Intramurals Grow

Intramural athletics which have been matching strides with the growth of Michigan State's student body enjoyed its most successful season this term.

Under the guidance of L. L. Frimodig, assistant athletic director, each year has witnessed a larger number participating in intramural sports. This fall 995 men played touch football, representing the greatest number ever to take part in a single sport here. The schedule was climaxed this week with playoffs to decide the campus championship. Three leagues, dorm, fraternity, and independent, played a schedule of six or seven games.

In addition to football, intramural sports include basketball, track, bowling, softball, baseball, and swimming, which attracted 3,299 students last year. This represents more than half of the student body.

No other activity on campus appeals to as large a number of students. As a valuable part of education intramural athletics attempt to make possible that aged axiom—a sound body makes for a sound mind.

This is in addition to the varsity sports program which receives much more publicity and attention but the fact remains that intramural athletics offers a splendid opportunity for a greater number to participate which after all is the aim of a well-rounded program.

Here's to Bigger Parties

The more the merrier. The less expensive, the more. Hence, the less expensive formal parties can be made, the more will attend, and the greater the enjoyment for all concerned.

Winter term J-Hop, outstanding party of the school year, has had admission prices ranging around $2 in years gone by. With that price 300 to 400 couples danced to that party.

This year, for the first time, almost again as many couples can be accommodated in the not-yet-completed auditorium. Authorities report that 800 couples will be able to dance comfortably in this new building.

If party-goers wish, they can call J-Hop tickets for considerably below $2, and still have a good band and meet all expenses. Almost any orchestra in the country can be obtained for $1.50 to $2.00.

Estimating that other expenses amount to less than the band price, 800 tickets should be sold for $4 to $4.50.

There is no object in making a profit, for any balance left by the class is simply passed on to the next class, with no benefit to the financially successful class.

Since the object of the party is not to make money, but to entertain the dancers, a $4.50 admission ticket would easily bring 800 couples, and the committee would still make a financial success.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2.—If you study the Secretary of Labor as an individual, she is an intelligent, charming lady with a brilliant record as a social worker and as a crusader for the underdog. But if you examine her Department of Labor as an institution, the most charitable thing you can say of Miss Perkins is that she is no executive.

For under her, the Department of Labor has become the stepchild of the New Deal.

This is not a new story, for the Labor department has been treated as a stepchild back in the days of Woodrow Wilson. It was given the horse and carriage discarded by Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan. And for years it was filled with desks and office furniture cast off by the Treasury and other older departments.

During the Roosevelt administration, however, American labor has received a better break than ever before in our entire history. More labor benefiting labor have been passed, more money for labor has been appropriated. Yet the Labor department itself has straggled, disorganized and faded into relative obscurity.

Miss Perkins' greatest blow was the government reorganization bill by which the employment service was transferred to the Social Security board.

Recently Miss Perkins blames her former assistant, Arthur Altmeyer, now Social Security chairman, for selling the president's reorganization advisers the idea to transfer the bureau away from her. Later she got some measure of revenge by being Altmeyer's first group appointed administrator of the new Federal Security agency. But she never dreamed that Paul McNutt would get the job.

SOL LADIES MAN MANUEY
And it's the handsome and distinguished McNutt, target of most late news articles, engaged in a little flirt with the newly lady in the White House.

The first lady, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the mistress of men, the employment service, and McNutt, the man who has been in the White House since the inauguration of the new president, are the subject of a new book, "The White House and the White House," by the author of "The White House and the White House," published by the New York Times.

The book is the first of a series of books which will be published by the New York Times, and it is a very interesting and well-written work. It is a very interesting and well-written work.

STRIPPED DEPARTMENT
In addition, the President's reorganization bill toward the idea of transferring the Department of Naturalization to the Justice department. Finally, Congress has been deferring to make the Wage-Hour administration independent of Miss Perkins and probably will do so.

These changes have taken the Labor department because a more active role would take about in the future, when organized by central agencies, of the old Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the United States Department of Labor.

MERRY GO ROUND
When Congressman Dies stamped out his office last week, he was chiefly sure because he had wanted Hoover to serve a sentence on an alleged Communist named Mink. Hoover told Dies that G-Men were not supposed to serve subpoenas, that he didn't know where Mink was and couldn't waste the time of his staff looking for him. Believe it or not, but Hoover, Lloyd Stark of Michigan, has been discouraging Dies from serving his subpoena.

It is now known to be elected by the House of Representatives, and it is now known to be elected by the House of Representatives, and it is now known to be elected by the House of Representatives.

You Say This

Student Opinion Column

Dear Editor:

This concerns the last chapter in the life of a small dog. Saturday the most fiendishly cruel and despicable breed of mankind, the dog poisoner, fed him something containing strychnine. Our feelings regarding such a person can be understood without saying. But this letter is concerned not with the poisoner, however much we could say of him, but rather with our college's veterinary clinic, to which the dog was taken for treatment at the first sign of illness.

We notified the attendant at the desk that we believed our dog had been poisoned, and asked her to get a veterinarian immediately. We waited 20 minutes for him to put in his appearance and then received a person who apparently can't differentiate strychnine symptoms from indigestion. This clinician hastily treated the dog, saying the dog's illness was probably due to turkey bones he had picked up somewhere. He advised that we leave the dog at the clinic so that he could watch for signs of poisoning. This was at 11:15 a. m. Saturday. We, in our ignorance and stupid faith in so-called scientific institutions, left the dog there and went home, feeling that he would have adequate attention.

About 2 p. m. Saturday a neighbor's dog began to show the same symptoms. Another neighbor, in my absence, took that animal to the clinic and told me when I returned home an hour later that our dog looked like he was almost dead and that he was receiving no treatment there being no one in the building but a caretaker.

My wife and I went at once to the clinic and removed both dogs, rushing them to a Lansing veterinarian who immediately treated them. This stopped the conclusions by means of which strychnine finally won the animal's life. Both dogs responded quickly. Both dogs were the result of the long and weary hours of struggle and worry, was too near the end to come back, and he died a few hours later. The other animal thanks to prompt treatment, will probably recover.

We miss our dog, but that is not why this is written. We detest and hate above all other humans, the poisoner, but this letter is not written to that person. What we want to know is why MSC maintains an animal clinic if this clinic does not take proper care of animals delivered to its care. Why is anyone allowed to diagnose the illness, when he is so incompetent as to be unable to recognize the symptoms of strychnine poisoning? Why did the clinician assure us that the animal would be observed and treated when he knew such a statement was false? Why did he not tell us to take our dog to a veterinarian in Lansing, since the clinic closed shop on Saturday afternoons?

Maybe animals shouldn't get sick on weekends or holidays and interfere with the relaxation of the clinic's staff. When I was in the Forest Service, my fellow Junior Foresters and I were obliged to take weekend duty, for forest fires have not learned about man-made calendars either. If the college is to maintain an institution for public service (and you pay in direct fees for treatment for animals, as well as in taxes) it should have a competent man on duty every day or else shut its doors to private cases entirely. It is needless and would be foolish to draw a parallel to what would happen in a hospital for humans if it were handled in such a manner.

The publication of this letter will, in my opinion, be a public service and an indication that State News is not as yet muzzled. A copy of the letter is being sent to Dean Giltner.

Respectfully yours,
Albert G. Johnson

MUSIC BUILDING

To Whom It May Concern:
Schedule for Sunday, 7:30 the dedication of the new Music building, of which there is to be an appropriate program. It was announced earlier in the week that anyone who was interested in attending this program could get tickets at the Music building. However, this is not the case.

The facts of the case are that persons who realize the value of the new Music building are unable to get tickets to the program. The persons to whom I refer are the members of the Michigan State band. Is there any organization on this campus which has done more to spread the merits of the Music department and the band?

The band and persons connected with it were among those who helped to get the movement started for this building. This is especially true for the older members of the band who know with what conditions the band has had to contend in the last few years. The new Music building is a dream which has come true. Yet they are unable to see the formal realization of this dream.

The members of the band feel that it is only fair that each member be given a ticket to the dedication program. There is room for 413 people in the auditorium, and certainly there should be room for 98 persons who are a vital part of the Music department and have long realized the need of this new building.

We know that it is too late to get any results on this matter, but we want it known that we feel an injustice has been done. Also we feel that we are justified in complaining about this situation. We sincerely hope that the persons in charge of the dedication of the other buildings will not allow similar injustices to be committed.

A Junior Member of the Band

Hornets to Face Cagers

By Marshall Dann

Crown Prince Basketball will ascend the athletic throne that King football abdicated last week, when Coach Ben Van Alstyne sends his cagers against Kalamazoo college at 8 o'clock Monday night in the Boys' Vocational school gymnasium in Lansing.

From all outward appearances the Hornets should prove to be nothing more than a breather on base's of past records. However, these breathers often have a way of turning out otherwise, as Spartan fans will remember from last year when Kalamazoo gave quite a scare before bowing 36 to 26.

A Van Alstyne coached team has never met defeat by Kalamazoo, as the last Hornet victory was registered in 1923, the year before Van arrived on the campus. In the 17 games played between the two squads, State has won all but two.

The result of a miserable exhibition put on by the first string team in a full length scrimmage last night on the Vocational floor, Van Alstyne may stiff his starting lineup for the game.

Paced by Bob Morris with eight field goals, and Joe Gerard, a sophomore, with six, the second stringers knocked off the varsity, 33 to 24. The failure of several of the regulars to play their usual brand of ball may find Morris and Gerard among the starting five.

The probable starting lineup for State is Morris and Gerard at forward Marty Hutt at center, and Chet Aubuchon and Max Dalrymple at guard. Others among the 13 players on the squad who will see action are: Bob Phillips, Max Hirstman, Whitey Leyrer, Pete Basch, Mel Peterson, Ray Polager, Bill Burke, and Marvin Kraft.

Kalamazoo has lost its high-scoring forward line of Don Spaulsbery, Joe Howard, and Bob Warren, but has seven letter men available for this season. The Hornets will also carry the advantage of having experienced two games already this season. They ripped their alumni team last week, and bowed before a powerful Notre Dame quint, 62 to 34, Thursday night.

Spartan Sportfolio

Today's column is written by Hal Schram, staff News sport staff member.

Although another gridiron season at Michigan State is completed, and the equipment is stacked away under the protecting eye of Father Muthball, let's drag out the records and have a final glance at that undefeated freshman football season.

We were strolling through the athletic office the other day, picking up what bits of news we could find laying around, when we happened to spot Coach Kobs putting those final touches on his 1939 freshman football record book.

'Jawin' John Talks

"Hold on there Coach," we interrupted "Before filling those records away, how about giving us a few comments on this year's yearling squad? We've been voicing our own opinions so long that a change would certainly be welcomed."

"Jawin' John" invited us in, offered us a seat, settled back into chair and said, "Well, what do you want to know?"

After stumbling around for a suitable question we began, "How did this year's squad stack up with those of former years?"

Without any hesitation the yearling mentor replied, "It was one of the best defensive squads I have ever worked with at State. Perhaps the best."

"Not wishing to let the interview die after such a successful beginning, we came back with, 'How would you compare this year's team with the strong aggregation you sent up to the varsity this year?'"

"Enthusiastic" This question seemed to please him immensely, for he ceased back in his seat, spread his thick thumbs into his nose, two large vein pockets, and a beaming smile covered his usual gloomy face. "It's every bit as good as last year's team," he replied enthusiastically.

"We then asked him to name a few of the boys whom he considered would help the varsity next year."

"Well, in the backfield there is Pete Rippmaster, Maro Miller, Pete Fornari, Dick Keippe, Walt Ball, Amedeo Berme and Bill Beardsley. That's not all," he continued, "but those are the boys who will probably aid 'Back' the most."

"How about the line?" we inquired.

"Oh, Davey Ed, Armon, Ed Stafford, Tom Johnson, Jack Brown, Chet Hill, Mike Mikotanic, Bill Monroe, Al Graves, and Chuck DeLoe, among other boys, who have looked good of late."

"The kicking of Maro Miller, the ball carrying and hand running of Don Decker and Philip Sewald, and the passing of Jimmy Pangel made the future look plenty bright for the Spartan gridiron forces as far as the full back position is concerned."

"As right halfback candidates Dick Keippe and speedy Jack Fenton are definitely possibilities for Coach Johnson's future Spartan sports."

"Wrestling Tourney Set for Opening" Wrestlers and would-be wrestlers will get a chance to show their ability this week when the All-College wrestling tournament swings into the athletic picture.

State's Rockenbach and Kinek Honored by Gridmen

Lyle Rockenbach and Mike Kinek were chosen honorary captains of the 1939 Michigan State football team at a meeting of the Spartan varsity letter winners Thursday.

Both Rockenbach and Kinek have been regulars for the past three years, the former at guard and the latter at end.

Rockenbach hails from Crystal Lake, Ill., and Kinek calls Whiting, Ind., his home.

Thirty-seven gridmen were awarded varsity letters, with two minor awards also being made. In addition, 44 freshmen were given numerals.

Mixup Features DZV Win Over Sigma Nus Thursday

The DZV athletic brotherhood, which has been making quite a habit lately of dominating campus intramural athletics, won its third straight all-college championship by edging out the Sigma Nu fraternity team, 1 to 0, for the college touch football crown Thursday night. This tilt was the final of an intramural program that attracted 905 students during fall term.

After a true story book ending that sent the 100 spectators home believing that DZV had won by a 6 to 0 count, Lyman L. Frimodig, czar of State's intramural program, issued an edict yesterday that nullified the winning touchdown, but gave DZV the decision on first downs.

The disputed play came in the last minute 1 oap the only serious goal line threat of the game. Gerse Owen set the stage for the DZVs by intercepting a pass at midfield, and returning it to the Sigma Nu 30. Chet Aubuchon, ace passer, went into action with his thrashing arm, and pitched an aerial to Owen who tucked in the 16 yard score.

On exactly the same play Owen again snagged a pass, and went to the 8 for the only and deciding first down of the game. Then with less than 30 seconds remaining, Aubuchon set a perfect pass to Mike Mikeson, who was standing in the end zone.

An overzealous Sigma Nu defender attempted to hit down on the ball, and crashed into Mikeson, but instead, the referee called an interference penalty and nullified that a touchdown had been scored. (The rules state that no touchdown can be scored on a penalty.)

The final horn sounded before further play, and when the officials discovered the error, all the contestants had left the field.

However, that sole first down of the game, registered by DZV with 36 seconds to play, gave them one point, and broke the 0-0 tie.

Another novel development in going into State's new building, N. Jones will people things behind the baggage at basketball games, wonder if the ball went through the hoop. Backboards will be of glass.

Star Frat Team Chosen

By BOB DELISLE

Climaxing one of the most successful seasons in the history of Inter-Fraternity touch football the State News sports staff announces its annual all-frat grid team.

Not since the inauguration of touch football on the State campus has the first loop provided such tough competition as during the 1939 campaign. Four teams—Sigma Nu, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Alpha Gamma Rho—were undefeated in regular season play.

By virtue of its two-year domination over the Inter-Fraternity conference, Sigma Nu led the way in the balloting, placing three of its gridmen on the honor team.

Outside of that trio from the title aggregation, the All-Fraternity selections were well spread out. Phi Delta Theta, Kappa Sigma, Alpha Gamma Rho, and the runner-up Lambda Chi Alpha—seven—each placed one man on the honor team.

On the line this year at left end is Fred Galda, red-headed basketball ace of Phi Delta Theta with Don "Farkas" Farkas at center. Farkas, always a dynamic leader, earned the honorary captaincy of this mythical group. At right end is Farkas' roommate, Guy Main who formed half of the best passing combination in the first loop this season. Main carried speed and was usually "on the spot" to take Bud McKichon's tosses.

In the backfield is a choice array of offensive artists who performed equally well on secondary defense. At quarterback is Everett McDonald, Kappa Sigma's great punting ace. McDonald heaved far and wide and was used under fire.

Sigma Nu's M. Kichon was also his completed passing arm also. At right half was placed Alpha Gamma Rho's Jim Lamb, an excellent punter who could kick them high and far to keep opponents in the hole. Completing the quartet is Dick Reeves of Lambda Chi Alpha. Reeves could run the ball and was doubly valuable for his pass-catching ability.

The second team is composed of gridmen who share in their own right, the same, but will keep their heads down when the ball is kicked off the line. The loss of the consistent brilliance of these players.

Another novel development in going into State's new building, N. Jones will people things behind the baggage at basketball games, wonder if the ball went through the hoop. Backboards will be of glass.

All-College Run Here Today

Bowing out of the cross country picture with the running of the postponed 17th annual All-college run today at 12:30 p. m. are four seniors who helped put State on top of the collegiate barrier heap, run off with the national crown here last Monday.

Running their last four mile race here will be Captain Dick Frey, Roy Fehr, George Krieger and Bill Mansfield. The loss of those key men and the added task of orienting national honors already turned Coach Lauren P. Brown's thoughts to rebuilding. The traditional run, annually the first of the season, was held up because of Frey's injury. The meet will now give Coach Brown a chance to look over the reserves. However, the freshmen are a favorable spot for the first time in the history of the meet to have their stuff so late in the season. Jerry Page, Ralph Monroe, and Bill Scott and other freshmen will be watched as material for the 1940 team.

South Campbell Drives For Intramural Cup Win

South Campbell added 15 points to its intramural cup score when it won the girls' volleyball tournament. Alpha Phi and Alpha Gamma Rho finished second and third. Second place gave the Alpha Phi 14 points and third place gave Alpha Omicron Pi 13 points in the drive for the cup.
