Flunk List Shortens

Effects of a concerted attempt by Michigan State college to keep students in school despite opportunities of flunking out large numbers to decrease crowding of classrooms were made public today by Registrar R. S. Linton...

This year's attempt to retain all but the poorest students started in September when deans of all divisions were instructed to "bend their efforts toward reduction of failures."

Following is a list of the divisions together with the number of students requested to leave school at the end of fall term:

Table with 2 columns: Division, Number of students. Includes Agriculture and Forestry (7), Engineering (11), Home Economics (5), Liberal Arts (44), Veterinary Science (10), Applied Science (18), Total (158).

Why Not Go 'Dutch'?

Coseds looking sly—follows appearing glum—A fine state of affairs, and what can be the cause? Surely it isn't the corsage question, and mid terms are two weeks away.

Investigation proves the cause of all this trouble to be the much talked of snow train. Recently the coseds have become ardent snow fans; they play in the snow; they buy snowsuits, and they love the winter weather. What is more, they want to go on the snow train—thus the sly glances. But the fellows, who have always enjoyed winter sports, are still glum. What with the formal season this expedition looks like a pretty lousy thing. They can go themselves, but to take someone, well...

Out of habit the cosed thinks she must be taken. But here she is wrong, for the snow train is different and the management wants to keep it so. It is definitely not a dating affair, if students want to go with dates it is all right, but it is suggested, then, that they go "dutch". The Outing Club already has expressed the desire that girls pay their own expenses, and they have set their own example.

An expedition into the north country during the winter should be a wonderful experience. It seems too bad that many will be deprived of the trip because of a misunderstanding over expenses.

Coffee hours prove increasingly popular—indication of a basic desire on the part of both students and faculty to become better acquainted.

Correction, Please

In this column Thursday it was incorrectly stated that instructors had been asked to "clamp down" on students in an effort to control increasing enrollment.

The facts are that only 1.58% of Michigan State's student body was requested to leave school last fall. This figure is much lower than it has been in recent years, according to those most interested in the subject.

At the beginning of fall term, deans of all divisions were given specific instructions to retain as many students as possible. Further, they were granted funds to hire graduate tutors who would coach students in danger of failure.

In short, administrators have made every effort to prevent teachers from "flunking out" students merely to decrease enrollment.

The State News regrets its error. Instructions to delete the erring lines were given, but lost on the way to press.

Indicative of present day specialized study courses Liberal Arts and Physical Education majors, queried on a recent W.K.A.R. program, did not know that sidewalks are made of concrete.

Give the Students a Chance to Read

"We're very sorry, but that book is out."

Far too many times, when the size and scope of State's library is considered, is this answer given the student seeking to withdraw a book. While this condition is not particularly noticeable when the students withdraw books of popular fiction or assigned reference books, they encounter trouble when they attempt to read more advanced reference books that are only withdrawn a few times a year—in other words, books that are read by the faculty, as well as the student body.

Recently a student attempted to withdraw two books both of an involved nature. He found that one of the books was in the possession of the professor who taught the course, while the other had been withdrawn by another teacher in the same department. This, on the surface, seems to be no great injustice, but it is interesting to note that both books have been in the possession of their withdrawers since the middle of last spring term.

The professors are to blame for this situation; most books of this type are placed in the college library chiefly for reference work by the faculty and students who need them for their more advanced study. When a student desires to read any book in the college library, he should not be forced to wait six months for the privilege of doing so.

If the faculty desires to retain its privilege of long-time withdrawals, it must realize that the student body should also be allowed to read library books. With this view in mind, it should return them when finished, and not add them to its private libraries. Judicious use of this privilege would allow both the faculty and the student body access to the books.—B. M.

Spartan Society Swings With George Duffy

With the formal season in full swing, the band danced last night to the music of George Duffy in the Masonic temple. High-hatters and their guests included band president, Arthur Rochester with Ruth Stinson, who was dressed in black net over black taffeta dotted in blue; Crawford Hertel with Judy Crozier in a bustled aqua taffeta; Howard Dawson and Marge Wehr, who wore a hoop-skirted white taffeta with cerise trimming. Eloise Baker, in a strapless blue moire, was the guest of Robert Davidson. With Warren Shapton was Erno-Tine Nickerson, who wore a white crepe formal with red accessories. Band sponsor Leona Schaefer was "the" special guest of the evening.

Tonight's important event will be the dance after the day's Ice Carnival. Remaining at this informal affair will be a queen chosen from among these seven girls—Rebecca Lord, Paula Zank, Barbara Booth, Nancy Jane Brown, Mary Westberg, Jane Shaw, and Ruth Stinson. Long live the queen!

Since this is a sports occasion, informality will be the keynote, and ski suits or wool skirts or velvet skating costumes will be seen. A checking service will be provided in demonstration hall for skates, etc. Otherwise, the only change will be from the skating rink to the dance floor.

Look for these important people at the AGR tonight at the Union—president, Mitchell, with Jean Warner, Arlene Beebe with Frank Alexander, social chairman, and Norm Keel, decorations chairman, and Barbara Ensign. They'll superintend the dinner-dance.

Tonight will also see the Alpha Omicron Pi society dancing en masse at the YWCA, down town. While the Beta Kappa have chosen the Lamonts' Women's club hall for their winter term celebration.

Phi Kappa Tau—An exchange dinner was held Thursday night with the Alpha Chi's. Prof. and Mrs. Danford were guests. The bi-weekly football game between the athletes and pledges held in the chapter room resulted in a close victory for the athletes, despite the brilliant play of Jack Amos, the Spartans' "White Hope" for the pledges.

Alpha Gamma Rho—Recently there was formal initiation for Jim Lam, Sid Higgins, Howard Fox, Robert McCauley, Emil Eichenberg, Art McAllister, and William Keseloff. The winter formal is tonight.

Sigma Nu—New arrivals include Earl Stevens, Ed McRay, Frank Northway, Bill Morgan, Fred Mac Kinnan, Tom Hoxie, Jim Dirmann, Maurice Hawkins, Doris Lott, Dick Leddy, Truman Bishop, Bill Hutchens, Herby Marshall, and Marty Hill.

Delta Sigma Phi—The Delta Sigma had an exchange dinner with the Chi Om this week and plan one with the Alpha Chi next week. Thirty-six men took fraternity week and twenty-four of them will become active January term members. Chapter Kappa and the Lamonts are also well but only because they fell through there.

Alpha Chi Omega—The Alpha Chi's entertained the Phi-Taus at dinner, Thursday night. A milder version of the fellow Fraternity week is being planned to initiate next week.

Farmhouse—Tom Hase, last term grad, is now teaching at Burton's high school. There's some formal initiation last Sunday on Dick Christy, Ken Anderson, Marshall Mackenzie, Donald Eppendime, William Newland, and Henry Kennedy.

Zeta Tau Alpha—There is a training party at the house this afternoon from two till four. All the girls are here—from their bookish.
