CLASS TRADITIONS—

There are certain traditions on this college campus which seem to be becoming more and more disregarded. We refer to those symbols which we use to differentiate between classes—particularly the freshman toque and the sophomore cap or hat. These traditions have been passed down to us by those who have gone before us, and they are something sacred to the campus.

The rank disregard for the wearing of the toque by the freshman men signifies that they are either ashamed of their class or do not understand the symbolism of the toque. If it is the latter, we shall attempt to explain that the toque is not a symbol of disgrace, if anything it marks you as being worthy of college and a new-comer on the campus. It gives you a chance to tell who are the other new-comers and signals out each member of your class. It binds you all together under a common symbol, and marks you out from all the other students of the college in this, that you are a member of the yearling class. No matter how many years you are in college, you can be a freshman but once. And when you have that chance be proud of it.

It is late in the year indeed, to editorialize on the new-comer phase of freshman traditions, but you have three years ahead of you, and you are, in that regard, new and unorganized. If the freshman class does not start observing college tradition now, if it does not attempt to consolidate itself into some sort of a unit, if it does not develop some sort of class spirit, we sincerely fear for the welfare of the class in the future and for the carrying on of traditions handed down to us.

And on the same grounds we criticize the sophomore class. There are among them, several men who are taking the privilege of going about the campus bareheaded which is the right of only an upperclassman. But this offense on the part of the second year class is not so great as that they allow the freshmen to disregard the wearing of the toque. It is their duty to discipline negligent freshmen.

We are not trying to stir up hostilities between these underclass groups; we only wish to see enforced those few traditions which we have on this campus. And we firmly believe that when men abide by the traditional rules of the college and observe these slight requirements, that they not only increase their individual class spirit but raise the morale of the campus as a whole.

ANNUAL FARMERS' WEEK—

This week brings to the campus the largest assembly of people to gather at the college for any duration of time during the entire college year, and we sincerely welcome these visiting farmers to the campus. While they are here they are the guests of the college and the student body.

The ringing of the Memorial Tower chimes at noon during the week will remind us again of the origin of this college and the part that agriculture has played in its founding and in its growth. And perhaps it would also be well to recall the inscription over the door of that memorial tower, "Whatever a Man Soweth." Farmers' week seems to bring these things home to us more forcefully than ever and makes us justly proud of our college.

EXCUSE FOR EXISTING—

There is a phrase in the constitution of the Swartz Creek band as accepted at a meeting of the Student Council recently, which is dignified of worth. The phrase to which we refer is that which reads that the purpose of the band shall be for the promotion of school spirit. We would welcome an organization which has chosen such a purpose for its existence, and we sincerely hope that the members of the Swartz Creek band, both now and in the future, will keep that purpose ever in mind.

When a class organization has such a purpose to follow, we wonder about some of these groups which are considered as useless. We have a campus well supplied with clubs, honoraries, fraternities, societies, national societies, and discussion groups. If we were to investigate each one, we wonder how many would prove to be only collecting dues from their members and how many would have a good legitimate excuse for existing.

The staging of "Page the Prince" marks the close of hard work on the part of the director and many students, and combined with the building of the J-Hop on Friday evening classifies one of the greatest social events of the year. In as much as the opera is a student project, it needs and deserves all the student support possible.

Music -- Art and Drama

THIS WEEK—Annual art exhibit and music concerts for Farmers' Week, February 2 and 7. "Page the Prince" annual Union Opera at Gladwin Theatre.

Throughout Farmers' Week there will be an exhibit from the Art Department in many mediums, oils, sculptures, water-colors, and charcoal, on the fourth floor of Ode Hall, the student center building, which will be open to visitors during the entire week. Included in this exhibit are several powerful murals by Prof. A. G. Scheele, the head of the department. Miss Alma Gotsch has also had a few department water-colors and the brush of Miss Katherine Winkler is represented by some exceptional and most charming still-lives done in fresh colors of modern feeling.

A new composition Eugene Hunter will take the place of last week's orchestra rehearsal for the purpose of conducting a preliminary reading of the composition entitled "Symphonic Impressions." Opus 1 No. 1, an orchestral suite from which he had selected two movements, "Pastorale" and "Intermezzo." Similar comments greeted the passing out of the manuscript and then everyone applied himself assiduously to a worthy review of the more difficult passages, with what must have been a most appalling result to the composer as the caterwall of a bodle scribbled out above a trail from a state of the house, thrushly sparrow of a morning attempted to show off his neighborly French snuff-box. As the conductor inspected the hand there was a sudden gust of suspense and all looked in breathless silence at the few extraordinary remarks. At last he raised his head and in an authoritative manner, proceeded to bring music out of the orchestral class of 1928.

Eugene Hunter is a Lansing boy and a student in the Library Department of the college. His instrument is a clarinet which he studies under John Wimmer, instructor in the Michigan State Institute of Music and Applied Arts, and it was as a clarinet that he attended the National orchestra camp at Interlochen, Michigan, during the summer of 1928. While there two of his compositions were presented at the regular concert, the "New Movement" from his symphony, "The Blue Fantasy" played by the full orchestra, and "Dance" substituted for "The Wind Quintet." His symphony, "The Winter of the World," was the first symphony of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra who attended the Interlochen New orchestra, extremely interested in the work of American composers and expressed much interest in the composition.

A vehicle shall stop only at the curb except in an emergency or to allow another vehicle or a pedestrian to cross in front of it or upon the signal of a traffic officer.

SPARTANS COME FROM BEHIND TO TAKE THRILLING CONTEST FROM MARQUETTE U., 27 TO 14

Den Herder, Don Grove Make Baskets in Crucial Moments; Roger Scores Half of Team's Points; Haga Put Out of Contest.

A BELATED rally and a clever stalling game enabled Michigan State to nose out Marquette university 24 to 17 in a basketball game played in Demonstration hall Friday evening. The Spartan campers trailed throughout most of the contest and then came from behind to win in the most thrilling contest ever played in East Lansing.

Roger Grove was the outstanding scorer of the game and rang up 12 points as the result of four field goals and an equal number of free throws, to account for half of his team's points. However, the major share of the glory must fall jointly upon the shoulders of Fred Den Herder, rangy State center, and Don Grove, midget flash who plays forward.

The stalwart defense thrown up by the Milwaukee, Wis., eagles, forced State to play in the scoring during the first half. The Golden Avalanche shot into an early 4 to 1 lead. Free throws by Roger and Don Grove and Shipley, the latter of Marquette, and Roger's first basket of the game cut the visitors' lead to two points. McElliott added a field goal and King's gift toss let the Hill-toppers score 10 points in the first half. Don Grove scored another free throw and a field goal which added to Roger's third successful toss from the penalty stripe, gave State nine tallies for the half, one point behind Marquette.

Marquette continued to forge ahead at the start of the second half, with State keeping in the running with some of Den Herder's clever shots. The Golden Avalanche slipped into the lead, 16 to 12, at one time, but Den Herder looped a neat field goal to bring the Spartans up again. McElliott sank a free throw to increase Marquette's lead to three points again, but Den Herder got loose to score from the corner of the court and State was lagging by but one point and the score board read 17 to 16.

Den Gets Loose

At the important juncture Don Grove broke through Marquette's defense and looped a nifty field goal that sent Coach Ben F. Van Alstyne's quiver ahead 18 to 17. State then wisely commenced to stall, the Spartans withdrawing to their own end of the floor. As soon as the visitors decided that if they wanted to score they would have to go after the ball, they stretched out, then State broke loose to score again. Roger Grove finally took the ball and dribbled nearly the length of the floor for an easy shot that gave State a three-point lead. Roger duplicated his feat within a short time and then Wayne Scott showed the crowd that he could follow the precedent and counted from the floor to bring the score up to 24 to 17, which was final. Art Haga was charged early in the second half for committing four personal fouls and Captain Jimmy Van Zelen went in at forward and Roger Grove dropped back to guard.

ROGER GROVE

Roger Grove, who a few weeks ago was battling for a position on Coach Ben F. Van Alstyne's basketball team as a reserve guard, was recently given a trial at forward. Teamed with his brother Don and the results have been extremely gratifying to the Spartan camp mentor. In the Marquette game Roger accounted for half of State's points and has rendered a good account of himself in every game in which he has played this season. He is not a valueless part of the Spartan court combination.

Battery Men Get Workouts: Rest of Squad to Start Practice Later in Season.

Varsity baseball men are working out nightly in Demonstration Hall in anticipation of a strenuous season this spring. At present battery men are the only ones receiving workouts, but the rest of the team candidates will begin intensive training in a few weeks.

The removal of the portable floor in the armory will be the signal for Coach Kohn to begin shaping the varsity nine in preparation for the annual southern trip of the baseball team which takes place the last week in March.

J. Barnard and P. Brose are on the varsity basketball squad and will report for practice at the close of the court season. Keith Byrne is one of the veteran catchers returning this year. There are also several promising prospects from last year's freshman pipe who should prove valuable to Coach Kohn in this year's campaign.

Pete Bullock and H. Kahl are the veteran pitchers reporting for practice. J. Langdon, A. Olson, C. Griffin, H. Hutchins and H. Bellinger are among the other aspiring twirlers.
