

Two Panels To Discuss Ag Role

By ROBERT BURNS

The farmer's place in European and domestic affairs is the subject of two panel discussions in room 213 Agricultural Hall today.

Radio station WKAR is broadcasting the program. Michigan Farmers and European Recovery is the title of the first panel and a member of the Michigan State Farm Bureau, under the chairmanship of M. M. Hardin, extends an economical make-up to the panel.

Europe's Problems

Hardin's topic is "Current Problems in Europe." Prof. M. M. Knudson of the history and political science department will deal with "Economic Aid in Europe" and L. W. Will, agricultural economist, will speak on "The World Food Shortage."

Economics Meet

College students feel that the farmer is interested in international affairs because of agriculture and the general economy of the country as well as connected to the interests of other nations.

Attempts to answer such questions as "How we need a better program? What types of problems will be faced if we have a recession? and What are the alternative types of programs?" will be made at 10 p.m.

College faculty members taking part in the panel under the leadership of Arthur M. Church, extension economist, are H. J. Wengarden, economics department head; M. F. Craven, and O. M. Terry, agricultural economist.

French Gold Plan Meets Opposition

PARIS, Jan. 27 (AP)—Premier Robert Schuman's money program ran into parliamentary opposition today.

The bill to establish a free gold market in Paris appeared doomed in its present form at least. Socialists joined Communists and DeGaullists in fighting the program. The National Assembly's finance commission rejected the gold trade bill, 17 to 15.

Schuman's program had three parts:

1. Devaluation of the franc. This was put into effect by government decree on Sunday, and cannot be changed by parliament.

2. Creation of a free money market in France, which also was established by decree and therefore untouched by parliamentary opposition.

3. The free gold bill which must be approved by parliament.

The decision of the finance committee meant the measure would be sent to the Assembly with an unfavorable report.

Socialist ministers in the cabinet approved the gold bill before it was sent to the Assembly. It was unknown whether Schuman would permit their remaining in the cabinet now that the DeGaullists had reversed the party's position.

Stimson's Memoirs Tell Army, Navy Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)

Former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson writes in his wartime memoirs, "On Active Service," that there were frequent differences between the Army and Navy over the loss of the Navy's sea mines. Stimson says prevented concentrations against the sea raiders. And it felt such planes should be used primarily with convoys.

The Stimson memoirs appear in the February issue of the Ladies Home Journal.

In the argument over antisubmarine tactics he says the Army favored a central, practically autonomous operation patterned after the British coastal command. The Army felt such a command would be able to concentrate planes and vessels quickly where the submarines had been sighted.

It thought that the primary duty of planes, in such an operation should be to hunt the U-boat and sink it. Planes would be used on convoy duty only as a secondary duty.
