KILLED

For the past two weeks a more or less state of verbal warfare has existed between the STATE NEWS and the group fostering a proposed alteration in present methods of the student council. Decision of the matter was left in the hands of the student body and it, without a question of a doubt, don't the promoters of the move such a resounding blow in voting down the change, that there is expected to be no more such moves in the immediate future.

Laying aside the fact that the proposed change was a radical move, it did have its good points. It stirred up interest in campus politics. It gave the student body food for thought on what the student council really is. It brought out such unstinted support for the council that body cannot help but be greatly encouraged by it. From these standpoints it was a fine move. It has strengthened student government on this campus immeasurably.

Presenting the petition, however, was a perilous move. It placed the student council temporarily in a very critical position, practically placing that organization on trial for alleged mismanagement of elections. The council has come through with almost the united support of the student body and it must appreciate it.

If, however, the student body had chosen to accept the proposed amendment, where would the council have found itself? It would have been destroyed. No body of men, duly elected by the student body and entrusted with powers of government as the student council is, could have honorably withstood the "crack" it would have taken had the result been reversed. It would have called for immediate resignation of every member, leaving the campus back where it was in the very beginning of student government years ago, destroying in 24 hours that which would take years to replace.

Student government is still more or less a government of the students, for the student body, but at that it is a very democratic one and the students' share in it is large. It is for us to safeguard its future by such action as was taken in its support by the student body yesterday at the polls.

IN DEFENSE OF ECZEMA

After a general unimpressive fall term on the part of the faculty and students in disgust over the type of material used in Eczeema, a change of policy was brought about this term in the publication of the razor sheet, and in comparison with those presented in the past it was quite tame and so flat in fact that the publishers found trouble in selling the copies.

This year the editors have been accused of being flat, lacking in wit, sarcasm, irony, and burlesque, but still admitted to be above the "sudden qualities" and to characterize previous efforts. It may have been possibly lacking in wit but it certainly had a goodly portion of irony and sarcasm, even if it appeared other-wise to certain critics.

It has been suggested that a year's notice be given future editors of this publication in order to give them more time to prepare material and to think up "cracks" which would combine the above mentioned qualities and still remain clean. It must be remembered that Eczeema is a part of the initiation ceremonies of a national journalistic fraternity and it does not choose or nifty its initiates twelve months in advance.

Further, Eczeema is never taken seriously by its readers. Why should it be taken by its authors in a light other than a mighty hard on to handle to make it really clever to the collegiate mind and still refrain from obscenity.

COLLEGE "BULL" SESSIONS

Now and then on the campus is heard the statement that American universities are more like machines or factories than real schools. The oldest (and therefore the best) English universities are pointed to as the ideal in university training. It is given out that keeping class rolls and having weekly or daily examinations make a line of distinction between the American system of careful faculty supervision and the English method of instruction without a great deal of class supervision.

Another point which some stress as being unique about universities such as Oxford, for example, is that the men meet and have group discussions. These discussion groups appear from the description of some Oxford lovers to be very intellectually instructive and uplifting. In fact they would be made to appear much as the literature professor would have the survey class think Charles Lamb and his group of friends looked as they gathered about the coffee shop for a bit of table talk.

It is barely possible, however, that American university men are fast picking up the session idea, and although they may not meet in small coffee shops the practice of having a group of students together to discuss things in general, and often in particular, is becoming more popular all the time.

Of course the idealist will object seriously to the comparison of an American college "bull session" to the table talk of Oxford men or even to infer that there is a resemblance between the "bull" session of men of letters. Yet it is possible that many useless remarks passed the lips of the noted English poets before a literary gem tripped over the table. It is altogether possible that at some time something of lasting quality may spring from one of the "bull" sessions of one of the Western universities.

If such is possible this simple and often times harmful institution which takes the time of university men and women can not be entirely condemned—Arizona Wildcat.

VENI, VIDI, VIXI
An ambition. To be vanity cheerleader at a Green Splash parent.

What's your formula, Finny?
WE MIGHT HAVE HAD
A statement came from Ann Arbor the other day contradicting a rumor that the auto ban would be lifted, that the ban was being clamped down for another two years at least.

We wondered at the time, how students in Michigan State College would react to such a decision. It handed down here by our rivals.
With the ever-increasing vehicular traffic on our campus, and the apparent disregard for any traffic regulations which do prevail, such a thing as a ban is not at all improbable.

With the fraternities being compelled to build in outlying districts of the city and the huge campus on which we work for almost ten months out of the year, an auto ban would be disastrous.

A set of traffic rules might be made more conspicuous before the student body in some manner and a more strict enforcement of them carried out. We would suggest a "drive carefully" week as one way out of this.

THE CAMPUS SHUTTLE

We are according to a Chicago paper, where the postoffice officials have been experimenting with an airplane shuttle service to speed the transfer of an mail from the landing field, a mail truck and an amphibian plane being matched against each other in time racing tests.

Just by way of suggestion, something might be done in the way of a shuttle service on the campus here to and from the long walks that some of us have to take back and forth across the campus five or six times a day. We might call it the "Campus Shuttle". The campus is no doubt the loveliest one in the middle west, but it certainly is a huge one for pedestrians.

PRICELESS DAYS

These priceless days of spring engagements, marriages, and what have you, with all their free cars! It's too bad they don't last the year round. The more weeks of it and we could stand almost anything.

HEAVY DUTY

Pipe the new East Lansing river snail on duty on Grand River. Quite an addition, isn't it? The department should be able to cover another street or so now.

We understand the "addition" has overhead valves, as an indictment, perhaps.

A BETTER SPOT

The landscaping work of the campus is progressing rapidly and will no doubt be one of the prettiest spots on the campus when all the work is completed.

The flagstone walk fronting the tower is a fine piece of work which along with the shrubbery work to be done will be a fine piece of landscaping.

We are all eagerly awaiting the unveiling of the relief sculpture being done on the tower.

SCULPTURED POLITICS

Candidates for the offices of varsity cheerleader and Wolverine business manager, met by unforeseen opposition late Wednesday night, resorted to unscrupulous, unprecedented, unlawful, most brazen, and seducing tactics to forestall said unforeseen opposition hereafter mentioned. They conspired against each other.

SPEAK UP

Whenever a professor completes a long discussion on a certain type of problem or some particular theory he almost always pauses for questions. Often he is asked a few, often he is not asked any. In an ordinary class room when he is not asked questions at the conclusion of the explanation the professor is likely to feel that something is wrong. He perhaps wonders if he did not make the matter sufficiently clear to prompt questions. For the professor realizes that American students are, as a body, not given to accepting statements or theories without first dragging them over the fires and testing

ART EXHIBIT OF CHAPIN PAINTINGS CLOSING TODAY

Works of Former M. S. C. Instructor Given Recognition Here.

An exhibition of several unusual water-color paintings done by Myron R. Chapin came to a close today in the studios of the college art department. The group comprises six still life paintings and two landscapes handled with the unusual freshness and freedom that suggests an enjoyment on the part of the artist in their execution.

Mr. Chapin was connected with the Michigan State college art department during the period immediately preceding the world war. During the war he was in active service and at its close returned to his old position in this college.

At present Mr. Chapin is connected with the art department at the University of Michigan where he is now serving head of the department in the absence of Mr. Blosser. The group of eight paintings was secured for exhibition here through Miss Edith Butler, an instructor in the college art department, who is a friend of the artist.

them in every way, questioning the ability of the very foundation itself to support the theory.

Perhaps once in a while the professor does fail to get enough of the subject across to arouse interest and raise questions, but in general it is not the lack of this "getting it across," nor is it the ready acceptance of the students that causes the "hollow silence" that prevails when questions are requested. The explanation lies elsewhere.

It isn't shyness, for Technology students in the aggregate are not shy. It could not be termed complete indifference. Often the student will think to himself concerning the question which is in the back of his mind unanswered, "Oh, well—why bother, I'll see it when I read the book." Sometimes this will be true, and often it is not.

The student who leaves a class room knowing that he does not understand a point just explained is not being fair either to himself or to his professor. Perhaps the student thinks that his question is too trivial to bother with, perhaps he considers it a bad policy to ask questions which will tend to display his limited knowledge of the subject at hand. In either case he is wrong. A solution is only as good as the question which it satisfies—Indiana Daily Student.

SENIOR SERVICE SUNDAY

A farewell worship service for Michigan State seniors will be held Sunday afternoon at a service in the Peoples Church. Lunch will be served, and tickets must be secured previous to the service.

M. S. C. STUDENTS PLAN STATE CAPITOL LAWN

Construct Floral Designs Under Direction of Prof. Laurie.

Michigan State college students in floriculture are planning and constructing the floral designs for the lawn of the state capitol under the direction of Professor Laurie of the floriculture department of the college.

These designs which have in the past attracted statewide attention are to be formed from colored plants rather than flowers, and two of the most impressive figures are to be placed on either side of the walk approaching the main entrance.

A star of Red Alternanthera, placed on a circular background of light grey Santolina, and the whole enclosed by a square bed of Green Alternanthera will be seen on the visitors' right, on its left will be a large block "M" of the red plant outlined in gray, and on a background of green.

Then you conduct the regulation search in the dark, with the touch of one's fingers, and find that it is some of the canoe locks. Finally, you see in the paraphernalia, and you are at the very edge of the river, off, pursued by the angry cries of the boat's owner, who has come up river while. Then you can go up river, a fool around with a campfire or a boat.

And the reason, perhaps, that many causes stay late on the river one of the reasons—is to give the less owners waiting along the river time to go home.

TRACKMEN GO TO MEET AT CHICAGO

Tomorrow's Event Last of Season;
Six of Squad to Compete.

Six members of the Michigan State track team, representing the cream of this season's achievement, accompanied by their manager, will compete in the National Intercollegiate meet, the last event on the track calendar at Chicago Saturday.

State will be represented by Captain Lyle Hanson in the 100-yard and 200-yard dashes, Lewis Hackney in the 400-yard run, Meredith Clark in the mile, Lauren Brown and Clark Chamberlain in the two mile event, and Harold McAttee in the pole vault.

Hanson took third place in the 200-yard dash in the National Intercollegiate of last year, while McAttee tied with six other athletes for fourth place in the pole vault. Whereas the best hurdler, Chamberlain, stepped at 12 feet 6 inches at Chicago last year, his performance at Philadelphia last Saturday when he cleared 13 feet 4 inches proved

Pitching Ace

Jerry Byrne

Jerry Byrne, Michigan State's pitching ace, will chance his successful college career next week when he faces the University of Michigan in one of the two game series to be played at Ann Arbor on Friday 14 and 15. Byrne, last night's first starter, has pitched better than the record of pitching his team to victory over the University of Wisconsin in the previous game. Byrne, last year's pitcher, pitched his team to victory over the University of Wisconsin in the previous game. Byrne, last year's pitcher, pitched his team to victory over the University of Wisconsin in the previous game.

Byrne's superior performance in the last indicate a good chance to place in his favorite event. Hackney is an other favorite who has demonstrated that he possibly as a point winner for the Green and White is good. The possibility of Brown, Chamberlain and Clark as place winners certainly is probable.

Stanford, winner of the Philadelphia meet and University of Illinois, champion of the Western conference, are the contenders for the National Intercollegiate title. The relative strength of the two schools is believed to be nearly equal.

Hanson, Clark, and McAttee stand to close their track careers in the interest of the Green and White with Saturday's meet. Brown and Hackney, who have been back for another season, while Chamberlain, the only sophomore to make the trip, has two more seasons ahead of him.

Columbus, Ohio (AP)—Bene pledged to the Alpha Rho Chi fraternity called him was initiated as an honor member of the local chapter of the architectural fraternity on April 9, 1927.

During his membership, Mr. Hughes did the same as the other members and enjoyed it.

The pledge of a lawyer was signed the ruling of the fraternity, and it was quite some time before the petition was accepted by the national chapter of the order. The "judge" was the oldest active member of the order, and the only one not in architecture.

The remarkable friendship between Mr. Hughes and the Alpha Rho Chi men began in 1914 when the fraternity moved into its new quarters next to the lawyer's residence.

In 1916 the "judge" accompanied the boys to the football game between Illinois and Ohio State at Champaign, and enjoyed the event so well that he took the entire chapter to the Ohio State-Michigan football game in 1927.
