East Lansing Schools To Open Monday

Big Increase Expected In All Divisions

East Lansing public schools will open their doors Monday morning, September 12, with increased enrollments in all divisions of the system, according to an announcement by Superintendent Donald O'Hara.

"The enrollments are higher than ever," he stated, "and we had to make provisions for extra room at both of the elementary schools. The indications are that there also will be a considerable increase in the number of students in the high school."

All Experienced

At the high school, three new teachers will appear on the faculty Monday. Miss Madelyn Grapes, graduate of the University of Michigan, and formerly art supervisor at Greenville, Mich., will conduct the work in the art department. Miss Grapes has also spent the past summer in intensive study of living conditions in Germany and Austria.

Miss Barrows Heads Home Ec

Miss Jennie M. Barrows will direct the high school home economics department. Miss Barrows has her degree from Michigan State college and has taught at Alma and Grand Ledge. The biology department will be headed this fall by Edward Graper who holds his degree from Oakland City college. He taught at Wakefield, and has also done special work with the Kellögg foundation.

Miss Bernice Hofacker comes to the East Lansing system to teach the second grade at Bailey school. She taught at Muskegon and is a graduate of Western State Teachers college. Also at Bailey school will be Miss Faye Breitschneider who will teach the third grade. She is also a graduate of Western State Teachers college and has been teaching in Three Rivers. Miss Virginia Kooiker will teach the sixth grade for a half day at each school. She has been teaching in Holland and is a graduate of Hope college.

New Teachers at Central

Four new teachers will be at Central elementary school. Harriet Beale, who has her degree from Northern State Teachers college, has been teaching in the Saginaw public schools. She will have the second grade here. Miss Elizabeth Hosking will teach the third grade. She has her degree from Northern State Teachers college, has done graduate work at the University of Michigan, and is an experienced teacher from the Ann Arbor system.

The fourth grade at Central school will be taught by Miss Maude Lougheed, a graduate of Central State Teachers college, and with experience in the school system at Jackson. Miss Sally Johnson, who has been teaching in Johns, will teach the sixth grade at Central school. She has her degree from Western State Teachers college.

'State Looks Good' is General Opinion Gleaned by Reporter

By Marshall Dann

King Football ascended his throne on the Spartan campus yesterday, so your wandering reporter dusted off his notebook, sharpened a new pencil and went into the world to find just what the public foresaw for this year's team.

Armed with the question, "What do you think of State's football prospects for this fall?" he clutched at friend and foe alike and came forth with the following opinions:

Al Smith, senior: "There's the best looking material coming up this year that I've seen in the last five years."

Mrs. Irene Spencer, merchant: "I always think they'll win for Bach always turns out winners."

John Nardovic, printer: "Barring injuries they ought to have a good team, but the Michigan game will probably be anybody's game."

Keith Hunter, U. of M. graduate: "I'm more anxious to see what'll happen at Michigan, and I think the State-U. of M. game will be a toss-up."

George Falkowski, junior: "— best they've ever had—they'll take Michigan."

Miss Beatrice Kinney, stenographer: "I'm sure they're going to win, Michigan and all."

Al Gaines, high school student: "... lot of veterans back, and that's a sign of a good team; Michigan with a new coach."

Jack Warner, State graduate and sports editor of the State News in 1933-34: "It'll be as good a team as in '32 from the standpoint of both players and coaching staff. If they get started early in the season, they'll breeze through."

T. K. Schram, tailor: "Of course they're good, and I'm going to Ann Arbor to see them WIN."

Barney Studt, East Lansing policeman: "... going to win them all ..."

Jack Christensen, junior: "... better than last year. 'M' game a toss-up."

WKAR Goes Back Stage to Learn About Weather

If you want to learn something about weather forecasting with respect to heat or cold, wetness or dryness, calm or storm, clearness or cloudiness, or any other meteorological phenomena, tune your radio to WKAR at 3:30 this afternoon when H. M. Wills, college meteorologist, will discuss the use of the various weather instruments in calculating the state of the air.

Patton at Mike

Mr. Wills will be interviewed by Curtis Patton, WKAR announcer, who conducts the "College at Work" program heard from the studio at 3:30 every Monday and Friday afternoon. Part of the broadcast this afternoon will come direct from the 90-foot tower which exposes many of the instruments to atmospheric conditions. The rest of the fifteen-minute broadcast will come from the weather bureau office and lawn where the wind instruments and sun shine recorder are located.

Ground Tower

According to Mr. Wills, the tower is one of the tallest used at any weather station in the country. Most of the other weather bureaus have towers on top of high buildings or instruments located on top of tall buildings. The one at East Lansing, however, is located on the ground, which, the meteorologist believes, is a much more satisfactory method of exposing instruments.

Schools Offer Health Work

The East Lansing public schools will begin a comprehensive program of health education this fall in cooperation with the Ingham County Health department.

The main emphasis in the new program will be laid on health work with the children in the early and later elementary grades, through the sixth. In these grades there will be surveys of the general health situation, periodic examinations, and the furnishing of materials to teachers which will aid them in teaching health units as part of their regular classwork, according to Supt. Donald O'Hara.

General Inspection

Arrangements were completed this week by Dr. C. D. Barrett, director of the Ingham County Health department, and Superintendent Donald O'Hara, representing the East Lansing school board, for the preliminary steps in the new program. Early this fall there will be a general inspection by nurses to indicate the needs that exist. This will be succeeded by intensive follow-up examinations.

No Cost

Besides the personal examination of the health of the students by the nurses and doctors from the county health department, there will be a constant close check of sanitary conditions in each school.

"We are getting this service at no cost to the system, Superintendent O'Hara commented, "and by cooperating in this way with Dr. Barrett's department, this community is assured of a most comprehensive health program for the children, now and for the future."

The time limit for the payment of East Lansing taxes has been extended to October 15, according to Harry Lott, city clerk.

Dr. and Mrs. L. B. Sholl and Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Sholl's mother, have just returned from several weeks' vacation spent at Eveline Orchards Resort on Lake Charlevoix.

Doctors to Be Patients At Health Meet

Leaders of organized medicine will assume the unaccustomed role of patients in an attempt to analyze from the consumers' point of view Michigan's need in the field of medical care at a state health conference here tomorrow.

Dr. Don W. Gudakunst, state health commissioner, who has been active in arranging the health conference program, said yesterday that nearly all the state medical society officials will be on hand to sit down with consumers of medical services around the council table for discussion of mutual problems.

600 to Attend

Representatives of every major lay organization interested in distribution of medical care have been invited to meet with the doctors. From 500 to 600 doctors and lay representatives are expected to attend.

"This meeting of the producers and consumers of medical services is the most significant attempt Michigan has yet made to set up a long-time, equitable program of health services and medical care," Dr. Gudakunst said.

"Out of this conference should come a program of action mutually acceptable to the progressive physicians of Michigan and to the large groups of our citizens who are in need of medical services."

Waller to Speak

Lay groups invited to the conference include, labor, Parent-Teacher, and welfare organizations, educational institutions and all governmental health agencies.

The program will open at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, with Governor Frank Murphy outlining the conference's purpose. Governor Murphy also will discuss the state health program at a luncheon meeting, and Dr. C. E. Waller, assistant surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health service, will discuss the national health program.

The morning session will be held in the men's gymnasium, the luncheon meeting in the Union ballroom, and divisional afternoon meetings will be in the gymnasium, Home Economics building, and Kedzie hall.

A final summary meeting, at 4:30 p. m., will be held in the gymnasium. Speakers will include medical society members and others interested in advancement of medical services in the state.

Dressel Gets Presidency

Karl Dressel, assistant professor of forestry at Michigan State college, was recently re-elected president of the National Shade Tree conference which convened at St. Louis, August 31-September 2. Professor Dressel is the third man in the history of the conference to receive such recognition. He previously served as vice president and last year as president.

Boost 'Factory'

Schools are opening, football practice is starting, vacationers have returned and East Lansing lives in anticipation of Sept. 19, which will usher in over 2,100 new students to Michigan State college.

Householders are giving their rooms the last minute "going over" to attract new roomers, or please the old stand-bys. Businessmen are getting stocked up to meet the tremendous demands of a student body numbering over five thousand. Summer is over and now another round in the endless chair of school years is in the offing.

C. W. Otto at a recent meeting of the East Lansing Merchant's club, said that East Lansing should consider the college as a factory town considers its industry, meaning it in the sense that the school represented a source of income to merchants as certain (more so) as the money spent by factory workers.

Thousands of students will soon be here to live. They will make East Lansing their home and be a part of it. They will bring prosperity to the town, which has just experienced a summer of "just coasting" (Sales Crusade notwithstanding).

Truly the city should feel fortunate that it does have the "factory" and that it will soon re-open.

Ninety Per Cent of Class of '38 Plan to Attend Various Colleges

By Dale Cropsey

Over 90 per cent of the members of the graduating class of 1938 from the East Lansing high school are planning on attending college.

In an interview with Principal

F. Morse Cooke of the East Lansing high school it was revealed that two-thirds of the class of eighty-nine are going to enter Michigan State college.

There are however a few students who will wander from the home town to attain their higher education. Among these are Mary Ellen Bailey and Jessie Patton who are going to enter at Stevens college at Stevens, Mo. John Miller is going to study in the applied science division at University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. Jeanne Bailey will go to the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Beatrice Farwell is going to study art at Knox college. Another student who will leave the home state is Suzanne McClure, who will enter at Wellesley college in Massachusetts. General Motors Tech at Flint has accepted the application of George Mason. Jane Francis will enter Central State Teachers college at Mount Pleasant. She will study in the liberal arts division.

The rest of the graduates who will attend college are coming to State. Dorothy Adams, Faye Greer, Barbara Allen, Bonnie Redmond, Judy Crozier, Phyllis Elssesser and Grace Nahstoll will enter in the Home Economics division. In the Business Administration division we find that Harold Cessna, Weston Gardner, Bruce Greenman, Ruth Lynch, Doris Macdonald, Gerald Marshall, Richard Osmer, and Donald Spaulding have made application for entrance.

Those who will study in the Liberal Arts division include Wyman Anderson, Betty Jane Anthony, Barbara Cardinell, Bette Harvey, Herve Hunt, Mary Alice Leathers, David McBride, Graham MacKichan, Paul Ritts, Robert Theroux, Jacqueline Wynne, and Raymond Zettel.

Enrolled in the Engineering division we find Walter Beardslee, Olin Carter, James Cunningham, Arthur Farwell, Howard Ingerson, James Reno, Jack Widick, and Jack Dolbee.

Mary Lou Dodge, John Pearce, and John Young will enter in the Applied Science. Jean Leffel will study in the Physical Education division while the remaining students, George Schieve, Francis Sherman, and Richard Williams will study hotel administration.

Miss Noreen Paterson, formerly a stenographer in the horticulture department, left recently to assume a position as home economics teacher in Ypsilanti. She served as secretary to H. D. Hootman, extension specialist in horticulture.

Richard Larson, 335 East Grand River avenue, who completed requirements for a master's degree in dairy manufacturing this summer at Michigan State college, has secured employment with a dairy products company in Adrian. He took over his duties last week.

PWA Grant Supplements Bond Issue

Proposed Improvement Would Receive $29,454 Aid

By Charles Wells

A PWA grant of $29,454 has been approved for the construction of a new water tower, a new water softener building, and the installation of new sewers on the west side of East Lansing. Notice was received Wednesday from Washington, D. C., by City Clerk Harry M. Lott.

Up for Vote

There is one condition, however, that must be decided by the voters of East Lansing. The grant is contingent on the raising of the necessary additional funds by a bond issue of $70,000 as the city's share of the expense of the project. Voting on the bond issue will take place next Tuesday.

Final plans and specifications in connection with the primaries were also requested by the central office of the PWA. According to Mr. Lott, the sewers on the west side of town are in bad shape, and can hardly carry the burden of the increased number of buildings that have recently been erected. The state stream control commission has been insisting that the city of East Lansing improve its sewage disposal plant by the addition of the so-called "secondary treatment." A higher degree of purification is now required than was necessary at the time the present plant was built, according to the city engineer.

May Be Only Chance

The population of East Lansing has nearly doubled since the water plant now in operation was installed, according to figures. The capacity of the present plant is a

MSC Enrollment May Exceed 1937

Admission of new students for the fall term yesterday totaled 2,140, 214 more than on the corresponding day of last year, the registrar's office reported.

Increase in new student enrollment may exceed this figure, it was explained, because last year Sept. 10 was the final day for filing applications for admission without payment of extra fee, while this year applications may be filed until 5 p. m., Sept. 15.

million gallons per day, which was sufficient at the time of installation. The increase of the supply needed on the east side of town has tended to further decrease the pressure on the west side. The installation of the new plant will give the city two independent plants capable of meeting the normal demands with ease, according to Lott.

The grant will be withdrawn if the bond issue is voted down, and when requested again, may be refused, causing the city to bear the entire cost of the project, Lott stated.

The council intends to issue serial bonds, which will mature at the rate of about $5,000 each year until the issue is retired. The council does not intend to increase the water rates or impose a sewage tax.

Local Gridders Start Practice Sessions

THE SCOREKEEPER

By DAVE TEFFT

The last straw hat has settled on the diamond and the last white shoe should have been kicked off into a closet corner for the last time this summer by the time this goes to press. Summer has come to its unofficial end and fall is fast approaching.

And with fall and the Michigan game in the offing it's just about time for the inevitable rumors—the shouted whispers of subsidizing and proselyting—to begin their annual rounds.

The bleating cries against proselyting can be dismissed, it seems to us, as the do or die stroke of those obscure purists who could never hope to make the headlines any other way. To proselyte is to sway or dissuade, and has been in vogue since the days of Aristotle and Aristophanes.

HOW ABOUT SUBSIDIZING?

But how about subsidization? Should the good athletes be given a chance to trade his physical ability for an education? "NO," shout the Simon-pures only to be met with a reverberating "YES" from a rapidly growing minority who believe that the young athlete should get something for the "all" that he is supposed to give for the school, and God, home and mother.

It's a question that hasn't bothered the high morals of Michigan State yet. State players who need help to get through school usually get it if they keep up scholastically, but it's not handed to them on a silver platter. They work at real jobs, many of them tough, to earn enough to come to school. The

Coach Gloomy As Prepsters Show Wares

By Don Phillips

"Well, what we lack in weight and experience, we'll make up for with enthusiasm," said Coach Cuddy Shaver as he pessimistically eyed his future football team going through its first workout of the season Wednesday morning.

Shaver's gloom is somewhat justified for he has only eleven lettermen returning from last year's squad and six of them are backfield men. Bob McCarthy, Max Phillips, Dick Griswold, and Johnny Fabian head the list of returning backs. Letter winners among the linemen are led by Dick Holbrook, a center, Dick Morris and Harmon Robertson, guards, and Alvin Gaines and Harold Brown at the tackles.

This leaves Shaver minus any experienced ends. Jack Weaver, a letter winner in the backfield last year, has been converted into an end, as has Alf Gamble. Both boys apparently have the qualities needed, for they both are hard and sure tacklers and can catch passes with ability.

Jack Draper, a sophomore, looks as though he would be an up and coming guard and along with Roy Dygert, heads the list of newcomers likely to see a lot of action this year. Dygert is a speedy halfback with lots of passing ability.

question is, is it fair to them?

Consider a self-supporting athlete's day during his season. He must work from two and a half to three hours a day for his board. Oftentimes another hour for his lodging. Then he has to practice

Football Hopes Bright Says Scribe After Seeing Practice

By George Maskin

Readers! Michigan State's 1938 football team will be right up there, tackles or no tackles, at present.

After taking a gander on the Spartans in their first practice session of the year, we came to the immediate conclusion. State won't be a push-over in any man's league.

The tackle situation, tough as it may appear, will be solved by the time the Wayne game rolls around. If not by the opener, certainly the Michigan game.

TACKLES APLENTY

Charley Bachman had six tackles out there yesterday, tackles who would please any coach in collegiate circles.

A couple of the boys, Ernie Bremer and George Gargett, a pair of converted ends, don't know too much about playing the position as yet, but with two weeks of practice prior to the Wayne encounter, they'll be okay.

Outside the tackle problem, Bachman doesn't have a great deal to worry about. He wants a niftier fullback, but it is our hunch Usif Haney or George Kovacich will answer his prayer.

Haney and Kovacich both are headed for the best season since joining the Spartan gridiron forces. Haney looked better to us yesterday than he did in the first practice last year.

HALVES, TOO

Johnny Pingel and Gene Ciolek will take care of the left half-back posts—and they'll cause plenty of trouble before they get through on nine Saturdays.

As their running mates, it'll be hard to silence Eddie Pearce and Steve Szasz.

State will have a great staff of quarterbacks in Leslie Bruckner, Al Diebold, Don Rossi, and Herman Klewicki. They're all about even us, so the coaches say.

In the line, the Spartans are set at center and a minimum of two hours per day on the field. And he's got to make the grade scholastically while carrying at least twelve to fourteen credits.

LONG TRIPS

Besides all that there are the long trips that must be made. And when the graybeards tell you that the boys don't lose any time on these trips due to regularly arranged study hours, you can laugh up your sleeve.

So there's the problem. Should a first-class athlete be given free tuition, and free board, at least during his busy season?? It's a question that won't be decided in a day.

Spartans Hold First Session Of Grid Season

Over forty Spartan gridgers swooped down on the campus yesterday to put on the first practice session of the 1938 season. There were 18 major and six minor lettermen as well as 17 numeral winners included in yesterday's group.

The first drill of the season was mostly for the benefit of the press with the boys showing off their aerial wares and doing a little running to get the kinks out of arms and legs.

Twenty-five more players will report Sept. 12, and an additional 15 the opening day of the fall term.

Johnny Kuk, ex-State baseballer, has stepped up for the second time this summer. He was signed recently by Dallas in the Texas League, going from Longview of the East Texas League.

Advice To—
A YOUNG MAN
Three things with great care you should choose:
Your wife, your friendships, and your shoes.
The first two you may do without,
But shoes you must have, there's no doubt.
Some get along without a wife,
Some without friendships go through life;
But many feet you'll have to scan
Before you'll find a shoeless man.
And though no wife or friends you choose
You won't get far without shoes,
So treat them with respect and care,
And see they're kept in good repair.
