Raya Garbousouva To Appear Here With College Orchestra

Russian Cellist, M.S.C. Symphony to Give First Concert

Raya Garbousouva, cellist, will appear in a joint concert with the Michigan State college symphony orchestra, Alexander Schuster conducting, Thursday, January 19. This concert, the first of its kind to be presented at Michigan State college, will be held in the college gymnasium at 8 p. m.

RAYA GARBOUSOVA

The orchestra will play a program of concert music, followed by a radio concert with orchestral accompaniment. Miss Garbousouva will present a recital as a contribution to the concert.

Garbousouva, who at 27 is considered one of the greatest living cellists, began studying the cello when she was seven. At nine she was admitted to the conservatory in Moscow and graduated at 14 with high honors. Her concert work began while she was still a student at the conservatory. She continued her European tour with constantly increasing recognition at all the principal cities of Europe.

Her first American appearance, in 1934, took the critics and public by storm, and she was called a "wonder" by the New York Times and the Washington Post. She has since been appointed in recitals and has accompanied from coast to coast.

This will be the first time she has appeared in the orchestra of a college in the United States. A special arrangement was made to bring her to Michigan State college, and she will be accompanied by Hans Lange.

Today's Campus

Vignette of Life

He was ragged and lean and had a hungry look about him. His hair was matted and he smelled of a slight affinity with the bar room. Who? The man that sociology professor, C. R. Butler, brought to class with him yesterday as a living example of what our social system sometimes does to people who get started wrong. He didn't give his last name, but that he was John Francis Somebody-or-Other. And he gave a lecture on how to raise children and avoid social misfits. Thirty years, he said, he had spent in most of the better palaces of the country. His reports of Sing-Sing Jackson and others would have been amusing if they hadn't been facts.

Near Miss!

Soph from guests came near to missing one of the features of Frankie Trumbauer's entertainment last evening. The noted leader and several of his band members were absent when the prom opened last night and as a result, the party was not broadcast over WJIM. Later in the evening about 5:45 however, the missing musicians put in a belated appearance. Bad weather conditions delayed them on their trip from Detroit, Trumbauer said.

Variety, What!

Examination questions probably are the last thing in the world that students anxious to forget the sorrows of last term, are likely to think about. But here's a dilly that knocked off a half credit on most of the students taking the final in one of the home economics courses. The stakes say to name two reasons, excluding palatability for putting, for using cakes.

Tough One

To most persons, the improvement in taste would justify such a crack, but the name of "pretzel" with eyes on ability, "bought" the prize. Most of the class solved the problem by stating that it kept the moisture in the cake, but none of them knew another reason.

Reason Two?

After the exam was finished, students inquiring about the correct answer were told that it was "to keep the cake from drying out."

Looks Up to Team

Soph Prom Headlines Week-end Activities

The soph prom, third of Michigan State's formal parties, proved a huge success last night. Chet Kennedy, class president, and his guest, Mary Lee Schooley, seemed to be very happy over the evening's success. Mary Lee wore a bouffant white net gown with a sequin girdle.

CROSSFIRE

Also enjoying Frankie Trumbauer's music were Dick Gearing, class treasurer, and Merle MacDonnell. Merle chose black moose with multi-colored sequin jacket. Josephine Woods, class vice-president, wore a rose chiffon formal. Josephine's date was Slet Daugherty. Roland Ely, general prom chairman, escorted Claudia Smith of Lansing to the affair. Also up near the front of the grand march were publicity chairman, Bruce Hart and Bob Davis. Bruce's date, Shirley Baxlow, wore a black satin formal and Sally Baxter, Bob's partner, chose a multi-colored chiffon.

Patrons for the evening were Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Laker, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Cannon, Mr. and Mrs. T. Rich, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Thompson, and Prof. and Mrs. E. L. Gee.

The guest list included President and Mrs. R. S. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. John Hamman, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Wilkins, Prof. and Mrs. A. A. Appleby, Dean Marie Day, Dean and Mrs. E. L. Anthony, Dean and Mrs. W. Gilmer, Dean and Mrs. R. C. Huston, Dean and Mrs. C. L. Emmerson, Dean and Mrs. F. T. Mitchell.

The Phi Delta Theta fraternity also held their winter term party last night in the dining room of the club hotel with Frankie Principi's band. Surprises included prizes, necklaces, and compacts were given to the following: Bob Pete, president, escorted Stanley Harrison, and Bob Harner, social chairman, had as his date Helen Dackwitz. Patrons were Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Morrison and Mrs. J. and Mrs. A. J. Wayne.

Down at the Hotel Olds again on Saturday night the Theta held their winter term formal with music by Frankie Principi. Patrons were Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Croce and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, guest of honor for the evening was Mrs. M. J. Herbert, mother of President. Lady Corrigan, Judy chose a pink satin gown and Jo Beseman, social chairman, wore a dress of white net.

Pass In Review!

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS CAMERAMEN PRESENT HIGH POINTS OF THE CAMPUS WEEK

"He met her on the stairs..." the song says. And CHET KENNEDY, soph promy, did when he called for FRANCES SCHOOLEY, kappa charmer. They led the Soph Prom grand march last night.

Lights! Action! Camera! But the statuettes made good models without cautions for members of the reorganized CAMERA CLUB. This shot was snapped recently in the Union building during one of the club meetings while club members were competing for a prize. Winning pix will be published in an early edition of "Pass in Review."

And nary a ripple. Another boy who makes TAKE DAUBERT rub his hands. He's a frosh Leonard LaFrance, and he'll take some points in competition next year.

Nomad. The wanderlust doesn't confine itself to students as this picture proves. The tree had a history so ST. JOHN A. HANNAH said it had to be saved. This is the third time that it has been moved on campus.

Council Tests Representation

Is the Student Council a truly representative student body? This is one question that was often asked during last fall term when the council first started to take part in important student affairs. This question was asked by many members of the faculty. It was asked by dozens of wondering students. And finally, it was asked by the Student Council itself. The council realized that it had no right to exercise important duties of student government unless it were truly representative of the wishes of the student body which it theoretically represented.

Seeking a concrete method of determining the accuracy of its representation, the council last fall made a trial, secret vote on the corsage issue. Each member of the council was instructed to vote for or against corsages, not according to his personal opinion, but as he thought the majority of those whom he represented would vote.

After a week of explaining, each council member requested the group which he represented to vote for or against corsages at open college parties, and the votes were recorded.

Voting this week according to wishes of their various constituents, council members voted 15 to 2 against corsages. Comparison with the previous tally showed the first vote to be 15 to 2. Two of the members had changed their votes after consulting their constituents, but the proportion of voters remained constant.

This extremely close prediction by the Student Council of wishes of the student body certainly indicates that that body is in close touch with the campus, and that its opinions may be considered as those of the student body.

Pedestrians Try Suicide

Campus police report that their efforts to slow down traffic to the 20 mile limit have been fairly successful, and they say that slower driving must surely make for greater safety. But a new hazard is springing up. Many students, apparently entirely unsatisfied with safer conditions, are acquiring the habit of jumping out in front of cars. Drivers are greatly harassed and frequently experience difficulties in trying to keep from running down student pedestrians.

Pedestrians are becoming so reckless, police report, that it will only be a matter of time until some student is injured while jumping too close in front of a car. They believe the time to correct this hazardous practice is before a serious accident occurs.

A survey by police has shown the points of greatest hazard on campus. Probably more necks are risked at the crossing in front of the Home Economics building than at any other point. Next in importance come the crossing between the Administration building and Ag hall, the Ag hall to Power house crossing, and the corners of Abbot and Grand River.

If students realized how difficult it is for drivers to avoid hitting them, they are likely that they would use more caution instead of taking advantage of the fact that drivers are trying to stay within the legal limits.

Traffic designer could be coming themselves a favor if it were better to be late to class than to visit the hospital.

Quotables Quotes

By Associated Collegiate Press. "The university must make deliberate, conscious attempts to fit itself into the pattern of American community life in some meaningful way if it is to justify its place in the community as an instrument for the protection and advancement of democracy." New York University's Dean Ned H. Dearborn urges higher education to pay more attention to adult education. "Only relatively late in human history have people been able to think before they speak and speak before they act. Most of us still do it rather infrequently and with rather indifferent success." Miami University's Dr. Reed Boh believes we are suffering from "acute but highly contagious habits."

Thru Smoked Glasses of Elmer White

When the big night came we decided to make it count by getting the ticket taker. I really got a nose-blow in my top hat and away we went. The variety man of the show looked kind of funny when I didn't check my hat, but I had him I was supposed to pose for some all-around pictures by the Starline, so he looked at me all right, but I wasn't all around. I was all around. I took off my hat and gave the contractor to Agnes. We danced close together to home, but you can't keep a thing like that a secret very long. Behind the scenes, we were particularly nervous in the dressing room congratulated us on getting a second corsage into the J-Hall again for a million dollars and a date with Phyllis Lane.

Readers Speak

Editor: Now, I think it is really very interesting to read the article in the Michigan State News. The article about the new Advertiser, which is now being published by the student body, is really very interesting. I believe that the new Advertiser will be a great help to the student body. I hope that the new Advertiser will be a great help to the student body. I hope that the new Advertiser will be a great help to the student body.

College Bulletin

Final deadline for all sophomore projects is Friday, Jan. 20. If your project is to be in the Winter Carnival, you must return them PERSONALLY to the Varsity studies by that date. Treasurers for winter term all colleges will be held Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of next week, Monday and Tuesday, 7:15 to 10 p. m. in the Little Theatre, Wednesday, 7-9 p. m. in Merrill Hall.

Philosopher Ike Says

Here's another one of those little items at the bottom of the page that doesn't mean a thing. And this one really doesn't: It's rather hard to fill up space when you have nothing to say, but long experience in classes and in talking to a date allow claim to a little more than average ability. Anyway, it's purpose is accomplished—we've filled the space.

The way to a man's heart? JOHANNA RECHIN, MAXINE DODDS, and JANE WILSON are lacking no practices in not knowing how to make a happy home. Constant practice in Practice House 4 keeps them ready to tiptoe through any kitchenetic. Better watch them, boys.

HOWARD TAYLOR, Bell Hop chairman looks gloomy as FRANCES BROWN, HUGH TOLFFORD, JEAN KINK ARDS and BOB HAGEN turn it on for the campus camera man. Why so?

Swing mistress, JEAN KINK of SWL (above) shows the way and then helps the beginners. Dancing class in 406 Ag Hall learns how to trip the gay and light in new and original manner. From this picture it seems that the gentlemen predominate. Those who know say it isn't so.

Loss Greater Than Total For 1938

Fire broke out in the home of Prof. D. F. Sheean, 223 Beal street, Thursday night about 10 o'clock. A loss of $2,500, greater than the total fire loss in the city for last year, was estimated on the house, which is covered by insurance. Mr. Sheean is an instructor of English at Michigan State college. Cause of the fire was unknown. It was discovered by the Sheeans as they returned home for the evening. Before the party were able to arrive at the scene, the blaze had gained great headway.

According to department officials, the fire started on a small landing in the rear of the house, directly above a furnace pipe. The fire then spread rapidly upward through the partition in the second floor and into the attic. A small section of the roof burned through.

Loss on the contents of the house was undetermined, although it is believed that the amount may exceed the loss on the building. Valuable house furnishings, including a baby grand piano, purchased recently by the Sheeans, had not yet been delivered.

This was the first call of the year for the local department. More feet of hose were laid out in this fire than the total number of feet for 1938.

While the trucks were out in this call, a Lansing truck was called to put out a small chimney fire at the corner of Sunset and Oxford streets. No damage was reported.

Ulrey to Speak At Forum

Dr. O. Ulrey of the department of economics at Michigan State college will address the Noon Forum of the Peoples church tomorrow. The subject of Dr. Ulrey's talk will be "Consumers Cooperatives in Sweden." Doctor Ulrey has made an intensive study of consumers' cooperatives. He has specialized on the Scandinavian countries. Ulrey has made two trips to the Scandinavian peninsula for the purpose of studying the type of cooperatives there. His last trip was in the summer of 1933. He visited the officials of various cooperatives in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Finland.

Merchants Await New Goodspeed Building

East Lansing businessmen are anxiously awaiting the erection of the new Goodspeed building on the northeast corner of the intersection of Abbott road and East Grand River avenue sometime in June. The building which now occupies the site will be torn down to make way for the new edifice. M. K. O'Connor company will transfer their stock temporarily to their other location at 119 East Grand River avenue while the new building is going up. They will then move back into the two-story building.

Safety Patrols Guard East Lansing School Children

By HARRY DIWAR. Death has made itself conspicuous by its absence among grade school children on the streets during the past few years in East Lansing. This record has been accomplished mainly through the efforts of the safety patrols of the two city grade schools, Bailey and Central. In these schools, fifteen patrolmen have been trained by the principals with the result that several trophies have been awarded to these patrols.

Contrary to common belief, there is both a boy and girl patrol in each school. The girls handle the patrol duties within the school and the boys handle the traffic and guard duties outside the building. Between 10 and 25 boys form the boy patrol, while the girl patrol consists of about eight pupils. They have their own meetings and elect their own officers. Occasionally the patrol groups have parties. All this routine is under close supervision by the principals receiving their directions and literature from the AAA headquarters in Detroit.

The usually fine work which has characterized the organization of the safety patrols has been commended by the chief of Police Harold E. Hays. Two of these boys on a corner patrol as much as two policemen, stated the chief, in remarking on the effectiveness of the boys. Richard Baxley, a captain of the patrol at the Bailey school, while Sally Glynn leads the girls there. Central school, which is headed by Captain Glynn, has a patrol leader in Captain Glynn. The girls patrol at Central school is headed by Captain Glynn. The girls patrol at Central school is headed by Captain Glynn.

Western Reserve Comes To Face State With Sparkling Record

Spartans Will Face Ohioans Before Going on Road

By MARSHALL DANN

A spectacular shooting Western Reserve basketball team with one of the best records in the middle west comes here tonight in what will be the last appearance of the Michigan State team on its home floor for two weeks.

Coach Roy Clifford arrived in East Lansing with his Red Cat cagers last night. He directed his team through a light scrimmage, consisting of stressed passing and plays, next then home, for the night. The Spartans looked in the best shape of the week, showing none of the appearance of staleness that characterized them earlier in the week.

Although Van Alstyne refused to name his starting five, it was apparent that the same five that opened against Central State Teachers last Saturday would get the nod again tonight. This will place Marly Hutt at center, George Falkowski and Frank Siddle at forwards, and Leo Callahan and Cliff Aubuchon at guard.

MORRIS RETURNS
However, Charles Henry, Mike Delyempe, Mike Hindman and Bob Phillips will all see some action. Van Alstyne was cheered by the news that Bob Morris, promising sophomore from Grand Rapids, had been removed from the ineligible list this week, although he stated that it was unlikely Morris would break into tonight's game.

Western Reserve brings an impressive record of eight victories and two defeats into tonight's game. It rang up a streak of six consecutive wins early this year, before being tripped by Indiana, conquerors of Michigan State. Duquesne is the only other team to hold a decision over the Spartans.

They have triumphed over their Altona, Findlay, Ferns, John Carroll, Ohio U., Dartmouth, Penn State and Baldwin Wallace. These 48-44 Dartmouth victory was especially pleasing, for the eastern team was one of the three that defeated them last season.

The man that the state defense will have to stop is Iggy Blair, star sophomore guard, who averaged 22 points a game last year, and is well above that average this season. Joe Scott, 6 feet, 3 inch junior center, is rated as the greatest athlete in the history of the school. He has achieved distinction as one of the top death-ball men in the country.

Their starting lineup lists three juniors and two sophomores. In addition to Blair and Scott, other starters will be Jack Diven, junior, and Holger Anderson and Steve Belichick, sophomores.

This will be the varsity's last appearance here until two weeks from tonight. Next week the Spartans take to the road for a pair of games.

Frosh to Open Season Today

The freshman winter sports program swings into full swing this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the gymnasium when two of Michigan State's leading squads ring up the curtain on their 1939 campaign.

Coach Fendley Collins sends his freshman grapplers against a potent comeback wrestling team, while Bill Hammond's scuffling wrestlers match their skill with the state's premier contingent from the east.

State is well set in all weight divisions except the 121 pound class, in which no suitable candidate has yet been found.

Those who will wrestle in the various divisions include: LeRoy Merrill, 120; Eugene Plummer, 130; Ray Warren, 145; William Wiseman, 155; Marvin Madsen, 165; and Dick Wallace, 185.

Bill Hammond has not released his starting team for today's fencing meet, but Joe Johnston, Don Way, Albert Beath, Milton Brown, and Bill Franklin are among a dozen youngsters who are bound to draw some action.

SUCCESS OF STATE CAGERS ATTRIBUTED TO THESE MEN

Thinlads To Have Ace Jumper

Chances that Michigan State has finally obtained its long sought after six foot jumper are becoming brighter every day as Walter Arrington, sophomore, rapidly approaches peak form.

Even at this early date Arrington has looked mighty impressive in practice. Last night the bar at the six foot level gave him little difficulty. Already the holder of the freshman indoor record with a leap of 6 feet 3/4 inch, he is a good bet to shatter the existing varsity mark which is only 6 feet 1 1/2 inches.

The added incentive that this is the last year that the gym will be used for competition will have the thinlads shooting for records and the dinks are well ready to work out out for him when he will try to better the high jump ceiling.

The gym record of 6 feet 4 1/2 inches was set by Marquette's great negro high jumper, Eddie Burke.

Arrington is one of the many eastern boys who is starting in track for the Spartans.

Scoop Says:

By George Maskin

Far be it from Bill Chandler of the Marquette university basketball team which beat Michigan State twice within the next month, to refer to the members of his slightly varsity squad as athletic nutcases!

But the fact remains that members of Chandler-coached squads, usually unknown to them, are in a sort of basketball laboratory in which the Marquette mentor makes all kinds of experiments, and from which he draws many interesting deductions.

Chandler, president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches and now in his ninth season at Marquette, is a basketball scientist. Extensive charting by a corps of assistant managers has enabled him to survey his athletes for reactions, trends and habits.

Among the things Chandler has discovered are:

1. There is a positive correlation between basketball shooting performance and scholastic ability, with the better students as the better marksmen.
2. Players who need improvement most are the ones who improve most during a season.
3. Senior athletes rarely improve, sophomores and juniors are the ambitious fellows.
4. The boy who exhibits the best marksmanship in practice is rarely the one who is best in a game, the real competitor is the lad who shows the least difference between his practice and game performances.
5. A team is at its worst in practice after a victory, at its best in practice after a defeat.
6. Where a team has a full week in which to prepare for a game, it is always at its practice best on Wednesday.

Star Forwards Will Meet in Game Tonight

George Falkowski, ace Spartan forward, whose return to form has bolstered State's winning chances.

When Western Reserve's basketball team takes to the floor in Demonstration hall tonight to face Michigan State, HOLGER ANDERSON, a forward, will hold down a starting berth. Anderson is one of Reserve's leading sharpshooters, and besides is a fine defensive performer.

Swim Hopes Hit Hard By Grades

By DON ANDERSON

Unless something unexpected happens, Michigan State's swimming team is in for a bit of rough weather this season.

With less than two weeks remaining in which to prepare for the first meet with the University of Michigan January 25 at Ann Arbor, ineligibility and lack of material have Coach Jake Daubert tearing his hair.

At the start of the year, Daubert believed that he had the nucleus for a good, if not great team. Although only five veterans remained from last year's winning squad, these veterans seemed to be in top shape and along with a good crop of sophomores, gave promise of turning in a winning percentage this season.

LOOMIS OUT
However, several things have happened since then which have more or less upset the applecart.

In the first place, Ladd Loomis, a breaststroker with more than average ability, came out second best in the battle with his textbook and has been named ineligible for the winter term.

That rubbed the squad of much of its punch, right at the start. Then to top things off, the other veterans have not attained the form expected of them, and there are no others.

DAUBERT PESSIMISTIC
This leaves things pretty much up to the sophomores. They will have to produce in a big way if the Spartans will find themselves in water over their heads.

Competition will tell the story, just as it does in the majority of cases. Following the meet with Michigan, Daubert will be able to determine what is in store for his team this year.

The ability is there, but whether it will develop only time will tell. Coach Daubert's own words: "We'll be lucky if we win one meet this season."

Wrestlers to Grapple Wheaton Groaners In Opener Today

By NED DUTTON

With two regulars out because of injuries, the Spartan wrestling team presents a makeshift lineup in the opening meet with Wheaton this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the gymnasium.

The biggest loss is in the 165 pound division where Charley Hutson will be kept on the sidelines because of an infection. Although only a sophomore he was all-scholastic champion in his weight division and has had a great deal of previous experience.

Jim Mitchell, who has had more or less the status of a reserve for the last two years will replace Hutson in the lineup.

BAKER INJURED
Grand Baker was expected to

Yearling Cagers Correct Faults

Coach Tom King hardly is conducting various aggregations in an attempt to land a suitable opponent as a start-up engagement for his freshman cagers, next Saturday.

In the meantime the yearling cagers are indulging in daily practice sessions ironing out all noticeable defects in both their offensive and defensive games.

held down the 121 pound division in one of the trial bouts on Wednesday he received a broken nose which will keep him out of action. In his place will be either Bob Frank or Dick Kinney. Frank will get the call if he can make the weight. Neither of these boys have had much experience so little in the way of points can be counted on in this division.

Otherwise the lineup will be the same with the veteran Dale Hutt at 123 pounds. At 135 pounds will be Lloyd Russell, one of the sophomores from Oklahoma, who is expected to materially strengthen the team.

FREIBERGER READY
Another sophomore, Bill Maddy, will be in the welterweight division. Cliff Freiburger, who has been a regular for two years will fight at 155 pounds.

Captain Steve Slezak will be usual in the light heavy division and lanky Dale Stephenson will wrestle in the heavyweight class.

Little is known about the strength of the Wheaton squad. However, State defeated them seven matches to one in the season last year and should not run into too much trouble this year as the Spartan team appears to be a good deal stronger than last year's aggregation.
