AL'S HALF ACRE

Hot Weather Humdrum

By AL BERGLUND

This is the kind of day you wonder where you got the bright idea of picking up a flock of easy credits by going to summer school. It has been a tremendous temptation to forgo publishing the State News for a few days, to forget all about page dummies and galley proofs and just lie down somewhere and wait for Ma Nature to start behaving again.

I had all kinds of ideas for columns—the anniversary of the atom bomb was Wednesday, the veterans substance which did not pass, the riots in Palestine, the oneness of the summer school faculty, but this weather is not conducive to judgment-passing on anyone or anything.

Our summer staff on the State News has only three more papers to suffer through. Publication of the summer paper will be suspended with the issue of August 20. The paper will resume publication fall term on a Tuesday-through-Saturday basis with the edition of September 30.

When paper and time and other requirements can be satisfied, the State News will print six pages instead of the customary four. There will be pictures in abundance, both local and newsphotos. We shall also try to give more comprehensive coverage of national and world news, but not to the exclusion of campus activities.

I have often been asked why the State News prints wire copy. The principal reason is that for the large percentage of students, unfortunately perhaps, the State News is the only paper a busy student is able to read every day. For that reason, we try to give a fair cross-section of what the world at large is doing in addition to a record of the news on campus.

If you are doing any reading at all this summer, I might suggest a series of three articles currently appearing in the New Yorker. The series is a "profile" on Milton Birkhead, who is the president of the "Friends of Democracy, Inc." The articles present an evolving account of Birkhead's fight against the enemies of democracy, whether they be of the right or the left.

I have a little idea concerning politics which I've been mulling over for some time. When the next congressional election approaches, I'd like to see groups of student voters from each Michigan congressional district who are attending Michigan State get together and engage in some fact-finding and discussion on candidates and programs. If the plan were given the necessary push by one of our student organizations, it might accomplish a great deal in the way of a genuine political awakening on the campus.

The Campus—1947

Student organizations and student agitators seem to be especially wrought up about everything and anything these troubled days.

The world problems are of greatest magnitude.

War is predicted! Peace is predicted.

Boom times are here. Depression is just around the corner!

But the ever-increasing number of student organizations are not interested in the great problems, the common problems, the problems of survival which the over-worked man in the street has to face.

Primarily, as so ably summed up by NSO'er Tom Carney, the problems besetting the minority groups and special interests are those problems so many student organizations are worrying about.

Students should be interested in the great problems of the majority of the world's peoples: The problem of survival, preservation of life at any cost.

With the terrible weapons of modern warfare, the pitiless ravages of disease and hunger and the ruthlessness of nations and their leaders staring mankind in the face, it is no time to make minor adjustments.

Life must be maintained at any cost.

The problems of the minorities and special interests are not to be ignored, but more energy toward bettering all mankind is needed.

The place to start is on the campus.

The groups to consider these problems are the more than 100 campus organizations.

YARDBIRD'S CORNER

By LYMAN JUNE

ON Aug. 15, 1945, Omar Nelson Bradley, 54-year-old Missouri-born general who commanded the American armies which carried the Normandy beaches, took over as Administrator of Veterans' Affairs.

He brought to that job the same solicitude for the man in the ranks that he showed for his men at the front.

Today, approaching the second anniversary of his appointment by President Truman as Veterans' Administrator, care for the sick, disabled and mentally ill, is Bradley's pet project.

Bradley is gratified at the speed and the extent to which the entire medical program has been re-organized since he took over. But he has been quoted as saying, "We don't think we've gone as far as we can. We can still improve it."

Be that as it may, profound and far-reaching changes have been made. To understand what has happened, and how the veteran, American medicine, and the country as a whole will benefit, it is necessary to go back to that August day in 1945 when Bradley became boss of the nation's largest business, handling 20 cents of every taxpayer's dollar for the benefit of 18,000,000 veterans.

The practice of medicine in VA hospitals was burdened with red tape and cumbersome civil service regulations which did not guarantee the best medical care for patients. Hospital facilities were notably lacking. There was a great shortage of trained personnel, doctors, dentists, psychiatrists and nurses.

It was estimated then that the immediate need was for 1,300 doctors, 440 psychiatrists, and 113 specialists in other fields.

It was a dreary picture which Bradley surveyed with his chief medical adviser, Maj. General Paul R. Hawley, who had been chief surgeon in the European theater of operations.

Hawley's plan was bold. First legislation was obtained to remove medical organization from the hands of civil service. When the President signed the bill, creating a department of medicine and surgery within the VA, Bradley appointed Hawley director of the program. That was the beginning.

The next step was to obtain cooperation from the deans of the nation's 77 class A medical schools. This resulted in the so-called dean's committee which set up a teaching program for young resident doctors in veterans' hospitals. The result of this program is double: it assures an ever-increasing reservoir of medical talent to aid the veteran, and it gives young doctors an opportunity to obtain specialist training.

A YEAR after he became administrator, Bradley had almost doubled the number of doctors in VA hospitals. He now had 6,410 doctors in all, 3,370 full-time doctors, 1,627 residents, and 1,413 military medical men on duty.

Now plans for 166 buildings to house new hospitals in key positions near leading centers of medical study could be visualized. In Chicago, for instance, a 600-bed general and medical hospital will be erected next to Northwestern university's medical school. In Philadelphia another structure housing 1,000 beds will be constructed on an 18 acre tract near Philadelphia general hospital.

Returning Gridders May Shift Positions

Munn Indicates 'T' Formation May Call For Lineup Changes

Although fall grid practice doesn't open until Sept. 3 and the official list of invitational candidates won't be released for two more weeks, there are strong indications of a shift in the positions of returning lettermen.

This was hinted at by Coach Baggie Munn when he interrupted his vacation Wednesday to visit his office on campus.

"Our experiments carried on last spring indicated that several lettermen candidates better fitted our plans in positions different from the ones they played a year ago," Munn said.

New System
When the Green and White take the field this fall they will employ the "T" and single wing formations, something new to the Spartan scene.

This new method of play is the reason why several of last year's backfield men may pop up on the forward wall this year.

It was also indicated that some linemen may be playing at new positions.

Last spring, three outstanding changes were made in the quarterback position when Carl Capapert, Russ Gilpin and Bob Ottling worked out on the line.

New Linemen
The two shared signal calling duties while both Gilpin and Ottling will be at guard.

To fill the vacancies, Munn moved a trio of left halfbacks into the quarterback slot. Gene Clark, Don Waldron and Bob Krentel, brilliant passers, seem to possess the know-how that Baggie likes in signal caller.

Waters at Half
Another backfield shift placed 46 fullback Frank Waters in the left halfback position. When fall drills get underway he may be required to operate in both slots.

Line changes may find Pete Fusi, first string center last year, operating at the tackle post.

Lynn Conway, who held down an end position last fall, also may be returned to tackle. It was in

Lee Reaches Semi-Finals In Net Meet

By JOHN STERLING

Bill Lee advanced to the semi-finals of the all-college tennis tournament by defeating Joe Skonki, 6-2, 4-6, 11-9.

The first two sets were played on Monday. Lee completed his opponent to win the first set 6-2.

Skonki won the second set 4-6 as he consistently drove and passed and shots scored point.

Lee was unable to finish the match Monday and both players agreed to complete the match on Wednesday.

In the deciding set, Skonki made few errors to lead 4-0 and 5-2. In three games Skonki's passing shot were winners.

Lee tried to take the net position. Lee then played steady from the backcourt and his opponent forced errors from his opponent to rally.

Lee pulled even at 4-4 and finally broke through Skonki's service at 9-11. Lee held on to win the match 11-9.

Lee took the third place in the semi-finals. He lost to Jack Van Wagoner next in the consolation round.

Today marks the last day of the first week of the Movie Title Contest sponsored jointly by the State Theater and the State News.

Each of the five winners of the contest will receive six passes to the State Theater. The passes are good any time during the month of August. The contest consists of composing a short story, not over 50 words in length, entirely from motion picture titles. No connectives may be used between titles.

The last week of the contest closes Friday, August 22.

Mail Entries

Entrants should mail or deliver their entries to Contest Editor, State Theater, East Lansing, Michigan. The name and address of contestant should be included.

Winners of the first week's contest will receive passes to see "Station Road," "The Farmer's Daughter," and "Rebecca," as they appear at the Arthur Sanford State Theater manager, announced yesterday.

Student Speech Wins Publication In Debate Mag

Robert Carson, Lansing freshman, who won the extemporaneous speaking contest of the national Pi Kappa Delta forensic tournament at Bowling Green, O., in April, has his speech published in the current issue of The Debater's Magazine, edited and published by Dr. E. R. Nichols of the University of Redlands.

Carson spoke on "Is World Government the Answer?" It was recorded and later transcribed.

Three unnamed instructors, one in social sciences, one in English, and a third in speech, served as judges.

The speech was selected from a group of seven entries.

The speech instructor stated "Mr. Carson stood out especially in vividness and willingness to make constructive statements."

This represents one of the first times an effort has been made to capture an extemporaneous speaking contest, an event performed without notes and with only an hour's preparation.

Affairs Of State

NEWS comes to us from the Delta Chi house of the recent pinning of two of their members and the approaching marriage of another. Dave Vaughn, Ann Arbor senior, gave his pin to Pat Colby, Kappa Kappa Gamma senior from Grand Rapids.

Carol Zang of Detroit is now proudly displaying a Delta Chi pin acquired recently from Don Inman, Birmingham sophomore.

Delta Chi Robert Vignoli, June graduate from Birmingham, will make the trip to the altar on Aug. 12 in Detroit. His bride-to-be is Ava Jean Humphrey, Alpha Phi. Ava Jean is the alumni advisor to the State chapter of Alpha Phi.

Saturday night brought an engagement ring to a South Campbellite. Happy wearer of the sparkler is Betty Dimke, Wayne senior, who received her ring from Claude Lamcher, junior from Milwaukee, Wis.

Editor's Note: Modesty has prevented one item from getting proper notice in this column. Our columnist herself is the recipient of a small item (really not so small). Ted Van Meter, Lansing senior, added a diamond engagement ring to the Phi Delta pin that Gene Field, Kappa Alpha Theta, now wears. Best wishes.
