ANNUAL BARBECUE SCHEDULED FOR TOMORROW

SPARTAN DAY CELEBRATION AT UNION MONDAY TO MARK END OF SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Lansing Business Men Coaches, Players, Faculty Men, and Band
Appear on Program of Mass Meeting; Dance and Free Show Complete Popular Celebration

All classes will be excused on the afternoon of Monday, November 21, when Spartan grid fans take the opportunity to observe the closing of another successful season for their football team with appropriate Spartan Day celebration. Events for the afternoon are in charge of the Student Council, assisted by such other campus organizations as Phi Kappa, the band and variety cheerleading squad. Important among activities listed are the all-college pep meeting, free student dance at the Union, and free show at the State theater.

Program for the pep meeting, which will open with the playing of a group of Spartan songs on the campus of the Union, will be followed by a public address program in the hall from 7:30 to 9:00 o'clock. This event will be interrupted at 8 o'clock with a most student mass meeting in the hall where a public address program will be given by the speaker of the day. Five o'clock marks the closing of activities connected with the Spartan Day celebration.

LAFOLLETTE TO GIVE TALK HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Young Wisconsin Senator Will Present Cause of Progressives

IS FORCEFUL SPEAKER
R. M. LaFollette, Jr. is Nationally Known for Poise
and Expression

Since politics have been the chief interest of most worldly-minded individuals on the campus of late, and since the political situation in this country is far from being a settled thing, much interest is centered on the lecture series which has a noted politician and member of congress for its second offering this current season.

Robert M. LaFollette, Jr. son of the famous Progressive Party leader, will speak Tuesday evening at the Peoples church. He will speak on "What the Progressives are Fighting For." The speech will begin promptly at 8:15.

LaFollette has won national acclaim for the manner in which he has expressed himself. Frankly and to the point the fighting Wisconsin senator tells the nation what he thinks and means no words. It is said of him that he made the only great speech made at the last Republican national convention at Chicago when he denounced the oil deal in the name of the rank and file of the Republican Party. Even the usually unmoved newspaper gallery cheered the speech.

Many articles in newspapers and national magazines have been written about the young senator. A famous national magazine praised him saying: "He always sees things exactly as they are. He is moderate. He is extremely likable. He is contemplative in manner but firm in his opinions. He always knows what he thinks. He never becomes excited. He never loses his poise. He takes defeat in good part, and is never made vain by success. He is aware of the value of hard work. He makes an excellent speech."

Standing next to or alongside of Senator Borah of Utah, LaFollette is one of the greatest inspirational oratory leaders in the country. He has inherited his father's keen eye for a great fight, and in addition has been gifted with a flow of oratory seldom equaled by men on the platform in this country at the present time.

The fact that his is one of the outstanding influences in politics today is cause for pride. LaFollette is not the least bit of a party man. He has never been affected in any way. Frazier Hunt expressed this sentiment when he said of LaFollette: "As a matter of fact, I think this 35-year-old son of Fighting Bob LaFollette has more personality than any single member of the senate."

And interesting as he is as a senator and public figure, young Bob LaFollette is a very interesting as a human being. A loud clear speaking voice, good enunciation and interesting material are the chief assets of the younger of the country's senators. His wide recognition on the lecture platform adds only a few more laurels to the number already held by this magnetic individual.

Great Grid Trio to Disband

"In all my years of coaching I have never seen across a finer pair of football players and men than Abe Elowitz and Bob Monnett. Saturday's game, ringing down the curtain on the intercollegiate football careers of these two boys, will remove from the game two of the most unselfish, loyal, hardworking boys I have ever had the pleasure to work with. In all of their games they worked for each other and the team. They played hard and fair. They are real men."
— Coach Crowley.

"Having played for Michigan State under Jimmy Crowley has been one of the greatest joys of my life. I gave all I had, and got back a plentiful return in friendship, fun, and experience. I regret this is my last year, because somehow I hate to think that after Saturday I'll not be able to take a part in the fortunes of the Green and White."
— Abe Elowitz.

"I've enjoyed playing for Michigan State, and I'm sorry that I can't play any more. The game has done much for me, and I'm glad that I have been able to do my share for the team and the school. I've enjoyed the associations and team spirit, but most of all the chance of playing under Jimmy Crowley."
— Bob Monnett.

'35 CLASS WILL BE HOSTS TO STUDENT BODY FRIDAY AT TRADITIONAL EVENT

Program of Evening to Include "All-College Dance and Student
Mass Meeting," "Hand-Outs" of Cider and Sandwiches
Will Follow "Burying of the Hatchet."

The sophomore class will act as hosts to the student body tomorrow evening at the annual Sophomore Barbecue at DeGenerations Hall where in former years this traditional event was held to celebrate the cessation of open hostilities between freshmen and sophomore classes. The barbecue activities will commence at 7:30 and be followed by an all-college dance at 9 o'clock.

A public address system is being installed for the occasion and Professor James A. Haselmann, director of publications, has been named as the master of ceremonies. The evening's program will include lighting of the traditional bonfire, the "burying of the hatchet" between freshmen and sophomores, and the customary "hand-out" of cider and barbecue sandwiches to the assembled audience.

The customary event of "burying the hatchet" although not so realistic as in former years due to the ban on interclass hostilities will be carried in the usual manner between Clifford McKibbin, sophomore class president, and Lawrence Hatching, freshman class president. The "burying of the hatchet" will be followed by the "hand-out" of cider and barbecue sandwiches to the assembled audience.

The program will be concluded with a short pep meeting in preparation for the Detroit game which opens the next day. This event will be in charge of Blue Key, junior business service fraternity, and will be marked by the presence of a "brown band" and other novel features. The all-college dinner in the armory follows immediately following these barbecue activities. Dancing will begin from 9 o'clock until 12 with music by John Rater and his orchestra.

At a meeting of several weeks ago a decision was reached by the Student Council that no time should be given off from classes for freshmen and sophomore men to build the traditional bonfire included at the celebration. The decision came as a result of a poor response to last year's efforts in getting members of the two fraternities to help in this regard. Instead the college has been asked to take active charge of building and lighting the fire.

The barbecue committee appointed by the sophomore president, Clifford McKibbin, to prepare for the various events includes Alex Collier, John Randall, Elmer Paxon, and Robert Killen.

RUSSIAN FILM TO BE SHOWN

Scientific Picture to Be First
One Shown by Seven
Arts Club

A scientific picture, "The Mechanism of the Brain," was announced to be the first film term production of the Seven Arts club. The picture is to be shown at the place of the usual Hot Building lecture series, and the price twenty-five cents.

The film produced in the laboratory of the famous Russian scientist, I. P. Pavlov, is much more than the ordinary educational movie subject to the formation of habit. It shows the brain and it shows the brain of an interesting experiment with the curious excitement with the Russians are able to put into their scientific pictures. It is an educational but exceptionally interesting picture in place of the fact that, though scientific in nature, the film has been especially made for the layman and has placed simplicity and clarity as aims without sacrificing any of its scientific value.

Special lectures will be given on the picture by Prof. John DeHaan in his physiology classes and by Prof. A. Miller in his physiology classes. Persons taking these subjects will be especially interested in the picture.

Seven Arts club states that all their pictures to follow this will be of the most style of foreign movies which it has brought here. Attempts are being made to secure popular German and French talking films with subtitles in English. These will probably be shown in the State theater.

Expressing regret that he was not heard in all parts of the room, Daniel Frohman, first speaker on the student lecture course, has written a letter to lecture chairman Prof. W. W. Johnston stating that as an old showman, he would like to give the audience what it paid for.

FROSH BALLOT FOR OFFICERS

Hutchinson Elected President As Freshmen Cast Large Vote.

Lawrence Hutchinson of Grand Rapids, elected to the office of student body president, defeated Harrison Newman of Lansing in the race for freshman president by a vote of 109 to 96. One of the largest votes ever cast in the freshman class elections was obtained this year with over 100 students voting.

In the race for vice-president, Ann Leahy of Jamestown, N. Y., defeated Helen Wilson of Washington, D. C., by a vote of 107 to 79. In the elections held last week Helen Wilson received more votes than her opponent but was beaten yesterday in the final.

The secretary position was the closest race of the whole election when Helen Anthony and Helen Snow, both of East Lansing, tied with a vote of 93 each. The two candidates for this office will run again in a special election to be held next week Tuesday, November 22, in the Chemistry building from 3 until 5:15 o'clock.

The treasurer's position will be filled by Gordon Bryce of Pontiac who defeated Curtis White of East Lansing by a vote of 104 to 10. These positions will be held for the remainder of the year and will be terminated by the spring elections held next spring term. These officers are to take office immediately and form their plans for the rest of the school year.

TO ENTERTAIN DETROIT MEN

U. of D. Student Leaders to Be Guests of State Student Body.

Fourteen student leaders of the University of Detroit have accepted an invitation from the Michigan State Student Council to be guests of the Spartan student body at a banquet Saturday night in the Dorn building and at the game following this luncheon.

The student leaders, according to a communication from Henry S. Wain, editor of the Titan, variety show, are Frank Pitt, Lawrence Hunt, John Walsh, Thomas Burke, Joseph Estr, George H. Rowland, Denton, Sheldon M. Gray, John Murray, Clare Toppin, Clare Fink, Marcelle Frenette, M. Lucille Sullivan and Henry S. Wain.

The communication which was addressed to the secretary of Michigan State Student Council, further reads: "In the name of the above-named (men) and the University of Detroit let me thank your student body and your college for the invitation. We of the University of Detroit have a high regard for State and a feeling of common ground with State. We hope for a perpetuation of this feeling."

This event at which student leaders from the two schools gather for a luncheon preceding the State-U. of D. game has become an annual affair. It was organized by the State Student Council in the fall of 1930 when Detroit student leaders were first invited for a convalescence.

Through courtesy of the Michigan State College Athletic Association, the reserved seats tickets are being secured for the Titan student leaders.

COLLEGE TO GIVE RADIO LECTURES

Course in Biology to Be Offered Over WKAR Beginning Monday

The radio station at Michigan State college is to initiate a course in biology beginning next Monday afternoon Nov. 21. These lectures will be given each Monday until Jan. 15 and will be held in public and high schools throughout the state

Last year courses in animal husbandry and farm crops were given over the radio station here and within three days after the announcement was made over 800 requests were received for the free literature offered in the course. Over 700 Michigan high schools including the South-Harbor governmental high school, used this method of teaching these courses and complimented the college on their policy

All necessary copies of these lectures are available at the station and the staff will be glad to loan a copy. Members of the biology staff of the college will be the speakers on these programs

After the biology course a course in entomology, bird lore and other popular subjects will be given. It is the plan to have WKAR continue to arrange so that these courses will be repeated every four years

CORRECTION

In the report last week of the new special library service which members of the staff are giving, the faculty evening session was made. The first paragraph should read as follows:

Members of the staff have undertaken some special bibliographical service in seeking the collaboration of the faculty in building up a well-arranged book collection in various fields in the library. In the departments of agriculture, civil engineering, drawing and design, electrical engineering, entomology, farm management, landscape architecture, mechanical engineering, and soils, special lists have been sent of all books listed under the above subjects in the United States Catalogue Books in Print January 1, 1928 and in the bound and unbound "Supplements" for 1928-29, 1930, 1931 and 1932, up to the September number. Lists were check-marked to indicate the holdings of the library

Music-Art-Drama

By O. L. BECKWITH

Most noticeable in the Holiday presentation was the progressive increase in smothering and general excellence throughout the three acts. Act one didn't run as well as Act two nor Act two as well as Act three. Reasons the players seemed to be unaccustomed to the stage and to each other during the first two sections and in addition the action was cluttered up with minor characters, none of which were any too adequately represented. With these out of the way, the third act got along well and at times approached genuine drama. All in all nothing very detrimental can be said about the play. The acting was usually consistent, nobody forgot his lines and barring a little incoherence stage presence was well carried out

Jo Gibson and Howard Conrad with the highest praise carried off the individual honors. Wanda Farlock probably came next with the Patrons, Kenneth Bellinger and Maurice King, striking out somewhere after Macomber seemed credited to his role and Kline had only a vague idea as to what part he was to play. Of course the small parts with only a few lines apiece gave an opportunity to test their acting ability

Miss Gibson generally, especially in the third act, gave a competent and faithful performance. Her voice carried well and she phrased as if she understood the part. Conrad after an unimpressive first act moved somewhat unevenly but in the main excellently through the remainder of the play. His lines were universally given the most generous need of laughter. Bellinger as Johnny seemed rather flippant, continually winking about the act, though he had just dropped in and was rather nervous about the whole matter. In a less well-written play his part might have called for a more adequate voice and good lines helped him a great deal. Miss Farlock's acting was rather stiff at times but in the whole she fulfilled the idea of Miss Bellinger did not give the part of Nick Peters the vigor it might have had and Miss King as the wife and both of these were small and difficult castings. What only the most excellent of actors could have done justice to, Macomber missed the voice from last year's. There is a small heart but it was hardly enough to depict an irascible customer of mine. Miss Rex seemed to do fairly well with the part of Laura Crum but she sat on the stage so seldom that one couldn't remember it. Kline's idea of a snubbed character in one act when one I think M. B. Hatters' criticism might have been a maid

In general, sports work seemed to be the worst defect of the production. These scenes where a crowd of people were present were never handled as well as those with two or three alone. Of course this could only be due to the inexperienced increase of general excellence. A very and suitable which is particularly the case one to be laid at Miss Conrad's door was the loss of rhythm in the case of Act three. A first act was very neatly spelled when the limited area the occupants and moved slowly about the room to express emotion, but the other members of the cast, notably Macomber, an idea to speed the movement at a time when speed was especially needed

We again repeat, however, that the play as a whole was entertaining

UNION TO HAVE STUDENTS TO GIVE NEW EAST DOOR DRAMA AT CHURCH

Are Working on Entrance Near South-east Corner; to Lay Concrete Walk. Presented by Student Religious Council.

An past entrance to the Union building will be complete and ready for students to use in about one week. Union manager, H. H. Riggs announced yesterday the new entrance is being made near the south-east corner of the building for the convenience of students approaching both from the street and from the east end of the campus

The new entrance, which will open directly into the barber shop, will have a single, standard, one door. The terms had to be cut away to allow a ground-level entrance

A Y-franchising concrete walk will be laid leading from the new door with one arm of the Y extending to the street and the other to the home economics building. The Union is using its own labor to minimize expenses

Increased patronage is expected especially in the barber shop when students find it easier to drop in to be shaved at the new entrance

Traces for the setting of Acts one and three are up to be also designed soon

Spartans Expect Stiff Battle With Detroit Saturday

Titans Invade East Lansing With Strong Aerial Game; McNutt May Be Out of Action

Snowfall Forces State Gridders Into Armory for Practice Session; Detroit Holds Edge Over Spartans in Previous Games With Four Victories, One Tie.

By Doug Graham

Determined to upset precedent and bring in a victory over the University of Detroit in the season's final game to be played here next Saturday in the stadium, Coach Jim Crowley's Michigan State gridders were busily putting the final touches on their game this week.

Old Man Winter came in large quantities early in the week and had a thick blanket of snow on the practice field so that Crowley had to take his charges inside the Armory for a light practice.

Wednesday night, after the snow had been swept off the field, the Spartans went back to Old College field for a long session, stressing line play and pass defense.

Out to Beat Detroit

Decided throughout the season to be a likely candidate for the State crown, the Detroit gridders have been able to upset a team trained in the same way as the Spartans, and even with a change in coaching, a record which is unexcelled since 1913, the Spartans are all primed to turn back Detroit.

Since Coach Gus Dorais, former Tulsa Democrat, used the same system of attack as is employed here by Coach Crowley, the State gridders have been able to work out some new plays in coping with the Titans. The only Detroit team has developed an offensive strategy that would allow it to expect to get its pass game in action.

Med Snap Ties Star

It may be recalled that in 1931, when the Titans had a 10-0 lead over the Spartans, Coach Crowley's team, led by Coach Crowley, the State gridders have been able to work out some new plays in coping with the Titans. The only Detroit team has developed an offensive strategy that would allow it to expect to get its pass game in action.

With the Spartans in the lead, the Titans were forced to change their strategy. The Spartans have been able to work out some new plays in coping with the Titans. The only Detroit team has developed an offensive strategy that would allow it to expect to get its pass game in action.

THIS and THAT BY THE EDITOR

By the Editor

A lot of people confidently looked for Don Ottey, State's blond distance sprinter, to turn in a win last Monday in the 100-4.4 championship held at Yonkers park, New York City. But that was just what in the end, and to the surprise of many, George Baker of N. Y. U. and Joe McKinley of Dartmouth both scored on Ottey. After losing the race of the hands with Baker, the two were even, ranked up and beat Ottey in the race. Chamberlain in his day, won the race and almost defeated McKinley when they met with Ottey outdoors everything that Chamberlain did, nothing made sense.

Of course, nothing was wrong. Even third place, a lot to ask of a man when he is competing against the country's best in that event. But it all comes to mind on an amusing incident connected with the run. I had given a little word of having a handle on more people. Ask Tom. What was the matter at New York? He finally decided himself to be ready to beat the next person that a kid that question.

About the time Clark Chamberlain entered the room and saw Ottey, he said, "What was the matter at New York?"

Now both men are good runners and a couple of minutes later someone called up and reported Chamberlain holding a light lead as they passed Wilkeson.

FRANK GOOD

And while we are talking about the country, did you ever hear of a crowd, anyone, finding a kid by their hand, clapping. Well, it happened and with audacity to reply there were not only two but five running hands to find first. In the case of the recent freshmen meet, five State track runners came down the stretch in close together, that they decided to clap hands and all finish in a free way. Whether the man was intentional or not, we do not know, but the college news service wrote that it might be considered a signal that the future lay in the hands of State's best placed athletes.

EMBRYO SPARTANS

The fresh footballers have had their legs now and brought to the ground in a series of games in recent weeks. The yearlings entered a mark in all three columns when they won one last one and tied one. During the course of the season, several good prospects for next year's varsity squad were brought to light. Dick Edwards, a lad from Ross Lake, home town of Williamstown, looked very good in the backfield and he was ordered to cease all athletic activity by college officials. Whether he will be able to come out for spring practice will be determined by the healing of this trouble.

Wagner and Neumann, two all-star prep school men from Lincoln, were seen in action, capable in the fresh lineup. Wagner is a fast tackle, ruggedly built, and Neumann is a speedy running back, working throughout the year as Coach Crowley's field general. Another good prospect is Lemich, who did his share of pushing some of the varsity men around. He plays at guard and came from South Bend, Ind., a former ground of Notre Dame.

Albert Agert from Tontonville has been doing some good work as a running backfield man. He didn't get into the Detroit track game because of an injured knee. Woodman, Edward Hanson, and Dagobert of Chicago, Ill., are two more excellent backfield hopes.

ROTTEN SEATS

A good many students have been voicing their dissatisfaction lately about being unable to get decent seats for home games. The most general complaint is that some have to sit far away from the 50-yard line. Maybe their troubles are worth listening to, but until someone invents a stadium in which all the seats are on the 50-yard line, someone will have to watch the game from farther away. It might not be out of order to point out the fact that the Michigan State stadium is a great deal closer to the playing field than many other stadia. Take the Fordham stadia, for instance. The Polo Grounds wasn't built for football and so many of the seats are placed very far from the field. In Syracuse, the stadium seats are 100 feet away from the field, even at the 50-yard line. Most Eastern fans have to watch the play with a pair of binoculars, so there is not much cause to worry over the State seats since they are situated in a much better position than most others.

BRUNETTE VANDERMEER MEIERS

Seven Spartans Play Last Game for State Saturday

By Tom O'Brien

The Detroit game Saturday marks the playing of seven great football players who have formed the nucleus of Coach Jimmy Crowley's football teams for the past three years. The seven players who will be putting their last game for the Spartans are Bob Monnell, Abe Egan, Buddy Meyer, Red Vandemeer, George Handy, Ralph Brunette and Joe Kowatch.

The seven men, who will live long in the memories of Spartan football followers, have been largely instrumental in gaining national recognition for Michigan State over the years. The last game of each of these seven will be through graduation, to be expected but for the sake of this galaxy of luminaries is unprecedented in the school history.

Being the last game, Co-captain Bob Monnell whose name will go down in the school history as the Spartan backfield star, Green Bay, Wis., and the non-legged back line, Ralph Brunette, who has electrified a cheering November crowd of Spartan adherents by running 52 yards to defeat the formidable Colgate team 14-0 in his last two minutes of play in his sophomore year will be making his last appearance behind a Spartan line. Monnell has made several spectacular dashes this season, but outstanding in his 80 yard dash, Fordham on the opening play of the game, Spartan's attack has been a success. The players had their hands on the Spartan line, but developing stadium and some clever open-field running were not to be denied.

When Abe Egan is called to State his two objectives were to acquire an education and to play on the football team. Red Vandemeer, the football star, has the ability and consistent plucking with a berth on the freshman team. This season Abe's career which was destined to make him one of the greatest backs ever turned out at State. Egan's ability to master the number details of the "Navy" game, attack the enemy, backing hard running and punting ability has made him an invaluable cog in the Spartan grid machine for the past three years. He was awarded the Co-captain. Walter Wagner, a sophomore, was named the most valuable player on the team. Egan is extremely popular among his fans, known for his million dollar smile, but opponents have mistaken it for gentleness. When they surprised him, he can do a new set of teeth, and he has many fans who take a sound bite every day at the night. Egan and Meiers, who were wrong sides, Crowley likes to kid him about those "pop" eyes he has seen in the Michigan game. Abe takes it with a smile.

Buddy Meyer has been described as the most valuable player on the Spartan squad, and that is so. Converted from quarterback to a center because of the tragic misfortune that befell Harold Smead, Meyer, weighing 167 pounds, held down the pivot position magnificently, and his natural ability and consistent plucking were one of the highlights of the season. This season with the appearance of Frank Butler and out of the end he's appearing weak. Meyer was shifted to an end post, attending to the confidence Crowley has in the blonde from Muskegon. He took over the complicated and assigned a few days before the Michigan game and did a mighty nice job. From the stadium you can always hear "Buddy" exhorting his teammates and snapping them on the back by way of encouragement—remember that Colgate was plucked out of the air in the last seconds of the game, turned the same trick against Fordham, would like to play in a backfield position again to see if he was forgotten how to carry the ball.

It is the general opinion of spectators and sling men who have to scrimmage against the Spartans that George Handy is the toughest man on the squad. A knee injury received in the Michigan game, has kept George on the sidelines most of the season. He is working desperately to get the injured knee in shape for the Detroit game. Handy is wonderfully coordinated for his size and brings out of the line to read interference with the grace of a sprinter, likes to play with his arms, but back on the squad, hardly dresses.

Red Vandemeer was also one of the victims of Crowley's conservative policies. Coming to State with a high reputation as a backfield player, Vandemeer was made over to an end because of an abundance of ball toters. He grasped the details of the end position quickly and soon became one of the leading ends in the Spartan first line of defense. Vandemeer's weakness is a slow starting course, but it is a Washington photographer who secured a vision on a perfect forward pass play in Georgetown, Ind.

Ralph Brunette, who has been the Spartan's home town, Green Bay, Wis., and has mastered the tight tackle position on the varsity for the past three years. Handy is a naive figure in a football uniform, spending the week well over 70 pounds, which is incidentally in his final year. The hard tackle goes through practice sessions and in a dirty game, he is a means of getting out of the line, and he is a hard worker. But Brunette handles his work well and is probably the best player who has ever played for his school. Patsy who was the Colgate game 100 yards ago when Brunette was a sophomore can attest to that. Time and again Brunette used into the opponent's territory to get a "steering" carrier from behind when the play was directed at the opposite tower.

Joe Kowatch, the Iowa center boy, has filled a prominent role in the Spartan grid scheme during his three years. His various blocking was one of the highlights of the Colgate game. Joe can play ball, he is full with usual ability but has had little chance to show his worth this year because of the brilliant play of Bernard McNutt. Aliean junior. However, it is highly likely that Kowatch will get a chance to show his wares for the last time before the home folks Saturday, because of a knee injury which continues to trouble McNutt.

Something for pipe smokers to think about!

ABOUT 1864, farmers began to grow White Burley Tobacco. A few casks were taken to the St. Louis Fair in 1867 and sold for 50c a pound.

White Burley Tobacco is used to make Grainger. It is the best pipe tobacco that grows.

You will notice the difference as soon as you light up your pipe of Grainger. It burns slower, smokes cooler and never gums a pipe.
