Kansas City OK'd Athletics' Home

YORK (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics were transferred to Kansas City Monday in the third major league move in 20 months when the American League approved the club to Arnold Johnson and three other Chicago bidders for about $1 1/4 million dollars.

As part of the deal, Johnson agreed to sell his interest in Yankee Stadium, home of the New York Yankees, within 90 days.

Clark Griffith, who owns the Washington Senators, and Hank Greenberg, Cleveland general manager, reportedly voted against the move to Kansas City but the league approved 6-2 for the required three-fourths vote.

The league gave Johnson a unanimous 8-0 vote as the new owner who came up with the cash to buy the debt-ridden A's who have been owned by 82-year-old Connie Mack and his family since the league was organized at the turn of the century.

Johnson helped swing the deal with a fine presentation of his own case during the afternoon session after the transfer appeared to have hit a snag in a short morning meeting.

He converted Walter (Spike) Briggs, the Detroit owner who had announced he was against Kansas City but finally made the motion for the transfer.

The new organization, to be known as the Kansas City Athletics, will be in the western half of the league with Cleveland, Chicago and Detroit while Baltimore shifts to the east with New York, Boston and Washington.

A new schedule will be distributed to the clubs within a week.

Closing of the deal to move the Athletics to Kansas City was strictly anti-climactic to baseball fans in Kansas City, who twice previously had done their cheering prematurely.

The announcement brought this blunt comment from City Manager L. P. Cookingham: "I'm glad it's final."

"There's lots of work to be done in a short time," Cookingham said. "There are details to be worked out concerning the city's purchase of the stadium from Johnson and the leasing of the stadium to Johnson. We've got to get busy with the stadium in a hurry."

There was mild cheering in some spots around town, but the noise-making was like the dropping of a pin compared to the hoopooing it up Oct. 12 when the league approved the switch to Kansas City, and last Thursday when Johnson bought the stock.

Explosion Injures 45 High Schoolers

ALLEN, Okla. (AP)—Some 45 high school students and two school officials were injured Monday in a thunderous classroom gas explosion.

Supt. J. N. McKeel, one of the injured, told newsmen Monday night: "I assume I set off the blast in an attempt on my part to find a gas leak" with a match.

The high school wing of the one-story brick school building, occupied by 150 students, was demolished.

An explosive pocket of gas apparently had accumulated under the building.

Mechanical Rake Makes Clean Sweep

By DEBBY MALL

A new mechanical demon invaded the campus last week clearing the ground of leaves in its path.

Burt D. Ferris, superintendent of the grounds department, discovered a new use for the Rotomist, originally intended to spray trees with insecticides during the spring.

The versatility of the new machine proved successful this fall when Ferris suggested replacing the spray with a fan implement that would blow the leaves into piles. With a velocity of 120 miles an hour the machine can do the work required of 30 men raking leaves during the same length of time.

So far the machine has made three appearances around the Esauumont Tower area and stirred up a great deal of interest from inquisitive students.

Dean Harden Heads Armed Forces Group

Appointment of Dr. Edgar L. Harden, dean of Continuing Education Service, as chairman of the national Armed Forces Educational Program Committee was announced last week by college officials.

Dr. Harden succeeds A. J. Brumbaugh, president of Francis Shimer College, Mt. Carroll, Ill. He was named at the committee's annual meeting held at Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.

The committee, composed of members of the military service and civilian educators, supervises the United States Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) educational project for service men and women.

Dr. Harden, an M'SC faculty member since 1946, was appointed dean of the Continuing Education Service in 1953. He has been a member of the armed forces education committee for the past year.

Joe Blasts Censure Proposal

Senate Change Called "Improper"

WASHINGTON (AP)—The "Joe McCarthy session" of the Senate opened in an angry uproar before packed galleries Monday.

In top oratorical form, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) hurled such terms as "imbecilic" and "fantastic" at a proposal to rebuke his conduct.

And he blasted as "completely improper" a last-minute change in the report of the special committee which recommended censure for him.

Chairman Watkins (R-Utah) of the special committee refused at first, while with anger, to show McCarthy the change. In the end he produced it, however, and another committee member, Sen. Case (R-SD), slapped the revised report down in front of McCarthy with a force that scattered papers.

The altered passage turned out to be technical in nature and McCarthy told reporters he couldn't see that it made any major difference.

Thus in an atmosphere of flaring tempers and much confusion began the unprecedented extra Senate session which must decide whether to vote censure of McCarthy on charges of contempt of the Senate and abusive treatment of an Army general who once testified before him.

There was talk among some Republicans of modifying the censure resolution—of maybe writing into it some praise of McCarthy's Communist investigating.

But the angry turn taken almost from the outset seemed to dim any such possibility for the time being at least.

Monday's session was supposed to be mainly formal, with the swearing in of new senators and the presentation of the Watkins committee's censure resolution. Debate wasn't supposed to begin until Wednesday.

But it started with a roar when Republican Majority Leader Knowland of California announced the Watkins group wanted a little more time to make "changes" in its resolution and also in its report.

McCarthy, standing next to the 67-year-old Watkins, declared it would be "highly improper" to make any changes now in a report which was supposedly completed and made public last Sept. 27.

"I would strenuously object to any changes in the report at this time," McCarthy declared.

"They've made their bed and now they've got to lie in it."

Pre-Game Antics Begin U of M Fans Retouch Campus

Apparently sensing an unhappy Saturday on the gridiron, several University of Michigan fans have already gotten in their pre-game licks, on the Michigan State campus.

Sneaking about in the wee hours of the morning Monday, they daubed blue and yellow paint around the Spartan campus, in the form of block M's and "Beat State" slogans.

Spartan received a generous coat of blue and yellow M's, while the benches in front of the Campbell dorms suffered a like fate.

The raiders also painted an "M beat MSC" on Circle Drive, in front of the International Center. Last year 22 U of M students were apprehended while painting on the Spartan campus. They spent two nights cleaning paint from a foot bridge and the library steps.

Representatives Attend U of M Pre-Game Talks

Student leaders and college officials will travel to the University of Michigan for a dinner meeting to discuss pre-game relationships today.

Students will represent living units and governing groups. Mrs. Lurline Lee, assistant to the dean of students, women's division, and Robb Gardiner and Elwood Voller, assistants to the dean of students, men's division will represent the administration.

Last year two meetings were held; one in the fall at the U of M and one winter term at MSC.

Chain Letters Illegal Says Summerfield

Complaint Needed To Invoke Action

Chain letters violate both postal and national lottery laws Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield said Sunday night in Washington.

Although many persons believe the scheme does not violate any regulations by being sold person to person, Summerfield pointed out that the money goes through the mails and therefore violates postal laws.

The letters, circulating on campus for the past week, offer odds of over two million to one for the bottom person on the list ever receiving the possible reward of $10,250.

For the person at the top of the letter's 11 names to get the full return, 2,048 other persons would have to buy the letters. By the time each 11th person had worked his way to the top, it would take over four times the world's population to pay them off.

Similar schemes have operated at MSC in the past said Dean of Students Tom King, but they have usually come and gone within a few days.

Dean King said he knows the present letters are being circulated in the living units, but so far there have been no complaints. If the college receives any complaints it will try to discourage the letters he said.

Anyone receiving a chain letter can make a complaint to the post office if he wants to. However, it is up to the post office to make the final decision regarding an investigation and possible prosecution.

"No real financial rewards can be gained from buying chain letters," Dean King said. He pointed out that the college regards the letters as a silly fad that will soon disappear.

No U of M Ducats

No tickets are available for the MSC-U of M game, which has been a sell-out for two or three weeks, according to MSC ticket office officials.

A few tickets are returned by people unable to use them, but they are quickly snapped up, the officials said.

Reds Claim Self-Defense In Shooting

Air Force Denies Border Violation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States demanded reparations from Russia Monday for the shooting down of an American photo-mapping bomber. The Reds countered with charges that the U. S. plane had violated Russian territory and opened fire.

As on earlier occasions of this sort, the American and Russian versions were exactly opposite.

The U. S. Air Force claimed the shooting Saturday was all done by the Russians, with the American bomber not replying, and stressed that the scene was over Japanese territory.

It said the American plane was never within 15 miles of Soviet territory.

A note which said "the United States strongly protests" and wants "moral and material reparations"—that is, an apology, disciplining of the Red airmen responsible and money to pay for the destroyed plane and to compensate the family of the lone airman lost—was handed to the Soviet Foreign Office by Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen.

However, Moscow said in a note its fighter planes intercepted the American ship to ask it to leave Soviet territory but "the American aircraft opened fire on them."

"In view of this unprovoked action of the American intruder," the Russian note said, "The Soviet aircraft were compelled to retaliate the fire, after which the American aircraft left the air space of the Soviet Union and flew off in a southerly direction."

One airman, 2nd Lt. Sigfredo Angulo of Los Angeles, was snarled in his parachute, and 10 others parachuted to safety, Angulo's body was recovered.

The formal U.S. note of protest promised that the Kremlin would hear again from Washington after investigation had pinned down all the facts "regarding human and material losses."

A hot protest already had been leveled by Gen. John E. Hull, U.S. Far East commander in Tokyo.

He accused the Russians of a "piratical" attack which he said could not possibly be excused.

"Any claim by the Soviet attackers that our plane was over what they consider their territory is completely negated by the fall of the plane and of the survivors who parachuted from it on Hokkaido soil," he said.

Capt. Anthony F. Felth, skipper of the plane, told a news conference in Tokyo it was "never closer than 15 miles" to Russian territory.

It was the third such incident in the Japanese area in recent years and about the twelfth since the cold war began.

The pistol was found in his possession Sunday by a conservation officer.

A Successful Debut Rhythm Rules In Band Show

To the tune of John Phillip Sousa's famed marches, high school bands from all over Michigan put on one of the most impressive half-time programs ever seen in Macklin Stadium Saturday.

The amazing thing about the show was the fact that nearly 1,500 bandmen could play precisely on the beat as they did. Even the clash of cymbals and the peal of trumpets, probably the hardest instruments to keep in perfect rhythm, sounded in complete harmony.

Credit for this coordinating feat should go to MSC Band Director Leonard Falcone, who directed clearly and definitely from his raised podium, and to the individual directors who strained to catch every motion of his baton.

Choice of the Sousa Centennial theme may have helped fashion the success since most high school bands were probably familiar with the marches, and could concentrate on working well together.

And the theme couldn't have worked in better with the MSC Centennial since the switch from one display to the other could be worked into a smooth transition.

The band day idea proved itself on its first attempt at Michigan State. And from the looks of Saturday's performance, it should prove to be a half-time highlight at football games in the years to come.

Question of Spartan Spirit Pops Up Again

To the Editor:

We are faced with a very important problem at MSC, that of school spirit. The blame usually falls back on the athletic team which is participating in that particular season of the year. Probably the feeling of most students is that their efforts won't help matters much. One of the fundamentals of school spirit is pride. In the last few years, we have had a remarkable ball club in which everyone was enthused. School spirit was very high at that time.

However, this feeling is lacking now and maybe a few suggestions might be in order.

Possibly, if the cheerleaders would work up some new cheers and these cheers be used in a competitive manner between classes, we might arouse more enthusiasm.

It has also been the feeling of many, that the State News should be more on the affirmative side, when writing about school spirit, especially when writing about the Block S section.

Also, we know that the students aren't the only ones on a college campus, I think that the faculty could in some way arouse the spirit by showing they too have an interest in our athletic organizations. A day, in acknowledgement of the football team, given by the student body with the emphasis on school spirit might help.

Whatever the suggestion might be, we should do something to regain this spirit and show the players we are proud of them, even if they have been faced with a losing season.

U. S. Economy Can Stand a War

EDITOR'S NOTE: This editorial feature was written by Denzel C. Cline, MSC economics professor.

The U.S. economy can stand another world war provided we don't run out of people. But there are many factors to be considered.

Such a world war more than likely would begin with a massive sneak attack directly upon the United States. The enemy would endeavor to paralyze our economy by attempting to knock out areas vital to sustained production.

Their targets would include key transportation, electric power, and industrial areas, such as shipping and railroad centers, harbors, the Soo Locks, the Panama Canal, Chicago, Detroit and other cities.

The extent of the damage to our economy would depend upon how successful our defenses prove to be. One of the most essential parts of our protection against enemy attack is the joint defense program with Canada, under the leadership of President John Hannah.

Our production record in World War II, it may be argued, amply demonstrates our ability to convert to a war economy with the power to "deliver the goods." The total annual national output practically doubled from 1939-1945 in spite of the fact that some 13 million persons were taken into the armed services.

Some important differences in the situation at that time should be noted.

1. In the last war production was not impaired by bombs and guided missiles destroying our factories and homes.

2. Our allies held the enemy while we were building up production to give aid under Lend Lease, and even for a considerable time after the Pearl Harbor attack.

3. Production previously was low, and a large amount of unemployed manpower and equipment could be utilized in expansion of output.

4. Taxes were increased heavily then, but now the level of taxation already is very high.

5. The national debt stood at $49 billion in 1940. The $275 billion limit on the debt had to be raised by Congress in 1954.

On the other hand, our productive capacity is much greater now. Steel production capacity, for example, has risen 52 per cent since 1940. There has been a vast amount of investment in modern capital equipment. We have better machines and more of them. Production methods have been improved. Better management, advances in technology, and labor training also have contributed to greater productive efficiency.

In our defense program since 1950 American industry has been filling orders for all kinds of military equipment and supplies. Producers should be able to expand rapidly to deliver the stepped-up quantities that it would be required.

If sufficient protection can be provided against enemy destruction, our workers and machines would continue to demonstrate the productive superiority of the nation.

subscriptions for the war bond issues—for conscription of savings as well as young men. If necessary, whatever additional money is required can be "created" through the banking system. Sufficient funds would be made available to "pass the ammunition."

Not money, but manpower and economic resources are the vital elements in waging war.

The economy could stand a war—but it would mean austerity plus for years.

The people could stand it—for it would be the price of survival.

Spartan Spirit Hits New High Despite Injuries

Zagers, Badaczewski, Matsock on Doubtful List

The Spartans hit a new high in the Spartan football camp Monday as team strength hit a new low. Thirteen Spartan gridders showed up on the injured list following the Big Green's 54-6 swamping of Washington last Saturday.

Formerly injured were seriously injured were string senior tackle Randy Matsock with a left knee that was operated on Thursday and sophomore center Zagers, injured in a scrimmage last week, who will also require surgery on his knee Thursday.

The doubtful list for next week's contest with the also-injured Wolverines of U of M back John Matsock, left ear, and center Joe Zagers, right hand.

Badaczewski was out of the Washington State game with a knee injury and will possibly miss the game next week.

Members of the injured list include Norm Masters with a nose injury, left hand, and Jim Blauvelt with a bruised hand and a damaged eye and head injuries.

The squad did not work out today but spent the regular season in going over game film. The session was interrupted with much good natured banter from an obviously content Duffy Daugherty.

A happy note from team captain Dr. James Feurig re: Co-Captain LeRoy Bolden out of the game in fine condition and apparently regaining old form, ripping off 109 in eight carries, almost as many as he had in all six games of the season.

While reports from the Spartan camp at Ann Arbor indicate that last week's victory, 14-7 score over Illinois, may not be at full strength for Saturday either.

Branch of the Wolves' over one right halfback in the season and it is expected that if first string center Jim Bates will shake case of glandular fever in either the MSC game Saturday or the closing game Ohio State a week from now.

U of M squad held light workouts Monday with much the group as reported at game last Saturday running to Fred Bear, fullback is still held with head cuts that were made before game time with cuts, but were broken open in the contest. He is expected to be ready to go against the Ohio State a week from now.

Teams are expected to hold full workouts today in preparation for the traditional game which will be the second in a series featuring the "unbeatable" "juke-box" Paul in trophy, presently held by the Spartans 14-6 victory last year.

Trieste to Macklin Army Discovers Spartan Fullback

The United States Army and college football have never been known for any close association. However, it is due to this association that Jerry Planutis is now attending Michigan State and playing fullback for the Spartan gridders.

When Jerry was attached to the Adjutant General's office in Trieste he was noticed by Brig. General John Whiteshaw, former Commandant of the Army ROTC unit at Michigan State.

Whiteshaw, being friendly with former Spartan head football coach Biggie Munn, got together with Munn and Planutis, talked over the situation, and the rest is history.

Planutis is a 24-year-old junior and hails from West Hazelton, Penn.

He stands 5'10" and weighs 175 pounds. In high school, Planutis played quarterback. He led his team to a southern division title in his senior year, the first time in the school's history they have ever won the crown.

When Jerry came to State there was a need for fullbacks. Injuries had proven costly to the position and Munn was looking for some fresh talent.

Planutis seemed to be the answer. Last year Planutis served as understudy to Evan Slonac, a member of the Spartan's famous "pony backfield."

Jerry looked very impressive in last spring's Green and White intrasquad game and for his efforts shared the most valuable player award along with Howard Graves.

Planutis looked good in both his running and blocking in pre-season practice, but due to a strained Achilles tendon and a bruised hip, has been somewhat slowed down in the early games of the season.

How well Planutis has regained his form will be given a rigid test this Saturday against Michigan. Much of the Spartan's running attack will be assigned to the hard running fullback.

His one single thrill was when he kicked his first field goal; it came in the first game of the year against Iowa, and at the time put the Spartans into a 10-7 lead.

Planutis is a physical education major, and hopes to coach football after he graduates.

According to backfield coach Dan Devine, Jerry is one of the hardest workers on the team. He gives 100 per cent effort all the time and makes a coach's efforts that much easier. If he recovers fully from his pre-season injuries he will be a great aid to the Spartans not only in the Michigan game but all during next year.

Jerry Planutis ... looks impressive ...

Bryan 8, Downs Bryan 1, 6-0 Delts Roll Over DU's, 27-0

By JACK MURRAY Al Budner did everything but sell programs on the sidelines, as he led Delta Tau Delta to a 27-0 victory over Delta Upsilon Monday night.

After a scoreless first period, Budner and company moved into action. Budner scored the first touchdown of the night on a run in the early minutes of the second period to give the Delts a 7-0 half-time lead.

The third quarter saw the Delts turn the game into a rout. Budner threw two touchdown passes; the first going to Dave Carrigan, and the second to end Bob MacDonald. To complete the slaughter Budner heaved another perfect aerial to Carrigan for the final score of the game.

In rolling to their victory, the Delts defense completely bottled up the efforts of the Delta Upsilon offense. Time and again the Delts defense knocked down desperation fourth down passes.

Bryan 8, 6; Bryan 1, 0 A third period desperation pass that went for a touchdown proved to be the margin of victory for Bryan 8 as they defeated Bryan 1 by a 6-0 count.

After a scoreless first half, Dick Lotz dropped back and heaved a perfect touchdown pass to Howard Miller for the Bryan 8 score in the third period. This score held as the Bryan 8 defense stopped the Bryan 1 team from scoring in the remaining minutes of play.

This game was a very important one for the Bryan 8 team to win, as it gave them their block championship.

Friend Testifies in Court

Sheppard Described As 'Decent' Fellow

CLEVELAND (AP)—One of his best friends Monday described Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard as "a very straightforward fellow—a good, decent fellow."

The description came from Donald J. Ahern, a state witness, who described the last night on earth of Marilyn Sheppard, 31-year-old wife of the osteopath.

The evening began quietly with a home cooked meal and neighborly gossip. It ended with Marilyn's murder, for which Dr. Sheppard is on trial.

"Viewing Ahern's friendship with Sheppard, Defense Atty. William J. Corrigan asked on cross examinations "Did you ever see him lose his temper?"

"No, sir, I did not," replied the witness, a tall, rather gaunt man who runs a transportation service and an odor removing business.

"During the time you knew Sam Sheppard did you have an opportunity to determine what kind of a man he was?"

"I felt Sam was always a very straightforward fellow," Ahern replied. "He was my friend."

"He was a good, decent fellow, wasn't he?" Corrigan demanded.

"Yes," replied Ahern.

Ahern testified throughout a sunny, autumn afternoon. Earlier, the chilling autopsy findings on Marilyn's beaten body finally were disposed of.

Ahern, the state's second witness, was excused just before the trial recessed overnight.

His wife, Nancy, follows him to the witness stand tomorrow.

The state claims Dr. Sheppard beat his wife to death, to climax an illicit love affair with attractive Susan Hayes, who is scheduled later as a star state witness.

She is a 24-year-old former technician in the osteopathic hospital in Bay Village.

Chinese Objects Displayed

An exhibit of rare Chinese objects, featuring textbooks, paintings, money, a reading lamp and many personal items, is on display at the MSC library.

The exhibit, titled "The Education of a Chinese Scholar in Olden Days," was prepared by Prof. Shao Chang Lee, head of MSC's department of foreign studies. All objects are from his personal collection of Chinese material.

Included in the display, which traces a Chinese scholar's educational life from 1868 to 1925, are photographs showing Chinese libraries, institutions and historic buildings.

Prof. Lee, a native of China, studied at Lingnan University in Canton and at Tsing Hua University in Peking. He received degrees at Columbia and Yale universities and became a U. S. citizen in 1951.

A collection of essays by Liu Chung Yuan, published in the 20th century, and two textbooks published in Hong Kong in 1860 and 1865 are among books included in the show. There is also an original copy of a marble astronomy chart made in Nanking in the 10th century and a 15th century oil lamp.

The exhibit will be on display in the library lobby until the end of fall term, Dec. 17.
