Freed Nazis Given Pass For Safety

NUERNBERG, Oct. 3 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, U. S. Deputy military governor was reported today to have ordered a safe escort to Hamburg for Hjalmar Schacht, Franz von Papen and Hans Fritzsche and 100 German policemen who had assembled to arrest the three acquitted Nuernberg defendants were dispersed.

Anton Pfeiffer, German chief of denazification for Bavaria in the American zone, said Gen. Clay guaranteed the safe conduct for the trio to the British zone. He said this protection from German denazification courts was only temporary, however, and covered only their departure from the Nuernberg jail and the American zone.

Will Travel in Secret

Attorneys for the three said they would travel by a secret route together and probably would leave tonight or early tomorrow, but later indications were that their departure might be delayed until as late as Saturday.

Von Papen, the former German ambassador to Turkey, will go from Hamburg to Stockholm and Schacht, former Reichsbank president, will go to his home in Schleswig-Holstein. Fritzsche, former propagandist, plans to stay in Hamburg.

TOMORROW night and Sunday afternoon with the two performances of "Il Trovatore," the cries of protesting students during the past two years will be answered.

Then, only those who could pull themselves out of bed at six to stand in line early for tickets at the Ad building, attended the feature events of the lecture-concert series. The present size of our enrollment, however, calls for this measure, complaints or no complaints.

At this time, tickets are almost gone for Saturday night show and the Sunday matinee.

Lecture programs are scheduled for only one night. In the past no matter how noted or notorious the speaker happened to be, the auditorium was never filled. Thus, it seems logical that lectures are scheduled for only one night.

This action by the college seems to take care of the problem for the present. What will come of it, naturally, is yet to be seen.

'ROUND CAMP

Two of the most valuable friends to have in the Trailer Camps this winter will be Ernest Berner and Harry Montagne of the stove repair department. Quick service from them might mean the difference between having a cozy nest or a refrigerator car.

Extra-curricular activities haven't even been thought of yet, as far as the men are concerned. A couple more weeks to straighten out time schedules and classes, and then will come the various athletic teams.

The wives who aren't going to school have their bridge club which meets every other Thursday. Parties in the Recreation hall will be evening highlights this fall and winter.

The big topic of conversation these days is the Co-op. The wives are looking forward hopefully to the day when they won't have to walk to East Lansing, or ride the bus all the way to Lansing to bring home the family supper. As soon as 200 families subscribe $25, definite plans can be made about a building, and food supplies.

Strange as it may seem, there are a number of vacant trailers. But—the vets will have to scout for their own stove before they can move into them. Many an old oil burner, rusting in the garage, could be put to good use here.

Nuernberg As An Illustration

In a history-making pronouncement this week at Nuernberg, Germany, the international war crimes tribunal passed sentence on the Nazis, finding them guilty of "ruthless, aggressive war."

Yet in this same statement the tribunal declared the German high command innocent of criminality. It merely commented that "they have been a disgrace to the honorable profession of arms."

Further, Nazism is charged with violating the Kellogg-Brundtreaty of 1928, which Germany signed, outlawing war. In that pact war was renounced as an instrument of national policy.

According to these points of view we can see that though "aggressive" war making is outlawed, the act of war itself is condoned. A nation may justifiably wage war if it feels its security is threatened.

With professional standing, the military retain their venerable position "in honor," and international pacts to outlaw war become interesting, but futile, documents in world politics.

It should be evident to us by this time that we are still a long way from a warless world. While denouncing diplomats' exchange words across "peace" tables, the nations continue to perfect their military establishments in anticipation of eventual war.

Recently, in our own backyard, Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal bluntly stated that the United States naval forces will continue to implement American foreign policy. At home we are considering plans for compulsory military training.

Until some world organization, an effective United Nations, perhaps, can guarantee peace, we are obliged to look out for our own interests as best we know how. Military strength becomes a necessity.

War, like sin, is abhorred, but seems still to be with us.

Absences Of Meat Ends Black Market OPA Head Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Officials of the trade and housewares division of the Office of Price Administration today said the meat black market is virtually out of business, but there were broad suggestions that the actual non-existence of steaks and roasts has a lot to do with it.

Irving M. Gruber, the meat enforcement man, told a reporter that his 2,500 agents have all but stamped out the illicit traffic and are keeping 24-hour watch on all big stocks to see that when they move they move under ceiling prices.

In Washington his statement that there is virtually no meat in black market channels was called to the attention of the National Association of Non-Slaughtering packers.

An associate of Joseph Danzansky, general counsel of the organization, commented that that probably was about right. "But it's a hell of a way to break the black market."

College Gardens Says MD Schools Chosen For Scene Of Trial Blooms

Michigan State college horticulture gardens have been designated as official trial gardens for the American Rose Society. This information was disclosed in a letter from Dr. R. C. Allen, secretary of the American Rose Society, to Harold B. Tukey, head of the horticulture department.

In conjunction with the designation, Dr. Allen will be on the campus today to consult with the horticulture staff on the establishment of the official trial gardens on the MSC campus.

At present MSC horticulture gardens are official trial gardens for the American Gladioli Society and the American Dahlia Society. These gardens serve as testing grounds for each new breed of gladioli and dahlia as well as roses now.

At a meeting Oct. 10, the horticulture club will discuss plans for an outing to be held Oct. 19 at Hidden Lake gardens near Adrian. Membership in this club is open to all horticulture students. The advisor is Prof. C. Russell, associate professor in horticulture.

John F. A. Taylor To Serve As Head Of Lit And Fine Arts Department

Dr. John F. A. Taylor, who has just returned from four years with the navy, came to Michigan State college July 1 as full professor and head of the literature and fine arts department. Previous to his period in the service Dr. Taylor was engaged at Columbia university teaching philosophy, and before that in 1935-1940 he taught philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Taylor holds a doctor of philosophy degree in philosophy which he received from Princeton in 1940. He also did his undergraduate work at Princeton, receiving his A. B. degree in 1936.

Dr. Taylor's notable published work is his dissertation on Alfred North Whitehead.

Taylor will head the literature and fine arts department and teach some classes in the course. He may also teach a course in history of architecture.

Although he is a native Californian, he has spent most of his time in the East, particularly Philadelphia and in New Jersey.

While he was in the navy he was engaged in confidential communications work.

Thirty-Five Roles Open On Cast Of Term Play

Casting of the term play "Two on an Island" is slated for Monday through Thursday of next week from 7:15 to 10 in the evening in 112 Union annex.

In the play, author Elmer Rice tells the story of an Iowa playwright and an actress from New Hampshire as they try to land jobs on the Broadway stage.

Variety of Characters

He has peopled the comedy with many of the New York characters he knows so well. Millionaire debutantes, taxi drivers, commercial artists, Broadway producers and Columbus circle radicals are woven into the tale.

Eighteen women and 17 men are needed to fill the speaking roles. This is the largest cast requirement of any play offered on campus since "State Door" was presented in 1941.

All students interested in acting are asked to try out, especially men who have had theatrical experience in the service.

Double Purpose Tryouts

The term play tryouts will also serve as preliminary tryouts for Studio theater, the freshmen-sophomore dramatic organization.

All candidates for parts must be carrying at least 12 credits, and have an all college 1. average. It is also advisable that they have no more than two night classes.

Copies of the play may be found in the assigned reading room of the library.

Bus Lines To Put On Special Coaches For U. of M. Game

Every effort is being made to provide transportation for all students to the Michigan-Michigan State game, Dean S. E. Crowe stated yesterday.

Arrangements are being made with the East Lansing bus company to provide enough buses to take care of all persons desiring to travel the bus line to Ann Arbor. Crowe emphasized that tickets should be purchased in East Lansing in advance, preferably during the two weeks previous to the game date, Nov. 1.

Negotiations are now being carried on with the Pere Marquette railroad for the purpose of chartering a train for the day. In the event that a special train is procured, it would be able to accommodate 600 persons, a small percentage of the student body, Crowe added.

Display Of Art Work On View In Union

The exhibit currently on display in the corridor of the art department in the Union Annex is that of student work at Mills College. The works are varied, including all-over and abstract designs as well as figure drawings and paintings. The corridor is open until 10 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Opera lovers will see Doris Doree in the lead role of Leonora in Verdi's classic "Il Trovatore" Sunday when the Charles Wagner company opens the concert series. The opera will be presented both Saturday and Sunday.

Bridges Willing To Negotiate Strike Peace

By the Associated Press. Harry Bridges offered Thursday to send his west coast longshoremen back to work as government labor conciliators sought to end the nation-wide strike of licensed personnel in the shipping fleet.

Bridges, CIO longshore leader, notified Labor Secretary Schwelb and the U. S. Maritime commission that "We are willing to leave the whole matter to further negotiation, arbitration, or fact-finding and return to work in the meantime."

The longshoremen have been involved in separate negotiations with shipowners in San Francisco. Government conciliators in Washington, meanwhile, have been trying to bring an end to a strike by the CIO Marine engineers and the AFI masters, mates and pilots union but there was no imminent settlement in sight.

The only issue standing in the way of settlement in the longshoremen's dispute was the matter of loading and unloading lumber on steam schooners.

GM Says Cars For All Within Two Years

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—It will be two years, before all motorists can get new cars at fair prices on prompt delivery, President C. E. Wilson of General Motors corporation predicted today.

Wilson reported in answer to questions after a luncheon address at the National Press club, that changes in passenger car models between 1946 and 1947 won't be very radical. He said prices will not come down very soon.

Newsprint Group Raps OPA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Aand chaotic conditions in the House interstate subcommittee investigating newsprint shortages voted unanimously today to recommend to President Truman that OPA price control on newsprint be dropped "promptly."

"The situation is critical," Boren said, "and action is urgent to prevent further diversion of newsprint production to the more profitable related productions and to prevent further diversion of supply from this country to other areas of the world competing with us in the world market."
