YOUR INALIENABLE RIGHT

Now is the time when class meetings are being held and organizations perfected. Committees are being named to take charge of college affairs and appointments to various offices are being made. Interest is rather lacking in these meetings and elections. Students would rather sit idly around fraternity houses and dormitories rather than attend class meetings and have their say in the administration of class affairs. Only a small minority attend these meetings and transmit the business for the entire class.

This is a bad state of affairs. It won't be long before the chronic kickers will start to wail and howl that the college is going to pot. They will criticize everything from their own class organization to the Y. M. C. A. They will join the State News, the Wolverine, and other student managed activities. They will begin to lament the fact that Scando is president of their class and wonder how he ever was elected. The most vituperative and loudest soldier usually was the furthest away from the class meeting when the subject of his criticism was elected.

Every student has an inalienable right in college the same as every American citizen has in public life. He has the franchise and he should use it. His vote counts just as much as anyone else's in student elections but it does not count when it is not cast. The small handful of students who attend class meetings are the ones who run the college and if anyone is dissatisfied with the administration of affairs, it behooves him to get over to the meetings and have his say there.

We hope the freshmen will get started on the right track. Every freshman should attend his class meetings and should vote for whomsoever he thinks should be elected. He should not sit idly by while some of his classmates do his thinking and voting for him. The day of the minority rule should be past. The great lethargic majority ought to wake up and realize its power. It is to be regretted that college students must be reminded of their duties in this respect.

A college education ought to prepare college men and women for careers of useful citizenship if nothing else. But what kind of citizens will these students make who will not exercise their right to vote on campus affairs? If they don't perform their campus duties in college, it does not seem likely that they will take care of their civic duties out of college.

Let us ponder over these things and let us have a big turnout at the next class meeting or election. Don't let a small organized clique gain control of campus affairs because they can figure on the short comings of the majority of the students. Get out to your meetings, vote for the right people, and then if you have something to howl about go ahead and howl. But if you haven't done your duty and have failed in your obligations, you should keep silent and make a mental note to get out and vote in the next election.

MORE FRESHMEN GIRLS THIS YEAR THAN LAST

There are 30 more girls enrolled in the freshman class this year than there were last year. This was made known by figures which were obtained from Mrs. Clara D. Powell, advisor of women.

The total freshman enrollment is 276, compared with 246 for last year.

It was generally accepted around the campus that the exact figures were below those of last year, but this proved erroneous when final reports became known Saturday.

Forge Demonstration By M. S. C. Complimented

Perhaps some of you may have happened to read in the paper about the ninth annual convention of the American Society for Steel Treating which was held in the city of Detroit during the month of September.

Now, on our own campus, situated directly behind Wells hall, is the building in which the forge is located. If you have never been there, stop in some time and investigate for yourself. At that convention in Detroit, which was one of the largest of its kind, this department of the college exhibited, with other things, an electric 14 kilowatt furnace which was taken there from our own shop. It is reported that many leading men at the convention were all pleased and impressed with the exhibit presented by the student engineers of this college.

In the forge, students of agriculture and engineering are taught those things which may be necessary to them in their different kinds of work. No effort is made to teach them to trade or to make blacksmiths of them. For engineering students, the course pertains principally to heat treating that thing which gives steel its proper and strength. Heat treating, it is explained, is most essential for any sort of metallurgical work.

This year for the first time in the history of the college a course in metallurgical engineering has been introduced, and students in the engineering school will now be able to receive a degree in that branch of study. Heretofore this was impossible.

The equipment for the carrying on of the metallurgical work is of latest design. There are four fairly large furnaces having a maximum heat of 1800 degrees Fahrenheit built by the Surface Combustion company, which are the same make of furnace that is being used commercially today. There are six pot furnaces, built by the students themselves in the adjoining foundry, having a maximum heat of 1500 degrees, two high heat furnaces capable of reaching a heat of approximately 3000 degrees, four home-made furnaces, and an electric melting furnace of 1000 pounds capacity which is being built by the students at the present time.

In the little room adjoining the main shop there is a switchboard and a zero or galvanometer by means of which the heat of any one of the furnaces can be determined and the reading sent back by a series of light signals to the student working at that furnace.

For the testing of the hardness of metals the shop is equipped with three different types of machines. One of these types, the Rockwell machine, is the latest thing in hardness testing equipment.

For the actual forge work there are two forge furnaces and anvils, several energy wheels, and the necessary hammers and tools to carry on the work properly.

STATERS COLLECT MANY TROPHIES

Michigan State has a collection of trophies that is second only to that of the university of the state.

Loving cups, plaques, batons and medals adorn the cases in the lobby of the gymnasium. A major part of the credit in obtaining this host of athletic awards must go to the Spartan relay teams of 1926-27 which covered themselves with glory during the recent outdoor season. The two ex-Spartan captains, Freddy Alderman and Bohn Grim have passed out through graduation but they have made an indelible stamp in the annals of State athletic history with their performances of the past year. Both equaled world records while in the Spartan Green and White but it is the part they played on the State relay team that probably stands out. With Henson, Lang and Kroll, they swept the country in the 440 and 880 relays, the past season, winning from the cream of the south, east, west and north.

Among the trophies is a bronze sprinter, mounted on a pedestal which was won at the Texas relays. The flying Spartans the past year, are in the collection. Two large plaques representing the championship of America in the 880 and mile relay at the Penn meet are on the wall in the gym. Henson, Lang and Kroll are juniors who remain to carry on the work of Captains Alderman and Grimm.

at the Penn relays. It was won in 1922 by Georgetown, 1923 by Lafayette, 1924 by Penn U. and again in 1925 by Yale in 1926. This is the first time it has been won by a western school.

Twenty-two batons, all won by the flying Spartans the past year, are in the collection. Two large plaques representing the championship of America in the 880 and mile relay at the Penn meet are on the wall in the gym.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR X-COUNTRY

Largest Squad in History of Sport at State Increases Hopes of Coaches.

The largest cross country squad in the history of M. S. C. is working out on the track this fall. Jim McElroy, assistant of the track room, is kept busy issuing suits to the energetic freshmen.

Thirty men have reported to Coach Mason for practice, and real Spartan spirit is plentiful. There is an abundance of good material which should show up well in the future. The main complaint of some legs and arms are lacking this year due to favorable weather, warm, rainy weather being much better for the runner at the beginning of the season than cold dry weather.

The freshmen have five weeks this year, which will be a good test of the future distance runners' ability. The main race, which is in Oct. 15, is the test of the runner and is held at the All-Ohio race on Oct. 25. This course, the State Intercollegiate on Nov. 11. Last year this was won by Spartans, although they were not a very good team. Spartans' success was due to the fact that they had the best of the state and were well prepared. Although Spartans' race four years ago was not won by Spartans, they were not a very good team.

Following the intercollegiate race in the All-Ohio race, which will be on Nov. 11, the Spartans will be the champions of M. S. C. A race at the year of Nov. 20.

FAMOUS CHEERS THAT WILL GO DOWN IN HISTORY

This should not pass for a sound like a professional comedian's delivery of a hilarious story, now in check and will soon be a perfect one, but even the roughest of men know what the crowd really thinks for.

Hold on, Ah! second battle with the old and slightly important last year, but those who know what's what in the crowd will be in it and make this year will prove it!

Check that! (Hear that!) was the shout that rang out from the bleachers in filling up points with the shouts of an adding machine, every one of a word of the in operation.

But you will notice all these and other famous cheers, are delivered with a variety of the lips in great of a cheer.

So when a new cheer is heard that follows usually with excitement, it means an interesting bit of news. And particularly to smokers, this new cheer would be the "Marshall of Free" to follow tobacco and throat irritant.

You can enter them morning, noon and night, but a word a little long, but it is certainly short and sweet to the man who likes to smoke two or three packs a day without having his throat and throat remind him of it.

It is a slogan that expresses the happiness of Old Gold cigarettes that new and popular brand that is as smooth as cream to the throat, yet thrilling like a soft kiss in the mouth. It is a cigarette that hasn't a cough in a cloud. Adv.
