

Today's Campus

Twentieth century—and still a "damsel in distress" because of a jammed lift in the Home Ec building yesterday, one of the staff members found herself trapped in the elevator. Twenty minutes—hasty, futile, or distressing—were terminated by a muscle-bound hero from B and G.

... Songs Get Gong

A friendly feud was instituted yesterday when the engineers on campus gave vent to their feelings about the air force singing students. They tossed pennies at the aircrew song. Penny birds in a manner resembling that of Sereade an indulgent patron regarding a performing monkey. History does not record that the singers gave up, but if they did it would probably have been, "Quiet from the peanut gallery".

Veterinary Division Makes Annual Shipments of Brucellin to Malta

During the past year, the division of Veterinary medicine has shipped the cubic centimeters of brucellin, undulant fever vaccine to the bomb-blasted island of Malta, according to Prof. I. F. Huddleson, of the bacteriology department. He added that this amount will treat approximately 1,000 persons.

The Veterinary division has shipped two shipments annually of 100 cubic centimeter doses since 1938. Pasteurization of milk in Malta cut the number of cases of undulant fever but since the pasteurization plant was bombed, the rate increased again, Huddleson said.

Michigan State college is the only place in the country that has been licensed to manufacture and sell brucellin, having obtained the license in 1935 from the National Institute of Health. The manufacturing process takes four months.

Brucellin manufactured here is used in treating 95% of the undulant fever cases occurring in the United States. The college also makes four or five annual shipments of brucellergen, used in skin tests for undulant fever, to Mexico.

Professor Huddleson stated that undulant fever is a rare disease with only 4,000 to 5,000 cases occurring annually in the United States and that it is not often fatal.

Campus Talent Goes to Custer for Show

The CDC-planned coed entertainment corps will hit the road for Fort Custer next Wednesday afternoon, to present a 40-minute variety show.

Director Don Buell listed nine of the possible ten performers who will make the trip. Those going are: Ginny Tonion and her trombone; Jackie Meehan and Neva Ackerman, dancers; songstresses Jean, Swengel and Helen Muncie with Mary Margaret Murphy as accompanist, and Peg Hall and Marge Rice, who will present a skit and separate readings.

Arrangements have been made for the group to play in the Fort Custer Red Cross recreation center and to appear before Service Club number one.

Classes Will Begin Monday for 1,100 ASTP Men

Women Schedule Open Houses for Air Students

Tomorrow afternoon sororities, dormitories and co-ops will hold open house to give summer school coeds an opportunity to meet aircrewmembers, according to Esther Hubbard, student activities board chairman.

It is to be a brief, informal affair lasting from 2:30 p. m. until 4:30 p. m. Each squadron will attend the house to which it has been assigned.

The dormitories which are open this summer and are participating are North and South Williams and West Mary Mayo.

Sororities taking part are Sigma Kappa, 516 M.A.C.; Alpha Phi, 616 M.A.C.; Kappa Alpha Theta, 303 Oakhill; Kappa Delta, 421 Abbot road; and Alpha Xi Delta, 143 West Grand River.

Home Management houses 4, 5, and 6. Faculty row and Alice Cowles house will also be open.

As soon as the ASTP unit on campus is organized into an active body, representatives will be designated for the student activities board. Colonel Dorsey Rodney announced today.

Robeson to Sing Classic, Folk Music at Concert Tonight

Presenting a varied program of selections from Mendelssohn, Beethoven, and American folk tunes, Paul Robeson, internationally known baritone, will appear on the summer concert series at 8:15 in the College auditorium tonight.

Accompanied by Lawrence Brown, Robeson will present three groups of selections. "Lord God of Abraham", from Mendelssohn's "Elijah", "Creation's hymn", by Beethoven, "Night", Russian folk-song, "When Dull Care" and "Over the Mountains", and English airs, will be included in the program.

Robeson will also sing a group of American folk-songs arranged by Brown. "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child", "Poor Wastard", "Stranger", "Every Time I Feel de Spirit", and "Great Gettin' Up in the Morning".

Aiding in the program tonight will be Roy Underwood, head of the music department, who will present a group of piano solos. Romeo Tata, violinist, accompanied by Underwood, will also present several selections.

A "full house" is expected for the concert, according to S. E. Crowe, series director. All seats for the concert are reserved and Crowe reported yesterday that nearly all tickets had been given out. However, students may get reservations up until noon today, if any tickets remain.

Besides State students and faculty, the concert will be open to the public. Pre-cadets, ASTP men and STAPs will also be admitted, Crowe said.

A. J. Clark Has Operation

Prof. A. J. Clark, head of the Michigan State chemistry department, underwent an operation at Edward W. Sparrow hospital in Lansing recently, according to R. C. Huston, dean of the applied science division.

Year of Hospital Work Begins for Senior Med Bios

A group of 13 senior medical biology students started training as laboratory technicians during the past week in various hospitals throughout the state. Dean Ward B. Giltner of the Veterinary division announced.

The students and their positions follow: Virginia Bruce, Munson hospital, Traverse City; Esther Cass and Jean Sharrard, St. Lawrence hospital, Lansing; and Mary Ellen Shack, Port Huron Community hospital, Port Huron.

Leone Heagle and Kathleen McGill Harper hospital, Detroit; Betty Rapp, Mary Hobden, Donna Dewey and Frances McCleery, State health laboratory, Lansing; and Katherine Elliott, Ellen Newman and Gloria Pettit, Leila Post hospital, Battle Creek.

Family, Flikka Help Paul Olson Win Degree

Paul Olson, Michigan State's only blind student who owns a leader dog, is pictured above with his wife and their two children, Paul and Patricia. Flikka, center, was a gift of Michigan State students and the Lansing Lion's club.

A familiar sight on the campus for the past year has been a soft-eyed German shepherd dog leading his companion and master, Paul Olson, a blind student with the acumen and assurance of a normal young man.

Olson completes his college career this summer when he will graduate from the Liberal Arts division with a Bachelor of Arts degree and is looking forward to a career in business.

No less important members of the Olson family than Flikka, the dog, are Edith, whom Olson met and married when he was a sophomore at MSC. Paul Eric, 15 months and Patricia Loraine, eight weeks. They live at 644 Gunson.

Dog Bought by Students

Flikka entered the family last year after MSC students, under the sponsorship of Blue Key, junior and senior men's honorary, conducted a drive to purchase a leader dog for him.

Olson was born in Gladstone, Michigan, in 1920. Until he was 10 years old he attended public schools in Gladstone and Iron Mountain. Then because of failing sight he entered the School for the Blind at Lansing. He has been completely blind since he was 17.

Social Problems Dominate

Social problems are the largest ones for blind university students, Olson believes, because (See Olson, Page 4)

Soldiers to Live in Wells Hall, Fraternities

Basic engineering courses will begin Monday for 800 army men transferred to Michigan State college under the Army Specialized Training Program, and 300 language and area students are expected to begin classes at the same time, according to Col. Dorsey R. Rodney, commanding officer of the local ASTP unit.

The men have been filtering into East Lansing throughout the past week, and last night 274 more engineers arrived from South Carolina. As yet 150 of the area and language students have not arrived but are expected to come over the weekend in time to begin training Monday morning, Colonel Rodney said.

Three hundred fifty of the army men will live in Wells hall, former men's dormitory, and the rest will be quartered in 13 of Michigan State's fraternity houses and in North hall, former women's dormitory.

Those living in Wells hall will eat at the dormitory, but the remaining 750 will get their meals at the Union.

Engineers in basic training will take three or more terms of study and those in area and language will take three terms. The latter, upon completion of the course must be conversant (See ASTP, Page 4)

NYA Student Help Discontinued by Congress Action

By act of Congress all branches of the National Youth Administration terminated on June 30. Official notice was received yesterday by Glen O. Stewart, director of alumni relations and student aid, who has had charge of the program on this campus for the past nine years. Congress, under war pressure, decided to eliminate the principle of educational opportunity such as NYA was designed to furnish.

Some 180 Michigan State college students were assisted each month during the past college year. They were paid 45 cents per hour and averaged $15 to $20 per month. They earned a total of $23,554.35 during the year, Stewart stated.

A year ago the payroll averaged about 400 students per month, showing that students coming from industrial areas of Michigan were less needy this year than in previous periods.

Since no federal funds will be available for student employment for next year the various departments will pay for student help from their own budgets. Whether or not departmental jobs will continue to clear through Stewart's office in the Union building has not been determined.

Weekly Letter to Men in the Service

(This open letter to men in the service is a weekly feature of the Michigan State News, describing the outstanding events on campus. Clip it out and mail it to a friend in the service.)

DEAR JOHNNY: Michigan State has the pre-flight air students, the STARS, and the ASTP. Now, just to give it more of a cosmopolitan military air, Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director, has named the college as a prospective camp for conscientious objectors. At the present time these men will be employed to work with the dairy department to help ease the labor shortages on campus.

Big news of the weekend is Singer Paul Robeson, who will appear here tonight. This will be the second time Robeson has come to Spartanland, and the accounting office reports that ticket sales indicate a full house.

Well, hall, which had been returned to civilian students spring term, now goes back to the army. Engineers, pre-medics, and language and area soldier students will be housed there for the duration.

Continuing the open houses begun last spring, several of the dormitories, co-ops, home management, and sorority houses will entertain pre-cadets and other service men stationed on campus tomorrow.

Squadrons E and F of the 310th CTD celebrated their graduation last night with a dance in the Union ballroom. This is the third unit to complete its training since the pre-flight course was established at State last spring.

Because the 310th CTD had no means of raising or lowering the flag at reveille and retreat ceremonies, workers of the Olds Motor company of Lansing presented the detachment with a 65-foot flagstaff.

The ceremony took place at retreat last Sunday, and Capt. Carl Modigh, new commanding officer, accepted the gift from the Olds representatives. The flagstaff is located near the detachment headquarters at Mason Abbot hall.

In spite of all the trouble caused last year by James Petillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, over the Interlochen concert programs, WKAR will broadcast the concert this season. Such distinguished musicians as Percy Grainger and Ferde Grofe will be heard with the choral band and orchestra groups.

The last group of 85 ROTC graduates left for Fort Custer last week, after their previous orders to go to Camp McCoy were changed by a last minute decision. Fort Custer's better facilities for the processing program was the reason, according to Lt. Col. T. H. Stillman, adjutant.

The college-canning factory, which Henry Ford gave to State last year, is now being used to can the produce harvested from college farms. Thirty-five acres of peas have already been shelved in the storehouses, and beans, sweet corn, tomatoes, squash, and pumpkins will be added as the season continues.

The possibility of canning fruit from college orchards is also being considered. Besides serving as a canning plant, the industry will be used as a laboratory for research on processing and production of food.

Leading sorority among all others in the scholarship race was three-time winner Epsilon Chi, with an average of 1.773. Kappa Delta was in second place, Alpha Chi Omega third, Alpha Xi Delta fourth, and Sigma Kappa stood fifth.

Until the next week, all my love,

KAY

CAMPUS CHURCHES

By EMILY KALLED

Peoples Church

The 9:30 a. m. service of worship has been discontinued for July and August. The 11:00 hour will be continued, however. This Sunday Dr. N. A. McCune will use "Psalm 96—Heaven and Earth Sing for Joy," as his topic in the fourth in a series of sermons on "Psalms of the Out-of-Doors."

First Presbyterian

Dr. Peter H. Monama will speak on "Men in the Life of Christ" at the Union service at 11 a. m., Sunday, in First Presbyterian church in Lansing.

Episcopal Chapel

Holy communion will be held in the chapel at Canterbury house at 8:45 a. m., Sunday. From 5 to 7 p. m., Rev. Clarence W. Brickman, Episcopal chaplain, will be host to all regular students, Air Cadets, and STARS.

Downtown services at St. Paul's will be holy communion at 8 a. m. and 12 noon, and morning prayer at 11.

College Lutheran

The College Lutheran group will hold Sunday services in the State theatre building in East Lansing. William Young, pastor, will continue with the special lecture series on "What Lutherans Believe," in the Bible class at 10. At the 10:30 worship service the sermon theme will be "Thy Will Be Done." A group of air cadets will furnish the music.

Wesleyan Methodist

Michigan Grange Youth Meet Here

A conference of Michigan Grange youth convened at Michigan State college yesterday, for a three-day session devoted to Grange activities in wartime, according to Ralph W. Tenny, director of short courses at MSC.

Registration began at 4 p. m. yesterday in Campbell dormitory. Meetings will continue until the closing dinner at 12:30 p. m. Sunday. Delegates to the convention will be housed in Campbell and Mary Mayo halls, and will take their meals in the Union cafeteria.

Taking part in the meetings will be State Grange Master W. G. Armstrong, Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, Michigan superintendent of public instruction, and C. H. Lisperse, Grand Rapids, state lecturer of the grange. A special meeting Sunday afternoon will discuss the grange war program.

Language courses in Spanish, French, Italian and German will be offered and the men will select their choice of language as much as possible, although they will be assigned to meet the needs of the war department.

Major Joseph P. Thompson, of the Michigan State ROTC staff, will act as director of the ASTP units beginning work here next week, Colonel Rodney announced.

Veterinary students who have been living in the Delta Chi and Delta Sigma Phi houses recently will live in private homes of their own choosing while completing their college courses. The men are all local students in the Veterinary division, and few army veterinary students are expected here, Colonel Rodney revealed.

Busy Registrar Linton Keeps Student Data, Guides Frosh Job Includes Supervising Spartans

Although he is one of the busiest persons on campus, Registrar R. S. Linton can still take time to listen and engage in an occasional chat with prospective students and worried parents. This interest is the result of 21 years of teaching and guidance experience and a natural sympathy for bringing new students to the campus and setting them off on the right foot.

Linton began his career at Michigan State in 1922 when he entered as a freshman in Agriculture. After graduation in 1926, he went to teach vocational agriculture in Owosso, high school and was there during the first World War working in other agriculture teachers' military assignment orders.

news Tom Dewey
While teaching in Owosso, Linton helped organize the boys' basketball team in Shiawassee county. One of the boys Linton met and went to work on Michigan was Tom Dewey, governor of New York.

In 1934 he was called back to Michigan to do college teaching and supervising practice teaching from the college. His criticism was done in a small building across from East Lansing Central school.

During his first year Linton received 42 men as many as working in one class. His program for the year included 10 classes in farm shop, one in botany, farm crops, literature, animal husbandry, raising, sons and farm management, all high school courses.

comes Assistant Registrar
Linton came back to the State campus in 1926 as full time instructor in the education department. In August 1937 he left his position and became assistant registrar, working under Ada Yakeley, State's first registrar.

Linton acquired his present position in January 1939 and since then has kept up his post as college record keeper. When a student at State, he was part of his way through the did not leave much free time for extra-curricular activities. However, he was active in American fraternity, now Delta Sigma Phi, and in military work.

Studies at Michigan
While working on his master's degree at the University of Michigan, Linton took all the advanced courses possible, for his was his "mental hobby". Majoring in sociology here to earn his doctorate he had almost completed his work when he was made registrar.

Michigan born, and fond of the outdoors, Linton satisfied a desire to live in the country by purchasing a 75-acre farm, six miles from the campus. Not having the time to farm the land in true rural style, he retreated in 1939, doing the landscaping himself.

R. S. LINTON

Enjoys Hunting, Fishing
Other open air hobbies that Linton enjoys are hunting, fishing and gardening. His hunting is done on the farm, he and his daughter do the gardening, but fishing has been crowded out of his busy schedule.

Linton's son attended State for two years and is now in pilot training near San Antonio. His daughter is a senior in high school.

Faculty Folk Club to Meet
Michigan State Faculty Folk club will meet Wednesday at the Hunt Food shop at 1 p. m. for a bridge luncheon. Reservations for tickets may be made with Mrs. Maure Larian, 82562 or Mrs. Carvett Pickett, 83446.

Education Club to Meet
Men graduate and special students in education are requested to meet in Union lobby at 12:15 p. m. Tuesday for luncheon. A meeting will be held afterwards for the reorganization of Men's Education club. There will be a short program and speakers.

Student, Faculty Reception Open To Men, Women

Men as well as women students will be welcome at the faculty student reception to be given Thursday on the terrace of Sarah Williams dormitory, from 7:30 to 9 p. m., according to Meridian Rowlette, Detroit teacher and general chairman. The reception, which will be an informal event, is being co-sponsored by AWS and the dean of women's office to give summer school faculty members and students an opportunity to get acquainted.

"All regular State students are, of course, welcome," Dean Elizabeth Conrad said, "but we hope that those persons attending only for the summer sessions will make a special effort to come."

"It is impossible to issue personal invitations for the reception but we want everyone to feel that they will be welcome. This will be something new for the men, but they are urged to come," Miss Rowlette said.

Guests will include the deans of the college divisions, department heads, dormitory officers, and administrative officers.

U. of M. Listed as First MSC Opponent on Football Slate

Harriers' Schedule Completed, Awaits Faculty Approval

The schedule of meets for varsity cross-country runs this fall has been tentatively completed and only awaits faculty approval, according to Athletic Director Ralph H. Young.

The final program will probably be similar to last year's and will include dual meets with Indiana, Notre Dame, and Penn State. Other meets will be the Michigan AAU, the IC-4A, and the National Collegiate meet.

The National Collegiate meet is to be held Monday, November 22 on the four-mile course here.

Women's Sports Planned

Women students interested in playing soft ball, fencing, hiking, canoeing or having an all college tennis and golf tournament should meet Tuesday at 5 p. m. in lecture room A of the Women's gym, according to Lois Newman, WAA president.

With four of the eight scheduled games scheduled to be played at Macklin Field, the fall term football slate has been completed. The games cover a nine week period opening September 25 with the University of Michigan.

Included on the schedule is a "home and home" series with the Great Lakes team, and matches with Penn State and Camp Grant. The latter two are new teams for the Spartans.

The schedule is:

- Sept. 25, Michigan, away.
- Oct. 2, Great Lakes, away.
- Oct. 16, Marquette, home.
- Oct. 23, Camp Grant, home.
- Oct. 30, Penn State, away.
- Nov. 6, Great Lakes, home.
- Nov. 13, Purdue, away.
- Nov. 20, W. Virginia, home.

Summer practice will start in two weeks when football coach Charles Bachman returns from his vacation. The State team will probably consist only of civilian students, because army regulations, for the present, prevent any soldier on the campus from competing in inter-collegiate sports.

Morrill Hall Has Picturesque History In Campus Quarters

Liberal Arts Offices, Soldier Classes Now Replace Chickens in 'The Coop'

From women's center to Liberal Arts headquarters to army air force domain is the history in brief of Morrill hall. With a colorful and interesting past as the social spot of the campus, the building has proved of a versatile nature and now has changed its complexion to fit the needs of army occupation.

The edifice which State students know today as Morrill hall, was built in 1899 and rebuilt in 1900 when one wall caved in because of faulty construction. It became the center for all women's activities on campus: dormitory, class room, social club, and dining hall.

Housed Swimming Pool

Beneath what is now lecture room 130 was originally a large swimming pool, and the room itself first was a gymnasium and later served as a recreation hall for any group on campus which wished to have a social meeting.

The Women's building, which was more informally known as the "Coop" because it housed all the "chickens" of the school, has been the scene of many traditional college escapades, some of which are distinctly its own.

With only three phones, all on first floor, and no buzzer system in a building which in 1933 housed 188 women, the elevator girl, who also acted as telephone operator, led a busy life, often running from one wing of the third floor to the opposite wing of the basement to deliver messages.

Dean's Office

The structure has also housed the offices of the dean of women during its existence. From 1943 to 1937 the room to the left of the main entrance served this purpose.

Because practically all the women attending college in the early decades of the 1900's were home economics students, Morrill hall also housed the home economics department, resulting in a queer combination of departmental offices, living quarters and class rooms.

Ex-Fire Trap

The structure of the building, with its open elevator shaft and wooden framework and walls made it a first class fire trap and the citizens of the town constantly predicted a fiery end. In fact, the story is told of a fire drill which the coeds held when they forgot to inform the fire chief previously.

While the women paraded sedately out of the building in their night clothes, the entire fire department, townspeople, and all the inhabitants of Wells hall rushed over expecting to see the Coop burn down.

New Dorm Taken Over

The fire hazard was eliminated in 1937 after most of the activities of the building had been transferred to the Home Economics building and the various new dormitories.

Following remodeling, the Women's building was taken over by the Liberal Arts division for classrooms and departmental offices and was officially designated Morrill hall.

OLSON

schools for the blind carefully select the students who are to go on to college and they have little academic trouble. "Blind students struggle against unconscious and well-meant coddling which is worse than outright discrimination," he commented.

Olson solved his social problem by getting into extra-curricular activities and joining a fraternity, Sigma Chi. He also sang in the college chorus, was active in Lutheran Students' club, and was a member of the speakers' bureau.

Although Olson will receive his degree in speech, he has enough credits in music and musical theory to be graduated from that department.

Worked as Piano Tuner

Besides maintaining a high scholastic record during his four years at MSC, he worked part time at piano tuning which he learned while at the School for the blind. Today he keeps 40 pianos in the college department of music in good condition, and about a dozen owners of pianos in private homes use his services.

Olson's study problems were not so difficult during the past three years, for his wife has read his assignments to him. He reads Braille, but prefers the "talking Book" equipment which the federal government loans to the blind. These are records which are made available in libraries throughout the country.
