This Collegiate World - CIO Campaign May Improve Life In South

By N. J. [Name obscured]
The CIO campaign for the improvement of life in the South is a noble one. It is a campaign that seeks to bring about a more equitable distribution of wealth and a more just social order. The CIO is a union of workers who are fighting for their rights and for the betterment of their communities. Their efforts are commendable and their goals are worthy.

CAREERS ENDANGERED
The next few years are expected to be a time of great change for the South. The CIO's efforts to improve life in the South are a necessary part of this process. Without the CIO, the South would be a place of poverty and despair. The CIO is the only organization that is working to bring about a more just and equitable South.

Mad As Hopps

WERE tired last night, and in another week or so we'll know how enthusiastic the rest of the campus is about the possibility of having a newspaper that looks like a newspaper. Any number of students may be approached for their opinions shortly, and we would appreciate some constructive criticism. Consider the appearance of the paper and the possibilities for greater variety in its appearance.

Consider the paper as a publication which represents Michigan State and gains, holds, or loses prestige for the college as it circulates around the country. That may be assuming a lot, but it is, nevertheless, a good basis for criticism. If it bothers anyone because a large paper is too unwieldy to read in class, just reserve next year's Spartans for classroom use.

As for the wishes of the State News staff, we have one main motivating force behind us, the belief that a community of 10,000, such as this campus, should be able to publish a paper comparable in size, content and influence to any similar publication in the country. Of course, recognizing the State News as part of a training program, we selfishly admit that a full-size paper will prove more beneficial than a tabloid.

Now that the experimental week is almost over, we've discovered more things in favor of a conversion. Mechanically, the full-size can't be beat. It's time-saver and allows more space in which to exercise stilled imaginations when it comes to arranging stories on a page.

Vesterday's letter from G. Jones intrigued me, first, because I agree with him and second, because any consideration of the situation always turns up in a vicious circle. About the first time I ever appeared in print, I made the statement that the State News was a paper designed to present thorough, unbiased news accounts and to reflect students' interests and opinions. That was a vague enough way to state a policy, but it was a good overall objective. In addition, in our best presenting spirit, we occasionally try to float some editorial comment down reluctant throats.

We tacked on the position because it seemed that a student opinion and an important issue would be forever separated, and we hoped that some play on the big subjects of the day would shake students out of their isolated stupor. Results were just about what we expected: the opinions and the issues are still separated.

I would just like to express my opinion concerning the inadequate service at the College Book Store.

In general, service for the past two terms for the distribution of books has been very inefficient. I have gone over to the book store and have waited in a line for long periods.

The reason for this may be attributed to two causes: (1) shortage of help, (2) no systematic plan for the distribution of books. A large part of the difficulties may come about as the result of the latter statement. Students should be required to stay in line until they would speed up the service very much.

I sincerely hope that the college is responsible for the operation of the book store, but that it will result in better service for the benefit of students purchasing books.

Personalities Or Platforms?

By announcing that petition blanks for student councilmen will be available next week, and withholding a low, Student council hopes to bring back representative government to the campus.

What qualifies a person for office? Can he be in good standing, scholastically popular with his mates, able to express themselves in a forthright manner, and responsible to carry out the duties that may be required of them in office? Personal integrity is a must for all.

But will any criterion for office other than that of a special group affiliation be considered? A candidate for public office should stand for something. He should have a platform, a set of principles, he proposes to pursue while in office.

Electrons without names are empty promises. Student councilmen are elected to represent the student body. They should have a platform, a set of principles, he proposes to pursue while in office.

Let's prepare ourselves for a campaign in which little democracy right here on campus.

'S Trackmen In Penn. Drake Relays

While the major portion of Michigan State's cindermen make their bid for honors in the Drake relays today and tomorrow, Spartans Leonard Naab and Ted Wouch will be competing in the 32nd annual renewal of the Penn Relays for the Green and White.

Both holders of MSC records, vaulting Wouch, and Naab, hurling the javelin, will be a small part of the team representing Michigan State at the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin Field in Philadelphia. More than 3,000 athletes from over 500 colleges and schools have been listed as entries in the meet.

'Hands Off' College Stars Is Proposal Of Lion Coach

DETROIT, April 24 (AP) — Immediate return to a strict hands-off policy in connection with undergraduates with winning college football eligibility will be proposed at next week's National Football League meeting in New York by representatives of the Detroit Lions.

Such a proposal by coach George A. Sweeney, and Coach Fred Mandel, and Coach Earl C. Blaikie, would mean that college players who might still play professional football would be ineligible to play college football.

The Lions do not have a regular player sitting in the 199 group. Greenberg's score yesterday was 100 in the 199 group.

Russia Makes Firm Stand Against U.N. Investigation In Spain

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP)—A long Russian veto against any investigation of Franco Spain by a United Nations Security Council commission started the 10th day and caused a 3 1/2-hour confused debate which ended without a decision.

The council adjourned at 6:35 p. m. until 11 a. m. (EST) tomorrow after arguing in vain over a small number of amendments and amendments.

RUSSIA SPEAKS

Andrei A. Gromyko, the Russian delegate, continued his long speech in Russian which he translated with the assistance of the interpreter already present in the Security Council chamber. He said that the Russian government is opposed to any investigation of Spain by the Security Council.

... We talk about peace and the high hopes we have for U. N., but peace is not to be had for the asking. We must work for it. We must fight for it. We must even sacrifice for it as so many have died for it. It is not enough to talk. We must do more. We must be tolerant of those of other races, creeds, religions, and colors. We must prove our friendship. We can take a hand in forming the foreign policy. Congress will listen if enough of us speak and tell what we want it to be.

So students of MSC let's get busy. Let us be the leaders and show the way. It will take serious thought. But we can do it if we but wake up and make the effort. It is worth while. So let's do it. An ex-WAC.

... by the office. As usual, the vote will be but a small percentage of what it could be. Why are these things? Why are Americans so complacent about national affairs? Such a situation is shameful and indeed may be tragic. Can something be done about it? The answer is yes. And the students of MSC can take the leadership in this all important subject.

Do you students realize that you are the ones who are to take over the reigns of the government? Are you able to take on this responsibility? Not if you continue in the attitude of why should I be bothered? It is not my concern what happens in New York, California, Russia, China, etc. If the complacency is a sign of decay, then the saying that this is a decaying civilization must be true.

The present generation is trying to cope with national and international problems. They need help and are looking to you for that help. What are you going to do about it? Students, wake up! This is your country, make it truly yours. Take an interest in political affairs, both national and international. You must arise from your apathy.

We talk about peace and the high hopes we have for U. N., but peace is not to be had for the asking. We must work for it. We must fight for it. We must even sacrifice for it as so many have died for it. It is not enough to talk. We must do more. We must be tolerant of those of other races, creeds, religions, and colors. Faculty Members To Join In Panels

Five members of the Michigan State college faculty will take part in round table discussions when the Local Planning Institute convenes in Port Huron Tuesday.

One hundred and fifty representatives in county, city and village governments from 10 counties of the thumb district are expected to attend. The Michigan Planning Commission, Port Huron City Planning Commission and Joint Association ...

Charles Phillips, director of adult education programs, and Charles W. Hart, assistant professor of city planning, will serve as co-chairmen, working with city village representatives.

Taking part in the county central discussion will be Louis A. Wall, extension specialist in rural extension, Detroit; A. Berg, project leader in land use, extension service; and George D. Hurdall, extension specialist in land use.

LAW Peace Hinted

PHILADELPHIA, April 25 (AP)—President Truman's peace and Security Council proposals, George F. Andrews, international relations expert and college peace officer, said today. Andrews, who is a member of the U.S. House of Representatives, might propose a compromise in assignments by which Vice President R. A. Thomas retained his directorship of the foreign committee shop division.

The compromise, announced by Andrews at the close of the union executive board meeting, left Andrews in charge of the General Motors division and Richard T. Leonard as director of the Ford division.

HOPPS

Continued from Page 2) ... This impressed me as being the prize suggestion of the week, and if I had the right amount of influence I'd carry it to the proper authorities.

I have no influence but there's still column space, so I'll venture why couldn't the local bus company run an occasional bus express from Lansing to East Lansing? They could charge any of the 10 cents and get away with it especially just before the college hour.

Apparently I don't always say what I mean, an inexcusable error, I'll admit. To ease some confusion, I'd like to point out again that the reason library work is so time-consuming is 99% per cent the fault of professors. Professors could take the edge off the situation simply by including call numbers on their lists of assigned reading.

Some girls close their eyes when you kiss them, others close theirs. Don't come too close.
