

FORM PLANS FOR ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Pres. Shaw Appoints Committee on Arrangements for Demonstration.

RECOMMEND MOVE

Committee Asks That Com- mencement Be Held Week Earlier in June.

Preliminary steps were taken toward one of the largest celebrations in the history of Michigan State college to commemorate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of this institution when tentative plans were made by the faculty committee at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. Many ideas were advanced and discussed, but the only definite action resulting from this first conference of the committee was to move to hold the annual commencement activities one week earlier so that this celebration might be held in connection with it.

The personnel of the committee appointed by President Robert S. Shaw last week is as follows: R. C. Huston, dean of the applied science division, chairman; L. C. Emmens, research professor in institutional management; J. F. Cox, dean of agriculture; H. B. Dirks, dean of engineering; Miss Marie Dye, dean of home economics; Lewis Richards, director of the Music Institute and H. H. Halladay, secretary of the Board of Agriculture.

The action taken yesterday was in the form of a recommendation to the faculty that "the regular commencement exercises be changed from June 17 to 20 to the period of June 10 to 13. Also that Spring term examinations be held the week of June 12 at the close of Commencement exercises.

Tentative plans are such that the celebration will be held at a time when it will be possible for members of the student body to witness the spectacle. It is expected that many internationally prominent educators will deliver addresses.

Two of the first sub-committees to be appointed, according to Dean Huston, will be the groups on "makers" and "guests."

The event will attract national interest is certain. Outstanding men and women in the educational field as well as other lines of endeavor will be present. It is believed that invitations will be issued to many prominent dignitaries, and that many state and national legislative figures will be in attendance.

Spruce Woods Thinned Out

Trees Which Decorate Streets Come From Demonstration Hall Grove.

Deserting his habitual employment as professor of forestry, R. H. Westfield turned actual woodsman into the grove of "choice" Norway spruce to the rear of Demonstration hall.

Already overflowing with the holiday spirit, said professor was easily persuaded to become a Santa Claus to East Lansing, which character he assumed while furnishing the city's merchants with the Christmas trees now ornamenting the streets of this village. However, Santa Claus was paid an appreciable sum.

Besides the pecuniary gains the department thinned the 19-year-old forest which incidentally was planted to hold down the sand which the wind was scattering of the excess of trees, thus benefitting the remaining timber.

Mass Response Seems to Favor Leaving Choice to Individuals.

It is a matter of the individual's taste. It is up to her to dictate whether or not it is worth while." R. X. Steele, '33. "Co-ed smoking is all right, but there are many things they can do much better." K. L. Priestly, '34. "There is no reason why one should not smoke if she enjoys it, but one who does it just to be clever, deserves to be spanked." A. J. Nicholson, '34. "I think co-ed smoking should be allowed to smoke if they wish. It is a matter of personal taste." T. L. Simpson, '34. "If they think it adds to their femininity and charm let them do it. Their right to smoke is equal with that of the fellow, but I don't like it." E. J. Mahoney, '34. "For the co-ed who enjoys a cigarette I see no objection. However, the freshmen who do it for the purpose of gaining popularity should first learn the proper way to smoke in their own rooms." E. R. Johnson, '34. "It is their own privilege. You can't stop a woman from doing what she wants to anyway." H. Robinson, '34. "That is her own business. She should be able to do as she pleases." K. L. Clark, '33. "When women can smoke without someone watching them they should smoke." E. H. Powers, '35. "You read what the society expert said about it, didn't you? It doesn't look well." W. Ruppel, '35. # SEELEY PREDICTS WARM WEATHER

Meteorologist Stakes Reputation OAH Signs Which Point to Mild Winter.

Some back-porch weather prophet has forecasted that we are to have but two weeks of severely cold weather this winter. This far actual temperatures have borne out his statement. For the month of November was the warmest on record since the weather bureau was started back in 1864. Records for the entire late show that the average temperature during November was 43.6 degrees, which is 11 degrees higher than the former mark set in 1869 of 44.5. October, too, was unusually warm, but did not set any records.

The bureau, however, doesn't take any particular stock in the forecast of the prophet who limits out cold weather to two weeks, according to D. A. Seeley, meteorologist in charge of observations taken here in East Lansing. He says that it is scientifically impossible as yet to forecast weather beyond a day or so in advance. Prophets of the old school who based their deductions on such things as the appearance of the moon, the quantity of nuts the squirrels were storing, or the fur on animals, were pretty likely to err in their conclusions. The moon doesn't have very much to do with our weather, says Mr. Seeley, and the squirrels seem to base their nut-storing activities on the supply of nuts gatherable rather than the severity of weather ahead of them. And even fur-bearing animals are likely to be wrong most of the time. So if you've been delaying the purchase of an overcoat in the hope that maybe the weather won't get cold, you may as well play safe and buy it, although the weather is, at best, an uncertain proposition.

SCHEDULES FOR TRAINS, BUSES

Local Stations Issue Charts for Students Who Will Go Home on Vacation.

The close of the fall term and the two-week Christmas holidays will mark the annual exodus of students from East Lansing to their home-towns. Many students who will not travel by "thumb" will depend on buses and railroads to take them to their destination. For these the State News has compiled a list of the accommodations available to major points in the state.

Buses to Detroit leave at 7, 8, 10 and 11 in the morning and one in the afternoon. The afternoon service is offered by the Blue Goose lines of Lansing with a terminal at 116 N. Grand avenue, Lansing. This same line has buses for Grand Rapids leaving at 8:15 and 11:15 in the morning, and at 1:15, 3:15, 5:15, and 7:15 in the afternoon and evening. All times are Eastern standard.

Chicago-bound buses, going via Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, South Bend, and Michigan City, leave at 8:30 a. m. and 9 p. m. at the Greyhound line depot, 116 N. Grand avenue, Lansing. Indian Trails buses for Chicago, traveling the same route, leave at 9:55 a. m. and 1:15 p. m. from the Union Bus terminal, 115 E. Ionia street, Lansing. First Russell Bates has charge of selecting the large crowd which is expected to be present. He will be assisted by senior students in military science. son, will again be decreased. This will tend toward a more democratic and popular function goes without saying. It is hoped that the other aspects of the J-Hop will show an equal regard for State's new interpretation of the social scheme.

During the next two months chairmen of the majority of this college's outstanding parties will be facing the question of budgets and ticket campaigns and steadily mounting costs. That they should approach their task with a motto of "safety, reasonable prices, and low costs" is imperative. J. G.

SECOND HAND BOOKS
In response to the handling of this year's student finances this year and the perpetual campus irritation of high prices for textbooks the Union has re-established its once-popular second-hand book agency. It should be heavily student supported, even though handicapped by a lack of knowledge of succeeding terms.

Under the Union plan any student by inquiring from his instructor may determine what text will be used during winter and spring terms and may then submit his used books to the Union for sale. One of the main objections to the present book situation at State is the inability of undergraduates to sell used textbooks for something approaching the price that was originally paid for them. Two great losses are experienced on second-hand books under the present system. The Michigan State News has commented on this problem before, and has advocated some scheme whereby the student might be able to save a fair percentage on texts that in most cases are good for at least two terms more or so.

It is gratifying to watch the Union attempting to once more place itself in the van of student and faculty projects. The only equitable answer to this offer is support of the scheme. J. G.

CLASSROOM "TRAMPS"
A new ruling at Syracuse university allows students to visit classes for which they are not registered, treating them as intruders, but as guests.

The advantages of this plan are manifold. Men and women, supposedly enter a liberal college to get a liberal education. The unfortunate fact is that there are always classes which intelligent students wish to enter and which cannot be entered because of the limitations of their courses or because they do not feel able to carry the work which a regular entrance to these classes would entail. Students are often handicapped, unfortunately, to be sure, but still handicapped because of their own variety of interests. In other words, in college they are penalized for the very thing which in outside life would advance them.

Michigan State, a specialist of the field, has a few years ago is likely to be a very popular one.

My Ego And Yours

By JOHN TATE, Jr.

A non-conformist, a cynic or a rebel, of whatever you care to call it performs the same function for his fellows that a flea does for a dog. He disturbs their self-complacency, their egotism, and sometimes their cant and hypocrisy.

It matters not that a certain fellow, when interviewed by the inquiring reporter, responded with the suggestion that your favorite column be either improved or removed without the aid of privilege depriving you of your just percentage of enjoying what you may. If the improvement he means is to include him in our present fun we must decline, and because we will have no truck with social climbers and publicity seekers.

It matters not, as we said, that this one individual falls so fully in comprehension, nor is this an attempt at improvement, but a case that would be like being more popular to China, or to the purpose, like a man with a knife. In the final analysis to do anything other than to enforce the faculty's opposite of which we have a strangely enough, been scorned, is a wasteful and inequitable matter.

After all when we look at the thing dispassionately and forget that we are a student neither the faculty nor the administration is an individual or a group, nor have you any belief. They are disinterested as it may seem, like you and me. Do you assume? They too have their emotional complexes, their feelings of inferiority, their defense mechanism, their complex, their frustration, nervousness and peculiar behavior patterns.

Then, being the season of divine redemption, it behooves us to be kindly disposed. Take into the innards of your bosom.

the eccentricities of mankind and forgive your instructor as perhaps he may forgive you if he thinks about it. If you are a student of rare indolence, thank him for making every thing so obvious that it approaches pervasiveness. If you are of the great backbone, thank him that the system is made to fit your mentality. If you are afflicted with intelligence enough to see that there is something in a most embarrassing state of decay in the educational world, about, blame him not for he has been reared by the same system, and is as much a victim as you are. Therefore, instead of afflicting him, be in his boom and commiserate with abandonment and great optimism.

Should you find an occasional classroom without any conceivable reason for being, be either a student or a faculty member, for learning is an equipment and a privilege. For if you can do yourself from the situation, and look at it impersonally it becomes very amusing to see a marionette make bizarre gestures before some third correspondent's pen.

Be polite, take the credit which the course provides you. Added to all others, both of them they will eventually multiply magically into a degree which you can attach to your name and nobody will know you are who you are. This because it is a thing that people accept, it is a label, a definite mark of superiority, and how only before the great god money, and even the goddess looks askance and slightly frowns at the phenomenon. Nobody thinks it is a joke. In this thing we are all Englishmen in their traditional fashion to see the point.

This is the thing necessary. Check it all the days of your life, and let it be no one but yourself. And now that we have forsaken our intellectual freedom and ennobled the powers that be, who are the victims of a religious conscience, let us praise Allah, and be discontent.

My Dear Public:

Below the surface of this outwardly placid and drowsy institution is a seething mass of bitterness, jealousy, fear, uncertainty, and pettiness. It is productive openly of a bland, artificial, and sub-rosa of savage counter attacks. Individuals, when taken, for a few minutes, by highly imaginative though in some cases justifiable, through the equipment. And in this contest, no one knows who fired the first gun. If it were only a war to end war, then the result would be swift, almost any person's choice. But it is a battle that seems destined to go on as long as human beings are human beings. There will never be any armistice because the battle line open enough to ever allow for arbitration.

There is no complete solution possible, but there is one quality which might change the antagonism into rivalry, the bitterness into competition, and the savagery into a good humored rivalry. That quality is tolerance. This, and this alone, will keep our present civilization from destroying itself. This, and this alone, will make our own institutions a decent place to live. Think it over seriously, and in your own interest try to acquire the gift of tolerance.

Yours truly, JOHN DON

The Critic

By ANDREW BISHOP

Last year George George brought to Lansing a rather infatuated John. The First Mrs. Fraser, which was obviously striving to be modern and grapple with our current problems. It was good entertainment but still very mild. Last night the Abbey Players presented a four act comedy play by the same author that surpassed the other in every respect.

As a contrast to modern drama with its attempts to be forceful by piling situation on situation and effect on effect, this simple drama that gradually gathers force and comes to a strong but restrained climax was exceedingly refreshing. Its theme that of the mortgage on the old homestead, is turned into a new and more sincere channel from that of old American melodrama. The single fact of the man failing to bring on the night the money from America to pay this mortgage, is treated as the central theme.

But after that it moved forward rapidly enough and the lack of unnecessary incident, to embellish the action was decidedly refreshing. The creation by the author of a master stroke. It is the character that saves the play from being ordinary drama and lifts it into the better class. It is he who not only provides color and gives an insight into the atmosphere of the community, but adds much needed touches of whimsical humor and is the spirit that infuses the characters into action. It was a difficult part, this creation, and began played by Michael J. Dolan, who was with Barry Fitzgerald. Jimmy Casper, for the most outstanding performance. All in all, this curiously powerful little play along with the superb acting by every member of the cast lived up to all expectations and advances notice of this unique group of players.

Women

According to statistics published in the Duke University Chronicle it takes six minutes for a "bull session" to start on the subject of women. This fact was determined by two students in psychology who went to 25 rooms and started 25 bull sessions with any subject but that of women or anything which pertained to them.

Co-eds Revolt

The freshmen girls at Northwestern university have rebelled at a ruling on the part of the dean of women, ordering them to go to bed at 10:30 p. m. They claim that they can't study properly until that time and so they aren't going to study at all. The dean already has her hands full curbing the upper classes who in order to get permission to smoke in the dormitory are stacking on the streets and in other conspicuous places.

"Classroom Tramps"

Classroom tramps are being welcomed at Syracuse university. Under a new ruling students may drop into classes for which they are not registered without being regarded as intruders. However, they may not cut one class in order to attend another.

Union Grill Holds Dead Smoke and Living Words From 8 to 6

Intellectuals Discuss Things of Weight.

The Union grillroom is an interesting place. Every day countless words are uttered and a tremendous amount of hot air is liberated in the cozy little lunch room. Names of new classes are cut because at the time the classes are supposed to start the students are busily engaged in discussing something or other of an immediate importance, but of extreme interest there in the grill. It is possible to go in there any morning and find that matter any other day, and that a room in a building, a room of the same name, is necessarily taking. The question has become so prevalent that even the instructors have taken it up. Nearly every morning a certain number of them meet and gather around one table while one of the other one student is collected. The student usually puts the instructor. Maybe the instructor put the student. At any rate, the grill is a lively place.

All that seems to be necessary is that a violent discussion of an subject in that one "lunch" room and the two get together over a table. It's never very long before some one drops in to give some news. And soon you have a pleasant little gathering in which every one offers his ideas, and under way. The subjects are no common-sense answers. Everything possible has been discussed there and as yet there has been no result from any of the conversation. It drifts on and on to an inconclusive end.

Everything imaginable comes up for criticism, favorable or unfavorable. Public literature, the latest speaker in the lecture course, the last edition of the Michigan State to turn out specialized and narrow graduates. Certainly no sane person would insist that a local plan similar to that of Syracuse would entirely remove this danger, but it is plain that it would go a long way toward avoiding it. Such a plan is not only practical, but logical. The bare skeleton of this project might easily be worked out by any member of the faculty. Assistance is certain already crowded classrooms could be forbidden or left to the discretion of the instructor and severe penalties might be given for unnecessary late to visit lecture classes. Any late rules to prevent slugs of the privilege would be justified. With this rule we might have Aes visiting art classes, middle students sitting in veterinary lectures, and engineers learning to appreciate poetry. Do not laugh. It seems that this should be the aim and endeavor of every modern college. O. L. E.

Problem: how to answer a million a day
Users of Bell System service ask "Information" more than 1,000,000 questions every day. Providing facilities for answering them promptly, correctly, was one problem put up to engineers of the Bell System. So effective was their solution that this prodigious task is now a matter of smooth routine. They designed desks which enable each operator to reach quickly the listings of some 15,500,000 telephones. They developed apparatus which automatically routes calls to operators not busy - and should all operators be busy at once, it stores up calls and releases them in the order received! Efficient telephone service depends upon working out interesting problems like this.
