Menchhofer Names Perrin, O'Hara, Clark, and Hittle For Eastern Debate Trip

Schedule Will Include Columbia, Dartmouth, Syracuse, and Fordham; Majority of Debates to Be on Nationalization of Munitions Industry.

Prof. J. D. Menchhofer, coach of the men's debate team, today announced the four debaters chosen for the eastern trip to be taken during spring vacation and the first week of the coming term. The men chosen are Donald Hittle, Donald O'Hara, Harlan Clark and Elmer Perrin.

DEBATE RECORD IS SUCCESSFUL

Good Season Draws to Close With Meet Against Kalamazoo College.

Most of these debates will be on the question of nationalization of munitions or a variation of this theme. Don O'Hara and Don Hittle take the negative side of the discussions and Harlan Clark and Elmer Perrin the affirmative. At least one of the debates, that on Syracuse, will be broadcast over the radio. Most of the debates will be in formal dress as a summary in the east and in Cambridge.

As one of Prof. O. J. Drake's most successful debate seasons, the season draws to a close, a squad composed of Ruth Martin and Lela Keener will meet Kalamazoo college March 12 at 3 o'clock. The debate will be held before an assembly of students in the Marshall high school at Marshall Mich. The question to be discussed is: Resolved, that a policy of development toward collectivism under our present form of democratic government be permanently adopted by the United States. Michigan State's team will uphold the negative and there will probably be an audience decision.

Two debates were also held Tuesday night, March 5. Frances Scullin and Marion Donders upheld the negative of the above resolution against Albin at the Leslie high school. At the same time, Ruth Martin and Lela Keener were meeting Wayne university at the high school in Fowlerville, Mich. Neither of the debates was judged.

'Y' TEAM SPEAKS AT ALMA CHURCH

Deputation Team Takes Charge of Sunday Services.

The men's debate team will continue to take trips every odd year. During the even years a team is sent to the national Pi Kappa Delta tournament. This will be held next year in Houston, Texas. Last year a team was sent to the tournament at Lexington, Ky.

A deputation team sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. travelled to Alma last week and took charge of the Sunday services at the First Baptist church in that city. The students composing the team were Lee Hendrickson, Dave Hall, Alvin Thompson and Rachel Griffiths. In addition to the Sunday services Miss Thompson and Miss Griffiths were in charge of a social program Saturday night. Hendrickson and Hall were speaker at the Sunday morning service. The subject of Hendrickson's talk was "Living More Abundantly." Hall spoke on "The Young Man in the World." Hendrickson led a discussion in the young people's league meeting on the "Guiding System in Schools." Both the Sunday morning and evening services were in charge of Miss Thompson and Miss Griffiths.

PARIS QUINTET TO END ANNUAL MUSIC COURSE

Artists to Appear Here Monday Night Have Been Famous in European Centers.

ONLY GROUP OF ITS KIND Unique Musical Organization Includes Violin, Cello, Viol, Flute and Harp.

Ending the Michigan State college concert course, the Paris Instrumental quintet will appear next Monday, March 11, at 7:30 p. m. in the college gymnasium, as the final number in this season's course.

This quintet is the only ensemble of its kind on the concert stage today. Composed of violin, flute and viola, cello and harp, the purpose of the organization is to bring to the music minded public unusual and diverse tone combinations. The five artists represented in the personnel have all achieved individual recognition as soloists. Since it was first introduced in Paris in 1923, the quintet has given more than 300 concerts throughout Europe, winning the warmest praise from the press of every country visited. Only original compositions are performed, never transcriptions or arrangements.

- Concerts: Romyx, Francon Couperin for Violin, Violoncello and Harp.
- II. W. A. Mozart for Flute, Violin, Viola and Violoncello.
- III. Variations libres of Fmaje, Op. 51, Gabriel Piere for Flute, Violin, Viola, Violoncello and Harp. (Dedicated to the Paris Instrumental Quintet).
- IV. Claude Debussy Sonata for Flute, Violin and Harp.
- V. Concerto in G, Op. 71, Joseph Jongen for Flute, Violin, Viola, Violoncello and Harp. (Dedicated to the Paris Instrumental Quintet).

THIRD CONCERT WILL BE GIVEN

Michigan State College Symphony Orchestra to Present All Wagner Program.

The Michigan State college symphony orchestra will present an all-Wagner program in its third concert of the season on Wednesday, March 13, in the college gymnasium. Michael Press will conduct and Fred Patton, baritone, is the soloist for the concert. The orchestra in its previous concerts this year, has created a very favorable impression because of the perfection of its playing. Numbering 50 musicians, it has attained a standard approaching that of a professional organization. Michael Press has an international reputation as a conductor, having served as guest conductor of the Detroit, Boston and Philadelphia orchestras.

Fred Patton, the featured soloist, will sing two arias from roles which he has sung with the Metropolitan Opera company. He will sing "The Evening Star" from Tannhauser, and Wolan's "Farewell" from "Die Walkure." Mr. Patton is well known throughout the country for his performances of Wagnerian roles. During the present season he has sung with the Boston, Cleveland and Detroit organizations in "Die Walkure." He has been a member of the Metropolitan, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and other foremost opera companies.

The orchestra will perform the brilliant overture to Rhenz, the Prelude to the opera "Lohengrin" and the dramatic overture to the "Meistersinger." The concert, the date of which has been changed to the 13th because of conflicting dates, is scheduled to begin promptly at 7:30 p. m.

Wayne University (Detroit, Mich.) has adopted new methods of rating students of the graduate school, whereby they are now given credit, no-credit, or honors for their grades.

NBC FEATURES JOB LECTURES

Vocational Series, Begun March 6, is of Interest to Co-eds.

Of special interest to college women, a program of vocational lectures, planned by the National Broadcasting company to feature their Women's Radio Service series and offered in collaboration with the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, began March 6, and will continue for five successive Wednesday nights with an array of nationally prominent speakers. The program will be broadcast in this locality over WJL every Wednesday at 3 p. m. Central time.

Speakers on this program have been requested by the NFB to keep the following points in mind: Various types of jobs within the occupation, personal qualifications, kind of preparation necessary, etc. The program is expected to be a beginning and after experience, advantages and disadvantages of work in the field and present trends in the occupation.

The initial lecturer on the program was Miss Emma Rubin, owner and manager of the Atlas Inn in Washington, D. C. who spoke on "Food Services." The next speaker is Miss Margaret Sturges, New York correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, who will discuss "Journalism" on March 13. Speakers following are: Miss Elizabeth Lewis, of the Little Red School House, March 20; Federal State Aid City Government, by Miss Katherine Lennox, of the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, March 27; "Insurance" by Genevieve Forstberg, of the Equitable Life Assurance society, April 3; "Fashion Work" by Mrs. Ethel Kramer, executive secretary of the Fashion Group, Inc., April 10; "Library Work" by Anita Hostetter of the American Library association, April 17; "Medicine" by Ellen Potter, M.D., New Jersey state department of institutions and agencies, April 24; "Social Work" by Miss Lillian Quinn of the Joint Vocational Bureau, New York city, May 1; and "Department Store Work" by Miss Bess Bloodworth of Narnn's Department store, Brooklyn, N. Y., who will close the series on May 8.

YWCA TO HEAR ABOUT ALBANIA

Mrs. Delameter to Talk on Albanian Customs at Meeting Tuesday.

All M. S. C. co-eds desirous of accepting the offer of being Y. W. C. A. members should attend a beautiful American wife with a million dollar income, should be present at the all-membership meeting of Y. W. C. A. on Tuesday, March 12, to hear a special presentation of Albanian customs and costumes, including the demonstration of a hand dress, to be given by Mrs. Arthur Delameter at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Delameter has many interesting souvenirs of her young in Albania as well as of the head of the Albanian agricultural school. Mrs. Delameter is a graduate of M. S. C. and was sent to the Near East by the Near East Relief Organization. In her talk, she will tell of the life of the native women as contrasted with that of American women and will exhibit a miniature baby cradle, doll, basket in which the children are actually wrapped, some hand woven and embroidered items, several hand woven tapestries, knitted scarves, and a second hand woven rug and embroidery. Her exciting experiences make an inspiring telling.

EAST WINGERS HOLD FORMAL

Annual Dormitory Dance Features Attractive Decorations Saturday.

One of the most attractive formal parties of the season was held last Saturday night in the East wing of Mary Mayo hall. For the first time in the history of the dormitory, a dinner was held preceding the dance. The dining room of the West Wing was the scene of the dinner, and the table for the entire party were under the direction of the social chairman, Betty Hatch, and the committee working with her. The tables were lighted with ivory girdles, tied at the base with white and green bows. The flower arrangements carrying out these colors were jonquils, lilies, man roses, anemone, and pussy willows. Part of the Bronson Scruby orchestra furnished music during the dinner and for the dancing between courses.

After the dinner, the couples walked from the West Wing through the court into East Wing where the dining room and lounge were arranged ready for dancing under the light of a green quarter moon, blinking at one end of the lounge, with stars overhead. Around the walls were skyscrapers cut in black cardboard and put over the lights which shone through the cellophane windows. Around the lower edges, smaller buildings were cut from black paper to carry out the effects of the skyline.

There were altogether about sixty couples at the dinner. Many of the girls had out-of-town guests. The patrons for the party were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Nickle, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Caswell; the guests were President and Mrs. Robert S. Shaw and Dean Elisabeth Conrad. Every detail of arrangement and decoration and plans for the dinner was carried out perfectly.

SOPHS FEATURE JACK MILES AT PARTY TONIGHT

Distinctive Decorations Will Convey Spring Theme to Snowbound Spartans.

NEAR TICKET SELLOUT Wismer Names Complete List of Patrons and Guests for Last Formal.

Tonight, to the distinctive rhythms of Jack Miles and his Band of Bands, the class of '37 will present their annual prom and bring to a close the extensive formal season of the winter term. At present, nearly the entire supply of 200 tickets has been sold, and with all other arrangements having been completed, Harry Wismer, class president, and his committee chairman, were today assured that it would be the finest party which any sophomore class has yet offered.

Decorations were described by Wismer as being definite suggestions of spring, with a scene on the stage, closely resembling a typical campus setting along the Red Cedar. The class numerals and colors will be featured in the decorations, and floodlights will add color to the entire scheme.

A most satisfying sale of tickets for the formal of the season was attributed by Don Hittle, ticket chairman, to the fact that the music for dancing will be furnished by the nationally famous organization of Jack Miles, Miles orchestra, which will open at the exclusive Cecumart Lounge of the Hotel Ambassador in Los Angeles within a few weeks, has appeared throughout the country, at such spots as the Netherlands Plaza hotel, Cincinnati, Rock-Cadillac hotel, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Chicago, DeWitt Clinton hotel, Albany and the Lotus Gardens and Golden Phoenix restaurants in Cleveland. Miles himself was featured prominently with Guy Lombardo for five years.

Patrons and patronesses for the party were announced as follows: Carl and Mrs. D. R. Boshes, Coach and Mrs. C. W. Bachman, Dean and Mrs. J. C. Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. House, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Frensch, Mr. and Mrs. Tom King and Mr. and Mrs. H. P. VanAlstine. (Continued on page 2)

Enthusiasm Lacking in Eliminations as Finalists Are Picked For Positions

Voting on Freshman Council, Sophomore Council, Arts Board and Union Board, and Junior Union Board Prepares for Thursday Finals.

General apathy marked the voting at eliminations yesterday as the three lower classes cast the smallest vote in the past few years to elect the candidates for the final election next Thursday, March 14. Only five positions were sufficiently contested to require eliminations, the freshman student council, the sophomore student council, liberal arts board and Union board, and the junior Union board, and these attracted comparatively few voters.

In the competition for freshman student council, Edward Colwell, Hesperian, led with 80 votes, followed closely by Howard Siroos, Phi Kappa Tau, who polled 76. William Vinton, Leticia, was eliminated with 66 votes, as was George Worcester, Lambda Chi Alpha, with 31. Colwell and Siroos will oppose each other for the single position next Thursday.

The sophomore balloting in three offices had scarcely more spirit. In the ever important race for student council, Vincent Vandenberg, Sigma Nu, was first with 97 votes, followed by Harry Wismer, S. A. E. with 82. James Harrigan, Phi Delta Theta, with 77, and Stuart Clark, Delta Sigma Phi, with 31. Burr Palm, Independent, with 47, and John Collins, Lambda Chi Alpha, with 39, were eliminated. The first four men will enter the final next Thursday to compete for the two positions that are open.

Voting in the liberal arts board resulted in a tie at 14 for the finalists, Virginia Lyon, Alpha Gamma Delta, and Freda Bronstedter, Kappa Kappa Gamma. The two winners who were eliminated, Grace Neerds, Chi Omega, and Ruth Greenwood, Kappa Alpha Theta, polled 37 and 46 votes respectively. Miss Lyon will oppose Miss Bronstedter for the single position next Thursday.

Competition for the sophomore woman's place on the Union board resulted in the elimination of Mary Ellen McManor, Alpha Phi, with 48 votes, Jean Ballard, Chi Omega, led with 101 votes, followed by Louise Lentz, Kappa Kappa Gamma, with 74 votes. The two remaining girls will enter the finals Thursday.

The position open to a junior woman on the Union board was the least contested of all as Louise Sabet, Kappa Kappa Gamma, led with 56 votes, Marion Howe, Phi Alpha Gamma Delta, also qualified for the finals with 39. Katherine Loren, Alpha Phi, was eliminated.

Final balloting, which will be held next Thursday, March 14, from 10 until 6 in the Union building, will decide the final recipients of positions on publications, and A. W. S. both by an all-edgole vote and all class officers except those of president, vice president, treasurer and secretary. A complete ballot will appear in next Tuesday's edition of the State News.

Inquiring Reporter Finds Dean of Men is Favored

Prof. R. S. Linton Leads in Informal Poll to Find Candidate for Desired Position as Students Offer Opinions.

In conjunction with a Detroit Free Press editorial stating that the average student does not get sufficient vocational coaching at college, and agitation started by the "Spartan Oracle" column in this issue, an inquiring reporter decided to question a varied group of representative students to determine their stand on appointing a dean of men at Michigan State. The students were almost unanimously in favor of having a dean, with Prof. R. S. Linton of the education department receiving the most votes in the nomination for the position.

Following are the replies of the students to the inquiry: "Do you think we should have a dean of men?" and "Whom would you suggest?" Student A: I think we should have a dean of men. Enough students have gone through school not knowing what they are going to take up until their senior year. I don't know exactly whom to pick but I heard that Linton, who teaches vocational guidance here, really has the smack that others lack in handling students.

Student B: Our advisors are too busy teaching classes and are too apt to favor their own individual vocations. We need some-

Liberal Arts Sponsors Final Roaster Tuesday

Small Crowd Present at Last Student-Faculty Affair of Season in Union Building.

The final meeting of a series of roaster banquets sponsored by a group of Michigan State college students headed by Lee Hendrickson, came to a successful conclusion last Tuesday in the Union.

With a large turnout of both students and faculty members from the liberal arts department in attendance, the meeting led by Roastermaster Prof. Fred Patton soon swung into action after a short program of entertainment, the highlight of which was a somewhat risky tenor solo rendered for the "roaster" benefit by Dean Emmons.

Roastermaster Patton then made a few remarks on the seriousness and constructive policies that such a meeting between students and faculty could accomplish. He suggested that all the cards be laid on the table by both the students and faculty members with absolute frankness and honesty and he would guarantee that no malice would develop because of the roaster's exposure.

Mr. Patton remarked that he had heard of one professor on campus who had said "that any man who goes on and roasts me at a roaster would be finished." All of these words are given in the spirit of roaster malice toward some, with no reply and "from the looks of

PRACTICAL EDUCATION

NEARLY all of the colleges in the nation can well take some useful advice from the results of the questionnaires recently sent to the graduates of the University of Michigan.

In this investigation, questionnaires were mailed to a large number of graduates asking their individual opinions on the value of a college education.

The unexpected results have provoked comment in all of the large daily papers in this section of the country, as well as in several of the leading periodicals of the nation. Considerable space has been devoted to the voicing of the idea that perhaps after all, high education is merely an empty preparation for the actualities of the world.

The basis underlying idea of advance learning has not drawn any noticeable amount of criticism, but the fact that the overwhelming majority of those responding to the questions testified that they were not instructed how to use the education, and that the four years in college has not trained them for the practical problems of life has aroused considerable comment.

Going further, those answering criticized the university for something that our own college has often been accused of being guilty of—the lack of proper relationship between the students and the faculty. By providing a closer bond between these two groups and putting them on a more mutual basis, it was the consensus of opinion that the students would be better prepared in the more practical aspects of education as well as from the text-book angle.

Certainly no one can contend that idealism should be completely eliminated from college learning, but at the same time there should be some practical elements injected into the college curricula.

On this campus every student has his "advisor," a term that is in many instances a misnomer. There is practically no advice or confidential counsel given the students by the advisor. In almost every case the advisor does little more than assume administrative duties of seeing that the students entrusted to their care do not cause any more confusion and conflict in the registration procedure than necessary.

The fault does not lie with the faculty members who have been cast for the roles of advisors, for many are not temperamentally fitted for such a position, while others find it impossible to devote considerable time to their advisees at the expense of their classes.

Numerous suggestions have been offered in an attempt to remedy the situation. Pre-eminence among these have been the idea that Michigan State College should have a dean of men. However, useful such a dean would be, no real improvement could be achieved unless there is more real care utilized in the selection of advisors.

The problem of practical education is one that cannot be solved by one swift move. It requires real study and thought on the part of both the administration and the students.—D. H.

A WORTH-WHILE PROJECT

DURING the past several weeks the various departments of the college have held their own individual "Roasters." To the average individual looking at the situation casually, there probably does not seem to be any great improvement in school spirit. Yet, anyone who attended those functions cannot help but be convinced that something definite was accomplished through the "roasters."

For some time there has been a feeling that what this campus needed was a chance for the students to get the instructors acquainted where it would not be necessary to name words, and then proceed to iron out some pet grievances. The "Roasters" filled this need.

Although only one of these affairs have been held for each division a more mutual understanding has already been created between the faculty and the student body. This is certainly one of the most important steps that can be taken toward the ultimate attainment of genuine school spirit in Michigan State College.

It is hoped that it will be seen fit to carry on "Roasters" during the spring term.

Notwithstanding the skepticism that was voiced when they were first suggested, the whole scheme has justified its existence.—D. H.

With the people again selecting the man of their choice, we revert to the old election racket again. Wires are buzzing everybody says hello everybody makes too many promises for his own good. The politically elite decide on those who are to fill the gray train the public is supposed to bear them out. Fraternities form papered invisible blocks and so on, ad infinitum.

But undermining the whole structure is the little weakness, human nature. Every house joins the clique for its own good, and why not? When one group becomes too greedy it is squelched, when another group is subordinated it drops out in favor of some other band. A house of cards.

The Spartan Spoofer

VON POPPIH

The Soph. Prom tonight should be one of the finest parties of the year—our information on that is remarkably unbiased. The masses has been highly touted to us by those who have heard him, and other big bands, not long ago, and that a better than press agent material. And while we're at it, the publicity stunt pulled off by the sophs should rate on par with the best original ideas like that.

Which brings us to the end of the formal season and its connect publicity. Although easily written in stereotyped hands in the press is something that degrades one's rhetoric, shatters the conscience and creates nothing but illusions. After each page we were slightly disappointed in our subject—but may be we kidded ourselves more than we did the party goers, because all the parties were quality affairs.

LIMELIGHT

Off the Spartan Islands in the Pacific, Pillsbury did a little deep sea diving in a bathing suit. "I put a diving cap on my head, and with a water-proof camera, dove down, about 35 feet to take pictures of fish and corals."

"Were there no sharks in the water?"

"Yes, but all you need to do is to show them away. They don't bother much." He didn't see many under water because he was too busy taking pictures. "But there were a few dozen sharks on the surface, always following our boat, waiting for some food scraps to be thrown to them." He related calmly as though he were telling a story of his wife's pet fish.

As every other prominent lecturer, Mr. Pillsbury has had his taste of newspaper work. "I worked for three years on the San Francisco Examiner, but I didn't enjoy much for the job."

"What kind of work did you do on the paper?"

"Everything from society news to editorial writing. I would rather be out where there is more actual life though," he said.

Flying here from Philadelphia in a fog of such density that the tip of the plane couldn't be seen from the cabin, and not eating anything since noon, Mr. Pillsbury was not inclined to talk much more.

"I'm all through lecturing for the year," he said. "Sundays I'll be home with my family in Berkeley, Calif. After that I'll rest a little."

And the genial gentleman shook hands, stepped into a taxi, and rode Pango Pango bay. Pillsbury did a

BIRDS

The Roaster idea turned out to be one of the finest produced here this term. Students and faculty finally had a chance at each other's throats. But we still contend that no student will say what he really believes when marks are pending at the discretion of his visitor. And there will always be an antagonistic pool and an antagonistic student—why gripe about it?

Incidentally, this lad Dave Kube did a lot toward making the Roasters a success. The son of an Allentown, Pa., newspaper editor, Kube is a science student with more ability in more different lines of endeavor than anyone we know around here. He's a good athlete, as competent an any art student in the department, an honor man in his own division, and a writer who came within inches of getting some prize money last spring.

THANKS

(Bulletin—Tuesday, afternoon) Prof. Davis, general soon pedagogue, rates this column for excusing Quillo and Warner from class today so that they might help Kirk and me in making up this paper during Palmer's absence. May be sometime you'll excuse me for something, eh, Mr. Davis?

REPORTER FINDS DEAN OF MEN FAVORED HERE

Student G. We need a dean of men not in the sense of an employer, but a sympathetic counselor who understands the student's outlook on life and his needs. Attempts should be made at State to place students in courses for which they are best suited. This type of teaching has been sadly neglected at State. Linton's elective vocational guidance course has helped me; he should make a good man for the job.

Student H. A dean of men should have been established here long ago. This office would be priceless in evaluating the potentialities of prospective students as well as a help in placing them in the right courses.

Student I. There's enough disreputability on campus. If the dean of men would be an advisor rather than a czar then the job would be worth while. A man trained in personnel work with a genial personality would be needed. I heard about Linton, but don't know him personally.

Interesting Adventurist Relates Climbs of Life

Even Sharks Hold No Terror As Famous Deep-Sea Photographer.

By CHESTER BUKOSKI

Arthur C. Pillsbury, lecturer, engineer, photographer, newspaper reporter, and deep sea diver, who lectured here Thursday night did not impress one as leading a very colorful life. His almost drawing-voice and unobtrusive actions are characteristic of a man who would rather choose one profession and stick to it. But Pillsbury's life was just the opposite of a one-job man.

After hearing his lecture and seeing his films on plant life and growth one was led to believe that he surely studied botany in college. So your reporter ventured to ask whether he did or not. He chuckled. "No," he said. "I majored in electrical engineering. I photographed plants and plant life because it interests me more than anything else."

"Your life must be one of great interest," someone put in.

"No, not particularly," he answered. "Then went on to tell a few incidents that amused him a little at the time."

In April of 1906 when Mr. Pillsbury was up in a balloon taking pictures of the burning city of San Francisco after the earthquake, the balloon broke loose and ran away with me. It traveled some ten thousand feet up into the atmosphere and then slowly drifted along. After several hours of suspenseful riding it came to earth forty miles away in the largest swamp in the state.

And the genial gentleman shook hands, stepped into a taxi, and rode Pango Pango bay. Pillsbury did a

Pillsbury Entertains With Moving Pictures

Noted Naturalist Presents Unusual Program at Peoples Church on Student Lecture Series Thursday.

By AL THEILER

Those who attended the lecture given in the Peoples church last evening were somewhat taken back by the unusual mode of presentation used by the lecturer. Prof. Arthur C. Pillsbury, noted authority on all forms of wild growth, presented a performance featured by the use of highly colored slides depicting the various stages in the growth, life and death of plants. Using his aged voice in a melodious pealing intonation, Pillsbury held the attention of his audience even through a maze of highly technical terms.

Throughout his lecture he showed that he is clearly an artist in photography. The close-up views he presented of technicolored prints of different sized flowers were plainly works of art. Many of the shots were taken in Yosemite and Yellowstone Parks and as themselves were worthy of praise. Although his audience understood few of the technical terms he used in referring to the specimens, the views he had are probably the best representation of plant life anyone will ever see.

In photographing the minute cells and various close-ups, Pillsbury used a perfected time camera which held the object under observation for weeks at a time. One section of film took two years to complete. Pillsbury presents it on the screen in 15 minutes. Another film showed a row of beans sprouting into maturity in a few seconds on the screen. Mysterious seeds were pushed out of the ground into a

AAUW Neophytes Hear Talk About Fortune Telling

Dr. Emma Gross, who reads tea leaves and studies fortune telling as a hobby, gave a short talk on character reading at the meeting of the A. A. U. W. Neophyte group on the Union porch last Thursday night. The group enjoyed a social program with cards. Sarah Mae Shaw was in charge with Katherine Mordkin and Charlotte Yeagle assisting.

Mrs. Norma G. Roseboom of the English department discussed "What's New in Books" at the last meeting.

One of the best of his shots is that of the blossoming of the rose. He here portrays the opening of the popular favorite in a view that draws gasps from his audience. Most of the week was done in the western section of the country, some in the desert lands where the gaily colored flowers seem strangely out of place amidst their surroundings, some in his own back-yard garden.

One of his announcements that proved of interest to amateur gardeners was that he would soon have a practical solution placed on the market to accelerate the growth

Soph Prom Will Climax Formal Party Season Tonight Presenting Music of Jack Miles and His Band

Underclassmen will have their fling tonight as Jack Miles and his band of bands swing into town for the final big formal of the season. The term will end next week with the Pan-Hellenic formal in the Union.

The only other formal tonight will be the Alpha Chi Omega splurge in the Hotel Olds with music by Fergy's band. The patrons for the dinner-dance will be Prof. and Mrs. Fred Patton and Dean and Mrs. H. B. O.

Patrons for the dinner-dance will be Prof. and Mrs. Fred Patton and Dean and Mrs. H. B. O. include Dean Elisabeth and Madam Conrad, Miss Ruth Johnston, and H. B. Fields.

Alpha Omicron Pi entertained Mrs. Mortimer Waldo of Lansing and Mrs. Edwin Joki of Buffalo, N. Y., at dinner Thursday evening.

Kappa Alpha Theta. Beth Nalobakes was ribboned by Kappa Alpha Theta Wednesday.

Kappa Delta. Louise Atkins, province president, has been paying a visit at the chapter house this week and will remain until tomorrow.

Kappa Kappa Gamma. Miss Marian Handy, national field secretary, is sojourning at the Kappa house. A tea will be given in her honor Saturday afternoon.

Zeta Tau Alpha. Zeta Tau Alpha pledges are entertaining the actives Sunday evening at Hunt's Food shop.

Sigma Kappa. Sigma Kappa entertained two girls from the Alpha Gamma Delta house Wednesday at dinner. Sigma Kappa is sponsoring the project of entertaining members from other sororities in the hope that it will further the spirit of cooperation and friendship among the various campus sororities.

Actives and pledges have planned a slumber party at the house for tomorrow night.

At the meeting of the Book section of A. A. U. W. at Mrs. E. J. Miller's home Tuesday night, Mrs. Miller read the play by Hallery entitled "The First Legion." The "First Legion" is a much discussed new play of the Jesuits. During the reading of the play music was played on an organ to produce the chant effects that form a part of the background of the drama.

The Theta Kappa Nu formal dinner, dance Saturday night at the Union ballroom will feature the music of Fergie and his band. Patrons for the party are Prof. and Mrs. A. B. Bowman and Prof. and Mrs. C. S. Shurtle.

Wilda Bolles to Address Campus Girls' Assembly

Social Service Head to Speak at Church This Sunday.

The Campus Girls' assembly will have Mrs. Wilda F. Bolles as speaker next Sunday noon. Elizabeth Johnson will introduce Mrs. Bolles who is head of the social service bureau in Lansing and in charge of the case workers from the college. She is a member of the American Association of Social Workers.

Mrs. Bolles has two ties to our campus, because she not only teaches but graduated from here in home economics. After graduating she worked on social service. Then she became a case worker, and for the last few years has assisted Miss Ruth Bowen in teaching student case workers from here.

Zona Gale, famed authoress, will present a series at the University of Hawaii (Honolulu, T. H.) this semester.

HOME EC CLUB PLANS MEETING

Picturesque Tableau to Depict History of Home Economics Department.

A novel program has been planned by the Home Economics club for its March meeting. This is to be a historical tableau depicting all the interesting and outstanding events connected with the home economics division which had its beginning in 1870. At that time ten women attended this school, the home economics school as such was not in existence then but from this it gradually evolved.

The tableau promises to be highly interesting. Those taking part are Home Economics club girls, and efforts are being made to obtain actual costumes of the periods depicted. On display in the Little Theater will be old drawings and notebooks done in the early days of the department.

Chairman of the program is Doris Heber, who is assisted by the following girls: Dorothy Baldwin, costumes; Ruth Johnson, music; Ruth Martin, reader; Norma News, stage manager; Ruth Heber, properties; Mary Ellen Taylor, assistant stage manager.

The meeting is in the Little Theater on Tuesday, March 12, at 7:30 o'clock. The program will be very interesting and all members are urged to attend.

4-H Club to Name Officers Tonight

Campus Group Preparing for Conference Here in April.

Election of officers for the coming year will feature the regular monthly meeting of the campus 4-H Club at 8:00 o'clock tonight in room 400, Ag Hall. At the same time members of the organization who have spoken over WKAR during the past term will be commended for their industry and ability in presenting their material.

Following a meeting tomorrow when June Hungenroth will speak on the work of the Food Preparation club, the 4-H Club will begin preparation for the Collegiate County Life conference to be held here on Saturday, April 27. Besides the campus 4-H club, the Student Grange and Alpha Zeta at this college, groups from Central State, Michigan State Normal, University of Michigan, Ashland college, Western State, Ingham County Normal and other schools will be here to participate in the program.

State Theater Previews

STATE THEATER BOOKINGS TODAY AND SATURDAY "College Rhythm"

Starring — Lanny Ross, Helen Mack, Jack Oakie, Joe Penner, and a host of other stars of the screen and air.

"College Rhythm" brings to the screen Lanny Ross, the popular radio singer, as the son of a wealthy department store head, Oakie, his chief antagonist in college, decides to enter the department store business with Lanny's father, bringing with him a novel promotion scheme. Joe Penner and his duck Goo-Goo, also famous on the air, prove better than ever when one can witness their antics. Joe ultimately saves the day, too. The rivalry of Ross and Oakie reaches the breaking point at the end of the film and provides it with a novel twist. Incidentally the show is packed with lively tunes and beautiful girls, all of which makes for a very entertaining evening.

SUNDAY AND MONDAY "The County Chairman"

Starring — Will Rogers, Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor, Louise Dresser and Stepin Fetchit

Again Will Rogers triumphs in one of his typical roles, "The County Chairman" is a story of smiles and hearty "hugs" rivaling his highly successful "David Harum" and "Judge Priest". In the new film Rogers is seen as a witty, lovable county boss, half diplomat, half rascal. He wins elections and arranges love matches with equal skill and no one, not even his 21-year-old son, can resist him. The film gives a graphic picture of politics in the early part of the century with its backlight parades, its gay banquets, brass bands, and public demonstrations. Miss Venable and Kent Taylor provide the love interest.

TUESDAY ONLY "Sweet Adeline"

Starring — Irene Dunne, Donald Woods, Phil Regan, Ned Sparks, Hugh Herbert

Taken from a delightful operetta, "Sweet Adeline" brings Miss Dunne to the screen in another starring role as the daughter of a Hoboken beer garden proprietor, who with her father sings as well as with birds in the establishment. Woods, a perfidious young plunger, finally gains her attention and a romance results. Included in the cast are four of Hollywood's best comedians who keep the audience in hysterics most of the time.

Lying and stealing are the underlying causes of war, according to Dr. Paul W. Allen, professor of bacteriology at the University of Tennessee (Knoxville).

COLLEGE BULLETIN

Student club dancing party for members tonight in gym annex at 8:20. Music by Jack DeCamp. Admission 15 cents.

Dr. R. E. Brackey will address the Pre-Med club next Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in room 201 of the chemistry building.

Final elections for winter term will be held Thursday, March 14, in the Union building from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. Freshmen, sophomores and Juniors will vote.

Varsity swimming team pictures will be taken Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the gymnasium.

PROFESSOR HUNT ADDRESSES C. G. A.

Talks on Heredity at Sunday Meeting.

Dr. H. R. Hunt, zoology professor, spoke on "Heredity" to the Campus Girls' Assembly Sunday noon at the Peoples church. He had some little animals for demonstration purposes—some white, some black, and some spotted—and he told his hearers how they got that way. We have wondered why blond parents don't have dark children, since brunettes often have blond youngsters. Dr. Hunt was able to answer that, and even told why you are so smart when the old

Daubert Dishes Delighted Dolphins Dandy Donations During Dinner

The Michigan State varsity swimming team held a special banquet Thursday evening with Dean R. C. Hilson, Coach Ralph Young, Prof. Henry and Coach Russell B. Daubert as the principal speakers.

Donald Trapp, a free style man who has made several good showings in competition this season, was elected captain of the 1935 varsity squad, replacing Tommy Morris, this year's captain.

During the banquet several special awards were made. These were for versatility in using the English language, and for their work on the water team. Robert Sanders, Wilbur Moeberg and Ed M. Namura were the honored recipients of the leather medals awarded with much ceremony by Coach Daubert. These medals were presented as they fringed up to the speaker's table to receive the trophies, and all were too choked with emotion to say anything.

Dr. C. K. Leith, famed University of Wisconsin (Madison) geologist, has been awarded the Penrose medal for outstanding geological work.
