Do You Know Current History?

History 1234, covering ancient civilizations, is usually a course that does not evoke too much interest from the class because it has subject matter that is very much dead and buried. Yes, it is good to know the background of the world conflict and why it ticks, and one good heated discussion of the Student Forum on contemporary history is something a well-rounded student can really benefit by.

To know about things as they happen is much simpler than reading the cut and dried reports of historians, and the open discussions sponsored by YWCA, YMCA, and the department of speech and dramatics will foster an interest in tomorrow's headlines.

Part of the preparation for these forums will be reading what authorities have written for newspaper editorials, magazine articles and current books. Certainly no student who is training to cope with future problems of world affairs will complain about the interesting jobs of finding out what the first-hand releases have to say.

The new Student Forum will start today and carry on through the year with a program that should have been instigated much sooner. It will give time to students who have an opinion on today's troubles and will start a more thorough analysis of what should be done with tomorrow.—M.H.

Congratulations APO and IFC

After transferring from the University of Michigan, I was struck by the lack of school spirit on the part of the Michigan State student body. Game time at the University of Michigan was marked by rallies attended by a good part of the student body.

Attendance at APO's rally Friday was good, but not good enough. APO is to be sincerely commended for its part in promoting school spirit. I hope they do more of this in the future.

It is refreshing to note that there is some organization which has shown a little spunk and has visibly tried to heighten school spirit.

Saturday when I entered the stadium a card with school songs and cheers was thrust into my hand. "Compliments of Interfraternity Council," I read. This was something new. This was a grand idea.

Students didn't have to stand around in sheer bewilderment while listening to songs or cheers the other were singing; they could participate too. They had the words right there before them.

Good going APO and Interfraternity Council. With enough work like this maybe the Michigan State college student body will develop some real school spirit and get behind their winning team.—A Transfer Student.

German Resistance Holds Allies Back From Italian River Valley

ROME, Oct. 2 (AP)—German resistance officially described as "very strong" had brought the Allied drive for Italy's industrial north to a virtual standstill tonight along the last mountain rim guarding the broad Po valley.

American troops met particularly violent enemy resistance, fighting off Nazi counterattacks for the fourth straight days as they clung to the Monte Battaglia, a towering height 11 miles from Imola on the Bologna-Rimini highway. Neighboring Monte Cappella was captured by Yank assault units after a bitter battle.

Skies cleared over most of the front after nearly a week of unbroken rain, permitting the Allied tactical air force to get back into the battle. Mountain streams began to subside and there was a possibility that both the Allied fifth and eighth armies would be able to resume full scale attacks within a few days.

Despite heavy concentrations of Nazi artillery along the entire eighth army sector near the Adriatic coast, British troops cleared the last enemy snipers from Savognano and struck on across the Fiumicino-river. To the southwest other British units reached the Fiumicino's banks north of Montalbano.

The Germans, faced with disaster if the great mass of British armor should break through to the rolling valleys above Rimini, were dug in strongly along the Fiumicino northern bank and were supported by many pieces of self-propelled artillery.

In Campus Quarters

By LEONE SEASTROM and DOROTHY LA MONT

TIRED of racking their own brains without results, the writers of this column are appealing to their readers for a new name to head the bi-weekly hash of heart events, pledgings, initiations, and other personal happenings.

To the student or professor offering the best heading will be given two tickets to any Lansing of East Lansing theater. All entries may be left in the State News office in care of "Campus Quarters."

Despite the much talked about man-power shortage, marriages keep coming and pins keep changing hands. Saturday Lorraine Huebsch, Sigma Kappa, will walk down the aisle to become Mrs. Robert Weyland. The ceremony will take place at Fort Benning, Ga., where Officer Candidate Weyland, SAE, '44, is stationed.

It's nothing new to be satisfied with a substitute these days nor is Diana Schram, Detroit junior, complaining. The ring she wears from Reed Near, Lambda Chi, she received recently from Reed, via his father.

"Gimmy" McAfee, AOPI, is doing a man's job these days since she joined the WACs during the summer. Her first station is Des Moines, Ia.

Doing her part in a different way is Emily Noll, Zeta Tau Alpha. All her mail is addressed to Midshipman Jack Zerbe, of Notre Dame whose Phi Sigma Kappa pin she wears.

Apologies are in order to Nancy Hess, Bay City freshman, for the neglect in mentioning her name in connection with her sister's last week. Nancy received a ring from Ens. Duane Burdick, also of Bay City. Duane is a graduate of the University of Michigan engineering school, and is now in Florida.

Back to the Alpha Chi Omega house is Bev Reed who was married to Lt. Carl Hagen this summer. Carl, an SAE from State, is now stationed at Camp Pickett, Va.

Marriages seem to have happened fast and furious this summer at the Kappa Delta house. Eleanor Wilson became Mrs. Ken Hathaway, and her husband is in the USNR and was a graduate of MSC. He is also a Delta Chi.

Eleanor's sorority sister Florence Wright was married to Joseph Tarvella, of the coast guard reserve. Joseph is a graduate of Fordham University, N. Y. Just to keep things humming, Pat Patterson, Kappa Delta, was married to Sgt. Warren Forster this summer.

Figures don't lie, and the figures say that the Theta Chi house has just lost a pin when president, Ralph Fenstermacher passed his to Lois Worden, Alpha Phi pledge. Lois was back to school last weekend to visit and show her sorority sisters her new pin.

Parting from the loveorn column temporarily comes news of new authority in the ATO house. Dick Lotz, Birmingham junior, is presiding as president. Helping him as secretary is Jim Donaldson, Mt. Clemens sophomore, with Charles Ahlstrom, Royal Oak senior, as the new house manager. Bob Buckenhizer, Detroit, is junior representative for IFC.

Dr. Stearns to Meet Country's Educators

Dr. Stearns, who will act as secretary for the meeting, is attending in response to a personal invitation from the White House.

Spartan Eleven Tramples Scranton In First Football Game of Season

Victory on Macklin Field Marks Return to Intercollegiate Competition

By JOE HEAGANY

An air-minded Michigan State eleven rode into intercollegiate football on the crest of a 40-12 win over the University of Scranton Saturday at Macklin field. Scoring twice in the first quarter State was never in trouble.

Next Saturday the Spartans will again bump into the "T" formation, but employed by a more formidable adversary, Kentucky. The Colonels, although beaten by Tennessee Saturday, are one of the most feared opponents on the Spartan schedule. State will leave Thursday for the blue-grass country, and will engage Kentucky Saturday.

This week's practice will consist of brushing up on pass-defense, and going over the defense and offense of Kentucky. Coach Joe Holsinger scouted the Tennessee-Kentucky game and came back with news that the Colonels are a team to be reckoned with.

In the first quarter, after a series of kicks, the Spartans dove to Scranton's seven yard stripe. Fred Aronson then took the ball on a reverse, and slipped over the double stripe, but the score was nullified by a holding penalty. On the next play Aronson faded, and hit Don Grondzik with a perfect pass. Grondzik took it in stride on the five, and went over standing up. Dick Massuch's conversion was good, and the Spartans were off to the races.

Second Team In

Two long passes set up State's next tally. Jack Breslin finally split right tackle for the marker. Massuch's conversion was blocked. The end of the quarter found a second string State team on the easterner's one. On the first play of the quarter Bill Bartlett backed for the T. D. Massuch's conversion was good.

Scranton, kept deep in their own territory during the first quarter, showed their first threat with Tom Flanagan pitching passes, but the attack bogged down on State's 40. After that both teams jockeyed up and down the field till the half.

Breslin took the opening kick-off of the second half and ran through the whole Scranton team for an 82 yard jaunt to pay dirt, only to have it called back. Breslin then chucked a long pass to Frank Brogger who made a spectacular one hand catch; Brogger was finally driven out on the 4. Breslin then rammed the center of the line for the score. Massuch's kick was good.

Brogger Carries Ball

Mid-way in the third stanza Bob Bruegger suddenly exploded off tackle to romp 67 yards for another marker. Brogger's conversion was wide. Scranton then took to the air and Flanagan pitched a pay-off toss to Ed Walsh for the initial tally. The conversion was blocked.

Sparked by Herb Speerstra the second stringers scored again in the fourth quarter. Ben Johnson went wide around his own end to hit pay dirt. Bill Bartlett's conversion split the uprights. In the waning minutes the Tomcat's scored their second marker, and if the game ended with State knocking at the Pennsylvanians' door again.

Only one glaring weakness was shown in State's attack, and that was an inadequate pass-defense. Except for Bartlett who clamped onto two Scranton tosses, the Tomcats passed and completed them at will. Bartlett, a converted guard, played exceptionally fine ball, as did Speerstra for the reserves.

None stood out on the first team, the line playing well, and all the backs running at random through and around Scranton. Jack Breslin was the most consistent ground gainer, and all backs had good blocking from Bill Siler. Pete Dendrinos' long booming kick-offs were spectacular.

Coach Charley Bachman had ample time to test his reserves, and with more pass-defense, and the talent he did find in his reserves he and his Spartans should be a formidable opponent for Kentucky at Lexington, Ky., next Saturday.

World Series Games to Be St. Louis "Family Party"

Special Baseball Week to Honor Both Ball Clubs

ST. LOUIS, MO., (Oct. 2)

(AP)—Full of fight and bristling with confidence, Manager Billy Southworth and his Cardinals returned to St. Louis tonight with their third successive national league championship eager to battle their American league cousins, the astonishing St. Louis Browns, in the world's series opening at Sportsman's park Wednesday.

It will be the seventh time in history that clubs from the same city have competed for baseball's highest honor.

Southworth said the series would be a "nice family party."

St. Louis Shows World
"I am delighted it turned out that way," Southworth added, voicing the sentiments of the entire team.

"We won't have to catch any trains or worry about hotel reservations or baggage. What's more important, St. Louis can show the world that it can put on a world's series of its own."

This staid old Mississippi river city was confident of that, too.

Baseball Week

Mayor Aloys F. Kaufmann, in a proclamation, joined in the spirit of the occasion by designating the week of Oct. 2 to 9 as "St. Louis Baseball Week."

Southworth said the Browns' victory had made no difference in the Cardinals' strategic plans for the series.

"The American league race was so close that we didn't do any planning against any particular team of batters," Southworth explained. "We know the Browns from having played them in spring series."

Pitchers Not Selected

Southworth is not ready to name his starting pitcher for the opening game. He said he would reveal his selection tomorrow, or Wednesday morning. When he does break down and tell it is expected that he will name Morton Cooper, a seasoned veteran who has won 22 games this season. Southworth scarcely will sidetrack him for the freshman, Ted Wilks, or Harry Brecheen, a lefty.

Neither would Luke Sewal, manager of the jubilant Browns, reveal his pitching plans.

"This is the first day I've really been awake," Sewal said, with a grin. "I've been in a daze. I'm not worrying about the series. I'm worrying about Wednesday. . . . that's the important thing. . . . Wednesday, the opener. . . . I'm not making any predictions. . . . We'll take those games one at a time. . . . that's the way it should be, isn't it?"

Bulgaria Still Delays Removal of Troops

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull prodded Bulgaria today to speed withdrawal of Bulgarian troops from Greece and Yugoslavia.

He said at a news conference that we can't help but notice reports being prepared for the former Axis satellite.

Bulgaria asked for an armistice Sept. 8, immediately after Russia had declared war on her.

However, the European Advisory Commission is still working on armistice terms. Asked what was causing the delay, Hull said the terms were in process of preparation.
