

Wax Enthusiastic

The composite opinion of 14 WACS from Fort Custer who visited the campus and the 310th CTD Sunday reveals that they approve of Spartan life. At least they stated that "Next to being WACS, we would like to be Michigan State coeds."

Come and Get It

Civilian spectators in the Union lobby got their first glimpse of an army mail call yesterday when the AST men received their first letters from sweethearts, relatives and creditors. Having been Mail on campus for over a week with no mail, the men turned out full force. Just like the old days when everyone was milling around trying to find the other half of a coke date.

Three Latin Americans Join Language Staff to Teach AST Men

Because of AST demands, three native Latin Americans have recently joined the language faculty. The first of these, Miss Serafina Sorzano, received her doctor's degree at the University of Havana and comes from Cuba.

Miss Sorzano explained her eagerness to travel thousands of miles to become a Spanish instructor in the AST program by saying that it shortened the distance between her and her fiance, who is a medical student at the University of Chicago.

Before coming to Michigan State, Miss Sorzano taught at a high school in Connecticut and in private tutoring at the University of Chicago.

Isabel Moyano from Puerto Rico who is also teaching Spanish, studied at the University of Puerto Rico and at DePaul university before teaching high school in Chicago.

The third of this trio of Latin American instructors is Consuelo Rodriguez, another graduate of the University of Puerto Rico. Miss Rodriguez received her master's degree at Columbia Teachers college and has taught for seven years at the Blanche Kellogg branch school for girls in Puerto Rico, previous to her work at Michigan State.

Graduates Organize Club, Elect Officers

C. H. Farnham, superintendent of the DeWitt community school, was elected the first president of the newly organized educational club of graduate students in the department of education yesterday, according to Prof. C. V. Millard, head of the department.

Other members include: William Shafford, first vice-president; Post House, Prof. Guy Hill, department of education, faculty vice-president; Carl Stelter, Flint central high school, student secretary and treasurer; and Albert Huggett, department of education, faculty secretary. Honorary president of the club is L. C. Emmons, dean of the Liberal Arts division.

Seniors Asked to Register

Liberal Arts seniors who are graduating at the end of either the summer sessions are urged to file a registration form with the Liberal Arts placement office, room 2, Union annex, according to Prof. D. W. Kuyken, placement officer. He stressed that it is important that registration be effected for every graduate, men as well as women, regardless of the candidates' immediate future plans.

Army Cancels Dance Listed for Friday

Tea Dance, Splash Party
Highlight Weekend's
Social Activities

"Unforeseen circumstances have made it necessary to cancel the all-college dance scheduled for Friday night," Lt. F. N. Miller, public relations officer for the 310th CTD, stated yesterday.

However, plans are under way for another all-college dance to be held sometime in early August, Esther Hubbard, Detroit senior, chairman of the all-college activities board, stated.

Tea Dance Scheduled

Meantime, two other events have been scheduled for this weekend by the activities board, Miss Hubbard said. A tea dance will be held in the mixed lounge of the Union Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 for civilians, AST men and aviation students, according to General Chairman Jean Hilleary, Flint junior. Records will furnish music for the informal event.

AST Dance Saturday

First social event planned by the all-college activities board solely for AST men is a dance slated for Saturday night, 9 to 12, in the Union ballroom, Miss Hubbard, general chairman, announced.

The dance, for AST men and their dates only, will be informal. Tickets may be obtained at the Union desk, Wells hall and North hall. Music for the dance will be furnished by records.

National Radio Group Will Sponsor WKAR Workshop Plays

Members of the Radio Workshop will present two student-written plays today at 2 p. m. over WKAR, college radio station. Director R. J. Coleman announced yesterday.

The plays will be sponsored by Alpha Epsilon Rho, national radio honorary.

"Clothes Make the Man," written and directed by Robert Schubel, Lansing, and "England to America," by E. J. Chase, of Boyne City, will be the two plays presented.

Miss Chase adapted her play from the short story by Margaret Prescott Montague.

Appearing in the plays will be the following cast: Margaret Crandall, Berton Harbor junior; Clark Reid, Ypsilanti; Robert Kamens, Lansing junior; Don Lewis, Plymouth senior; Miss Chase, Schubel, and Joe Calhoun, way, director of radio education.

Faculty Wives Perform Multiple Duties for AST and Aircrewmen

"Eight thousand pairs of army socks and not a hole among them," is the report of a group of faculty wives working under the sponsorship of Faculty Folk club, who have been sewing identification bands on the socks for the engineering students recently stationed here.

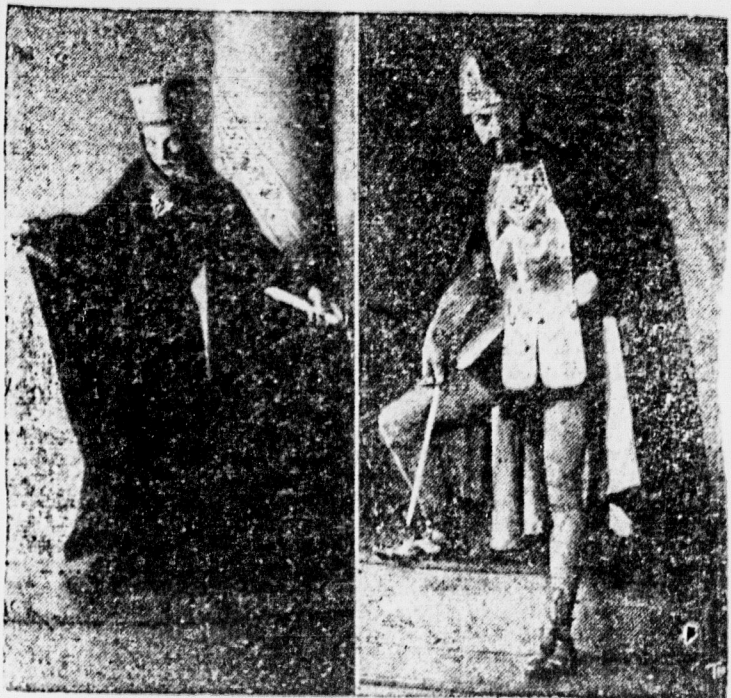

Mrs. J. W. Stack, head of the project, said that this is their first task for the AST men and promises to keep them busy for several weeks.

To Do Repair Work

Yesterday about 25 of the women, supervised by Mrs. A. J. Kettunen, met in the sun porch of the Union to sew on the huge piles of the khaki socks, and will meet every Tuesday afternoon from now on to do any repair jobs that the soldiers might need on their uniforms.

Commander Lists WKAR Features AST Free Hours 'Water Safety' Program Series

College functions at which AST men are expected to be present should be scheduled only late enough as to allow the men time to get to their respective residences by 8 p. m., Col. Leroy R. Rodney, commandant for the group, stressed yesterday.

Through an erroneous statement, the men were reported to be free until 8 in the evening. They are, however, free only after dinner until approximately 7:30 p. m., allowing them sufficient time to return to their quarters by 8 p. m.

Free hours for the AST men over the weekend begin at 6 p. m. Saturday afternoon and continue until 7:30 p. m. Sunday morning, allowing them time to be in at 8 p. m.

Proper passes must be secured by the weekend, permission however.

'Lillian Russell' Film Slated as Saturday's Number on Series

"Lillian Russell," starring Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Eugene Pallette and Henry Fonda, is the film scheduled for Saturday as part of the summer entertainment series, according to E. J. Chase, director of the series. The film will be shown in East hall theater at 7 and 9 p. m.

Next attraction in the series is Alpha class, who will speak and present themselves in the New Crowns hall.

Michigan residents planning to vacation at lakes this summer will have the advantage of a series of programs, "Tips for Bathing," which begins Monday over WKAR at 6:30 p. m. Station Director R. J. Coleman announced yesterday.

The series, sponsored by the men's physical education department, will be directed by Coach Charles McCaffree, associate professor of physical education and swimming coach.

Indicative of the limited ability of many persons as swimmers, McCaffree discussed the extended program by saying that nearly 90 per cent of the total drownings in State take place when they begin their physical fitness program, and only about 10 per cent can swim well enough to help themselves in the water for any length of time.

The radio series will follow the general pattern of the army bathing and water safety swimming classes. Topics to be discussed include swimming after meals, safety rules, exposure to the sun, fatigue and emergency rescue.

The program will also give suggestions on how to avoid panic, which is the cause of many water fatalities among swimmers and small craft sailors, McCaffree added.

Library Rooms, Hours Schedule Listed for Campus Army Groups

Library rooms and hours for use of army groups on campus have been announced by H. G. Fitch, reference librarian.

AST engineers will use the map room and the map room annex in the library basement from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday and until noon on Saturday.

Main reading room is being used by aircrewmen from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday. From two to six groups are in the room at one time, according to Fitch.

Language-area men began using the third floor reading room last Monday. It will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday and until noon on Saturday. This room accommodates approximately 90 persons and is practically filled at times, Fitch said. These men have access to all library facilities.

One Man Show Will Present 'Macbeth'

Streamlined Shakespeare
Offered by Jack Rank
on Series Tonight

Jack Rank, "the one-man theater," will present his streamlined version of Shakespeare's tragedy, "Macbeth," in College auditorium at 8:15 tonight on the summer lecture series.

Playing all parts himself, Rank portrays 12 characters in his version of the Shakespearean classic. All characterizations are done in costume, and 35 costume changes are required in the "Macbeth" performance.

Quick Change

Rank leaves the stage speaking the lines of the current character, and almost immediately re-enters by another door, costume changed, and makeup, mannerisms and voice set for the next characterization.

Costumes, stage settings, and lighting effects are all designed by "the one-man theater," who selects his own musical accompaniments as well.

Former Teacher

A graduate of the University of Nebraska, Rank specialized in voice, piano and dramatics. After his graduation, Rank taught at the university before going on the professional stage, to appear in eight Broadway productions as well as making 4,000 appearances in his movie-dramas.

Students will be admitted upon presentation of their treasurer's receipt. Men in uniform will be admitted free of charge.

War Department Announces Death of MSC Alumnus

The death of Lt. Donald Winfield Merrill, class of 1934, in a Japanese internment camp for prisoners of war in the Philippines, has been reported by the war department. His parents were notified of the death by telegram last Sunday.

Lieutenant Merrill graduated from State in 1934 with a bachelor's degree in engineering. While here he was a member of Phi Lambda Tau, national honorary engineering fraternity founded at MSC, and Sigma Board and Blade.

After graduation he went to Ferris Institute, where his father was dean of the school of commerce for several months. He later took his master's degree in engineering at the University of Michigan.

In June, 1941, Lieutenant Merrill entered government service and flew to Manila where he was in charge of the department of design of the army engineers' office. Details of his capture have not been disclosed.

SPEAKING FOR MYSELF

By Barbara Dennison

SINCE Michigan State acquired another group of army men, the khaki problem on campus has become nothing short of acute.

Last week a new engineering student in Wells hall wrote a letter to the State News in which he said that it was up to the students of MSC whether the engineers and language-area students would be accepted as a part of the college and its functions as the air force men have been.

But the women have something to say about the matter. Surely it is up to the students, especially the women, but it is just as much up to the men themselves.

First impressions. It is said, are the most lasting and these new men can influence their future on this campus by the first impressions they make.

Michigan State is well known for its friendliness. No one waits for a formal introduction here, and everyone speaks when spoken to. When the soldiers first began to arrive we went all out for welcoming them and making them feel important and as if they belonged here. We realized that they were only human and probably quite lonesome.

There is a difference between friendliness and familiarity, though. No woman likes to be whistled at by a complete stranger, even though he is a soldier. Nor does she appreciate bright remarks and cat-calls when she must pass in the vicinity of a group of soldiers.

And when we meet them on the campus we would be proud to smile and even to speak if some remark didn't pop out before we ever had the chance, and spoil our good intentions for the next time too.

We don't want to lose our reputation for being friendly, but we aren't going to lose our self-respect just to be pleasant to someone when all we get in return is, "Gee, she's cute, isn't she?" or "Look at the red-head, Saay, she's a Pi Phi." They don't warm our hearts to the opportunity the next time it arises.

Obviously it is the women who will most influence the lives of the soldiers while they remain on the campus. So the men should be able to realize that if they hope to be well liked, accepted and respected, they must treat State women as they would others. Not take advantage of their friendliness, and similar qualities.

We realize that soldiers are human like the rest of us, and appreciate a pretty girl when they see one, but there is more than one way to show approval, and don't think the women here don't know it.

So if the new army men who will make MSC their home for the next few months really want to know what the score is concerning their status on campus, they can find out by one method. If they want to be accepted and liked, they can help themselves, and in doing so overcome what may have seemed like strong unfriendly opposition on the part of State coeds.

We are proud to have the great number of army men on our campus, and we tell strangers about them with all sorts of enthusiasm. All we expect the men to do is to live up to the picture we have presented to the world of them. It isn't awfully hard.

Apparently State isn't the only campus dealing with the same problem, if it really is a problem at all. At any rate, it is something the women have a definite opinion on.

Town Girls Will Hold Regular Social Hour

Town Girls' regular social hour for the ASI and army men will be held today at 6:45 p. m. in the mixed lounge of the Union, according to President Doris Bennett.

Dancing to records will last until 7:30 p. m. and is open to all coeds and service men. Social hours are a regular Wednesday feature.

The Barty building is the first building in the United States set apart for the study of bacteriology.

TRAFFIC PATTERN

By A/S ERNEST HODGES

(Editor's note: Traffic pattern is to an airman the prescribed manner in which he makes an arrival or departure from a landing area. It makes certain to control men on the ground and other planes in the air that he will act in a predetermined manner when in close proximity to other planes. This column has a similar intent, attempting to present the point of view of many aviation students concerning their relationships with Michigan State college and the persons they meet here.)

A GROUP of men stood at parade rest in the street next to Abbot hall last Saturday. They were holding bundles of all sorts, paper sacks, overnight bags or cleaners' bags of clothes. All wore the shoulder patches of the air force on their sun-tans. The men of squadrons E and F were holding their last formation on the campus.

They were waiting to move off for their next post . . . San Antonio, Texas, after four months spent at Michigan State college training for their future jobs of flying bomber and fighter planes.

The whistle of the oncoming train brought on a look of almost homesickness over the group. A few glanced at Mason-Abbott others just became silent. None of them smiled and there was no whispering in the ranks as there had been a moment before.

Varied impressions were in the minds of those men as they stood waiting to march to the train. They might have been remembering the troop train that brought them from their basic training center to Michigan State college. Or perhaps of the first view of the campus, the tall powerhouse smokestack with MAC on it.

Or the memories might have concerned their first look at the rooms in Mason-Abbott . . . rooms that might be expected by college students, but that looked like heaven to a bunch of men used to army barracks. Men who had come from army camps where some had to walk blocks to a shower . . . men who had gone through the processing maze of a basic camp with sergeants everywhere.

But material comforts alone couldn't explain the looks on those faces when they realized that a short walk would take them into another world. The world of the regular army camp with barracks that, however good, are still barracks.

The thing that was on those faces was the look of men leaving home. Leaving home for unknown places and ordeals; however eager our students are to get their hands on big fast airplanes, none of them fool themselves by thinking it will be easy.

They left Michigan State to go to their appointed places in the pattern of this war . . . and high places they will be in every sense, fitted physically, mentally and morally to do their duty, but more than one of those men would have liked to hear their commander shout, "Formation dismissed," instead of "forward march."

Library Features 'Scotch Vacation' Display for Vacationless Students

"A Scotch Vacation—Stay at home and let your mind wander" is the theme of the current display in the main lobby of the library.

These displays are arranged by the reference department and supervised by H. G. Fitch, reference librarian, and Allene Wilton, his assistant.

Topics are usually timely and are selected by the department. Suggestions from students and faculty are accepted, Fitch said. Materials used are now almost wholly library property.

A display lasts from two to four weeks, being changed upon receiving posters or bulletins sent to libraries and dealing with current topics of interest, or upon the development of an idea on popular subjects by the department, they stated.

The present display features travel books on foreign countries as Scotland, Egypt, Asia, West Indies and Iceland, and on some of the United States as Texas, North Carolina and Vermont.

Some materials have been loaned by individuals for exhibits. Dalal Safadi, graduate student, brought Syrian, Arabian, Persian, Egyptian, and similar Near Eastern wearing apparel, dishes, handicrafts, and books which were displayed during the last spring term.

Before that, Dr. Grace Song Lane had helped in the arrangement of her Korean possessions which included a bridal costume and clothes worn by children.

The latest display was called "This Is Our War," featuring books about the war. "Mein Kampf" was included.

The preceding exhibit was built around the idea in a poster comment by President Roosevelt: "Books cannot be killed by fire." Books, the ones in the war of ideas by Hitler were shown in play cases.

Many Opportunities Opened by Home Economics Training

Division Rates Second High in Enrollment

Second oldest of the six divisions of Michigan State, the Home Economics division was organized in 1896 and has since become the second in size of enrollment among the colleges in the United States.

To offer current, applicable information during wartime, the division is conducting* three important experiments, according to Dean Marie Dye.

Experiments Conducted

One experiment, dealing with the food problem, is the investigation of a new kind of edible plant in Michigan waters. Another, cooking game animals, such as beaver, which were not formerly used for food.

The third one is a study of the effects of cooking and holding foods in steam. This experiment concentrates on the results of such a process on the vitamin A content, riboflavin, and scorbutic agent (vitamin C) in foods.

Offers Varied Opportunities

Included in the opportunities for specialization are buying and selling, product promotion, designing, nutrition, institution administration, teaching and family welfare services.

Dietetics, usually centered around hospital work, has now been expanded to include army work, offering a new field for graduates. Writing for magazines and newspapers offers another area for Home Economics students.

Has Extension Specialists

Research and extension work is being carried on. Under the agriculture extension station the Home Economics extension has 20 specialists here and about 20 home demonstration agents stationed throughout the country supervising classes whose enrollments total 40 to 50 thousand.

The division works with persons in the state on food problems by holding refresher courses, conferences, and institutes. Experiment station work has been done in foods and nutrition and home management and child development, and this year textiles was added.

Division Presents Radio Program

Learning by doing is stressed by the division and is carried out by various means such as the Homemakers' Chat broadcast over WKAR. It is a five-day-a-week program planned and presented by students and has been broadcast since the establishment of the radio station.

The Home Economics building, completed in 1924 and has five floors of laboratories, classrooms, conference rooms and offices. Each piece of equipment is designed for a specific purpose.

Room for Rat Colony

Also included in the various rooms and laboratories is a foods and nutrition lab equipped for experiments in metabolism and foods, and animal rooms with facilities for caring for a rat colony. On the fourth floor are two design studios, arts and crafts room, house furnishing laboratory, practice apartment and the Little Theater.

In addition to the facilities in the building itself, the division maintains four home management houses on campus for practice work, and a nursery school for observation of children and practices in school methods.

Dean Dye Chosen in 1922

Kitchens in the building, the Union and nearby high schools serve as laboratories for majors in institutional management. Retaining students work in Lansing stores.

Dean of the Division, Marie Dye came to Michigan State in 1922 from the University of Chicago to become assistant professor of nutrition. In 1939 she assumed her present role as dean of the division, although she still holds the title of professor of foods and of nutrition.

MSC Record, Alumni Publication, Goes in Mail This Weekend

The MSC Record, quarterly alumni publication of the college, will be mailed the end of this week to some 900 members of this year's graduating class, according to Lloyd Geil, head of the publications department.

In addition, the magazine also goes to more than 18,000 alumni, faculty and friends of the college, who are listed in every army, navy, and marine camp in the country, Geil stated.

This issue of the Record features the highlights of campus activities during spring term, culminating in graduation exercises. A new idea was employed by Geil, giving the story of commencement in tabular form by using a series of 12 pictures.

Other articles include a feature on Paul Olson, blind graduate, a physical fitness story, several pages of alumni news and addresses of men in the service, and letters from Patriarchs who were unable to be here for commencement. Geil explained that Patriarchs are graduates of 50 years ago or more.

The big carved stone between the Art building and the library, originally was a horse trough.

Representatives Make Plans for Rehabilitation

A faculty committee on rehabilitation has been appointed by Pres. John A. Hannah in order to keep abreast of developments in the training of discharged service personnel after the war.

The committee is to study the problem of how the facilities of State might be best adapted to rendering an educational service to persons formerly of the armed forces, and still carry on normal civilian curriculum, according to Dean of Men Fred T. Mitchell.

Each Division Represented

The committee consists of one representative of each of the six college divisions. They are: Ira E. Baccus, representative of Engineering; Tom H. King, Applied Science; William H. Combs, Law and Arts; Merle Ford, Home Economics; Howard C. Rathner, Agricultural; and Lloyd B. Shott, Veterinary. Mitchell represents the general college curriculum.

The committee is working in cooperation with the American Council of Education, a national organization which has been working on the problem of providing refresher and special vocational courses for returning service men.

Service Experience Evaluated

It is also working on a system of evaluating credits earned while in the service through correspondence courses, and the possible academic value of battle experience and information obtained through living in foreign countries.

The campus committee has been considering also the problem of education for disabled veterans.

Journalist Feted by H.E. Faculty

Dr. Lina Gross, head of the home management and child development department, entertained Sunday afternoon at a conversation dinner party, and open house at her home for Miss Elsa Margarethe Rod, Norwegian journalist, who spoke in college auditorium Saturday evening.

Guests were students from home management houses, and Dean of Home Economics Marie Dye. Mrs. Mabelle Ehlers, head of the department of institution administration, Dean Elizabeth Graham, and Mrs. Dorothy Greer of the home management and child development department.

Dr. Thomas Porter, head of the department of foods and nutrition, Merle Ford, head of the textiles, clothing and related arts department, and Elizabeth Walbeck of the home management and child development department, also attended.

Miss Rod was also entertained at an informal dinner party Sunday evening by Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Schott, of the bacteriology department.

August Football Practice Planned by Optimistic Athletic Department

Football practice will start the first week in August. The turnout then may well determine the future of varsity football at State for the duration, but Athletic Director Ralph H. Young emphasized yesterday that the schedule was compacted and that every effort would be made to put the team on the gridiron Sept. 25, date of the opener.

The team will be drawn from an estimated 600 male civilian students expected in the fall, unless army regulations are relaxed to permit service men to participate in intercollegiate sports, Young said.

State will be at a disadvantage not suffered by colleges such as Michigan and Purdue, which have naval training units on their campuses, for the navy permits its men to take part in intercollegiate athletics.

"We probably won't have the large squad of players as in pre-war years but certainly there will be some who want to play. We will have some boys just coming of military age and among these are some who have played football and expect to play here," Young stated.

The Athletic Department is working on arrangements for the dance are the following committee heads: Ruth Peters, East Lansing junior, publicity; Doris Johnson, Detroit senior, patrons; Jean Halley, Flint junior, music.

Shortage Draws High School Labor

Because of the shortage of college labor, the college canning factory is employing high school students in picking, fruits and vegetables in the orchards and fields. In other years the college students have done the work, Manager R. E. Marshall of the horticulture department said.

This is the first time that the Ford donated factory has been used and the canning being done now will be used for college food for the coming year.

Twenty high school girls are now out in the fields picking beans, while the inside work is being done by older women and the wives of campus aircrewm.

University of Detroit Abandons Football for the Duration

The University of Detroit has thrown in the sponge for the duration.

The Titans made a formal announcement last Monday abandoning varsity football because of "lack of manpower." Athletic Director Lloyd Brazil announced Detroit's decision after the athletic board took the action.

The Titans have been without a head football coach since Charles (Gus) Doran resigned to work for the Detroit Lions professional team.

Abandonment of football automatically canceled games scheduled with Marquette, Villanova, Manhattan and Cincinnati teams.

Brazil said that the armed services had drained virtually all the football players off the Detroit campus.

Working with Miss Hubbard on arrangements for the dance are the following committee heads: Ruth Peters, East Lansing junior, publicity; Doris Johnson, Detroit senior, patrons; Jean Halley, Flint junior, music.

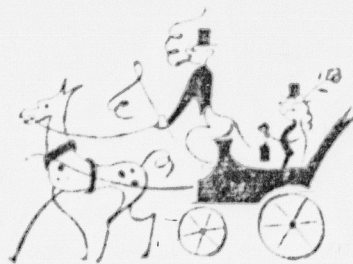

Splash Party Also Slated

A splash party, open to all civilians and uniformed students, is being sponsored by the Student club, Saturday evening from 7:30 to 9:30, at the pool in the Women's gym, according to Mary Alice Leathers, East Lansing junior, general chairman. Tickets will be necessary for those attending, and will go on sale today at noon at the Union desk. Refreshments and entertainment will follow at Peoples church after the swimming. Patrons will be Prof. and Mrs. Ferndy Collins and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dahlgren.

WAA Sponsors Three Sports Tournaments

All college tournaments in tennis, golf and archery will begin next week, according to Lois Newman, acting president of WAA for the summer session.

The tournaments will be sponsored by the WAA board, and women interested should sign up at the Women's gym before Saturday noon. Notices and rules for the various tournaments will be posted at the gym.

To Shoot Columbia Rounds

Golf and tennis will be elimination tournaments. Those entering the archery competition will shoot eight Columbia rounds for the tournament, anytime before the end of the term.

All three sports will close competition during the next to the last week of the full session. Winners of the golf and tennis tournaments will be announced shortly afterward.

All women making scores of 300 or better in archery will automatically become members of the 300th club, national organization for archers shooting scores exceeding 300.

Credit Not Needed

Groups will be organized for both beginners and advanced students in all three sports. No college credit in any of the events is necessary to enter the competition, Miss Newman stated.

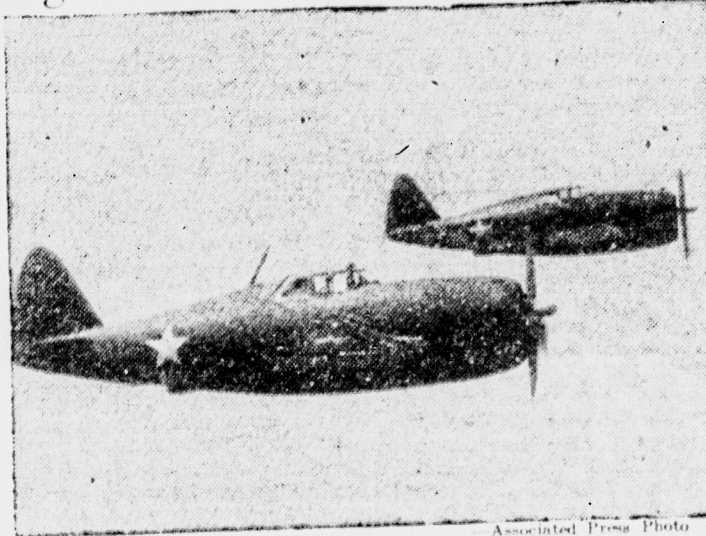

Women heading the different groups for the summer in the absence of the regular WAA board include: Tennis, Eleanor Gilmore, Linden N. J., senior; archery, Clara Dowling, Jackson junior; golf, Margaret Parker, Pleasant Ridge senior; hiking, Doris Rinehart, Lansing sophomore; and swimming, Mildred Tubbs.

New Bible Class Organized

An interdenominational Bible class for service men and students was recently organized, according to Paul DeKoning, of the Engineering division, who will be in charge of the group.

The class will meet from 10 to 11 Sunday mornings at Bethel Manor, 435 M.A.C. avenue.

Fighter Planes Constructed for Speed

Four hundred mile-an-hour Republic P-47 Thunderbolt fighter planes, which have been used in aerial operations in the European theater, are pictured above. Regular speed of these planes is 400 miles an hour but the Thunderbolt is reputed to be the "fastest single engine plane, having done 680 miles per hour in a power dive."

High Quota of Jobs for Liberal Arts Grads Claimed by Placement Office

From temporary reports released by the Liberal Arts placement office, it is indicated that a high percentage of the 1943 graduates registered in that office have been placed already, according to Dean W. Kuykendall, director of the office.

Ninety-seven women of the group graduating in June registered and 56 have reported acceptance of offers. Many of the remaining group now have jobs, but have neglected to notify the office, he explained.

Wide Salary Range

Of those who are now employed, the salary range is from $90 to $210 per month, with the average about $125.

All accounting majors were placed, the one woman with a major in mathematics had at least six attractive offers. All of the women who were skilled in stenographic-secretarial work received positions, and nearly all journalism graduates are placed, Kuykendall reported.

Except for those planning to teach, there has been difficulty in placing art and music majors, history and political science majors and English and speech majors.

To Aid Service Men

The placement office secured an 80 per cent complete registration of graduates destined for service in the armed forces and will help the men to obtain positions when they come back to civilian life.

During the year about 85 inquiries were received from employing officials and 19 representatives visited the campus for the purpose of interviewing candidates in the division, Kuykendall concluded.

Home Ec Discussion Group Names Date for Next Meeting

Prof. Gunnar Bybwaad, director of clinical services at the Boys' Vocational school in Lansing, discussed "Juvenile Delinquency in Wartime" Monday before Home Economics students and faculty, according to Mrs. Catherine Baell, chairman of the meeting.

Professor Bybwaad's talk was part of a panel discussion by staff members and students on juvenile delinquency sponsored by the department of home management and child development, Mrs. Baell said.

"Effect of Rationing on Dietary Cost" will be the topic discussed next Monday at 7:30 p. m. in room 101, Home Economics building.

Spartans at War

By JERRY KENNEY

TWO MORE ex-Spartans have received commissions as flying officers from the Corpus Christi air base, according to word received from there. They are Ensign Lee C. Hiller, Charlevoix, and Lt. Harold A. Clemetsen, East Lansing.

Ensign Hiller received his wings and commission in the naval reserve. He attended State with the class of 1943, but left in 1942 for the service. He was majoring in public administration and is a member of Theta Chi fraternity.

Lieutenant Clemetsen was commissioned in the marine corps reserve. A member of the class of 1941, he attended State until 1939 in the Engineering division.

The Quartermaster corps announces the commissioning of George Schieve as second lieutenant. The event occurred at Camp Lee, Va., July 16. Lieutenant Schieve, who graduated at the end of fall term as a hotel ad major, is home before reporting to St. Antonio for assignment. He obtained his commission in record time, having been in the army since last January.

Among the Spartans now boasting of an indefinite overseas address are Pvt. John Hardy, class of 1937, now with the marine corps, and Lt. Frederick Burge, class of 1939, taking electronic training abroad.

Others are naval ensigns Francis Campau, 1940, C. Gordon Smith, 1943, and Ronald Tibbets, 1940. With the army in the Burma India theater is Lt. Joseph Cestkowski, who was captain of the state boxing team in 1940.

The list grows and grows of former Spartans receiving commissions at the Corpus Christi naval air training station in Texas.

Newest additions to the list are Herbert Ihrig of East Lansing who was commissioned an ensign in the naval reserve, and George Parker, of Coldwater, who is now a lieutenant in the marine reserve.

Ensign Ihrig was a member of the class of 1944 and was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. Lieutenant Parker, also a member of the class of 1944, attended State from 1940 to 1942.

Four more Spartans have chosen flying as their part in the battle and are scattered now in the various stages of their training. A S George Kinas, member of the class of '44 and of Sigma Nu fraternity, is now a student at the Western State Teachers college, Bowling Green, Ky., with the 321st CTD. aircrew.

Selman field, Monroe, La., home base for George White '45, now that he is an aviator cadet there, and Paul Schieff also of the class of '45, is at the navy west pre-flight school, St. Mary's college, Calif.

Frank Overton, '44, is at Idaho Southern university at Pocatello, Idaho, with the naval force.

U. of M. Professor to Talk at Teachers' Conference
