Today's Campus Scandalous!

The Drunkard came back to Michigan. It wasn't the real thing but it was close enough to try to fool the girls in Mary Mayo's Sun-dress.

Rehearse. Roger Wills, Jane Wilson, Fred and Cliff Jenks decided to rehearse a skit that they will give for the Student Theater group on the porch the house next to Mayo they thought the porch was open to public.

Everything. The other night for the anniversary of the hand shell song leader, Myrt, Nickie and her charges to attention. The next song is going to be "Lips". Now let's just see if we've got into it, girls!

Romance, Again. The new beginning in a darkened room. Shirley Cook to Albert Gann sorority sisters. Had Penneck, Phil Tann, are in the senior play.

Here, Finally. The 1938 class memorial, a huge one, have replaced the black and gold Michigan State College sign on the west end of the campus on Grand River avenue. Faculty and alumni of the college expressed appreciation of the memorial even though it is a year late in being placed.

Les Miserable. "What before you leap?" That was the girl on campus because of the motto yesterday. She was straggled on extreme watch on her worst day. She lost her watch.

Food for Thought. The Alpha Phis have been waiting patiently for the grass seeds sown in their front lawn to grow into beautiful blades of green grass.

Field Trip. Grand Ledge student group will be presented Friday at 5 p. m. Those attending will meet in front of the Peoples building.

Music Students To Present Recital

Eleven students of the college music department will participate in the seventh recital in the spring series tonight at 7:30 in the Lecture Theater.

The program is as follows: Beethoven's "Coriolan Overture," which opened the program, was given with the same effect as would a symphonic orchestra. A moving bass part, supported by the strings with added depth from the tenors, accompanied the overture. The following selection, an alternately melodious and humorous waltz, "The Waltz," had a most delicate performance.

Relations Club Will Hear Talk

Romy Stoenema, student here from the Netherlands, will be the speaker at a meeting of International Relations Club to be held in the Sunset room of the Union at 8:30 p. m. tonight.

Faculty in Art Department Exhibit Own Paintings

And now you can judge for yourself what State art professors can do with their own brushes and pencils. In the best results, their labors are now on exhibit for all to appreciate and admire.

There are several of A. G. Schaefer's seascapes, probably familiar to most of us as many of his works have been hung in the buildings on campus. There are two watercolors of tugged waves which especially leave the rolling feeling of the sea, and a large oil that is particularly interesting is of a docked schooner on a moonlight sea. A lavish use of blue is evident in all his paintings. The portraits of Erling Braunes are perfect likenesses, straightforward and sharp; the subjects in characteristic poses seem to jump out from their backgrounds. A landscape, "Fields in Autumn," has a decided touch of the modernism that it lacks meticulous detail and uses an original color combination of hues of blue, green, red and reddish brown. Edith Butler's evocative cool looking scene, "August Retreat," of a white house in a very green

Faculty to Have It's Say

Student organizations interested in furtherance of honesty through investigations of the desirability of an honor system for Michigan State college are now working out a questionnaire to determine faculty opinions. Questions to be put to the faculty were selected only after determining prevalent student attitudes through a recent campus-wide student questionnaire.

Specifically, the faculty questionnaire seeks to determine whether members of the faculty are willing to cooperate in those things deemed by students to be essential features of any system that would tend to reduce cheating on the campus. Citing examples, the faculty will probably be asked if it will eliminate pop quizzes, preferably announcing examination schedules at the beginning of the term. It will also be asked if faculty members are willing to give students a chance to take tests after the date set in cases where students have not had time to study.

Faculty men will be asked, further, if they would stay in the room during examinations even in the presence of an honor system, because students have indicated that they prefer it to be that way. Another question is whether the faculty favors, in theory at least, abolition of the marking system when students recently indicated, is a fundamental cause of dishonesty.

After the faculty has expressed its viewpoints concerning practices in which the students have shown themselves most interested, it will be known whether or not an honor system is practical for this college, and to a degree the practices which should go into such a system.

Toward Lower Costs of Living

How would you like to get your room and board for five dollars a week?

Right now such a situation is practically an impossibility on the Michigan State college campus. Because of this fact all too many students are either prevented from coming to college or forced to give too much time to their financial difficulties and therefore do not derive a full quota of benefits from their hard-earned college education.

This situation could be remedied for many students by the establishment of cooperative houses for men here at Michigan State college.

In similar projects at other campuses, it has been proved that living expenses CAN be cut to five dollars a week for room and board.

Representatives from State visited the University of Michigan a few weeks ago, where four co-op houses are being operated successfully. Some of these houses have been established as long as seven years.

The fact uncovered by this visit, in addition to the past-studying information, are further proof of the need and wisdom of instituting co-ops for men on this campus.

First of all, in a house containing 20 men, it would be necessary for each man to put in only approximately seven hours a week which is unquestionably a great deal less time than men in similar positions today at State are forced to spend at work.

The work which the men would be doing would include house duties such as cooking, washing dishes, and house cleaning. This would insure them of clean, wholesome living quarters.

At present, a campus organization is gathering information necessary for the establishment of cooperative houses for men here at State, and as soon as the details have been worked out, such announcement will be made.

However, like all other campus projects, this program demands student support. It is your duty to turn this over in your mind and to consider it in all its aspects.

Certainly there are students here who can use such facilities. It is up to them to give their support and cooperation when the final "push" comes.

To such students we say: Weigh this carefully; give support unreservedly; cooperate wholeheartedly.

College Men Lead Gra-Y Groups Under NYA

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. (AP)—Participation by a few individuals in many potential being attacked on the Massachusetts Institute of Technology campus by a group of young men in a group which was part of activities at which they are engaged may be of value.

The bulk of the plan is a set of men's points which is plotted on each activity, and to student men areas more than a set of daily and weekly.

The Trust student newspaper announced the advantages of the plan.

By limiting the number of activities to which any one person can hold positions, men will be enabled to hold their positions in the number of their own choice.

It is proposed that instead of holding a varying number of positions in each activity, the activities will be assigned into three grades. Students will be allowed to hold only one office in the first grade, none in the second and three in the third. Whenever plan is adopted, enough latitude will be allowed so that under-graduates will be allowed to hold several offices, though only one of major rank.

Survey Shows College Grads Well-Off

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(AP)—Despite the popular surveys to the contrary, college graduates are not so laid off as many would have you believe.

This is the paragraphic summary of a 207-page report just issued here by the U. S. Office of Education after a year of intensive research.

Proof of the summary statement are these excerpts from the report: During the eight-year period of the survey, about two-fifths reported that they had been laid off one or more months since graduation. But 87.8 per cent of the men and 66.8 per cent of the women reported that they have not been laid off since graduation.

More than 98 per cent of the women reported that they have never been on public relief, but the typical period of relief is only 6 months.

Eighty-seven out of 100 college graduates reported that they had been laid off one or more months since graduation. But 87.8 per cent of the men and 66.8 per cent of the women reported that they have never been on public relief, but the typical period of relief is only 6 months.

The average salary after eight years of employment is slightly more than $2,400 for the men and more than $1,600 for the women who are graduates of institutions that have more than 2,000 enrollment.

Eighty-four per cent of the men and 67 per cent of the women included in the survey report a close connection between their present employment and their college major.

Those surveyed indicated that the most advantageous way for a graduate to find work after college is through active personal solicitation of the job, without waiting for anybody to find a job for him.

If present plans materialize, Assistant Athletic Director Lyman Finnsberg will sponsor a Fledge basketball league next winter. Organization of the new league is one feature of a program to expand intramural athletics here after the new field is opened.

Jobs Plentiful For Seniors Surrey Says

By MARYANN SMITH

Employment prospects for 1939 graduates from American colleges and universities are brighter than in the previous two years, or in 1933, although less hopeful than 10 years ago, according to preliminary results of a recent national survey.

Ninety-one per cent of the 146 institutions of higher learning in the survey reported that 50 per cent or more of their 1939 graduates would have steady jobs before the end of this summer.

Job prospects the same as or greater than those of June, 1938, were predicted by 88 per cent of the schools replying to the questionnaire.

Ninety-four per cent of the co-educational and men's colleges expected 50 per cent or more of their male graduates to be attached to a regular payroll within ninety days of graduation. Eighty-seven per cent of 108 co-educational and women's colleges estimated that 50 per cent or more of their female graduates would be gainfully employed before autumn started.

Business Places 'Rough It' As Utilities Go

Watching a steam shovel at work is a universal outdoor sport among the American people.

Yesterday such an opportunity presented itself to East Lansing citizens when operations were started to excavate the basement for the building to be erected on M. A. C. avenue this summer.

Surprise was in store for the onlookers, however, for suddenly the shovel ripped through service pipes leading to several stores on Grand River avenue.

The stores affected were Bernes Drug store, the M. S. C. Shoe Repair shop, Golden eating place and Kogers' food market. Several utilities were cut off, including water, electricity, telephone, sewer and gas.

The drug store and the eating places were forced to bring in bottled water, and could not do any cooking by gas by the time the evening meal hour had rolled around.
