TOWNE SPEAKS TO LIBRARIANS

Interested Students Are Advised to Keep Marks Well Above "B"

Less than a year ago there were still 1,100 trained librarians out of work, and so although there are 27 accredited library schools, these schools have tightened up on their admission requirements and are admitting only students with college grades of B or better. Warned Jackson Towne, college librarian, at a meeting held in the basement of the college library Wednesday afternoon, November 20, at 5 p. m., for all M. S. C. students thinking of attending library school after graduation.

Plans were made for several more meetings of a similar nature to be held in the college library this year. Talks will be given by recent graduates of the Ann Arbor, Carnegie, Illinois, Peabody and Simmons college library schools.

The meeting Wednesday was attended by 16 State students. Mr. Towne called attention to the official list of accredited library schools in the Handbook of the American Library Association and in addition to his warning regarding the need of acquiring a ready reading knowledge of French and German and of developing methodical habits of study preparation for the highly detailed courses in cataloging and reference which the library school student must take.

Quoting from the Sunday edition of the New York Times for November 10, Mr. Towne explained that an entirely new type of professional training for librarians will result from action recently taken by the faculty of the school of library service of Columbia university.

This action consists of the adoption of a new curriculum designed to prepare the student for the higher levels of professional library service.

Emphasis is placed upon a thorough knowledge of the books essential in different kinds of library service, an understanding of the principles underlying library organization and administration, and an appreciation of the fundamental social and educational functions of the library.

In ten or twelve of the general and more specialized subjects, opportunity will be offered to secure exemption from prescribed courses by passing comprehensive examinations for which the candidate can prepare by independent study, guided by complete syllabi for each subject.

The Columbia departure is believed to be the first thorough-going application of the so-called Chicago college plan to the curriculum of a professional school.

The M. S. C. students interested in attending library school after graduation plan to meet again on the last Wednesday afternoon before examinations, in December, at 5 p. m., in the basement of the college library. All students who are interested in attending library school after graduation will be welcome at this meeting.

Veteran Barbecue Chef Relates Details of Job

C. F. Mohrhardt Has Directed Roasting of Beef Every Year Since First Year It Was Held Here.

By RUTH HALLADAY
They used to put onions in the barbecue in the good old days—back when there weren't enough ribs in college to have a dance after all the cater and bunns and beef had been consumed by ravenous students.

C. F. Mohrhardt and his right hand man, E. R. Bannasch, grizzled veterans of many a barbecue, stood in the driving snow storm of Thursday morning and remissively puffed on cigars while a home-ec student fired questions about the operations already under way in preparation for the barbecue. It seems that this event has been held annually since 1914. At only one, the very first, has Mr. Mohrhardt not had charge of the cooking operations. Butcher and sausage manufacturer by trade, he is well qualified for the position, and handles for four to ten similar events over the state each year. "There weren't many barbecues held this year," confessed Mr. Mohrhardt, "meat costs too much to give away now."

"Remember the barbecue we cooked for the undertakers' convention?" E. R. Bannasch held a hand quarter of beef in the snow while he stopped to laugh at the memory. It seems that Mohrhardt and Bannasch cooked the meat for a state convention of undertakers, but the undertakers got their dates mixed and went home one day too soon. "And what did you do with all that meat?" breathlessly questioned the reporter. "Oh, we just announced a free feed for the town and everyone had a grand time."

FORESTRY DEPARTMENT LOSES THREE PROFS

The forestry department of Michigan State college has been crippled by the loss of three of its faculty. H. S. Newins, associate professor, has gone to the University of Florida, R. H. Westveld has left here to take up work at the University of Missouri, and R. F. Kroodsmas has been appointed head of the Resettlement Administration in Illinois. The forestry department is having difficulty in locating men to fill these vacancies but expects to have the matter taken care of very soon.

WEST VIRGINIA STUDENTS CALL CADAVERS "HICKS"

Morgantown, W. Va. (ACP)—Medical students at the University of West Virginia refer to their cadavers as "hicks" not, as the almost universal custom, as "stiffs," and therein lies a tale. It seems that in the old days cadavers were entrusted upon arrival to the one and only university janitor, a campus character who spent much of his time loitering in the class rooms. One day he heard a professor of Latin, who was discussing the Aeneid, use the phrase "hic jacet" (here he lies).

This group is being formed under the direction of Dean of Men Mitchell, and it is expected to fill a need for the development of talent among the independent men. The activities are expected to offer opportunities for these men to prove their ability in many lines. Definite plans for the group's activities are to be discussed at the meeting Monday.

YMCA PROGRAM SET FOR YEAR

Many Committees Named to Assist in Year's Ventures.

The Young Men's Christian Association has now launched its program of entertainment, educational and educational ventures for the school year. Many new members have already been received, and will be inducted at the next meeting, to be held Sunday, November 24. All students interested in Y. M. C. A. activities are invited to join, and to contact Rollo Day, Lee Hendrickson, or Dick Day in the near future.

The Y. M. C. A. functions on the campus under the policy of "contributing in every way possible to the enrichment of the lives of the Michigan State college students," and all its activities are governed by this policy.

The plans for the year include social groups, the first of which is the student-faculty project, Curtis Patton, in charge and the second group is to foster meetings in the homes of faculty members every Sunday evening, to provide both entertainment and serious discussion of the problems of the day.

A group under Tom Bryant is planning educational trips to Detroit and other places. Their object is to investigate the slum areas and study social conditions. Kurt White has charge of the athletic committee, which has already organized a touch football league for independent students.

This group plans many more activities during the year. A new activity has been started this year—that of studying arts and crafts. Carl Sherwood and Al Green have charge, and it is planned that amateur art work will be stressed.

A group of Sunday afternoon Bible meetings will be held, featuring some of the nation's outstanding speakers and musical organizations, such as the Men's Glee club.

The social service, under the direction of Bob Bessey is striving to furnish the various hospitals and institutions in the vicinity with newspapers and periodicals. This work is much appreciated in the community.

The extension division is endeavoring to send student speakers to different high schools and High Y's in the state, with the dual purpose of giving students experience in public speaking and the organization of High Y's and kindred organizations throughout the state.

Bill Ingleson is chairman of the social committee, which plans to hold many parties of various sorts during the year, along with many other public entertainments.

The November breakfast of the Religious Council will be held Sunday morning at 8:45. The Religious Council is made up of officers of the six campus organizations affiliated with the church, namely, Student club, Student Christian Union, Campus Girls' Assembly, Spartan Y Forum, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. The Y. M. C. A. is serving the breakfast and taking charge of the meeting in general this month.

Forestry Club Will Campaign For 50 Bucks

Fifty Bucks or Bust. A money raising campaign is being launched by the forestry club to help finance the electrification of its clubhouse, the Chittenden Memorial cabin. It was announced yesterday by Harry Lund, chairman of the campaign, that each of the 248 forestry students will be asked to make a contribution.

It is estimated by A. B. Bowman, supervisor of the cabin building project, that from $50 to $75 will be required to cover the expense of properly wiring, for electric lights, the cabin which depends upon flashlight for its illumination.

Although Mr. Bowman says, "Fifty bucks has always been a stretching block in the path of the cabin's construction," it has paid its dues up to this month. Donations from alumni have been instrumental in making the cabin possible. After completion of this drive the project will be perfect in the clear with no obligations whatsoever.

THE BLOODY ENGLISHMEN

By BOB BURHANS

JACK HEPPENSTALL (TRAINER)
For 21 years Jack HeppenSTALL has knotted muscles, tanned up breaks and sprains, hunched the time away out to the gridiron—in fact everything that comes the way of a varsity trainer has been Jack's lot. But let's start way back at the beginning.

It was in the year 1913, Durham county, in north England, was famous for its farm produce, and although Jack was born in this county he is not a son of the soil. He grew up in the town of West Hartlepool, near the place where the River Tees flows into the North Sea, and attended school at West Hartlepool academy.

When he arrived in this country late in 1914, worked at landscaping a job and came to Michigan State in the fall of 1914 as a trainer and instructor.

But the conditions in the athletic department at that time were far from the modern setup. The gym and the outdoor building that stands now was the cramped quarters, now called the camp annex. The coach at that time was none other than today's honored coach, John Farrell Mack.

Jack also equips and trains about 30 varsity and fresh basketball players yearly, 120 track and field candidates, and 35 assorted baseball enthusiasts.

Annual Mum Show Draws MSC Entry
Eight Floriculture Majors Also Attend Detroit Show.

A display of dorysanthemums, grown in the college greenhouse, was shown at the Detroit Mum Show last week, and eight students from here went down to give out information on the flowers.

Some new varieties of mums were being shown for the first time, many of them by Mr. Smith of Adrian, Mich., who is known as the "mum" king, because of having developed so many new varieties of the flower. He is the major producer of mums in the country, and has altogether developed about 300 kinds.

One of Smith's new blossoms, called the Mark Twain, was presented at the show to Miss Gabrielle, granddaughter of Mark Twain and daughter of Ossip Gabrielle, conductor of the Detroit Symphony orchestra. Also named for famous people were five varieties.

"HEADQUARTERS" IF YOU PLEASE!
We'd like you students to think of our store as your store! A place to meet and chat... where you can feel free to come in any time, whether you wish to make a purchase or not! However, when a new tie or shirt or suit is in order, we believe you'll find... PENNEY'S ties of small poinsettia mums, each named for one of the Dornie quintets. A great deal of attention was attracted to the specimen plants on display at the show, which were plants trained over a framework in such a way that the branches were entirely covered with blossoms. One of these made of Cascade mums had over 1,500 blossoms on it.

Flowers at the show came from all over Michigan, from Ohio, and from as far away as Pennsylvania. The students from State, all floriculture majors, kept an information booth and gave out pamphlets.
