A bill providing for the pro-gram was referred to the Com-mittee on Appropriations in the state Senale last week.

By its terms, $150,000 would be granted to the Agricultural Experiment Station for research in farm marketing and $180,000 would go to the Agricultural Extension Service for an educational program for consumers, retailers and farmers.

The special funds were not included in the annual Beard appropriations request, said Philip J. May, college comptrol-ler and treasurer.

All Candidates Get Positions

A close recount Tuesday afternoon toppled vice presidential results of the AWS elections held last Thursday. Recount totals gave Mary Jack-son, Detroit junior, 578 votes and Millie Runnells, East Lansing junior, 575 for the veep position of the Activities Board.

Originally Miss Runnells was by one vote.

According to Mary Ellen Weig-e. former Activities Board head, le, former Activities Board and Miss Jackson petitioned for the recount because the vote was so close. Vice-presidential votes in the Judiciary Board contest remain-ed the same. Although Nancy Moffett, Kalamazoo junior, won over Joan Pace, Grand Rapids junior, by only six, votes, no re-count was called for.

Solution for the Activitie) Board mix-up came at a specia / meeting of the old boards Tues-day night.

By an almost unamimous vote, representatives decided to appoint two vice-presidents for each board for the coming year. Thus all six candidates in the election now hold executive offices. . Justine Ray, former Judiciary head, stated that under the constitution such appaintments are legal, but added that if the two-veep set-up were to become permanent a constitutional amendment would be needed.

Support for the appointments came from advisors of the two beards. Mrs. Lurise Lee and Mins Mabel Peterson, assistants to the dean of students, wo-men's division.

Both stated that because of ex-pansion in the activities of the boards a larger executive is definitely needed.

Other suggested solutions to the displaced vice-president contro-versy included a re-election for vice-presidential candidates and an entire reelection, including presidential positions.

"I think the coeds pretty much have a hand in deciding what a couple will do on a date," said Justine Ray, pre-ident of AWS Judiciary.

Where We Stand Thoughts Upon a Birthday

Today is the State News' 45th birthday. Today we begin our 46th year of publication.

We won't make this a sermon on freedom of the press. Almost 70 student editors through the years have tried to teach that lesson: the lesson that a responsible, uncensored college newspaper is as vital to the campus as a free press is to the nation.

But, with your permission, we'd like to once again make clear our position. This, then, is where we stand. * *

The Michigan State News:

1. Seeks to remain a top-ranking college newspaper, published by students without direct faculty supervision, in the interest of all students, faculty, and other interested in the weltare of Michigan State
