Production Up Miners Placed 'Good Behavior'

Injunction To Halt Strikes Court Levies $1,420,000 Fine

LANSING, April 23 (AP)—A federal court today ordered against any further punishment at this time of Lewis and his miners for contempt. Coal production meanwhile to almost normal for the next six weeks.

Alan Goldborough, federal judge who slapped big fines on the United Mine Workers for defiance of the court, commented that he was more than happy to see the normal situation return.

The court indefinitely any sentence for civil contempt. Three days ago levied $20,000 and the fine for criminal contempt.

The government requested a Taft-Hartley injunction on Wednesday against the union and its striking during an emergency.

The Taft-Hartley act, which prohibits any strike in an industry which is essential to the national health, safety or interest, was passed by Congress in 1947.

UMT-Draft Combination Proposed

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—A bargain counter preparedness plan under which 18 and 19-year-olds would be trained along with draftees for the time being, instead of in a separate universal military training program, was approved today by Secretary of Defense Forrestal.

Would Cut Costs
Under this plan, proposed by Senators Baldwin (R-Conn.), Tydings (D-Md.) and others, the cost of a separate UMT setup, with its far-flung system of camps and other institutions, would be largely avoided for the present. Sponsors said it would be a feasible way of providing the nation quickly with trained reserves.

The administration had recommended two methods of building up the armed forces and reserves.
1. A temporary selective service law.
2. A longer-range UMT plan under which youths, say 18 and 19 years of age, would be given universal military training.

Separate UMT
Under the senatorial plan, the start of a separate UMT training plan would be delayed for at least a year. But the youths would be trained for six months by the regular armed forces. Then they would be released on condition that they join the national guard or reserves.

Howland house, the newest of MSC's six student cooperatives, will be dedicated Sunday afternoon as the final ceremony of the conference of the Midwest Federation of Campus Co-ops, being held here this weekend. The house has been in operation almost a month, and was named after Arthur Howland, a professor in the Economics department. (Story on page four)

Top Professional Writers To Judge Short Stories

Judges for the annual MSC writing contest were announced yesterday by Prof. C. C. Hamilton, contest chairman. Three professional writers will judge the short story contest. They are Feike Feikema, Maridel Le Seur and Marie Anne Meisel, all of Minnesota.

Feikema is the author of the recently published "Choke-Cherry Tree" during 1947 another novel, "This is the Year," was on the best seller list.

Works On Second Novel
Miss Meisel has authored one novel, "Years Before the Flood." She is at present working on her second novel and has published several short stories, one of which won a place in the O. Henry memorial prize collection of 1944.

Length Restricted
The annual writing contest is divided into four divisions, one each for short story and poetry, the Lawson essay contest for undergraduate men and a similar contest for undergraduate women.

They're Flinching
This accounts for the large number of students walking listlessly to class, flinching violently at any motion toward their right arm.

Callahan Requested Opinion From Black On Contempt Action

By DUANE HONSOEWEZ
MSC student James Zarichny, 24, Flint senior, faces possible trial for contempt by the state senate, according to an opinion handed down by Attorney General Eugene F. Black yesterday.

If convicted, Zarichny also faces a possible five-year imprisonment from a court of law.

The opinion was requested of Black by Sen. Matthew F. Callahan, R-Detroit, chairman of the Senate on American Committee. He asked Black what action could be taken against Zarichny for contemptuous conduct before the committee hearing Tuesday.

Senator Unavailable
Callahan was unavailable in Lansing yesterday after the attorney general's opinion was received. He had stated earlier this week, however, that he was waiting for the opinion before taking any action against Zarichny. At that time he refused to say what the possible action might be.

Jaffe was chosen to prepare the translation, which will require nearly a year by the Philosophical Society, the book's publishers, and the author himself.

John L. Lewis (above) and his United Mine Workers have been placed on "Good Behavior" status after receiving a $1,420,000 fine from Judge Alan Goldborough. The court announced that no further action would be taken against Lewis or the mine workers.

Hitching Rule Enforcement Set By Police

Enforcement of the "no hitchhiking" rule in the area extending from the Michigan-Grand River junction to Delta has become necessary as a safety measure, Charles Pegg, East Lansing police chief, said yesterday.

Accident rates on Michigan avenue up to Delta street had been reduced considerably after the no hitchhiking zone was installed.

But according to Pegg, students are beginning to come up Michigan again and the accident rate is rising.

Plans are being made to separate the bus loading zone from the hitchhiking area at Delta street. The island will be for hitchhikers and the bus stop will be at the far corner, Pegg said.

Two other continual violations that will be enforced by East Lansing police for safety reasons are the state motor vehicle law requiring cars to park not closer than 20 feet from a crosswalk and an ordinance requiring hitchhikers to stand on the curb when thumbing rides.

World Events Pull Marshall From Bogota

BOGOTA, Colombia, April 23 (AP) — Secretary of State George C. Marshall flew home tonight from the Pan American conference.

He left the afternoon session of the conference after telling fellow delegates that important events demanded his return to Washington.

Marshall's unexpected departure was reported to be prompted by an accumulation of problems demanding his attention in Washington.

Perhaps the most urgent problem of foreign policy which might require early action by Marshall is the Palestine situation.

Palestine Question
The United States is seeking through the United Nations to put an end to fighting in the Holy Land, and arrange a trusteeship government, but it is still highly uncertain whether this plan will be successful.

Other current problems on which Marshall may have to make decisions soon after his return here include the question of military backing for the western European nations and possible Russian reaction to the Communist defeat in last week's Italian election.

Washington officials said they knew of no compelling reason why Marshall should remain in Bogota. They expressed the view that the important work of the Inter-American conference has been completed.

Although the conference is likely to continue another week, Marshall explained he had stayed in Bogota longer than he had expected because "I felt due to the critical situation here it was necessary that I remain until the most fundamental issues were agreed upon."

Constant Growth Marks Nine Year History At MSC

By Ed Brown

The Midwest Federation of Campus Cooperatives will wind up its conference at Michigan State with the dedication tomorrow afternoon of Howland house, the newest co-op on campus.

Howland house, in operation about a month, is located at 223 Ann St. Dedication ceremonies will take place at 9:30.

The new men's co-op has 46 members. Groundwork for the house was begun last term, and Howland house took its place beside State's other five co-ops this term.

First House in 1939

The history of the cooperative movement at Michigan State has been one of constant expansion. The first house, Hedrick, at 903 E. Grand River, was organized in 1939. It began with 16 men and has grown now to include 30 members.

Almost immediately, another group of men who were interested in cooperative principles, began planning for another house. In the spring of 1940 the second house was started. Named Elsworth house, it continued operation all during the war when Hedrick was inactive, and now has spread to include two adjoining houses with 45 members.

The real boom in student co-op housing came with the rush of veterans returning after the war. Hedrick was re-activated in 1945, and four new houses were started in rapid succession. Now MSC's co-op group includes Hedrick, Elsworth, 218 Albert St., Matt's, 117 Louis St., Ulrey, 532 Abbott Road, and Howland.

In 1946 the Inter-Co-op council was formed to handle relations between the houses. It has provided a clearing house for problems of the group. In the two years of its existence it has sponsored the annual Coltop, and an inter-co-op athletic program. The ICC is in charge of conducting the MFCC conference this weekend.

Each of the six groups is purchasing its own house on a mortgage plan. The houses are run on a non-profit, low-cost plan. The members economize by doing all the necessary housework themselves, even purchasing and cooking the food.

All decisions are made in house meetings and every member has one vote, regardless of his investment in the house.

Membership Open To All
Student cooperatives attempt to achieve social as well as economic democracy by opening membership to any student, regardless of race or religion. Co-op principles also call for neutrality in political questions.

Co-op Leaders Convene Today

The spring conference of the Midwest Federation of Campus Cooperatives began yesterday afternoon with the registration of over 80 delegates. Student co-op leaders from colleges in four states are on campus to attend the three-day event.

The real work of the conference will start this morning at 9:30 with a general meeting of the delegates. Kenny Schug, of Chicago, the president of the MFCC, is to act as chairman. Alex Anderson, head of the Michigan State Inter-Co-op council, and Dale Faunce, counselor for men will extend greetings.

Will Consider Problems
The rest of the morning and afternoon will be taken up with panel meetings. The delegates will consider problems common to student co-op organizations on all campuses.

Ten general topics have been chosen for discussion in the various groups. These include financing, membership, training, and public relations. Special panels will be held to handle the problems of forming grocery and book cooperatives.

The general business meeting of the Federation will start at 5:30. At that time a site will be chosen and plans made for the fall conference.

At 8:15 the Inter-Co-op council will hold a banquet in honor of the delegates. Don Randall, Niles junior, will act as toastmaster. Speeches by Ed Whiteway, executive secretary of the North American Student Co-op league, and John F. Yeager of the Michigan association of Farmer Co-ops will be featured.

After the banquet, the MFCC delegates will be guests at an all-college dance in the Union ballroom.

Two final panels will be held tomorrow morning, on service "Jobs Ahead." The final item on the conference schedule is the open house and dedication of Howland co-op.

Reuther Told He May Not Lose Arm

DETROIT, April 23 (AP) — Walter P. Reuther received the welcome news today that his shattered right arm may be repaired.

The president of the CIO United Auto Workers was shot down Tuesday night by an unknown gunman. The arm was nearly ripped from his body.

While doctors compared notes on Reuther's progress, a mystery witness — a Mr. X — entered the police manhunt for the would-be killer.

He was brought to police headquarters in greatest secrecy in the midst of routine questioning of Reuther's political foes within the big union.

Neuro Surgeon Checks
Dr. Barnes Woodhall, professor of neuro surgery at Duke university flew in today for a look at Reuther's mangled arm. He is an expert on warlike gunshot wounds. He talked it over with local doctors and then issued the following statement:

The handling of the case has been superb in the face of an injury which threatened the loss of the arm. His general condition continues good. Progress has been made in the management of the bone injury. There is a remote injury that is susceptible to correct care during the future course of treatment.

No Identity On X
Doubtless, where police are conducting one of Detroit's greatest manhunts, Professor James H. McNally refused to identify his mystery witness except to say that he was the father of six children and "respectable."

McNally said the reporter whom he referred to as "Mr. X" gave some valuable information.

Dr. Jaffe is a member of the English staff.

In mid-May, Dr. Hans Leenhardt of the history and political science department will talk on the Nuremberg trials, Schwartz said.
