STUDENT WORKINGMEN . . .

The official college catalog discourages outside work on the part of students, stating that courses are designed to occupy their full time. But as it may, there are still a multitude of young people who would rather spend the bulk of their time working to stay in school, knowing that they derive a minimum of educational benefit, rather than drop out and spend the same time in a more leisurely manner at home where they would have practically no contact at all with higher education.

Official proclamations of the college are well meaning things, but they overlook the little matter of economic depression. To those who offer the theories of full-time study, the depression is a serious thing, something ought to be done about it. To the student who wants to stay in school and finds that through outside work he can do it—if he also eliminates one or two meals a day, it is a bit more vital.

We know many students who manage to make both ends meet by holding down several small jobs, we know others who work 10 hour shifts each day in factories. They don't ask for sympathy, with them it's a personal affair. But it would seem reasonable to expect some concessions from the faculty.

In this regard we do not intimate that working students should be given allowances on examinations. They themselves will admit a willingness to earn the credits they receive. But there is no reason why they should be reprimanded for failure to have books, or for lateness in preparing assignments. After all, they are paying to attend lectures, and such laxness on their part does not in any way impede the progress of the class as a whole.

Professors who assume the responsibility of regulating the students' behavior in this way are showing a decidedly juvenile attitude. Let's grow up together.

THE G. O. P. LEASE ON LIFE . . .

Michigan politicians and voters are still warring their heads, though without much display of astonishment, over the recent slide in popular sentiment toward the republican side. As usual there is plentiful speculation in both camps over the reasons for the shift.

Democratic leaders state that dissension in their own ranks, which was evident to the public, caused their decline. Republicans attribute much of their support to public reprobation of extravagant democratic policies. Others among the voters say the democrats attempted too many large measures without the requisite experience and add that a strong republican press accentuated their blunders.

In the last analysis it is probable that the democrats, inferring from popular disapproval of republican conservatism as manifested in the last election that they were expected to show more liberalism, erred in swinging too far to the left. Politicians will learn eventually that a happy normal course is most satisfactory in the long run—timidity is reprehensible, but radicalism can be far more harmful.

The Literary Digest Peace Poll

In spite of the fact that various military-minded people get excited about the lack of battleships, soldiers, and the rest of what it takes to be properly equipped for a world war, the poll drafted by the Literary Digest among college students brought out many interesting and opposite points of view.

One out of every three students was interested enough to fill out the ballot and mail it, which may or may not mean college students have time to think about other things besides J-Hops, football games, and text books—which next year will be obsolete.

The Larchburg (Va.) News states "all that can be deduced is that 36,000 students are sentimentally opposed to war."

For the benefit of Mr. Hearst "The Nation" says, "he should take special notice of the Literary Digest (which) voices some 'un-American' questions. Only 20 per cent of the students subscribed to the Hearst doctrine that a navy and air force second to none would be the best means of preserving peace."

The Temple University News—"If that's radical then we're all Reds and let's be happy about it" in answer to criticism that radicalism is gaining momentum in the American colleges.

The University of Washington Daily charges "ignorance of the League, and the vitriolic attacks of stupidly nationalistic press, are the only forces which have kept the United States out of the League."

"The day will come when America will join" is the prophecy of the Michigan Daily.

All in all, the student press was indignant about charges of "tab, rah," radicalism, and lack of thought and interest in world affairs.

FERA

Congress passed the FERA bill again for next year. This may mean that FERA checks will again be passed out on M. S. C. and on the campuses of other colleges next year. This is a fine move, but it is the opinion of this columnist that too many are getting help through this channel who do not deserve it, much less actually need it. This is no criticism of the authorities in charge, but rather an observation of the actual existence of the fact.

Lucky Strike to Air New Program

Cigarette Company Forfeakes Opera Series in Favor of Popular Music.

The Lucky Strike radio program, which has been one of the outstanding air features since the inception of broadcasting, will resume within a month, according to a statement made recently. This series will mark the return of a sponsor who has given to the radio audience a such universally popular features as B. A. Rolfe and His Lucky Strike orchestra, Jack Pratt as the Baron Munchausen, The Magic Carpet with Walter Winchell, The Lucky Strike Police Cases, The Herbert and Halliday Series and culminating with the first presentation of the Metropolitan Opera Series last season.

Always partial to Saturday audiences, the new Lucky Strike goes on as a Saturday evening feature, and according to present plans, the premier will be heard over the NBC coast to coast Red network, from eight to nine p. m. eastern standard time, Saturday, April twentieth.

While no announcement concerning the nature of the fall hour show was made at this time, owing to the fact that all details have not as yet been completed, the news that Lennie Hayton has been signed to assemble a special orchestra for the program, leads those in radio circles to expect a high-class popular program in direct contrast with Lucky Strike's previous series.

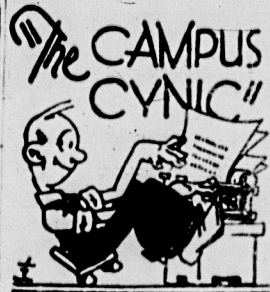

As far as known at this writing, Hayton is the only one thus far signed on the program.

Prof. Thrun Attends Conference on Taxation

Prof. F. M. Thrun of the economics department was in Chicago last week-end attending the meetings of the Conference of State Tax Officials of the north central states. Thrun, who was acting secretary of the association and planned the program, said that the society was formed in December with the idea of promoting personal acquaintance and working out a system of co-operative tax assessing in order to avoid double taxation.

OFFER TOUR TO SOUTH AMERICA

University of Pennsylvania to Sponsor Educational Trip for Students.

An intensive tour of South America, sponsored by the University of Pennsylvania just approved by the school authorities, and scheduled to leave New York on June 15th, returning to this country on August 28, offers to college men and women and to anyone especially interested in South America, an educational voyage which will circle the southern continent.

Dr. Frank E. Williams, professor of Latin American Geography at the University of Pennsylvania will be director of the cruise. The eastern coast of Brazil was sending sugar to Europe before the settlement at Plymouth," said Dr. Williams in commenting on the comprehensive itinerary of the tour arranged by the American Express Travel Service. The factors which have contributed to the economic, social and political development of South America will be among the questions discussed in the study portion of this tour as the group visits the Panama Canal, Colombia, Peru, Ecuador, Bolivia, Chile makes an airplane flight over the Andes to Buenos Aires, Argentina, travels on to Uruguay, Brazil and Trinidad in the West Indies. The entire study trip is described by Dr. Williams as a "summer field-course of South America."

Dr. Williams is secretary of the American Association of Geographers and is very well known among this group of men at the leading colleges in the country. Dr. Williams specializes in Latin America, having made several trips to South America. He is thoroughly conversant with the custom, history and background of the many countries which the cruise-tour will visit, and he will hold lectures and talks enroute, as well as lead the sightseeing excursions and direct the field study. The graduate students taking the tour will receive six university credits toward their master degree, and the undergraduate students will receive six credits towards a degree. However, the tour is also open to other interested college students, but merely interested in enjoyable and instructive travel under proficient leadership.

at the outdoor ring west of Demonstration hall on Decoration day and the day preceding it, May 29 and 30, has grown from an unpretentious beginning until it has become the most representative show held in Michigan.

The 15th annual show will have 23 classes, including competition for three and five-gated saddle horses, hunters and jumpers and junior horsemanship classes. Two classes have been added, one a junior stake for five-gated saddle horses under 5 years old and the other for registered saddle bred stallions to be shown in hand.

Approximately $1,200 in prize money and sterling silver trophies will be announced in the prize list which will be available about May 1, according to Captain Voorhes.

An evening performance, to be staged in the riding hall, is being considered, but adoption of this innovation will depend on sufficient public response.

The R. O. T. C. horse show will be of greater importance in spirit, since the state fair show has virtually been abandoned.

New York state is contemplating raising their remittance, on the 15th of this month. It is very probable that these are filed on time as the law demands a penalty for tardiness.

STUDENT PULSE

Ware War

To the Editor and Fellow Students: We see around us today preparations being made for another great war. The rearmament of Germany and Austria, the Italian activities in Africa, the increase in the size of our army and navy, and the semi-militarization of the CCC camps are all phases of the new militaristic spirit which is surging through every country in the world.

These things, though seemingly unimportant, can not help but remind us of the last great war into which the college students of a generation ago were dragged and which made money for the DuPonts, the Morgans, and the Mellons of the world, but which left most of us poorer than ever and which destroyed thousands of lives.

The youth of America today is strongly opposed to war. What can we do to keep out of another one? In an effort to show some light on this subject, the Social Problems club is arranging a meeting on campus at which will be discussed various methods that we can use to prevent another war and some of the manifestations of the latent war machinery of our country. This meeting is to be held in conjunction with a series of such meetings arranged to take place simultaneously in schools all over the world. In America the meetings are sponsored by the National Council of Methodist Youth, the National League Against War and Fascism, the Student League for Industrial Democracy, the National Student League, and on this campus by the Social Problems club. The details of time and place will be announced later.

Respectfully,
The Social Problems Club.

Gripes About Excuses Here

Dear Editor:

Though we are generally in accord with the policies of both the excusing office and the hospital on the campus we believe that three students, at least, have been unfairly treated in the handling of excuses written by parents recently. All three of the students either missed classes or lost valuable time because of the slowness with which their excuses were handled.

In the first place it seems to us that written excuses brought from home should be sufficient to excuse a student from classes missed, as in most cases the parents are vitally interested in their child's education and will not write such excuses unless there is a good reason for doing so. Yet within the past few weeks the excusing office has refused to admit such excuses, requesting that they be approved by the hospital first, with the explanation that due to the epidemic it was thought well to check up on all illnesses closely.

All of which may be all right, but that students should be kept waiting for over an hour for Dr. Ginn, who is the only person who can approve the excuses, seems decidedly unfair, especially when the student is forced thereby to miss another class. When the doctor finally is able to get it taken but a couple of minutes to approve the excuse, without any discussion of the illness or the absence, it is somewhat puzzling why the doctor himself has to approve the excuse, as he does nothing the nurse on duty could not do. He makes no examination of the student whatsoever, which by the way seems to have been the expected thing of him if the explanation of the excusing office is accepted—that it was thought necessary to check closely on all illnesses during the epidemic.

All this would be very well if students were not forced to miss classes in the procedure. Even that might be all right if the hospital did not refuse to excuse cuts caused by their own slowness, with the explanation that they could not excuse for less than a day.

There are two logical remedies for this situation. Either the excusing office should make it a practice to accept excuses written by parents, or else the hospital should be allowed to excuse for single classes missed by students who are at the time at the hospital.

The Passing Show

By ARTHUR FARWELL

The third concert of the season by the music department of Michigan State college was given at the college gymnasium on the evening of Wednesday, March 13, and consisted of a Wagner program by the M. S. C. symphony orchestra, Michael Press, conductor, with Fred Patton, baritone, as assisting artist.

The nature and program of this concert must constitute a very severe tax upon a non-professional orchestra, especially in view of the inclusion of such tremendous works as the "Meistersinger Prelude" and "Wotan's Farewell" from "Die Walkure," and the manner in which these demands were met by the M. S. C. orchestra and its capable conductor on the present occasion might well form the subject of an extended review. During the last two years it has been recognized that the orchestra has made giant strides, and its work has surprised its hearers on a number of occasions. It has become a drawing card, and was greeted Wednesday evening by a large, appreciative and enthusiastic audience.

There are college orchestras and college orchestras, from those that play poor works badly to those that play good works well. There are two chief lacks that usually militate seriously against excellence in such organizations. One is the usual absence of a full complement of wood-wind and brass players rehearsing regularly with the orchestra. The other is the lack of a proper conductor, that is, a conductor of inspirational quality and solid experience, well versed in the tradition and lore of conducting. In the first respect the M. S. C. orchestra suffers in common with practically all college orchestras, and has a considerable scramble to gather the full complement for a program of any pretensions. In the second respect this orchestra is particularly fortunately situated, for Mr. Press is of world-experience in conducting and in music of the highest order generally, as practiced in the capitals of Europe and America in recent years. His place also as a violin teacher of the very highest rank enables him to give exceptional preparation to his violin section and to deal with all the stringing with intimate knowledge and sympathy.

The program offered on this occasion is in almost every item representative of our standard professional symphonic concert. Everyone knows, however, that the mass certainty and tone of these professional symphony orchestras of 120 or so players is impossible to reproduce with a non-professional college orchestra of smaller dimensions. The greatest of conductors could not alter this condition. The explanation is made here not for the purpose of protesting any apology, but to point out that, given these unalterable conditions, it would seem virtually impossible that any such body of players as those that make up the M. S. C. orchestra could be brought to reproduce more closely the effect expected from a standard professional symphony orchestra.

Without a conductor of Mr. Press' caliber, even with these same players, it would be impossible to present such an approach to this effect as was secured at this concert. On a good many occasions the effect produced could scarcely be distinguished from professional work.

One of the ways of saving a non-professional orchestral performance is to limit it. One favored therefore, in the past, has been to restrict the program to a few of the more important instrumental sides of the score. This is usually a warfare for the greatest of all symphonic organizations, and its inclusion into Wednesday night's program was distinctly an act of daring. The result was justified.

Through Mr. Press' preliminary preparation and inspiration with the stick the performance was a close enough approximation to a standard production to be extremely gratifying. One getting true impressions of their Wagner, Mr. Press was enthusiastically hailed for his performances, as was also the orchestra, which on several occasions was asked to rise and share in the applause.

Our old friend, the "Evening Star" from "Faust," was brought to life by Mr. Patton, head of the vocal department, and the accompanying forces, in very inspiring and gratifying guise. The singer carried the familiar air with a reverence befitting the content of the song, and a rich vocal tone. The cello repetition of the air, at the end of the orchestral accompaniment, fell to the lot of Alexander Schuster, head of the cello division of the music department, to play, as he occupied the first chair of the cello section. He rendered it with exquisite feeling and "atmospheric character, and won very special applause on his own account.

The final offering, "Wotan's Farewell and the Magic Fire Music" from "Die Walkure," presented the greatest task of the evening to singer, conductor and orchestra alike. Here Mr. Patton showed himself distinctly the man of the stage, and evoked a picture of epic grandeur, wherein one could well-nigh see the spear in his hand, and the face-god rising to his call. It was unquestionably a splendid presentation, vocally and dramatically, solid, powerful and convincing, and brought the singer an ovation.

The overture to "Die Meistersinger" was the severest challenge of the program to the orchestra, on the purely instrumental side of the score. This is usually a warfare for the greatest of all symphonic organizations, and its inclusion into Wednesday night's program was distinctly an act of daring. The result was justified.

This is the shirt that studied anatomy!

The Arrow MITOCA owes its success in life to the fact that it is based on a study of the masculine figure.

Its shoulders curve the way your shoulders do... its sleeves taper with the arms... and its waist is cut in just the way the waists of the great majority of American males.

The result is a better-fitting, better-looking shirt than most men have ever been privileged to wear! And MITOCA keeps its superior fit because it is Sanforized-Shrunk—the old bugaboo of shrinkage can play no tricks with the size.

See our Arrow MITOCAs today. They come in a variety of smart colors, patterns and models.

An artist friend sends us this—

Dear people who wear Arrow Shirts: I used to be known as the loneliest man on East 57th Street. Other fellows had dates with well-looking girls. All I did was to draw pictures of them... Finally I discovered Arrow Mitoga shirts, S.S.* They looked great—they fitted great. As a result, look at me now up there in the picture. See that blonde clinging to my right arm, and that vision clutching my left. That'll give you just a rough idea of how I'm doing. And, my friends, I owe it all to Arrow Shirts.

Freshman Responsibility . . .

Freshmen who are about to seek admission to the Group A fraternities should be fully aware of their responsibilities in rushing season. Since the publicity given rushing regulations has been directed, in the main, to the fraternities, the first year men are apt to assume that the burden of care in supporting these regulations rests with the upperclassmen.

This assumption is fallacious, for certainly every violation must involve a freshman and the University considers freshmen just as responsible of adhering to the regulations with the upperclassmen.

It remains without saying that any freshman should refuse to allow a fraternity man to associate with him until after rushing season. And it should also go without saying that every freshman should feel his responsibility to report all violations of the regulations to the upper-classmen.

It might be a good idea for freshmen to consider just why they should be interested in the maintenance of the rushing regulations. A very simple answer to this "why" is the fact that the average freshman expects to enjoy three years of fraternity life. In other words—if this season proves financially disastrous to fraternities, the most surely would be the rushing rules nullified—it will be the freshmen, yes the freshmen, who will pay the price of this catastrophe.

We take this opportunity to suggest to the members of the freshman class that they assume the responsibility of rallying their class in support of the University regulations. We suggest that they set themselves up as a group to whom members of their class might report violations, and that they, in turn, report these violations to the proper university authorities.

At this stage in the game it's not a question of our deteriorating into a group of "tattle-tales." Such a fear is silly and unfounded. But we are, definitely, confronted with the task of keeping all hands on deck, and keeping that deck cleared for action, and preventing trouble by being ready for it.

The freshman class and the fine council which it has elected to represent it has within its power the opportunity to make or break Pennsylvania's fraternity system

Business Management

At a time when business management and trade practices are under critical examination and much is being said of reform, it is well to consider what constitutes sound business management, what are the qualities which lead to success.

Business management expresses certain qualities of thinking. Every business or trade policy, whether of local or far-reaching effect, is first formulated in thought before it can be given expression in the conduct of business affairs. It is essentially mental in origin and nature. The merchant, executive, or board of directors has in thought some method to pursue or object to attain. The policy or practice evolved is directly the product of the kind of thinking which has formulated it; hence the importance of carefully choosing the right mental qualities, thus making use of the power for good which they express, instead of the unsatisfactory and harmful qualities of narrow and selfish thinking.

It is worthy of mention an essential quality in the conduct of sound business management. If honesty is expressed, the business will be founded on a rock that can never be shaken under investigation. Honesty is the basis of high credit, and high credit is the basis of high thought. This quality of thought helps one to know what is the right thing to do, and when to do it. It does not change with the shifting winds of argument. It is respected by all right-thinking people, and it carries weight in the law of its own accord. By contrast, dishonesty, even in a degree, is foolish and futile. "Provide things honest in the sight of all men," counseled Paul, who was well qualified to write on sound rules for business. Justice is another divinely derived quality which insures fair dealing with all, under all circumstances. It never misleads, and does not permit false impressions to go abroad. It is the interest of all concerned and establishes for those who exercise it a permanent reputation for trustworthiness. Justice does not risk the future for an unfair temporary advantage, and avoids questionable alliances. It leads men to mind their own business, and mind it well, and to enjoy the fruits of their work. By contrast, injustice and greed are poor substitutes to intrust with the management of any business.

Obedience to law is another of the qualities of true wisdom. Much complaint is heard today of restrictive and regulatory legislation. Strict obedience to law, both moral and legislative, would unquestionably result in less need for legislation. In any event, obedience to law will make for a sound business management, while intentional disobedience is never a sign of wise management.

It is in the thinking of those concerned with the right, thoroughness, peace, courtesy, constructive vision, courage, and joy are combined with honesty, justice, and obedience to law, business management is certain to be in good hands. These qualities of thought carry the positive force of true wisdom. "Against such there is no law."

Christ Jesus, while still young, was about his Father's business. The Master knew well that, whatever form or organization it might have in human activity, true business is always the expression of God, Infinite Mind. He taught the groundwork of sound business. He stressed love for God and man as the first requirement. He gave the rule that needs no further law or supplement: "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." He gave also the unailing business forecast based on the rule: "With the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again."

Christian Science is again teaching and demonstrating the divine rules of life which the Master laid down for the permanent good of mankind. Many thousands of men and women today are finding their lives enriched and blessed by the earnest study and application of this Science of Christ, or Truth. They are finding it applicable to every manner of problem.

In the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy has written (p. 129): "The term Science, properly understood, refers only to the laws of God and to His government of the universe, indicative of man. From this it follows that business men and cultured scholars have found that Christian Science con-hances their endurance and mental powers, enlarges their perception of character, gives them neatness and comprehensiveness and an ability to exceed their ordinary capacity." Wherever it touches business, Christian Science broadens men's vision and reveals ways and means of attaining good by doing good—of attaining right results by doing right, and thus achieves the only real success which can ever withstand the buffeting of economic cycles. It teaches a strict observance of true law, for it is only in accordance with the spiritual laws of God that anything truly worthy and enduring can be established and sustained.

Mrs. Eddy sounds the call to a new, yet old, dispensation among men when she says (ibid., p. viii): "The time for thinkers has come. Truth, independent of doctrines and time-honored systems, knocks at the portal of humanity."—The Christian Science Monitor.

Track and Field Men Start Spring Season; Hard Schedule Listed

Captain Wesley Hurd Leads Veteran Army in Quest for New Championships From Coast to Coast; Allen Expected to Win More Laurels.

By BOB BURHANS

Once again outdoor track season has arrived on the banks of the Red Cedar and from now until the end of the term runners will run, jump and punch with vigor and speed. Plans are being made for a variety of meets, including the Michigan State meet at Lansing, Mich., in May, and the annual meet at Ann Arbor, Mich., in June. The season will be a hard one for the track men, but they are expected to win many laurels.

GRID WORKOUTS SHOW PROMISE

Material for Next Fall Looks good With Return of Many Veterans to School.

With the first week of the spring drills well under way, the Spartan grid candidates under the tutelage of Coach Richman, Castrol, and King, have shaken off the stiffness and awkwardness that usually characterizes the opening days of the work and have now settled down into what promises to be a most successful spring campaign.

The far the griders have been working on plays, blocking, some passing, and the basic fundamentals of last season, and Coach No. 1 man on the team three years ago, stood out from the rest of the group.

Included in the group of 17 were also several members of last year's squad, including Grids looked good at old Walt Linder, both of whom are favored to be among the first line as the season progresses.

Coach Richman is starting an inter-squad tournament to determine the men who will represent the Spartans against the University of Michigan on April 15. The Spartans will have a chance to show their mettle in the championship game, which Coach Richman has worked out.

Plans for the tournament started by the coaches, and the Spartans are expected to win the championship. The Spartans are expected to win the championship.

—so far as we know tobacco was first used about 400 years ago—
—throughout the years what one thing has given so much pleasure..so much satisfaction

Today the Governor of North Carolina says to the Governor of South Carolina—
"Have a cigarette"

TODAY people all over the world use tobacco in one form or another.

They chew it, they smoke it in pipes, they smoke cigars and cigarettes, and here is what an eminent physician said about cigarettes:

"I have been something of a student of cigarettes, and it is my belief that they offer the mildest and purest form in which tobacco is used."

Yes, nowadays the cigarette is the most popular form in which tobacco is used. A good cigarette certainly gives men and women a lot of pleasure.

Have a Chesterfield—
For one thing—they're milder.
For another thing—they taste better.

It was a matter of pride with a host in Colonial days that his guests should smoke tobacco grown on his own plantation.
