

The STATE NEWS today begins its 48th year of publica- Nations General Assembly gets tion. It is judicious, therefore, that we remind you, our down to its business here poses 14,000 readers and stockholders, of the real reasons for our the great enigma of our confused xistence.

Newspapers-and that includes those staffed by college been so for the past five years at students-should not exist as playthings, propaganda sheets, every international gathering. It or as mediums for the dissemination of one group's views. Papers should be impartial purveyors of the news, a meeting been and is still being discussed place of ideas and honest and sincere critics of the society in which they exist. * * *

It is for these reasons that the STATE NEWS is published, and it is the responsibility of the staff to keep faith with our readers by observing the above tenets. If we fail, we should quit publishing, for we would be neither good newspapermen nor responsible adults.

nearly half century of the STATE NEWS' existence has been studded with achievements of which we are proud. In some of the present staff members' relatively short experience we've been the first to report events of great importance to our Alma Mater such as the extra edition announcing our entrance into the Big Ten. From its early days when it was a 20-man weekly to the present time, with its 150 staff members and its reputation as one of the outstanding college dailies in the country, the NEWS has attempted to contribute to the college that founded and to contribute to the college that founded and We've done this by being honest with ourselves ders and, above all, by being able to speak without and reckless gestures so recently ation still exists. fostered it. and our readers and, above all, by being able to speak without fear of censorship.

This situation still exists.

This situation still exists. Last spring, in an attempt to more closely coordinate the perations of the journalism department and the student ublications, the college hired William McIrath, a veteran f 15 years in the newspaper and publishing business. Mr. operations of the journalism department and the student publications, the college hired William McIlrath, a veteran of 15 years in the newspaper and publishing business. Mr. McIlrath's chief concern will be the financial operations of publications, guiding the increasing number of journalism students required to work on the STATE NEWS as part of various journalism courses and to act as an advisor on business and editorial matters.

Publications have always had part time advisors. They have been, for the most part, good ones. Their biggest fault was that other duties prevented them from devoting adequate time to student publications that need and welcome guidance. These advisors have never been censors. Mr. Mellrath won't be either. He will provide advice and technical assistance when we feel we need it. In the case of the STATE NEWS, he will be working with the same staff, excluding graduates, that produced the paper last spring.

The suspension of four issues this summer is a thing of the past. We start publication today with a firm resolve to provide the students of Michigan State College with strong and independent newspaper; a paper with an enlight-ened, intelligent editorial policy and impartial and adequate news coverage. We won't fail.

Clarence "Biggie" Munn's 1950 collection of grid talent proved Saturday the worth of two weeks' strenuous pre-grame drills by trouncing Oregon State 38-13. For a season opener the Spartan looked impressive. But one next Saturday, the Green and White will have to look still more impressive when they tangle with the highly touted Wolverines of Michigan. State's passing attack seemed particularly effective with Al Dorow pitching successfully to stellar end Bob Carey. Carey's talented to also produced eight more points on a field goal and give point-after-touchdown attempts. Change the course of history? Of course, even an assump-tion at this early date that the Russians are acting differently is extremely risky. For at any time, maybe in the sixth or sev-enth inning of what is to be a profraeled game here, or per-haps even earlier, they might break forth like the New York Yankees, exploding all over the place. This seemed to indicate a sensitivity to the West's new alertness, and may have been a hint that the Russians have, in fact, been sobered by preparations of the West as a result of Korea. Undoubtedly they were surprised and sobered at the way the United Nation at our instance, acted quickly at our instance, acted quickly to condemn and challenge the North Korean aggression. To all of that, just now, is added the brightening of our prospects in Korea and the apparent turn of the tide against their North Korean stogers.

The American Council study also found that most textbooks failed to give a satisfactory picture of group organizations in the United States.
