would be for the better. Hence, the News will not be so foolish as to insist on the adoption of its own proposal. Providing the faculty sees fit to grant a more liberal allowance of "cuts," no criticism will appear editorially.

It is to be hoped that an attempt to analyze the basic inequities of the present system will be made. That the injustice, the financial loss to the student, and the double penalty, pedagogical and administrative, inflicted will be eliminated is the hope of the proponents of the change.

Nothing so humbles a man, so reveals to him the poverty of his own spirit, so turns him back on God for a renewed and enlarged life, as a serious attempt to be of use to other people.

CARS ON THE CAMPUS

Beginning with this term, the campus police department has deemed it necessary to issue permits to student drivers. By placing this sticker type of permit on the windshield of the car, the officers are at once aware that the driver is a student who is subject to the regulations adopted last fall when the roads were paved.

This move will undoubtedly meet with much opposition among the students. It will be termed unnecessary and impractical. Yet the time has come when a stringent supervision of traffic on the campus is practically demanded. Despite the present depression, the number of cars among students has increased this year to a marked extent. With the large number of pedestrians constantly crossing the drives at the time when motorized traffic is heavy, the situation becomes acute. While no serious accidents have resulted since the surfacing of the roads have permitted faster and smoother driving, still there is a constant menace. Should any serious injury or fatality result through a student driver's negligence, undoubtedly there would be a strong possibility of a ban being placed on all student cars on the campus. The situation might even approach that now in effect at Ann Arbor where no student is allowed to drive unless holding a special permit.

No issuance of student drivers permits resolves itself into an effort on the part of the College to control the traffic situation, thereby indirectly benefitting the student body by eliminating as much as possible the liability of serious accidents. G. L. M.

Tolerance, patience, selflessness, faith, courage, firmness, tact, magnanimity, what firmness, and by the powers that be. Or should people enjoy putting a wafer on a student on the spot. This kidding man when he's down may soothe somebody's bloated ego. No, we can't be specific.

Our local Patrick Henry (Dick Hutchison) approached the English building not long ago in high humor, talking to himself. The connection between the pleasant emotional state and the English building seems to be very vague. He saw mounting the yearling horns of all horns, if you will, notwithstanding and nevertheless, the most high and awful example of this cross, terrible and horrible monstrosity is well what do you think? CONSTRUCTIVE SUGGESTIONS

It is more or less common knowledge that a complete visualization of our own faults is practically impossible. While it is easy enough to recognize and point out the shortcomings of others, which are very apparent to us, to see our own misgivings is difficult.

To say that anyone is immune to faults is obviously ambiguous. We are all subject to criticism, students and professors alike. The members of the faculty, by virtue of their relative position, can suggest or even force the students to conform to their methods, whether they are recognized as the approved type or not. However, the student has little or no voice in the matter.

A member of the engineering faculty, realizing that his own methods of instruction were not infallible and also that there are no better judges of his course than the students who take them, requests a written criticism of the course at the close of the term from each student. These statements are constructive in that they offer suggestions for the improvement of the course. As they are unsigned they can in no way influence the student's grade.

According to this professor, the suggestions are very helpful in presenting the course from the student viewpoint. Not only can the work be made more interesting, but it can also be advanced in a manner that is easily understood by the student. The result amounts to that gained by the closest of personal student contacts.

MORE ABOUT PRESS MEETING

Brumm, professor of journalism at the University of Michigan and secretary of the University Press Club has been engaged to deliver the main address. Other speakers named on the program are President Robert S. Shaw and Elton Eaton, Plymouth vice president of the association, Geo. Wilber M. Brucker, to be invited to attend the banquet.

The banquet staged by the publishers last year was the largest in the history of the organization and proved the highlight of the convention.

At sessions to be called following the banquet, the Union building grounds morning several speakers have been booked to appear. Among them are Clarence V. Smalley, director of the Michigan Municipal League, Ann Arbor; John Lovett of the Michigan Manufacturers' association and Jos. F. Cox, dean of agriculture at Michigan State college.

DEPRESSION AND SYMPATHY

New that fall term is over it seems apt to characterize it as one of the most difficult for the average student in recent years. More cribbing, browsing, feverish gymnastics to hurdle the scholastic bar were evidenced last month in the closing days of the term than have been seen in the memory of veteran campaigners.

Why did such a situation exist? That there comes a cycle of low student morale that faculties have a consistent tendency to stiffen courses is all admitted, but none of these are new enough to cause the unusual difficulties that were widespread last term.

After a survey of student mental reactions to the term's work, the point is outstanding. That is the fact financial difficulties have resulted in such necessity for extra work outside of classes and in a weakened student morale that scholastic standards have suffered.

It must be admitted many more students have been forced to seek part-time employment in individual cases where it has heretofore been unnecessary. That class work should suffer is only a natural result. What is even more apropos, the failure of many hometown banks has caused

Tomorrow's Horoscope
 If Jan 6 is your birthday, well it's too late now, you might as well make the best of it. It will be a tragic day and we be to him who tries to accomplish anything. In fact it is in your shoes I wouldn't even bother to get out of bed.

Do not make settled plans for Jan 6 as Destiny from the astrological portents (whatever they are) may interfere with man's affairs. It will be a day, and with might as well not be, a day of broken promises, broken plans, and broken hearts. Do not enter into any entangling alliances or negotiations. The child born on Jan 6 will be easily influenced and at the age of five will be in the reform school and by the time he can shave once a day he will probably occupy cell 13 in the big house. Socially however he will be lively and entertaining and what with regaling his fellow prisoners with funny stories will probably be elected president of the block and then, when he is a captain in the prison football team.

Born on Jan 6, you are a nature into which fate has poured all the dregs of human character. If a woman, dark men are your failing and you frequently dream about his black dogs crawling over the top of your head, and you have a weakness for peanut brittle. You should never ride in street cars. You have not the slightest of the sting of the simple things in life in fact be careful they are not too simple.

A man born on this date will be a great drinker. He should look twice before crossing the street and wear his rubbers and never take up the pencil. He will lack decision, have a weak chin, and have a tendency to wear flowers in old times. He will seldom embark on an enterprise unless he can be reasonably sure of his outcome. As an outlet for his libido he should take up nothing stronger than stamp collecting or following the Detroit Ticker. He will make a good drug store clerk especially at the soda fountain.

Well, for lack of a better way to restate a column where the termination of activities left it, well it's a great day for those who succeeded in getting back in after being all but counted out by the recent tendency to raise the standards of scholarship.

Favors Less Petting
 The statistics culled from a questionnaire given the co-eds at the University of Minnesota brought to light many interesting facts. Some of them are: That a very small percentage of the girls preferred a fraternity man to a non-fraternity man; that they did not expect to be kissed on their first date with a man; that most of them preferred older men. Only one-quarter of their number really enjoy petting in the general sense of the word and not one of them would give a date to an undesirable man merely to attend some function. The main requirements for their escorts were intelligence, courtesy, and a good family background.

Student Council Action

By action of the student council all undergraduates are forbidden to attend some function. The main requirements for their escorts were intelligence, courtesy, and a good family background.

At Alabama

In order to cut down expenses last year three students of the University of Alabama lived in a tent and cooked their own meals. Another student left the same institution because he had tried all the barbers in the college town and found that none of them cut his hair to suit him.

Collegiate Vocabulary

West Virginia's Athenaeum points out that in a news reel shown at a West Virginia theater which featured the Notre Dame football team in their dressing room between halves, the only intelligible words spoken by the twenty college men were "O K" and "Yeah."

Students Gain Power

With penalties for over-cutting of classes already abolished, the University of Illinois has taken another step forward in the direction of liberalism. Now campus morals, previously under the direct control of the faculty, will be entirely student-supervised.

The statue of "The Christian Student" which stands on Princeton's campus was recently redecorated with a coat of bright orange paint. The artists to date have not been apprehended.

Princeton has a room entirely set apart for the first year meet. It is equipped with card tables, ping-pong apparatus, a radio and a piano. The freshman lounge is known as the Freshman "Castle" where each class is king for a year.

According to the custom established last spring all track officials at Allegheny college wear tunics when officiating.

University of Minnesota students beat an Italian war drum during football games when the team is losing.

In an attempt to seek an expression of undergraduate opinion on current problems, six Amherst students are running a series of articles in The World Unity Magazine.

Hicks Leads Union Forces Against Hidden Marauders

Fred Again Proves That He Is Capable of Practically Anything

Strange and exceedingly mysterious noises, seemingly coming from the deserted regions on the fourth floor of the Union building, were the cause of much excitement on the part of Officer Hicks of the Union police force late on the night of Dec. 30. Early in the evening Hicks noticed a peculiar tremble throughout the entire building. The shape of the discharges rattled seemingly with no tangible cause. Following this incident however things were very quiet in the building. Fred thought nothing of the incident.

About 1:30 in the morning another outbreak occurred which caused Officer Hicks to conduct a thorough search of the numerous rooms and hallways on the upper floors. He was standing by the desk on the main floor conversing with two students, Dick Hutchinson and Ben Barron, when noises almost positively lively of human origin were heard and a small stone dropped from the upper floors to the floor near the spot where the officers were standing. Gun in hand Hicks set a search which covered the entire building with no result other than the noise continued.

While the hunt was still in progress the party was strengthened by the addition of John J. A Union employee who became alarmed when he noticed his flashlight on and off in an unusual manner and several students who were the Van Crut brothers, Dick Green, Edith, his party accompanied Fred left to conduct a thorough and complete search of the entire building. Dispersed the students through upper floors while he remained low to guard the desk and to prevent anyone leaving the main without his knowledge. The search however had no result other than to awaken those of the general nature who were still sleeping through noises in the ventilating system were still unexplained. Hicks satisfied with the result and anticipated that something was being done, the rounds were being made. Shortly thereafter the party left and Fred remained guard the premises since reports of further disturbances were coming.

When asked for a statement concerning the affair, Officer Hicks remained noticeably silent. The story which questioned, corroborated, and described the strange incident stated that they were uncertain that someone was lurking in the dark recesses of the building. Hutchinson reports that a faithful guardian of the peace, he shielded himself with unusual care throughout the entire period which the noises occurred, and determined to guard the building. He stated in the desk of all cases in which has been reported missing yet, however.

STATE QUINTET HITS STRIDE AGAINST OHIO U. AND CORNELL AFTER MICHIGAN TROUNCING

Wolverines Swamp Spartans, 27 to 5; Coach Ben Van Alstyne's Men Make Great Comeback to Beat Ohio University, 29 to 15, and Cornell, 26 to 12.

By JIM DUISO

With two victories in three games, State's basketball stock gained a skyward momentum. Pre-season dope had it that the Spartans were due for a rough winter, due to loss of last year's mainstays, as well as an obvious indifference in practice but recent performance seems to indicate an optimistic outlook.

The squad didn't look any too good in the Michigan game, being on the slim end of a 27 to 5 score. During the first half, State exhibited an air-tight defense restricting the Wolverines to 7 points. During the same period State was held to 3 points, all converted via the foul line. The weaving figure-eight offense of the Spartans looked good, and Michigan had few opportunities during the first half to attempt a field goal.

During the second half Petrie, Cleveland and Daniels led the way and added 11 more markers. Bob Petrie was high point man of the game, counting three goals, all long ones, and as many free goals. State's one field goal came after nine minutes of play, while Michigan was forced to wait for fifteen minutes before Petrie was able to tally from the floor. The game was marked by early season sloppiness and general inability to locate the hoop on the part of both teams.

Ohio Game

State opened the new year by defeating Ohio University last year's champions of the Buckeye Conference by a score of 29 to 15. In spite of the fact that the Spartans were hindered by the loss of five men because of injuries and ineffectiveness they gave a creditable account of themselves.

It was quite evident that the holiday period of intensive practice accounted for the much improved condition in the Spartan camp. Handling of the ball was better passing was much more accurate and the teamwork in general was more effective. The Spartans defense kept the Athenians guessing from start to finish and they were required to shoot hastily and at a distance. Bill Vondette and Alton Kircher accounted for some nice guarding which seemed to give Ohio a great deal of difficulty.

BANQUET DROPS CURTAIN ON '31 GRID CAMPAIGN

Twelfth Annual Event Featured by Address Given by Coach James A. Crowley.

An All-American

Clark Chamberlain, Spartan distance ace, was recently awarded the cross-country berth on the All-American team. This is a distinctive honor as the All-American positions are open to all members of colleges and athletic clubs throughout the United States. Last year Chamberlain was placed on the All-College team.

The winter season is the last for Chamberlain. During the coming term he will have plenty of opportunity to prove he is of Olympic caliber. Chamberlain's achievements on the cross-country have given him a high rating in the eyes of critics and he will be closely watched.

Spartan Side-Lines BY VAN

Defeat

Michigan State basketball fans were astounded when the Spartans took a terrific drubbing at Ann Arbor after showing great possibilities against Alma in the season's opener. Coach Ben Van Alstyne's men managed to score a solitary field goal in the Michigan game.

Baseball

Baseball, like prosperity, is "just around the corner." Coach John Kobs, Spartan diamond mentor, has started preparations for Michigan State's 1932 baseball team. At present Coach Kobs is getting a line on fresh-man talent and in a few weeks varsity battery men will receive the first call of the season. The initial practices are held in Demonstration Hall where a practice cage is strung up.

Dramatics

Sing Sing closed a more or less successful football season. Now that the players have packed away the moleskins, dramatics have taken the spotlight. Alabama Pitts, who was the football star, is in the theatrical cast. The outside patrons at the first performance were questioned by the management not to wear jewelry and cautioned not to carry large sums of money. Warden Lawes explained that it was not desirable to distract the minds of the players. The audience also was requested to remain seated after the performance until all the players and others had been counted.

Sport Spigot

Met "Lefty" Tolles, one of State's great moundsmen, at a New Year's eve party. Tolles has done considerable pitching for the House of David baseball team. Incidentally, the Good King Benjamin was a slouch in a lot of things compared to the redoubtable "Lefty."

Saw Hugh Blacklock, State grid great, at the Grand Rapids National. The same gusseted smile. Met John Kelly, former Olympic head man, who is earning quite a reputation as a capable sports official in the Upper Peninsula. Wojtylo and Freebold, two athletes from Michigan State's most historic training quarters, Wells Hall, go down the road. Carl Nordberg is pleasing Escanaba sport fans with his high school athletic teams. Jake Fase was given a big ovation by the folks back home last night when he attended a banquet in his honor. Monnet gets honorable mention on College Humor's All-American grid team. Coach John Kobs has forgotten what profanity is. Usually during the winter months he knew all the words. He can enjoy the balmy winter weather and cease swearing at the thermometer. Hockey has been dropped from the list of Spartan sports.

Gandhi

World Sport Flash: Mahatma Gandhi brings back London bicycle to ride in his native India. Was thrown in jail and is unable to use it. Sing Sing Warden Lawes would let him start a six day bicycle race.

Handler

Law Handler, former Spartan pugilist, is in training for his professional debut at Detroit. Handler was heavyweight champion at State for two years and distinguished himself as a clever amateur. Last winter he reached the finals of the state A. A. U. meet at Detroit, only to throw his arm out of joint and lose by a technical knockout. The arm had previously been injured in a Spartan football workout. Handler underwent an operation to correct the faulty arm and now believes the troublesome member will not inconvenience him any longer. If the old injury has not been remedied "Lawie" will forsake the squared circle for good. Handler was a popular fighter in school and had many friends. We wish him success in the fight game and hope he will be able to go a long way up the ladder. Somehow it is hard to associate a good violinist, like Handler, with pugilism, but then, Tannoy had his Shakespeare.

Coach Fendley Collins, Spartan wrestling coach, has a heavyweight wrestler who has exhibited much prowess on the mat. In recent years the grappler has annexed several titles including the state title last year. Any member of the Spartan wrestling squad will vouch for the here as Michigan State lost only four days of classes during the entire season.

Last year, he continued, our team was hailed as the greatest in 15 years. If that were true then I maintain this 1931 team is the best in 16 years. We lost several of our games, but I am entirely satisfied with the playing of the team. It did its best and that is all we ask.

Musicians from the Ford Motor company of Detroit and the Detroit police trio added several musical numbers. Dr. E. T. Austin and H. Lee Baneroff put on a clever act that brought much applause.

The invocation was given by Rev. Kilworth Reamon, pastor of the Universalist church and Jay W. Sexton, superintendent of schools. Lansing presided as toastmaster.
