Artist in Class

A house-organ is a publication published by a business concern for the advancement of that business among a certain group of readers, according to L. H. Geil of the journalism department. After explaining this carefully, Mr. Geil said the following definition on a recent examination paper.

"A house-organ is a musical instrument. It is played by a person sitting on a bench. It is very similar to the piano, which everyone is familiar with. The organ has a softer and sweeter tone than the piano. It is usually found in churches, but many old-fashioned homes have organs also."

Poor Sailors

Perhaps it was the excitement over the spring weather, but at any rate many people are being seen in the Red Cedar after canoes have overturned.

First it was Bill Hamelbach who was noticed floundering in the water. Later, a crowd was seen as she fell in. After violently disagreeing with her escort as to whether she would get back into the canoe she turned him over. The couple was last seen swimming toward shore.

My Brother

Elmer Christianson, brother of Freshman Richard A. Christianson of Newaygo county, won national recognition for his work in soil conservation. Not only that, he will speak on one of the programs of the soil conservation broadcasts from WLW Cincinnati.

Elmer was chosen for his outstanding work from 4-H club boys in Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. Of course Elmer is proud as he exclaims "My brother!"

Duke's Mixture

"It's awful," says Larry Hamilton, "always a duke!"

For the last three years Hamilton has had the part of a duke in the spring play. He was Duke of Buckingham in "When Knighthood was in Flower," Duke of Winterland in "Monsieur Beaucaire" and now Duke of Venice in "Merchant of Venice" to be presented June 8 and 9 in the new band shell.

Almost Made It

A worried letter from her mother was received by Betty Rae Jameson yesterday. It seems that Betty Rae's name had appeared on a list of Indiana marriages printed in a Detroit paper. Hence, Mrs. Jameson was not long in being assured that the reference was to another Betty Rae.

Nocturnal Naps

Bill Carpenter and Margaret Pemberton are two tired people. A few minutes after Bill had called for her Saturday night Margaret came downstairs but did not see Bill. While waiting for him she fell asleep, only to be awakened later. Shortly afterwards a sleepy Bill walked in from the basement. He, too, had been asleep in the recreation room.

Folk Dance Slated For Pinetum

Members of the Student club will have a folk dance at Pinetum at 8 p. m. tomorrow. The group will meet at the Peoples church where they will hike to Pinetum. Eva Tullius is in charge of the meeting. Refreshments will be served and Larry Ball will lead in singing.

Coronation Scheduled For Ball

Queen Ruth Starke To Get Crown at Dance Tomorrow

Highlight of the Coronation ball, to be held tomorrow night in the Union, will be the crowning of Ruth Starke, Arcadia senior, as queen of the 1938 All-Ag carnival and open house by Pres. R. S. Shaw.

Two reception lines will form at 9:30 and the queen with her attendants, Gertrude Sidebotham and Judy Corrigan, will be spotlighted as she walks between the lines to the throne in the northeast corner of the ballroom. President Shaw will then perform the coronation ceremony, using a floral crown. The queen's attendants will be seated on either side of the throne, which will be floodlighted and banked with ferns and cut flowers.

Miss Starke and her court will reign over the carnival and open house which will be held May 29. She will also be invited to rule over the annual harvest ball next fall.

Music for the ball, which will be semi-formal, will be furnished by Frankie Prindle and his orchestra. The decoration motif, according to Lowena Ludlow, decorations chairman, will include blue and blue-green indirect lighting effects. There will be dancing from 9 to 12. Arrangements have been completed for the use of the entire second floor of the Union to accommodate the crowd. Fans and amplifiers will be installed if needed.

Patrons for the affair are Dean and Mrs. E. L. Anthony, Prof. and Mrs. E. B. Hill, and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Berg.

Five Candidates Nominated for Presy Honors

Ted Mackrell, president of the sophomore class, announced the nominations of 19 candidates for Junior class officers. Primary elections will be held Tuesday, May 17, in the Union.

Nominees for president are: Bill Mackfist, George Gargett, Dick Nahstall, Herman Marshel and Richard Reeves.

Nominations for treasurer went to Ralph Bennet, Dale Crupes, Jack Ganther, Bill Smith, Jack Saunders, Adrian Ver Hoeven.

Candidates for class officers who were nominated at meetings need not submit a list of 50 names to Dr. Fred T. Mitchell as was previously announced. Only those who wish to have their names on the primary ballot and who were not nominated at class meetings need to submit the petitions, Doctor Mitchell announced.

AWS Names 'Spartan' to Venture Again From His Den Today

Margaret Collinge, East Lansing liberal arts junior, will head the AWS freshman counselor system next year as a result of her appointment as organizing chairman at the AWS meeting Tuesday night.

Her appointment was made on the recommendation of Louise Langdon, this year's chairman. Miss Collinge will take office immediately. Miss Langdon will serve as advisor during the rest of spring term.

One of the problems facing Miss Collinge is to complete the reorganization of the system. This change, started this year, was necessitated by an increase in the number of freshman coeds. The counselors plan to cooperate with the AWS freshman orientation system, headed by Jane Shaw, and the faculty adviser system, led by Professor Slack.

Miss Collinge has had two year's experience on the counselor system, serving as a big sister during her sophomore and junior years. In addition to her work as counselor, she is secretary of the WAA board, vice-president of the International Relations club, and officer in Scimitar, coed fencing honorary.

As a sophomore, she made Tower Guard, sophomore coed honorary, and this year served on the transportation committee for the AWS conference here. She is a member of the Sigma Kappa society.

More than thirty religious denominational groups are represented in the Wheaton college student body.

In house No. 5 are: Darlene Beckman, Jenny Day, Shirley Townsend, Leora Horning, Jane Montgomery, and Elizabeth Sears. Lita Goodwin, Leola Talliday, Constance Biakely, Mary Cansfield, Elaine Flott, and Dorothy Pickett have moved into house No. 6.

Addition to Gardens in Interests of Science And—

By VADA GRANGER

HEADLINE CUPID ROAMS AGAIN ON STATE CAMPUS. ADDITION TO BOTANICAL GARDENS PLANNED.

Yes, it's true. Recent action of the State Board of Agriculture provides for an addition of seven acres to the two already planted, making nine acres of foreign and native plants, shrubs, and trees, with numerous paths, benches, a rock garden or two, bird baths, sun dial, and pool.

The addition which is already under construction runs from the present boundary south to the river and from the gym east to the railroad bridge. It is to be called the Garfield section, in honor of Charles W. Garfield, Grand Rapids, former member of the Board of Agriculture.

Emphasis in the new garden is to be placed on Michigan plants which are fast becoming extinct because of the craze for anything European, be it art, wine or plants. Some plants native to this state were already lost, but there will be a profusion of those known by the early settlers, and should they return they would feel quite at home.

The old rock garden overlooking the pool, favorite spot for Romeo and Juliet, is going to be rejuvenated, with crusted limestone

LAWS Delegates Laud Campus Hospitality

"We want you girls at Michigan State to know that we consider your school to be one of the most beautiful of colleges, to have the most charming hostesses, and to be most abundant with delightful and efficient convention leaders. We will remember it as the most wonderful and profitable convention we ever attended."

These were typical of the thoughts and words used in many of the letters which Dean Elizabeth Conrad, Nancy Farley and Louise Langdon have received since the LAWS regional conference which was held here April 28-30.

Delegates who have written to thank the convention committee include girls from various parts of the United States. Some of the most enthusiastic praise has come from DePaul, Indiana university, Cornell college, Cornell university, St. Lawrence college, Carleton college, Western Illinois State Teachers college, Illinois State Normal university and three of the Michigan colleges which sent delegates to the conference.

Deadline Set For Floats

Forty-two Groups To Be Presented In Water Carnival

Thirteen student organizations last night were requested by the senior water carnival committee to submit outlines of their float plans not later than noon Friday. Outlines may be left at the secretary's desk in the administration building.

The following student groups were warned of the new deadline: Independent Men, Deigma, Theta Kappa Nu, Heperian, Religious Council, Phi Chi Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Gamma Rho, East Mary Mayo, North Sarah Langdon Williams, Zeta Tau Alpha, Union Dorn, and Sigma Nu.

Forty-two floats, all designed and presented by student groups will develop a theme, "A Night in Fairyland," in the annual carnival which will be presented on the Red Cedar two evenings, June 19 and 21.

Walter Lueck, member of the water carnival committee in charge of the sports program, announced last night that entry blanks for sports events are available at the Union desk, and that they may be left there after being filled out. Blanks will be provided for four events in canoe racing, men's singles, men's doubles, women's doubles, and mixed groups, and another event will feature canoe tilting.

Deadline for submitting entries in the sports contests will be June 1.

Howlands Are Back From California Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Howland of 513 Forest street have recently returned from a month's tour of California. Traveling by automobile, they visited all places of interest between here and the coast and spent two weeks in California. Mr. Howland is extension specialist of economics at the college.

Expect 1500 Sees Achievement Of Ambition For Home Ec Visits

High School Students To Be Guests at One-Day Meeting

Approximately 1500 high school girls from towns throughout Michigan will be guests of the home economics division Friday. One thousand one hundred made reservations last night for the one day stay on the campus, according to Miss Margaret Parlow, instructor in textiles and clothing, who is on the committee for arrangements.

A full day of activities has been scheduled for the visitors. An athletic program of events and games is planned for the morning in the gymnasium. At that time, Prof. Robert Sidney Shaw and Dean Marie Dye will deliver welcoming speeches.

Also during the morning program Nancy Farley, home economics senior, will speak on "College Customs," Martha Dolen, special home economics student from Sweden, is scheduled to describe the home economics activities in her land.

Throughout the day, student guides will escort the guests to interesting places on the campus. Exhibits have been prepared in dietetics, table setting, window treatments, room arrangements and modeling.

On the faculty committee for general arrangements are Dean Marie Dye, Miss Margaret Parlow, Mrs. Merle Byers, Miss Ruth Williamson, and Miss Helen Simmonds.

Students who are serving as committee heads are Dorothy Haselbring, Alice Lee and Nancy Brown.

Stroud Heads Dining Club

Dolan is Chairman of Control Club At Wells Hall Club

Russell Stroud, Battle Creek junior, was appointed manager of the Wells Hall Boarding club for next year at the first meeting of the new board of control. He will replace Keith Langdon, present manager.

Jerry Dolan, also a junior from Battle Creek, is the newly-elected chairman of the Board of Control of the boarding club.

Charles Scribner, of Pontiac secretary. Other members elected are: John Pietrzyk, Battle Creek; David Stroud, Vicksburg; Douglas Reuter, Charlotte; and Rodgers Cook, Allegan. The new board assumed its duties Monday.

The Wells hall boarding club is unique in that it is the only student-organized, student-controlled cooperative in the campus. It is a non-profit organization which handles over $29,000 annually and feeds nearly 200 members each meal. With the exception of the cooks, it employs student help exclusively.

Dr. H. J. Stafseth, professor of pathogenic bacteriology, has returned to school after a six weeks illness.

VINCENT VANDERBURG

"On behalf of the class of 1937, I present this hand shell to Michigan State college."

Representing the faculty of Michigan State, and with deep appreciation to the class of 1937 and the state board of agriculture, I accept this shell and dedicate it to the interest of music and its allied arts.

With these short sentences uttered by Vincent Vanderburg, last year's senior president, and Robert S. Shaw, college president, was dedicated Michigan State's new hand shell at the first spring band concert.

Approximately 3,000 spectators sat on temporary seats or stood gleaning on the slope before the structure to witness the dedication ceremonies and hear the concert.

John A. Hannah, college secretary, was master of ceremonies. Leonard Falsone, band leader, expressed the appreciation of the band for the structure and stressed its value.

The concert opened with the Coronation march from the Prophet by Meyerbeer. Followed by the dedication ceremony. After the titles, the band resumed its concert with the overture Rosamunde, by Schubert, ballet music from the Pierre and transcribed for band by Falsone, and Finlandia, by Sibelius.

The concert was concluded with the Alma Mater.

Doctor Hanson, of the University of Louisville, will teach the course in summer school. Students may also take the course during the summer season and then repeat later during the regular term.

Senior Class To Decide On Gift

Chairmen to Give Reports on Senior Week Ceremonies

A memorial from the class of 1938 will be discussed at a senior class meeting tonight at 5 o'clock in the chemistry lecture room, according to Ruth Starke, class secretary.

Two possible memorials have been suggested and will be presented to the class. One would be memorial stones to be placed at all entrances to the campus and the other is the lighting of Beaumont Tower.

Reports of committees for senior events will be given. Committee heads are as follows: Dale Springer, carnival; Douglas Lake, commencement; Norwin Erwin, memorial; Edward Flowers, senior dances; and Al Brightman, treasurer.

All seniors are urged to be present at this meeting and will be given an opportunity to present their own suggestions for a memorial.

AWS Elects Officers

Positions Go to Julia Hammond, Nancy Brown

George Ann Shaw, incoming AWS president, formally took office at an AWS meeting Tuesday evening. Other officers for next year who were elected during the meeting are: Judy Hammond, sophomore, treasurer, and Nancy Brown, freshman, secretary.

The new officers were chosen from members elected to the AWS council.

Louise Langdon, chairman of the recent A. W. S. convention, gave a partial report of the conference. Barbara Sears, outgoing secretary, read letters from various colleges congratulating Michigan State on the convention.

Plans for reorganization of the system of electing members to A. W. S. council were discussed, and referred to a committee for investigation. All representatives were asked to urge coeds in their groups to take part in lantern night.

Bandshell Seats 1938's Project?

A problem of little importance 364 days of a year, but of major importance to each graduating class at Michigan State college on one day each year, is that of accommodating in a typical Michigan State manner those guests of each graduate at his commencement. In 1936, if each seat in demonstration hall had been reserved, a senior could have issued six invitations to his graduation. Last year the maximum would have been five each and this year each senior will probably have only four reserved seats at his commencement.

It is a distinct inconvenience to the class of 1938, but consider what an impossible condition will exist with future classes if with an increased number of graduates the number of reserved seats for each decreases at the same rate.

There appear to be two solutions to the problem. The first, and at present impractical one, would be the construction of an auditorium ample to accommodate comfortably all those interested in commencement. The second solution is the use of the present equipment. The band shell is complete now and affords a perfect setting for out-of-doors commencement exercises. Unfortunately for this year's class it is really impossible to hold the exercises out-of-doors because of a lack of sufficient chairs, but were there permanent seats in the natural amphitheater in front of the band shell—that would be different.

In order to hold commencement out-of-doors the stage must necessarily be set also indoors to make possible a change of plans in case of inclement weather. In order to set two locations with temporary chairs it would be necessary to purchase about $6,000 worth of extra equipment which would have little use on the other 364 days.

What greater memorial could any class leave to itself than to make it possible, by providing the necessary permanent seats in front of the band shell, for future classes to extend unlimited hospitality to their commencement guests. This would not be a contribution merely to be used one day in 1938, but often. Yet this spring, besides being used by the band, the shell is to be the scene of a glee club minstrel show and the senior play.

Unless the guests of this year's senior class were willing to bring blankets and sit on the green slope before the shell the luxury of ample room and beautiful surroundings is not for them, but the class of 1938 could make it possible for future classes to play the true host to their guests. —D. E. L.

Lounging Seems Crude To Visitors

Doubtless the couples who cast themselves down on the greensward underneath a shady tree on the campus on fine May afternoons, envision themselves as presenting a pretty pastoral picture. Ah, if they could but see themselves sprawled there! Arise candid camera fans, and produce the evidence to show these men and maids that although the setting may be pastoral, their prone figures lend a note which can only be characterized as crude.

Perhaps it is the early spring, but members of the sprawlers' league have never been common before this year. One of the administrative officials, quite concerned about this new form of campus lounging, observed on a recent trip that no such lounging goes on at other mid-western colleges whose campuses are comparable to this.

Of course this is an age of self-expression, of never permitting an urge to go unsatisfied. Probably everyone, at some time or other, has had the desire to roll about on the velvety lawns of M. S. C. But let us return to the day of our grandmothers, when makeup was put on, and the hair was combed in the privacy of one's boudoir, if we have become so unself-conscious about anything. One could be heard to exclaim on leaving the library that she felt like wrapping her skirt tightly around her leg, because so many persons were lying about on the lawns along the walk. Certainly if coeds feel this way, how must visitors, who are more numerous at this time of year than any other, react to this new trend in Michigan State life? —O. B. G.

Let's Go Out To the Ball Game

Take me out to the ball game. The nation over fans are singing this famous song. They're going out to see their favorite team in action, whether it's a big league club or a team composed of kids playing on the corner sandlots. The national pastime is in full swing, and most everywhere capacity crowds are taking in games.

There's an exception to that last statement, however, for thus far Michigan State students have failed to show a great deal of interest in their team, said to be the strongest in the college's history. Game after game goes by with only slim crowds turning out to watch the Spartans exhibit their class against the best the midwest has to offer in collegiate baseball.

Sponsors of the team find it is difficult to account for the apparent lack of interest here in what supposedly is the most popular sport in the country. It becomes doubly puzzling when one considers the Spartans have won 12 of their 15 games this season, a record which stands as one of the best in college circles today.

The 1938 edition of the Michigan State baseball team has all the qualities that make a great club. The team has the pitching, the fielding and the hitting. The Spartans play inspired baseball, the type which leads to one spectacular play after another on the ball field. The team never ceases to hustle, as it strives to bring Michigan State further athletic recognition.

Such a team is deserving of support, especially from the student body which it represents. The stands on Old College field should be jammed to the capacity each time the Spartans swing into action. They haven't been for the first five home games, but it is to be hoped they will be for the final five contests here.—G. J. M.

ST. MARY'S COLLEGE (OHIO) HAS AN ALBUM OF STUDENTS WHO HAVE BEEN LONELY VIGIL!

IN THE ROUGH

WITH HARVEY HARRINGTON

First... of the campus marriages this year which we have heard about is that of Ring Miller and Jean Jones—now Jean Miller, of course. Way back, in March, the twelfth, we believe, the two tripped off to South Bend, Indiana, and had the knot tied. She has a swell gold wedding ring studded with diamonds—hot dawg!

And in the Spring... we will celebrate, young men's fancies turn that's all, just turn. AGR senior, Bob Gillespie parked a sparkling circle on Marian Fishbeck's business finger Tuesday night, just to back up an statement.

Busted up... are Kappa Delta Pat McKiddly and Delta Sig Larry Lusk while another Kappa Delta, Barbara Heath, is still walking hand-in-hand with another Delta Sig, Bob Spencer. She is wearing his pin, has worn it since spring vacation.

It on... Jack, Hamano and Lou Sherman will clutch each other to their bosoms for good and all August 13. And we are wondering if Bill Ingleson and Peggy DeWahl would pull the same act at about the same time—two months after school lets out, and our advice, and that is August 13. Bill visited Peg at Roseomon last week-end, taking her from Roseomon to Hoshelle, Illinois, which is the burg he calls home. Then again, we have been given to understand that Jerome Hays and Tiff will take the drive, not so far in the future, though we have not ferreted out the exact date. Says Jimmie, "Ain't love grand!"

Errata... Jamie Martin was a Delta Sig, not a Delta, as we announced.

If You Want... to get a special where, take note of Spring's love matches, training, assist with heads together and an arm wrapped around. In this hot act of arm wrapping we refer to that accomplished couple of Hunt and Almond.

In Passing... the other day we look note of a little piece that stated that next fall the University of Cambridge will offer a two-year course for the 50 per cent who spend only that amount of time in college. We ask that the State News staff, Jim Thompson, Harry Bruce, Jerry Kimball and a few others, take special notice.

Remember when you were a little punk the first time you were possessed with the idea to carve a statue out of soap? (Used the wrong kind, didn't you?) When you girls used to make your lips red with red jelly, beans. When you daintily held dandelions under each other's chin to see if you liked butter, or maybe the boys, if you were daring.

Texas Christian university has not lost a football game on its home ground since 1935.

And now we're taking to torch bearing!

Look at it this way. Do you hiss and boo when the Camel commercial comes on the Benny Goodman program? No! You're smart little children and you know that you wouldn't have Goodman if it weren't for Camels—that you wouldn't have Benny and his six delicious flavors if it weren't for Jell-O. It's the necessary evil that goes with getting high class radio entertainment at no cost to you.

so-o-o... Here we have the State theater offering pictures 30 days after they've hit the high-priced theaters... at the nominal cost of 25 cents. Now the State couldn't afford to do that, stay open vacations to accommodate the town folks and still offer the first-rate pictures if it weren't for the flicker advertising. It's a case of higher prices, dated pictures as you find at most 25-centers or a few seconds of advertising. Take your choice!

This "Slight Case of Murder" coming Friday has really hit the bull's eye. Everybody's been a-talking about it. Funny as well darn funny. A Damon Runyon story—you know, "there's a certain citizen with a lot of potatoes who... Edward G. (Little Caesar) Robinson turns out an A No. 1 performance as usual. It's the kind of picture that it isn't safe to take a laugh-out-loud girl to—she'd have hysterics. It's so good that the publicity blurb left out the superlative and just said "the funniest picture ever made."

Next on the list is "Happy Landing" with Sonia Henie, coming Sunday to the State. For some of you who go all a-twitter over ice skating that'll be a red letter day.

What we have got to promise is "Jezebel"—that Bette Davis vehicle that is supposed to be singing the tail feathers off "Gone With the Wind." That long-promised but not forthcoming dramatization of the best-seller.

A first-class "scoop" on the filming of the novel, still many think "Jezebel" is "Gone With the Wind" with a different title. Now you know, don't be a Dopey and go around saying you read the book and saw the picture too. Coming Soon.

Place Emphasis On Home Life

NEW YORK CITY.—(AP)—Predicting an expanding future for the study and teaching of home economics in United States colleges and universities, Mrs. Kathryn VanAken Boats, president of the American Home Economics Association, told a group here recently that "educators generally are placing new emphasis on education for home and family living."

"For a long time home economists have realized that their area of interest has much to contribute to successful living. At last it seems to have occurred to administrators that almost every one lives in a home and that within it are established the ideals and ideas that largely guide that individual in later life," she said.

A little bit INDEPENDENT

By JOHN CRIST

POSTPONED
 An Independent council meeting will be held Tuesday night at 6:45 instead of the regular Monday night meeting in the Organization room in the Union. The date has been changed to avoid conflict with the political rally Monday night.

NEW REPRESENTATIVES
 Independent houses with 18 or more residents are invited to elect a representative from their house to attend the meetings of the Independent council. In this latest move, the council hopes to promote a closer association with the general student body, to give them the opportunity to voice their own opinions concerning the plans of the I.M.A., and to create a larger active membership. These new representatives are asked to be present at the meeting of Monday, May 23.

INVASION
 Fourteen Athenian Women and their adviser, feeling their newly chartered independence, invaded the Men's council meeting Monday night, adding no little confusion to the hitherto staid meeting of the men. They came for a joint meeting to make plans for the "Sing While You Swing" dance, May 21, of which they are co-sponsors.

ELECTION COMMITTEES
 Independent Men and Athenian Women election committees (those nominated to run on the Independent ticket) are asked to attend a special meeting concerning the coming all-college election in organization room 2 to the Union at 7 o'clock tonight.

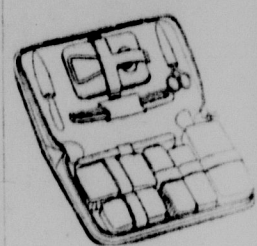

MACHINE DANCING STARTS
 Another new innovation, sponsored by the Independents, is the series of Saturday afternoon dances following their "Air Frolics" broadcast. These dances, started as an experiment, will continue as long as the attendance justifies them. Admission will be 10 cents stag or 15 cents per couple, and Bob Siegrist will emceue the series.

COUNCILMAN'S TICKETS
 The new issue of tickets for the "Sing While You Swing" dance, May 21, are at Dea Mitchell's office under your names. Will you all call for them as soon as possible?

RECOGNITION
 It is approximately three years since the Independent Men's league was organized and had its constitution accepted by the student council. During those three years, until the last meeting, there has been no material recognition of outstanding work on a scale to the organization. In Monday night's meeting it was decided that the Independents should have a job to be awarded only to those who have done outstanding work or have served for a sufficient length of time on the council.

Sparty Returns from First Tilt: Girds on Armor for Further Battle; Seeks Aid

Sparty came running into the State News office today clutching his spear as he ran, and came to a "Scop" Man's stop. "Hold the presses," he stressed, falling over a sleeping freshman reporter and doing a loop into the waste paper basket. "Hold the presses," he echoed as I lapped him out and brushed him off. "I've got a real story."

"What's the matter, old boy?" I chuckled. "Are you sure of some of the criticism you got in the last issue?" "No," he laughed and his pallid features brightened. "That's what I wanted. And I've got the answer now." His spear point threatened my Adam's apple as he tossed me back against the desk. "Now listen."

He sat down on the desk beside me and nudged a cigarette from the package in my shirt pocket. (That's a possetee he pocketed around the State News office.) "That's the whole trouble," he mused, pouring a little river of smoke out of his nostrils. "Getting the students to listen. I know how it is, I can still remember when I was a little shaver... but those days are gone forever. I'm a man now."

He put his arms around my shoulders. You've been a friend to me, chief," he whispered solemnly. "And whatever happens whether I make the grade or not, I want you to know I appreciated your help. Here's the whole set-up. I'm tired of running around in those short pants, catching cold, having my friends say I'll never amount to anything. I heard them say that when I was born, but I think I've made most of them change their minds. He took another puff on his cigarette. "Why even the other day," he continued, "one of the deans, a darn good one, told me he figured I was given up, and should be adapted into the official college fauna. That's good, coming from one of the administrative board. He suggested that I be put in with the college fees. That's the whole answer."

He slung his belt buckle with idents their own program. I can run cast contests for every student on campus, department for every student. I can give the serious writers a chance to breathe, back State up in some of the things they need, and be a magazine that everyone will be proud of." He slid to the floor and did an Al Jolson kneel. (He wasn't looking though, I could see the tears in his eyes.) "Best of all," he whispered, "I can really be M. S. C. Please, chief, vote for me!"

Seriously, kids, I told him I would. Will you please think it over?

Teaching Days Near End; Ryder Considers Travel

By NORMAN KENYON

Thirty-three years at Michigan State college—that's the teaching record of E. H. Ryder, professor of history and political science. Now that he is about to retire, students and townspeople are wondering what plans Mr. Ryder has for the future. Just what does a man think about leaving his life-long occupation?

"Plans?" asks Mr. Ryder. "Why, I haven't thought about the future. There will be plenty of time for that when this spring term is over."

Travel is one of his first loves, however, and he may hit out for distant ports when the last "C" is recorded in his grade book. In 1923 Mr. and Mrs. Ryder took a trip around the world that admittedly left them longing for future sight-seeing journeys.

On a trip a year later Mr. and Mrs. Ryder selected Edinburgh as their home after retirement. "One can read a newspaper there until 11 o'clock at night in the summer," says Mr. Ryder.

Since 1916 Mr. Ryder, who holds his M.A. degree from the University of Michigan, has been engaged in his present work as professor of history and political science. Starting out with offices in Agricultural hall, he has seen his department expand to the old Liberal Arts building and up to the present location of the fourth floor of Morrill hall.

"During that time I've had many pleasing experiences," continues Mr. Ryder. "For instance, there was old Williams hall with its parties and its pranksters who liked to throw water out on the heads of unsuspecting instructors walking underneath the windows."

This man also leaves an enviable record behind him as a prominent figure in East Lansing civic life. For many years he was mayor, leaving this position when he became the first dean of the college's liberal arts division.

So in June E. H. Ryder bids his political science classes goodbye and starts out on a new life. A new life which will find him, despite regrets for the past, doing those things which his position at Michigan State has always prevented him from doing.

Because of measles, there is a large number of absences, especially in the lower grades.

Students in every grade are busy rehearsing for the operetta which will be given May 25 in the new auditorium.

Prep Seniors Plan Play

'The Mad Hopes' to Be Staged in School Auditorium Friday

"The Mad Hopes," a play by Romney Brent, will be presented by members of the East Lansing high school senior class in the school auditorium at 8 p. m. Friday.

The play, which is a farcical comedy, centers around a Mrs. Hope, played by Carol Latt, the maddest of the mad Hopes. She is living with her three children, played by Betty Jane Anthony, Jack White and Richard Osmer, in Nice, France.

Made penniless by investments in bad securities, they have come to the point where both their wardrobe and their larder are bare. To Mrs. Hope, the situation is imaginary, and though the bailiffs are at the door, she continues to make purchases of jewels and clothes, paying no attention to her indebtedness.

Men Will Hear Lightening

Dr. Lydia Lightening of the physical education department will give the next address of the "Better Husbands" lecture series tonight at 7:30 in room 139 Morrill hall.

Dr. Lightening will talk of venereal diseases and the problems of pregnancy as it concerns the husband. Her lecture will be much the same as the one which she gave on the girls' lecture course.

Only senior men will be admitted to the lecture upon presentation of their student receipt for dues.

Noise! Certainly. But Grams 'Putts' On For Living

For the past month there have been emanating from the east side of East Lansing some weird, guttural and staccato outbursts reminding the residents of this area of nothing less than a modern war.

Upon further investigation the "war" has been determined as nothing more dangerous than a two-wheeled tractor of the harmless garden variety. A tractor named by James Grams, senior agriculturalist from the college, who carries a spare bit of pocket money by plowing, with his tractor, any tract of land which can grow produce.

Grams estimates that in the past four weeks he has averaged four gardens a week. Each garden is completely plowed in from three to six hours. The plowing is done in the afternoons and evenings.

East Lansing Baseballers Bow to Big Reds, 9-1

East Lansing high school baseball team dropped its fourth game in five starts and its second straight to Lansing Central when they bowed to the Big Reds, 9 to 4, at the West Side field yesterday afternoon.

The Trojans staged a brief, last-inning rally which was nipped in the bud by an alert Central fielding play. With two out in the seventh, East Lansing filled the bases on a single by Bud MacKichan between walks to Don Smith and Roy Dygert.

John Young then laced a single to left scoring Smith. The Central left fielder threw the ball in to the short stop, who in turn whipped it to the catcher, trapping MacKichan between third and home. He was tagged for the final out in the ensuing run down.

Ron Jean was the star of the Trojans both in field and at bat. He handled six chances at his second base position without an error.

His work at the plate was even more outstanding as he lashed out a long home run and two single in four times at bat. His leaping stab of a line drive in the fourth inning was the game's fielding gem.

Ty Anderson started on the mound for East Lansing, but left in favor of Al Gaines in the third inning. During his stay he gave up six hits and seven runs. Gaines had much better control, as they struck out 13 and yielded but three bases on balls. Anderson and Gaines lanned three, but walked six men and hit five others.

Score by innings:

East Lansing: 0 0 0 2 2 2 4 4 0
Lansing Central: 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1
Pitchers: Anderson, Gaines and Weaver; Smith, O'Donald and Stepp.
