More than 60 extra traffic officers go on duty each Sat-urday that the Spartans play in Macklin Stadium to help relieve the traffic congestion in the Lansing-East Lansing area. With the games now pulling near capacity crowds of 50,095 each week-end, the police officers have done a noteworthy job of keeping the increasingly heavy traffic moving

Each Saturday of a home game from 20 to 30 extra state police officers go on duty in this area. These policemen are called in from stations as far away as Traverse City and Bad Axe.

The state police patrol the highways leading into the city in a 10-mile radius of the stadium.

+ + The Intersections of Grand River at Abbott Road, M.A.C. Avenue and Haslett Street are manned by eight East Lansing policemen each Safurday of a home game. These men keep the traffic moving and also make it possible for pedestrians to cross Grand River.

The campus police department sends out more than 35 men each Saturday to direct traffic on the campus alone. Most of the officers report at 11 a.m. while a handful go on duty as early as 8 and 9 a.m. Through the efforts of the campus police the accidents on campus during the rush periods have been kept at a minimum.

On Saturdays when the University of Michigan Wolverines are not playing at home, police from Ann Arbor are sent to East Lansing.

It is through the co-operation of the three police forces that the East Lansing area is well policed and traffic congestion kept at the present minimum. Taking into consideration the large number of vehicles that invade the campus area on game Saturdays the local streets are kept surprisingly clear by the efforts of the combined traffic forces what with football, the national elections and even our own Student Government. Knowing little about why people vote the way they do, I consulted some tea leaves and decided to try my hand at prognostications.

I have been told that it is fatal for editorial writers to predict, but I'm going to jump off the deep end. After hearing the election results. I probably won't be speaking to anyone, so here goes.

In the East Dwight D. Eisenhower should prove to be as strong a vote getter as Thomas E. Dewey was in 1948. The GOP candidate lost only 20 electoral votes of Massachusetts and Rhode Island four years ago. Ike must win Pennsylvania's to happen. Texas is one of the key states that lke should take to win nationally. .

By Margaret Fuller-

In the West the general ought to pick up nine states with small electoral votes making a total of 43 tallies. Montana's four counters will go for Stevenson. California may decide the winner. Although Gov. Earl Warren couldn't carry it for the GOP in 1948 as a vice-presidential candidate, I believe that Eisenhower can. The six states bordering between the North and South will be predominately Democratic. Eisenhower might pick up Maryland's nine votes, but I'm not expecting it. Stevenson should take the other four states for 39 votes.
