SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT—
We criticize, and at the same time we cannot help admire, in part at least, the attitude which our student body takes in its approach to all campus events. We can never be quite sure what their reactions will be at the appointed time, but we can almost always be quite sure that there will be little excitement or stir preceding an event and that immediately that it is over, things will settle down to normal once more.

We do not believe that our student body is indifferent because they do not show more signs of animated interest, but we are tempted to believe that that mass of students whom we call our student body, those who are known by only a few and who are not in search of campus glory, recognize a natural division of labor on the campus and leave to only certain ones the balmy while they quietly go about their business until it is time for them to do their part.

When this system works out to its right degree of efficiency, it is one of the most admirable conditions on the campus. When the coach arranges his schedule and trains his team in preparation for the big game, he feels assured that there will be students on the sidelines to support his team. And as a rule that student support is there unsolicited. The cheerleaders develop their teamwork with no guarantee that they will have a cheering section to lead, but they are seldom disappointed. Class officers arrange for class activities and parties on a gamble that those events will receive student support, and they are seldom mistaken.

Campus politicians gather in the fraternity caucuses to select those candidates whom they think have the ability to manage the affairs of office and the popularity to draw votes. And that great majority of the student body is satisfied to leave such selection of candidates to the judgment of others, and when the time comes for them to do their part they usually go to the polls to decide the final selection.

From time to time we hear complaint that the men in office are not the leaders of yesterday nor do they possess the ability of those who have gone before them, but campus activities, organizations, and publications seem to carry on from year to year and to advance rather than to recede.

Those who consider themselves the leaders of the campus, the activity men, the politicians, are often heard to criticize and to express sympathy for those who are not getting all out of college that it offers. We have leaders only because there are those willing to be led. One is dependent upon the other. And if there is full cooperation between the two, then we obtain the highest degree of efficiency. There must be leaders and directors in the world, but there must also be the deep-thinkers, the dreamers, the poets, the men who choose to walk alone in meditation and leave the hurly-burly of life to the management of others. The same necessity exists on the campus.

THURSDAY'S ELECTION—
Every student in college has a right to vote on at least one ballot in the all-college elections on Thursday. It is an opportunity to express your choice in the selection of campus leaders and to voice your opinion in the matter of compulsory fees. Only a representative vote can be taken as official. The taxpayer should use his privilege to voice his opinion in matters of administration.

TEA DANCE POPULARITY IS CAMPUS MYSTERY

Smokeless Flame Seems to be Prevailing Attraction in Union.

Male members of the college are divided into two camps—those that go to tea dances and those who do not. Both sides are on anything but friendly terms, and adjectives such as "soft-hound" and "roughneck" are bandied freely back and forth. The situation is much more serious than it seems.

When two lifelong friends come to blows on the question of whether to go dancing or swimming, when the Strand Arcade is full of earnest non-dancers trying their best to acquire the art, when all these things and more happen, it is certainly time to make an investigation into the secret of the tea dances popularity.

Perhaps they're popular because men are passionately fond of music and take this method of hearing it rather than to attend concerts. Perhaps the reason is that the air is cooler on the second floor of the Union than in other places.

Perhaps the girls who go to tea dances are prettier than those that go to the library. Perhaps because it's spring when "The young man's fancy is not what you know the rest. Perhaps it's a combination of all these things, or none of them may have anything to do with it. Or—here's a new one—perhaps because the men like to dance.

Never-ending search for truth

Today, in a locked room in the Crane laboratories, can be seen a cherry-red bar of metal. In a specially devised air-tight cylinder, under constant temperature of 1600° F., at fixed stress, it is being given the "1000 hour" test. At the same temperature, at various stresses, it will be given the same test for the same time-period.

The tests are being made at the request of an oil man who has asked for valves for an experimental still, to operate at 1500 and 2500 pounds. Can he have them? At the end of the exhaustive tests, Metallurgist L. W. Spring will be able to tell him, exactly, authoritatively.

Since the first Crane chemical and testing laboratory was founded in 1888, thousands of similar questions so vital to safe and economical industrial progress, have been asked and answered. The contribution made by Crane metallurgists to scientific knowledge of the reaction of metals under high pressures and temperatures is known and respected throughout the world, is familiar to every oil man who has used the cracking process and every engineer who has to do with piping.

The truths discovered and scientific data collected are embodied in a book, Engineering in Science. This is a reference manual invaluable to engineering students. Write for your copy.

Frosh Frolic is Highlight of Past Winter Term Informals

The Frosh Frolic, held Friday evening in the Union ballroom, surpassed all expectations and proved to be the most successful informal dance of the winter term. The ballroom was attractively decorated in green and white St. Patrick's day colors. Behind the orchestra platform, between the words "State Frosh" in columns of green and white letters, was sketched a cocky "Frosh," complete with pot, knickers and an aggressive expression. The lights in the lounge were hung with green and white streamers. The color scheme was carried out in the programs of green and white parchment. The Ero Alphas, Delta Sigma Phis, Hermitians, Hesperians and Themians held their formal dinner dances last week-end.

Several societies entertained with house dances. They were the Chi Omega, Alpha Gamma Rho, AcTheon, Lambda Chi Alpha and Phi Chi Alpha. The Western Collegians played for the Spartan Fencers club dance held Saturday evening in the Little Theater. Mr. and Mrs. Mort Mason acted as patrons.

March Weather Gives Clothiers Break on Variety Furnishings

1930's March keeps up the traditions of every other March since the calendar began. There is weather here, weather there, weather weather everywhere, more weather than one month should be able to take care of.

And changeable! One goes to bed in the lush of a warm summer evening and wakes up to a December morning with the snow rushing rails in the safe-open windows and a wintry breeze blowing all the covers off. It rains one moment, hails the next, with the sun filling in between.

One wears overcoats to A. M. classes, and vests to P. M.'s or just as often the other way around. It is becoming a common sight to see slickers in the strongest part of the midday sun, and to perceive coatless students and instructors hovering in doorways with the rain pelted down outside. Another pitiable sight not easily to be forgotten. When cars become stuck in the mud now, their owners never try very hard to get them out; it is much easier to wait for the puddle either to dry up or to overflow and float the car.

No wonder the weary student throws the weather forecast out of the window with a "what's the use?" contemplation.

twenty-five years on the concert stage and is considered as one of the few great authorities on vocal art. In addition to his duties on this campus he conducts an annual country-wide tour and makes frequent trips for continental concerts.

Graveure is of French-Belgium descent, educated on the continent, and has spent some years in England. He came to this campus in 1929, where he has been head of the vocal department of the Michigan State Institute of Music, attracting pupils from all over the United States to study under him.

The student body will be admitted to the concert on student tickets granted the entire college for these concerts. The expectancy that many Lansing and central Michigan music patrons will attend the concert makes it appear certain that the seating capacity will be strained to the utmost to hold the immense crowd.
