics fraternity this week for two weeks hence.

Before a record crowd, the largest ever to attend an intercollegiate debate at Michigan State College with the possible exception of the Cambridge State debate, the State negative debating team opened the forenoon session here last night by winning a 2-1 decision of the judges over the affirmative team representing the University of Detroit on the question: Resolved, that the Volstead Act should be amended to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer.

The Michigan State team based their defense on the theory that alcohol is at all times injurious and that personal liberty must give way to the good of the social group.

The Detroit team had a polished team with an excellent display of only display of the debaters of a seasoned variety. All these members of the team are seniors of three seasons experience.

President Kenyon L. Butterfield acted as chairman of the debate while the judges were Chief Justice Nelson, Judge LeGrand W. Carr, Judge McArthur, Milton Burgh, Robert Hair and Thomas Remondell.

Following the debate a reception was held in the Union for the Detroit team, the members of the State debate squad and the members of Phi Kappa Delta.

CO-ED ADVISOR ATTENDS MEET

Mrs. Powell Returns from Convention of Deans of Women at Dallas, Texas.

Mrs. Clara E. Powell, advisor of girls at Michigan State College, returned Wednesday from Dallas, Texas, where she attended the national convention of Deans of Women during the previous week.

The program consisted of visits to the Southern Methodist University, Dallas; the State Teachers' college, Denton; the State college for Texas, Austin; and a series of luncheons and teas at which there were discussions and speeches by outstanding deans of the country.

Some of the educators present were Dr. Ernest High, college of education, State University of Iowa; Dr. C. P. Rugh, department of education, University of California; Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, dean emerita, Simpson College; Miss B. B. Hake, former dean of Smith College; Miss P. P. Pennington, president of Wellesley college; Virginia White, dean of women at Vassar University; Miss Smith, dean of girls, University high school, Chicago; and Miss Irma Vogt, dean of women at Ohio University.

Each day the luncheon period was given over to discussion groups. These groups were organized according to the interests of the individuals attending the convention. Such topics were discussed as "Academic Ranking of Deans of Women," "Extra Curricular Activities," "Personal Work among Students," and "Finer Living Through Better Living."

The outstanding feature of the convention was a reception and formal dinner held at the headquarters, Hotel Baker. Miss Iva Leather Peters, dean of women at Syracuse University, who has traveled extensively and is able to speak many languages, gave a talk on "The Youth Movement." The other speaker of the evening was the guest of honor, Mrs. Lois K. Mathews Roseberry of Madison, Wis.

Each afternoon there was given a tea for the convention guests. Those sponsoring these were the Women's club of Dallas, the Southern Methodist University of Dallas, and the State Teachers' college of Denton. The last day the entire group of deans were entertained by the State College for Women at Denton.

Moulton Guides Listeners on Journey into Space

A journey into infinite space guided by stupendous figures too vast to grasp was led by Dr. Ernest R. Moulton, one of the world's most famous astronomers and discoverer of a new astronomical region, in the chemistry lecture room Wednesday night.

The occasion was the installation of Sigma Xi, one of the best known honorary scientific fraternities of which Dr. Moulton is president. Dr. Moulton discussed his own work in the field of astronomy under the topic of "Making of Worlds."

The lecture was completely illustrated with slides of the moon, sun, constellations, and diagrams demonstrating theories of the composition of the universe.

Dr. Moulton led the audience gradually by way of the earth, moon, sun, stars, to a nearly understandable comprehension of the universe. From the consideration of the sun, which is thousands of times larger than the earth, groups of 10,000 suns which seemed to be touching each other but in reality the ones closest together being an average distance of 100,000 times as far apart as the earth is from the sun.

From the groups of 10,000 suns, the listeners were led to those of 30,000 and 60,000 suns. The thousands of groups of 60,000 suns compose a

It is planned to have a total of eight rooms ready for the use of guests of students and faculty before the end of the spring term. The four new ones have proved so popular that they are reserved weeks in advance for the more important dates.

CHRISTIAN CONCLUDE

In the hurry and scramble of modern college life, the whirl of parties and the excitement of athletic activities, very few opportunities are provided whereby the student may step aside momentarily and quietly ponder over the importance and influence of it all in the hope of gaining a trifle clearer vision or a more understanding outlook upon the future. The Student Christian Conclude which started today performs that type of function in the affairs of the college man and woman that is not a gathering in which church creeds are to draw attention but a little turn in the path of the student to content with a few serious problems with philosophic men with a background bettering their positions.

Today marked the beginning of the conclude with Dr. Emerson delivering the addresses. Undoubtedly his messages are of the type which inspire and stimulate thought on the part of the listeners. To those who failed to hear him today another opportunity will be provided with the student conferences tomorrow. Students are invited to confer with any one of the conclude leaders on subjects of personal interest and take advantage of the splendid minds and outlook of the men in clearing personal problems. To say the least, it is the debt of each student whether he or she will seek individual advice from these real leaders or not to at least halt in the mad dash for at least 60 minutes or a little more to benefit by a bit of solid, sober contemplation in listening to the simple truths presented by these men. The student owes himself this consideration as an occasional tuning process to his haphazard fashions and manners.

PHILIP GUEDALLA

Prominent among those who have appeared and who will appear at State this year with a real message for the student body is Philip Guedalla. The appearance of this man, one of the foremost English historians, is one of the notable events of the present year. He is the author of brilliant historical works that have been widely read on both sides of the Atlantic. His lecture, "How History is Written," is particularly adapted to college audiences.

On the evening of Feb. 19 Guedalla lectured in Columbus, Ohio, and his success was so pronounced that they are trying to get him to speak again in Columbus before he sails for Europe. Following is a paragraph from a letter written by the president of the organization before which he spoke:

"It was a great success, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed meeting both Mr. and Mrs. Guedalla. The lecture too was splendid, and I think I have never seen a lecturer arouse more keen interest. Mr. Guedalla was surrounded immediately after his talk by an interesting crowd who found it difficult to leave him. He is a charming gentleman and a thorough scholar."

As professor W. W. Johnson says, "We wish that we had an auditorium in East Lansing that would seat the entire town and the entire student body."

Many of the fraternity and sorority houses did not receive their Tuesday papers until Thursday this week. Although J. D. Medill was in charge of the last issue, it was not his fault that they were not delivered on time. The papers were delivered as usual Tuesday afternoon to the postoffice by the Campus Press. The only conclusion that we are able to arrive at is that the papers lay in the postoffice from Tuesday until Thursday when they were put in the mail boxes.

Campus Forum Editor

We have lately been privileged to read an article in this column concerning the recent speech of Sherwood Eddy, accusing him of a most illogical and interested condemnation of national defense. After reading this same article a dozen times, I find myself in a position of uncertainty as to whether I am exceptionally dumb or whether the author himself has some claim to being illogical. I must admit perhaps to my own condemnation that I can not quite reconcile the author's statement in his introduction that perhaps the college authorities suggest that our time and attention be devoted to such medieval and out worn theories as national preparedness and the real time American citizen, red blooded and treason proof, that the author so very evidently is. After considerable pondering I have come to the conclusion

J HOP ON SILVER SCREEN AT STRAND NEXT WEEK

Students of Michigan State College who were not privileged to attend the 1936 Junior Hop last weekend at the Strand Hotel in Lansing will have the opportunity to see the affair pictured on the screen at the Strand this next week in the Reo-Grims.

The message of the Reo-Grims was on hand and filmed views of the grand march and the dance in progress after words. The long line of Hoppers was indeed marching down the hall with precision with George Slats, Mader and his guest, Miss Ruth Tennant leading the procession along with Gay and Mrs. Fred Green.

Pictures were also taken by the photographer of the banquet and the grand march and presented to the guests for keeps before the evening was over.

Prof. V. L. Gardiner is at Amherst, Mass., as exchange professor of State with the University of Massachusetts. Professor Gardiner will give a series of lectures at the eastern university on horticultural problems. Announcement from that school reveals the fact that Prof. F. C. Sears will return this lecture program on the Michigan State campus during the coming week.

that his statement must be sarcasm. To my shame, I must confess that its force is entirely lost on me. He continues with a statement, apparently "getting the devil his due," that Eddy has an insight on college life, student thinking and an ability to draw contrasts. From this he jumps to the question, "What is education?" Perhaps the author is chagrined that Mr. Eddy did not give us the benefit of his "insight" and "ability to draw contrasts" on this vital question, but in what way does that affect the value of the message that Sherwood Eddy brought us?

The author bases his accusation of lack of logic on the apparent contradiction of Mr. Eddy in condemning revolution in any form and then stating that a so-called people's revolution was justified. If I remember correctly, Mr. Eddy made no attempt at justification. He merely stated such causes as would make any human being rebel. As to whether revolution is the correct form of rebellion or not is another question. The fact that it is the only effective form under present conditions of civilization does not justify it. What Eddy said was, that under the present circumstances it is inevitable and being inevitable for the best good of all, it should not be interfered with. I realize that I have rather fully laid myself open to the question of whether I can distinguish between what I mean by revolution and rebellion. I tremble.

Apparently the author sees here a drastically underhanded blow at national preparedness. The intrepid writer does not hesitate to lay the incriminating crime at the proper door. He says that the force behind the movement to stand by and let Shanghai be destroyed and mutilate American property is none other than Sherwood Eddy. I greatly admire the "red blooded" boldness of the author. However, I have been wondering if there may not be other reasons for that movement. For some reason I am not able to attribute to the fanatical activities of Eddy, the fact that the British soldiers in Hankow were shot and killed and one of their men was being held by his own men and yet never fired a shot. I am also unable to lay at Eddy's door the silence of English gun boats on the Yangtze river while last and murder went on on shore. And if possible that fear for the thousands of missionaries in the interior, may have a little weight? Again, if my memory doesn't fail me, Mr. Eddy did not advocate letting American lives and property be destroyed and annihilated. As I understood him, he merely advocated a very much more safeguard than gunboats that dare not fire and soldiers that can use only the bolts of their guns, namely, to make it plain to China that the United States is friendly. Perhaps the war the writer will be more convinced by the words of Eugene Chen, foreign secretary of the national government who says, "China is not anti-foreign but anti-imperialists." That there are not empty words is proven by the fact that Russians and Germans are safer in China than Americans.

The writer again sees Eddy's influence behind the National Military Drill League in Ohio and the R. O. T. C. campus at the University of Minnesota. Perhaps that is so. The author knows more about it than I but is it not at least possible that there may be some student feeling in the matter also? Such an accusation is a little bit like the belief that Russia is behind the Mexican trouble. Four hundred years of ruthless oppression doesn't seem to mean much.

The statement was also made that he is allowed to speak and make a most terrible mess of religion. Here again I am driven to the conclusion that I must be very dense. I am at loss to know how to take the remark, "I am in communion with the Mexican revolution." What revolution does he mean? Can he be speaking of socialism in general? As far as I can recall, Eddy did not counsel religion and revolution except in the case of Mexico where he made the statement that the early missionaries forced the Catholic religion on the conquered. If this is what he means by his statement, I hardly see how he can lay the "most awful mess" on Eddy.

The author seems to be very much exercised as to whether we may think and whether we may be "fearless free thinkers." Here again I am at a loss just what does he mean by "think" and what in his opinion is a "fearless free thinker?" As nearly as I can make out from the article, to think is to stand up and shout, "My country is the best country in the world. My town is the best town in the country. My house is the best house in the town and I am master of my house." He means because he has to listen to a conscientious, fearless man, who has traveled over the world and knows the conditions of which he speaks. The writer, I think, thinks fearlessly, but he can't trust himself to watch and judge the thing he hears. He wants arguments pro and con, yet when he gets the con to his own ideas he says, "Yet he is allowed to speak." His error, to something constructive, sound logic and applicable to the use in which we are living, and yet when a world authority gives him world conditions as they are and incidentally some of his own conclusions, the author says nothing constructive or sound or applicable to the use in which we live.

The author condemns himself when he says, "We had already formed our conclusions before Eddy ever started to talk that we are not opposed to national preparedness." That is, we decided not all that we had formed conclusions on. Where I ask you, in his speech, did Mr. Eddy oppose us?

dional preparedness? The author is right when he says that the opposition is "inferred." He has an excellent inference!

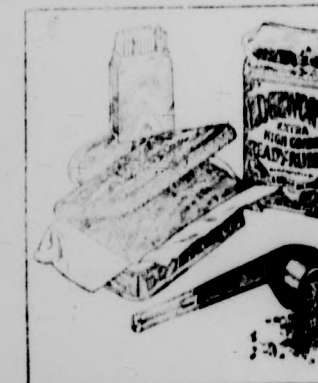

Is it treason to ask a modern college audience to have tolerance? Is it a crime to preach friendliness and fairness and justice? Dare we think? If so let us really think. Let us go open-mindedly to the source from which we may receive information and inspiration. GOOD old Leerie, the lamplighter, worked cheerfully to make the streets bright. And the lamps sputtered a friendly glow into the darkness.

The citizens of the country have taken Leerie's job. They are the lamplighters of today, and they spend 3 1/2 cents of each tax dollar that their streets may be bright.

Good street lighting means more flourishing business sections, safe traffic, convenience, and protection.

Leerie, the faithful, has gone—but streets still need lighting. And in whatever communities college men and women elect to live, they should take a lively interest in civic improvements—including street lighting.

"For we are very lucky, with a lamp before the door, and Leerie stops to light it as he lights so many more."

STATE FAVORED IN SIXTH ANNUAL RELAY CARNIVAL

Michigan to Send Eight Men; Large Number Expected for Indoor Classic.

By Dale H. Stafford

Almost as many athletes as the number that participated in the Michigan A. A. League here two weeks ago are scheduled to go at the start of the sixth annual relay carnival here Saturday night.

The event is coming to be generally looked upon as the classic of Michigan indoor track events. Points do not count in the meet although events other than relays are run.

This year Michigan State is considered the favorite to win a majority of the places. The great showing of the Spartan team at the Illinois carnival has heartened the coaches to such an extent that they are waxing enthusiastic over the prospects of the meet.

Added zest is given the meet by the fact that the University of Michigan is sending eight men up here. The list includes the varsity two mile relay team and several individual state favorites, shot putter, heads this year. Frank Gibbs will not be here as his chances of victory in the State gym appear few. In the two mile relay coach Morton Mason of State will be working under quite a handicap. Hackney, about the only man of real championship caliber, is out with a broken leg, which means that Mason must use White, star miler, as his anchor man. The team in all probability will consist of White, Rossman, Williams, and Clark. None of these men specialize in the half mile event, which will make the going pretty tough.

Michigan State is conceded the pole vault, with Hathaway of Kalamazoo college likely to finish second. Morrow, Western Normal, is still out of competition with a bad ankle, according to dope.

State as usual is conceded the edge in the dash events with Alderman from and Long from to go. In the hurdles Michigan has entered a couple of men but they are not given preference over Spence of Detroit City college and Lovell of the Western State Normal. It takes a national champion to beat Spence in doors in the low hurdle events. He won the 75 yard low at the Illinois Relay carnival with comparative ease.

In the shot, Fayette of Michigan is favored to win, with Barratt, Tillson and Smith of State high up in the running. Zuber of Detroit City college and Allman of Ypsilanti Normal are also hoped to place high.

STATE SWIMMERS ENGAGE WOOSTER

Last Meet of Season for Coach Sperry Brown's Protoges.

The Michigan State College swim team closes this season tonight meeting the Wooster College splashes in a dual meet in the East Lansing pool.

Coach Sperry Brown has announced that the pool will be decorated and most added features are to help make the meet an interesting one. Flood lights are to be used in the fancy diving.

The Spartan splashes have a 500 average for the season, losing three and winning three meets. The meet is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

Undefeated in Three Seasons

FRANK GIBBS

Last week Gibbs completed three years of intercollegiate wrestling with a clean slate to his credit for the entire three seasons. He has never lost a match in his collegiate career and stands out as probably the best wrestler ever to be developed at Michigan State College.

FACULTY TEAMS IN MERRY RACE

Interest Reaches High Pitch in Closing Weeks of Play.

Interest in the faculty bowling league has reached a high pitch for some of the participants as the last weeks of the contest draw near. Five of the scheduled nine weeks match play have passed and the race is exceedingly close with none of the teams having a safe margin for victory.

There is a three way tie for second place and the Extension has sole rights to first place. The Economics department is in the cellar with the Engineers just above. The race seems to have simmered down to rivalry between the first five teams namely the Extension, Athletic, Military, English, and Botany.

Last week the Military department took every honor that was possible for the week and some of the entire five weeks. They had the high match with 2643 for the five weeks. They also had the high game for the five weeks with 922. Baumgartner has the high score for the fifth week but he has not been able to quite overcome the high game of Bennett which was 245. Baumgartner also had the high average for the games played last week with 1913. DeVries has the highest average for a week as yet with 2013.

The following list is the high averages for the entire five weeks of the individual players: DeVries, 1561; Sherburne, 1511; Frimodig, 1513; Kobs, 1500; Gray, 1602; Barnham, 1606; Nelson, R. D., 1608; Baumgartner, 1609; Young, 1636; Foley, 1646; Bennett, 1626; Hineswood, 1629; Chase, 1607; Wilkins, 1591.

BASEBALL HOLDS INTEREST FOR LARGE SQUAD

Over Sixty Men Drill Daily in Vocational School Field House.

You can believe it or not, but baseball has come into its own at Michigan State College already this year. At least 50 candidates are taking its Daily a squad of at least 43 candidates is taking its daily dozen at the field house of the State Vocational school in Lansing.

Pitchers, catchers, infielders, outfielders, and what have you, are drilling regularly in the downtown structure. And at the head of the group is John Kobs, veteran baseball coach whose teams have had great success during the last couple of years.

Kobs is faced with an almost insurmountable problem this year. He must find a catcher capable of taking his place in the realm of college baseball. Last year when Perry Fremont departed a receiver that every coach dreams about left a big hole in the State front. Fremont caught every game during his three years of varsity competition and a headliner and more clever receiver never worked for the Green and White. Kobs has a dozen men working out for the receiver's job but none of these would even bring a boyish look to the eyes of a major league scout. A catcher may develop however.

Veteran pitchers Kobs has to the number of one. "Lefty" Folles is the remnant of last year's pitching staff. At present it looks like the southpaw would have to assume most of the burdens this year. Some of the other men who are in earnest about the pitching are Morgan, Juhl, Jackson and Bremer. The latter has shown considerable improvement over last season and has finally developed a curve ball that curves.

At first base Kobs has a number of boys who look pretty good. Macier has had a little experience at this post. Carl Baynes, veteran, is sure he said to Dr. Baker, "I'd knock their blocks off."

But that isn't why State students will want to get near this man. He'll have a lot for them. All day Saturday his time will be taken up with conferences. On Sunday evening he will address the S. C. U.

Expert on Co-ed Problems

Miss Frances P. Greenough, associated with Dr. Baker, is a most delightful, sincere person. There is no visitor about whom Michigan State coeds are more warmly enthusiastic. She has traveled the United States over and over, and she knows college women and their ways of getting at things. Among experts working with college women, Miss Greenough has high rank in America. And she deserves it. She has sympathy and a lot of real common sense. The other years in which she has been here make us more eager than ever to have her return. Miss Greenough is often called upon to address national conferences. While she is here she will address the C. G. A.

Popular Priest to Talk

Father John Gabriels, Roman Catholic priest of the Church of the Resurrection, Lansing, will join in the convocation again this year. The campus has come to appreciate Father Gabriels not only as the priest of an important group of our students but as a broadminded, cooperative Christian gentleman. He will meet with his own students after the main convocation on Friday morning and will be present at the convocation hour.

As the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. are cooperating in the convocation, the campus is to have another opportunity to see Miss Maud Gwinn, national student worker. Though it is not yet certain, the convocation is likely to be graced by Roy McCullough of the State Y. M. C. A. If Mr. McCullough is able to be at State, and if State students want to go to the mat of his job at second base. Pat Rowley is fighting off a whole army of candidates who seek his third base job.

The outfield is going to be a tough place for a new man to break into with Flosser, Zimmerman and Rinehart back. The boys are what they call fence-busters.
