Stassen Urges Stowe to Present in Six Assa United Nations War Talk Tonight by British Government

By EDWARD H. HIGGS

WASHINGTON, Mar. 8 (AP)

Gov. Harold E. Stassen of
Minnesota, advocate of a United Nations world government, declared tonight that two world wars and a world-wide depression in a single generation "speak loudly and tragically" of the need "for a new and higher level of government."

Developments of science, travel, trade and communication have demonstrated that government limited to a national scale "is not enough." The 35-year-old Republican executive said in an address prepared for delivery to the United Nations forum in Constitution hall.

'Alliances, treaties, pacts between nations are not enough," he added. "" the nations of world must not merely agree

Curriculum changes for spring% term have been made in all departments except the Home Eco- House Group Rejects nomics division due to action taken by the administrative group in a recent meeting, according to Dean L. C. Emmons.

Departments for Coming Term

In every department some courses will be suspended but this will not prevent any student from graduating or proceeding in his major in the usual manner. The plan is to offer fewer electives because of fewer students, adjusting the number of electives to relieve the staff for teaching army courses.

MATEUR and professional philosophers have always held that every person has separate goal in life. From the actions of various individuals we've bumped into at Michigan State that seems true-but the only basic wish expressed yet has been that of happiness. In one way or another most of us want to be happy.

So we were a little startled the other day to have a philosophizing freshman tell us he wasn't looking for happiness, that he didn't think it possible to attain.

It wasn't the first time we'd heard that thought expressed. Some students lean in that direction now because of the war. he was the first freshman we'd talked to who had a Schopenhauerish slant.
