Economist Discusses Inflation

Dr. Haber Speaks at College Workshop

"Inflationary pressures are inevitable unless consumer production in America can increase with defense production."

This was the thesis of University of Michigan economist William Haber, in a speech to members of Michigan State College's Economic Education Workshop.

Dr. Haber, also a consultant for defense mobilization in Washington, pointed out that by 1953 an expected 20 per cent of the national income will be devoted to defense.

"If this proves to be true, and there is no increase in consumer production, pressure toward higher prices would inevitably result," he said.

"Because we are not faced with an enemy on the field of battle it is difficult to explain the significance of a long-run program of controls and defense expenditures," Dr. Haber said. He also pointed to the fact that few people believe in price stabilization except those who administer the law.

"If there is more money than goods, money could be taken from the people . . . but taxes are unpleasant," he said. Reduction of non-defense spending is still another way, he said, although it is difficult to determine what is and what is not non-defense spending.

"Yet no significant institution in American life can escape the present national crisis," he continued. Dr. Haber pointed to the two "diametrically opposed forces fighting for men's minds, nations and resources, and with different conceptions of dignity of the human being."

"It might have been possible for these forces to live together were it not that one is part of an aggressive and military state determined to impose its will on the rest of the world. There is evidence that the Soviets have this objective," Dr. Haber said.

Kellogg Center To Host First Convention

Education Sessions Stated This Month

The first annual Adult Education Workshop will get underway on campus Aug. 28 and continue through Aug. 29.

Board of education members, school administrators, adult teachers and leaders and lay citizens from every Michigan county will be present.

Theme of this first meeting will be "Strengthening Democracy through Adult Education."

Meetings will be held in Kellogg Center for Continuing Education and will be the first scheduled for the new education center.

Keynote of the two-day session will be the banquet speech of Dr. Willard Willard, Executive Secretary, National Educational Association, Washington, D. C., on Aug. 28. Dr. Willard will speak on "Strengthening Democracy through Public School Adult Education."

General meetings and 21 group meetings will include discussions of developing a closer relationship between taxpayers and the schools, and identifying needs in developing an adult program.

Sponsors of the conference are the Michigan Department of Public Instruction and the Continuing Education Service of Michigan State College.

State Cadets Win Honors At MP Camp

Nineteen Military Police Corps ROTC cadets received high honors at the closing exercises of the MP Camp, Gordon, Ga., ROTC camp, last night.

Approximately 700 college and military cadets from 29 institutions throughout the country participated in the training.

Michigan State College was represented by four cadets who won honor of being the best cadet in their platoon: Ray Duggan, Jr., from Farnace, Pa., senior, John Erickson, Battle Creek junior, Edward Feuerst, Brooklyn, N.Y., senior, and Joseph M. Patton, Millington, were each awarded certificates of honor.

These MP cadets were singled out for recognition because of their outstanding achievement during the six weeks training period. In each case, 50 men were competing for top platoon honors.

Chem Meeting To Attract 150

Approximately 150 people will attend the second annual conference on the Teaching of Chemistry, Aug. 28-31 on campus.

The program is designed to provide the best possible balance between the experiences of chemistry teachers and those of industrial chemists. Attending the conference will be chemistry teachers and persons interested in the teaching of chemistry.

During the four-day session there will be plant tours, films, practical demonstrations, lectures and round table discussions. Those attending the conference will consider not only the teaching problems at high school and college levels but also such subjects as soil testing and synthetic chemical crystals.

Army's football captain-elect, Cadet Capt. Harold J. Loeblin, gives a statement he made to newsmen at West Point concerning his part in the mass cheating scandal that shocked the nation last week. The Kimball, Minn., cadet has admitted that he is one of the 90 at the Academy who have confessed violation of the honor code but claims that the group is getting a "raw deal."

The accused West Pointers allegedly passed on exam information to classmates in other sections that had not taken the exam. Loeblin and the others face expulsion from the Academy while congressional leaders in Washington are hotly debating the issue. 2,500 ATTENDING

Homemakers Convo Scheduled For MSC

Nearly 2,500 women from 36 states and Puerto Rico are expected on campus next week for the National Home Demonstration council meeting.

Michigan council members, in cooperation with the home economics extension staff, are making preparations for handling one of the largest national meetings on the MSC campus this year.

Membership in the council is made up from homemakers who participated in home economics extension groups organized through the cooperative extension service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and land grant colleges in each of the states. The organization was formed in 1936 to strengthen, develop and coordinate adult education and to improve the American home.

Nationally known speakers have been scheduled for programs during the week. Mrs. Malcolm Byrnes, Ethel, La., is national president of the group and will preside at many of the sessions.

Preliminary sessions are scheduled for Monday, August 13, and executive sessions on Tuesday morning and afternoon. Tuesday night, an entertainment program in the band shell will bring a program from the Indiana home demonstration council featuring women's chorus numbers.

Dr. Amalie K. Nelson, Ohio State university psychologist, will open the theme of "Democracy, the Torch We Hold" with a talk on the place of democracy in the home.

Other speakers will include Miss Mabel Head, New York, authority on world peace and religion; M. L. Wilson, director of the federal extension service, Washington, D. C.; and Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, Baltimore, Md., vice-chairman of the civil defense program.

The National Home Demonstration council meeting will close Thursday noon, August 16, and the last day will be devoted to the annual meeting of the country women's council, which is the American section of the Country Women of the world, an international organization.

Mrs. Raymond Sare, Arkworth, Iowa, will be the main speaker at this session. She is president of the international organization and has been prominent in women's activities in the American farm bureau.

Mrs. George Apperson, Mocksville, N. C., is president of this council.

Twenty Cadets Get Reserve Commissions

Twenty Michigan State College cadets received commissions as second lieutenants in the organized reserve corps at the end of summer camp, it was announced this week by Capt. Norman F. Muser.

In all, the ROTC ground forces camps provided six weeks of strenuous training for 100 MSC cadets. It will be necessary for the majority of the cadets to complete their senior year ROTC instruction prior to being eligible for a commission, Muser said.

Current department of the army policy permits students who have not completed requirements for a degree, after having been commissioned, to continue work on their degree before being called to active duty with the army.

Colonel Named New Head of College ROTC

Clendenen 'Impressed' By New Command Unit

Colonel Clarence C. Clendenen took over the duties of the commandant of the Michigan State College Reserve Officers Training Corps last week, replacing Colonel Charles E. Dissinger.

Colonel Dissinger has been transferred to the office of the adjutant general in Washington, D. C. for duty with the army's career management division. Dissinger headed the MSC military program since 1948.

Clendenen stated that although he has only been on campus a few days, he has been greatly impressed by the MSC unit.

The new leader of the ROTC unit is a veteran of 31 years in the army including 46 months of overseas duty.

Clendenen comes to MSC from Governor's Island, N. Y., where for the past three years he was the assistant inspector general of the U. S. First Army.

A graduate of West Point in 1920, Clendenen has also attended other army schools including the Commanding General Staff school and the Naval War college.

He has served two four-year tours as an instructor at West Point where he was an assistant professor of history.

Much of his army life has been spent on the Mexican border with the first, fifth, seventh and tenth cavalry. He has also been stationed in the Philippines with the twenty-fifth cavalry.

In 1941-42 Clendenen was the military and air attaché to Venezuela.

During World War II he was sent to the Pacific during the latter stages of the campaign. He was with the Eighth Army in Japan, and spent three years with the occupation forces as executive officer and acting chief of staff of the Second cavalry brigade.

Clendenen later was a member of the initial war crimes commission in the prosecution of the Japanese war criminals. He served on several of these commissions.

His previous experience with a ROTC unit was at the Augusta Military Academy.

Extension Group To Convene Here

Michigan State College has been chosen for the annual meeting of the National University Extension association in April, 1953, according to E. L. Hardee, director, Continuing Education service.

Deans and directors from colleges and universities having an extension service program will attend this meeting. The 1952 session will be held in Austin, Texas. The meeting will be held in MSC's new Kellogg center for Continuing Education. The building is expected to be completed this fall.

In terms of actual educational opportunity, however, the qualitative differences between good school districts and marginal ones are greater today than when the idea of equalizing educational opportunity was first advanced. What has been achieved is an equalization of cost but not of education.

But He Can't Keep It

Jay Bessing (right), 18-year-old Rockville, Md., high school student who was seeking a $21.88 income tax refund, shows to his employer, J. W. Wisner, the check he received in the mail from the government—for $308,666.26. He checked the bureau of internal revenue and learned that the treasury department wants the check back and is willing and anxious to replace it with one for $21.88. A treasury spokesman said he pronounced the person operating the check writing machine put down the serial number of the check, 50-866-26, instead of the amount to be paid.

Meteor Showers Predicted

Nature to Present August Sky Show

Meteors will be darting across the night skies during August at a higher average rate than at any other time of the year.

Amateur astronomers and others interested in watching the heavens will want to be alert on the nights of August 10 and 11, according to Dr. Hazel M. Losh, assistant professor of astronomy at the University of Michigan.

After 10 p.m. on those two nights, the annual Perseid shower of meteors should be at their peak although increasing numbers of "shooting stars" will be visible in the nights before the peak is reached.

Although these flashes of light may be seen in any direction, their paths when traced back seem to intersect in the northern part of the sky where the constellation Perseus rises, about 10 p.m., Dr. Losh reports. This accounts for the name given to this annual shower of meteors.

Visibility, barring clouds, should be good for this year's shower since the moon will not have any appreciable effect in dimming the brilliancy of the meteor's flight across the sky. Dr. Losh says that fifty to seventy shooting stars an hour may be counted during the peak period of the Perseid shower.

The date of the shower is determined by the time of year that the earth encounters the swarm of meteors revolving around the sun. Thus the shower of any particular group of meteors can occur only once a year.

These pieces of iron or stone become visible when they enter the earth's atmosphere, she points out. Meteors come in at very high speeds and the pressure encountered as they hit the earth's atmosphere checks their speed and the resulting friction sets the meteor to burning. The temperature resulting from the meteor's violent rush through the air is enormous and produces the brilliant flash across the sky.

Besides the meteors, the August sky will be dominated by the Milky Way, extending from the northeast across the center of the sky to the southwest, and it's attendant brilliant stars. The long bar of the Northern Cross will be along the Milky Way and almost directly overhead during the evening hours.

Jupiter, which will be rising at almost the exact east point in the sky at 9 p.m., will become the dominant planet since Venus will be fading in the western twilight. Jupiter is a part of the constellation of Pisces of The Fishes. This is not a bright constellation but features two lines of faint stars forming a crude letter "V."

Just two days before inclusion in August activities is the year's second partial eclipse of the sun due on the morning of Saturday, Sept. 1. Dr. Losh declares: "The sun will rise with 79 per cent of its surface covered by the moon and the eclipse will continue for more than an hour until 1:05 a.m. The earlier eclipse on March 7 was near the western horizon and just before sunset."

The Dean's List

Bits of Comment

By Dean Wakefield
State News Summer Manager

JUST bits of comment on the past week's news - I was as disillusioned as many people when I read that cadets at West Point are human after all. Here I've been reading and hearing that West Pointers are a kind of hybrid animal, grown only along the banks of a river called the Hudson in New York state.

Now I find out that I was wrong. They are human beings like me and the guy who sits next to me in my eight o'clock. They have weaknesses of the flesh that go along with growing up in a nation such as ours.

Yet with the cribbing which has become common at the academy, and the news of same, came the uncovered fact that it is nothing new to West Pointers. Seems it's been going on for ages.

Now finally, we have a group of cadets willing to admit that they have violated a sacrosanct code. Does that make them any less of an army man than the grad of 1934 who didn't care to admit he was human? We think not.

Perhaps this will serve to point out to an older generation that "the lost generation" is not so lost after all, when a cadet will stand up in the face of expulsion and admit his shortcomings.

LONG with the morals of the 20's, people are reviving the fads of the roaring years.

As long as Niagara Falls exist, there will always be someone foolhardy enough to risk shooting the falls. Perhaps I am a bit hazy on my history when I say that this was a fad of the Roaring Twenties, but it was a fad. Rather, still is.

What amazes me is how some guy with a family would risk the trip, knowing his 50-50 survival odds. But a Niagara Falls man did it, and the newspapers were full of the human grief of his weeping family as his homemade rubber-tire barrel disintegrated on a hidden rock below the falls.

Speaking of shooting the falls always reminds me of the story Bill Stearn tells of one of the three persons who have made the trip successfully.

Bobby Veach, an Englishman, survived the perilous journey, back in the years I can't recall. Know how he died? Walking down the streets of Niagara Falls (the town), he slipped on a banana peel, and died in a hospital of the injuries sustained. Life can be horrible.

WHEN will major league baseball owners learn that no matter who they pick as a high commissioner of the sport, not all of them will be able to get along with him?

The way the owners picture him, a man would have to possess the wisdom of Solomon, the patience of Job, and be able to hang his hat on a tree that grows in Brooklyn.

Why not hire Leo Durocher? Now, it is a known fact that no one can put up with the Lip.

So if the majors can't hire someone who will agree with all of them, why not hire someone who disagrees with everyone?

It will be a pleasant change from intermittent wrangling, and besides it would make jolly good newspaper copy.

Champaign's Traffic

The city of Champaign, Ill., stamping grounds of University of Illinois students, has its traffic problems, too.

The Daily Illini, Illinois student publication, carried an editorial summing up the difficulties, in which the writer elaborates on the problems faced there.

A traffic commission in the city handles the whole matter in Champaign. Sounds like an idea applicable to East Lansing's traffic problems.

Coaches Corner

Too Optimistic?...

By RED DAWSON
Assistant Football Coach

There have been many optimistic articles written recently about the 1951 Michigan State football team. This has been to a certain extent by the fact that Michigan State lost one game last year after starting out in a lull with an inexperienced squad.

Before the season started, the prognosticators had Michigan State rated around twenty-fifth nationally. This year the dopesters have gone the other way and probably have pushed us much higher up the ladder than they actually should, perhaps feeling that they push us too far up, the two years will balance off some extent.

Coaches do not take these ratings very seriously as they know that they are a result of ballyhoo on the part of the press. Opponents like to build up the opposing team in case of failure to win, they seem somewhat justified. On the other hand, if a person were to be more realistic about the situation, he could very easily take a pessimistic view.

For example, last year State had a great deal of punch in its offense, largely because of the fact they had a great quarterback, Grandelius, who is now finished. The offense did smoothly to a great extent due to the smooth balling of LeRoy Crane, who is also graduated. The pass game developed as the season went on because of the service of Jesse Thomas at safety.

All three of these keymen have been lost through graduation and we face the proposition now of replacing them with new men.

Another thing that puts us on the pessimistic side is the fact that some of the teams were not up to their usual level last year will be bouncing back strong this year. Some teams will be pointing more for Michigan than they did last year because of this ballyhoo propaganda.

The coaches and the players will not leave any step unturned in doing what they can in having a banner year in 1951. The spring game indicated the fact that the players have a great desire to play and go all out to win.

We are not fortunate enough to win our share of games all the time. I am certain that the fans will at least see a scrappy game on the field.

Army May Be Help to 'Biggie'

Army training may be a big contributing factor to Michigan State's 1951 football team.

The Army, through its advanced ROTC program, had complete control for six-weeks summer training of thirteen Spartan footballers, all of whom figure to be in competition for front-line grid action this fall.

Those that underwent intensive training at the Military Police training center at Camp Gordon, Ga., include: Doug Bobo, right end; Bob Ciolek, a right halfback slated for end duty in '51; Bill Horrell, defensive tackle; and Frank Kapral, offensive right guard.

Three Spartans were with a field artillery training detachment at Ft. Sill, Okla. Included in the group are Captain Bob Carey, giant end; Bill Carey, twin brother of Bob, also an end; and Marv McFadden, offensive right tackle.

The Quartermaster Corps at Ft. Lee, Va. lists Don Coleman, star Spartan tackle on its roster of summer cadet trainees.

Training with the Infantry at Camp McCoy, Wis. were five varsity griders, including Tom Brogan, fullback; Frank Kush, guard; Don McAuliffe, left halfback; Jack Morgan, defensive tackle; and Doug Weaver, defensive center.

Ordnance Cadets Receive Honors

Four ROTC Ordnance cadets from Michigan State College received honors for athletic achievement while at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland for their summer training.

Varsity basketball star, "Sonny" Means won the camp high jump title and varsity tennis player, Dick Rieger won the camp tennis championship.

Thomas Cooper and Terrence George combined their talents to win the horse-shoe championship.

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE - OTHER THAN BASIC COURSES:

In the following plan, final examinations are determined by the days and hours the class is scheduled to meet during the term. To determine when your examination is to be given, find the block in column 2, 3, or 4 which lists the days and hours of your class. Example: A class meeting MWF 1-2; the examination will be 8-10, Thur., Aug. 30. A class meeting T,Th 4-5; the examination will be 7-9 PM, Tues., Aug. 28.

Day of Examination	Hour of Examination
(Col. 1)	8-10 (Col. 2)
Sat., Aug. 25	*M, W, F, 8-9 or 8-10
Mon., Aug. 27	*M, W, F, 9-10
Tues., Aug. 28	*M, W, F, 10-11 or 10-12
Wed., Aug. 29	*M, W, F, 11-12
Thurs., Aug. 30	*M, W, F, 1-2
Fri., Aug. 31	*M, W, F, 2-3 or 2-4

* or M, T, Th, F; or M, T, W, Th, F

NOTE: No provision has been made for 12-1, evening, or 5-6 classes. Classes meeting these hours will arrange the final examination.

Examinations will be given in the same classroom as assigned for class meetings at the end of the term. All students, instructors, and room schedules will automatically clear if all courses follow this schedule.

NOTE: At least two of the days and hours must follow the regular pattern. In a few courses, at the request of the department concerned, the final examination has been scheduled by the single hour lecture section and in some instances students may encounter conflicts. In that event the examination scheduled by the class meeting two hours a week would take precedence over the examination scheduled by the single hour lecture. The examination would have to be arranged between the student and the department requesting the special scheduling of its examination.

If there are any questions, call Mrs. Schue in the Registrar's Office. (Ext. 501.)

Knows His Oranges Recruit Foils Army Query

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The Army may peg the price of oranges at five cents each but a recruit from nearby Boliver knows better.

A youth about to take the Army's Classification Test recently was asked a number of sample questions by M/Sgt. Ernest Hudson. One such was: "If four oranges cost 20 cents, how much does one cost?"

After considerable thought the recruit answered: "They're 10 cents apiece in Boliver."

He passed.

German Costs Make Ours Look Tame

Associated Press Newsfeature

FRANKFURT, Germany—Do you know that many German shoes do not fit American feet and baby foods are not sold in Germany?

Or that coffee costs $3.50 a pound in German stores and tea between $6.00 and $7.00 per pound?

These are among the hundreds of informative items collected by the U. S. High Commission in a handy booklet for Americans coming to Germany to visit or work. It tells what you can expect to find here, how much it will cost—and what you should bring with you.

For example, cigarettes. You can legally bring in 400. And you should. German cigarettes cost 47 cents for a package of 20.

A generous supply of nylons is an essential for milady. Nylon hosiery can be purchased in Germany for about $2.15 a pair but there is little choice as to grade and color. Women should bring a supply of their favorite cosmetics. Not all brands are carried in German stores.

You'd better plan to rinse out a few things yourself during your stay. The average German family does not use a commercial laundry.

If you're a student, diplomat, displaced person or someone coming to visit the grave of a war victim, you won't have to pay the 12 cent fee for a visa. But if you stay over 30 days in a hotel, you must register at the local police station. If you are staying with friends or relatives you must register after eight days.

Lloyd, who holds three degrees from the University of Pittsburgh, represents the Gregg Publishing company.

The institute is sponsored by the department of business education and secretarial studies.

Evidence has been found that sheep were domesticated in the stone ages.

Centralia, Ill. (AP)—This request was logged recently by Flora, Ill. police. Mrs. Harry Kitten-asked them to help find her lost puppy.
