Increasing enrollment the university's living accommodations also expand with three new dormitories added to the Brody Group.

Building Boom in High Gear

By JACK BERRY
State News Editor

Largest building boom since the early post-war years on the Michigan State campus this summer with old buildings being torn down and modern structures more being added for a growing university taking their places.

Projects already under construction or due to start soon include the library, three new dormitories in the Brody group, addition to the music building, an extension of the hospital, the three-unit animal husbandries group, another parking bridge over the Red Cedar, additional parking bays on Circle Drive and an expansion of Kellogg Center.

Another major project is in the married housing section on Kalamazoo St. where 312 more apartments are being added for Fall term.

Though construction is seen nearly everywhere on campus, the cost to the taxpayers will not be so great as it might seem.

Of the dormitories, the music building and hospital are on a self-financing basis. The expansion of Kellogg Center is being financed by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation.

The Circle Drive area approximately 100 meter-less spaces are being paved, according to Harold W. W. campus landscape architect.

Western part of the women's athletic field is also being paved three to four feet to make the field more useable, said.

Service drive will run into the rear of the music building on the southern side of Circle Drive and the drive behind Hannah's residence will be closed except for student's use.

Side walk leading to the main entrance of the new library will consist of differently shaped cement designs with grass open for trees. There is a possibility some colored concrete will be used as in the rear of Kellogg Center, according to Lautner.

Other proposal was to have a small two-level water tower. The Beal Botanic Garden will be extended to meet the north side.

The south side of Wells Hall construction of a pedestrian bridge running towards Macklin Field Stadium will be started in the fall. It is scheduled to be completed in the fall, said Secretary Karl H. McDonel.

Bridge will be one level going over the river and the north side of the Red Cedar with the north side of the Wells Hall parking lot.

Other phase of the building program under the land division was the extension of Farm Lane for half a mile from Mt. Hope Rd. to Forest Rd. in preparation for the annual Farm Mechanization.

Lautner pointed out that the previous road had been more than a cinder path. In two weeks of work time it was graded and paved with a 21-foot strip of asphalt.

Student parking lots at Shaw Hall and Harrison Rd. are subject of bitter student controversy during the winter months are also undergoing changes.

Shaw lot has been graveled and lights and posts will be added. The Harrison lot will receive the same treatment, Lautner said the project would probably be finished by the end of school.

The three new Brody group dormitories, Lloyd C. Emery, W. C. Armstrong and Lydia Hyde Bailey Halls will be completed by the Fall of 1956, according to Emery G. Emery, manager of dormitories and food service.

Wells Hall is also being expanded to include equipment and service laboratories, additional offices and reception facilities. Upon completion there will be six complete rooms or three large rooms with removable curtains and them into pairs.

Butterfield and Bryan rooms are in the process of being painted, Foster said. Five colors, Puritan Gray, Gordon Green, Rose Stone and Lime Yellow, are being used.

In the married housing project the present construction of apartments brings the full total to 456 of which 140 are two-bedroom apartments.

Average cost of the apartments, which are furnished, is $69 a month and the 2-bedroom unit is $75.

Present project was started last November, the other three-story addition to the health center will not be started until November since the plans are still in the preliminary drawing up. The annex will extend north to Grand Ave. a line even with Berkeley Hall and the home economics building.

Animal Industries group on Farm Lane Rd. consists of units with the dairy scheduled to move from their location across from Kedzie. They will be the first of the new quarters. Completion for the total project is in Jan. 1957.

Approximately 100 parking bays become a part of Circle Drive in an attempt to alleviate the parking problem. The area will not be metered.

In preparation for the gigantic Centennial of Farm Mechanization, Aug. 15-20, a welcome arch was built over Farm Lane Rd. above the Red Cedar bridge.

The creaky floors of the library annex will be heard no more as storied building is razed.

Forum Hot-Dems-GOP Hurl Barbs

Staebler, Feikens In Panel Spotlight

By MARGARET FULLER
Businesses were accused Tuesday of paying Republican campaign workers by Neil Staebler, chairman of the Democratic State Central committee.

Staebler charged that "dealers and manufacturers" release employees from work on election day to campaign for the Republican party while continuing to pay their salaries. The accusation followed charges that the CIO finances Democratic party workers.

John Feikens, chairman of the Republican State Central committee, denied Staebler's charge and accused the Democrats of not reporting all the campaign expenses.

The heated exchange between the two political figures occurred during the sixth panel discussion of the forum in state and local government in the Union.

"When business does it (pays party workers), it is all right," Staebler said. "When labor does it, it is a subsidy."

Staebler said corporation executives have telephoned Democrats on company time asking for donations for the Republican party.

Feikens criticized the CIO as "reactionary" in "compelling" its members to contribute to the Democratic party. Republican union members should not be forced to give to the Democratic party, he said.

"We don't object to the fact that unions participate in political activities," Feikens said. He criticized the use of union dues for one party.

Staebler criticized legislative apportionment as not representing Michigan's population. The Democrats must get 60 per cent of the vote in order to win a majority in the house of representatives, he said.

Next Tuesday's panel on "Progress in Michigan" will wind up the 10th annual forum series of panels.

Former British Theologist To Talk Here

Dr. Arnold Nash, British-born professor, author and lecturer, will discuss the "University and the Modern World" tonight at 8 in 31 Union.

"Dr. Nash brings to his subject one of the most brilliant minds and varied background at work today on the problem of the university and its role in Europe and America," according to Robert M. Walker, executive secretary of the campus YMCA.

Dr. Nash was educated at the University of Liverpool, Oxford, and the London School of Economics, University of London. He holds graduate degrees in chemistry, philosophy, and sociology.

He has specialized in the nature of scientific method in the natural and social sciences, history, and theology, and in the role played by the reformation, by science and capitalism in molding Western civilization.

From 1932 to 1935 he was secretary of the London Council of the British Student Christian Movement, and after his ordination became secretary of the Church of England's Council on Marriage and the Family.

Dr. Nash is now professor and head of the department of religious history at the University of North Carolina.

The discussion is sponsored by the Michigan State YMCA.

Sign of the Time MSC Chimney Gets Facelift—Changes to 'U'

The white-glazed brick MSC on the smokestack towering over the old power plant near Ag Hall, an old-time campus landmark, has got to go, campus officials say.

Workmen will start their climb up the inside of the chimney, hang a scaffolding from the top and go down and chisel out the "C," according to Edward Kinney, superintendent of buildings and utilities.

The "C" will be replaced by a "U" before Aug. 1, the date when the furnaces will be re-started. However, he added the MAC on the reverse side will remain—"for sentimental reasons."

To Run 3 Nights

Lautrec Posters Herald 'La Parisienne' Opening

Heralded by Toulouse-Lautrec-type posters, "La Parisienne," a three-act comedy by Henri Becque, will move into the Union ballroom tonight for a three night stand.

Sponsored by the Union Board and directed by Roger Busfield of the speech department, the play will be presented "in-the-round," with the audience seated on all four sides.

"La Parisienne," according to Director Busfield, "is written in the vein of the Emile Zola school of French Naturalism where the leading lady, Clotilde, attempts to promote her husband politically by taking on a lover."

Dixie Auster of Anderson, Ind., will be seen in the role of Clotilde while Frank Serresque, a veteran of the MSU Players, will appear as Clotilde's cuckold husband.

"La Parisienne's" two lovers will be portrayed by Ronald Johnson of Dearborn and Robert Jones of Bad Axe. Lois Tobin of East Lansing, appears as Adele, the maid.

The play is set in the Paris of 1885, the hey-day of Lautrec and the Can-Can. The posters advertising the play, reminiscent of the Lautrec period, were designed by the Off-Campus Student Assn.

Costumes for "La Parisienne" were designed and executed by Herbert Camburn. Mary Jane Watkins, East Lansing graduate student, is serving as assistant director. George Latchford of Lansing is the stage manager.

Admission to the term play is 75 cents. The Union Board notes that the ballroom is air-conditioned.

Blood Drive At WKAR-TV Today-2 to 4

This afternoon from 2 to 4 WKAR-TV, in conjunction with the American Red Cross, is sponsoring a blood drive in the television station's studios on Kalamazoo St. All members of Michigan State's student body, faculty and employees have been urged by Prof. Armand L. Hunter, the station director, to participate in the drive.

The drive will be a part of WKAR-TV's afternoon show, "Here," and the various phases of donating blood will be televised.

M. C. Charley Ruffing will be the first donor with the cameras following the procedure from the examination, to the blood test and the actual donating of blood.

According to Red Cross officials there is a serious shortage of blood in the Lansing bank and July is perennially a low-donor month.

The drive is being held to help remedy the shortage as well as to show the public how easy and painless it is to donate a pint of blood.

Refreshments will be served to donors by the Gray Ladies, Irving Merrill of WKAR-TV said.

MSU Dean To Open 3-Day Talks

Present, Future Under Discussion

Leaders from every phase of American life will meet at Michigan State, Monday through Wednesday, to discuss the "Dominant Forces in the Improvement of Public Education," the ninth in a series of ten Centennial symposia.

The symposium, sponsored by the College of Education, will be held both in Fairchild theater and the auditorium. The general public is invited to attend all sessions, conference officials said.

Clifford E. Erickson, dean of the College of Education, will open the conference Monday at 10 a.m. speaking on the College of Education's roll in the improvement of Education.

Mrs. Rollin Brown of Los Angeles, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, will discuss "Citizen Participation Through Parent-Teacher Organizations."

Roy Larsen, president of Time magazine and chairman of the National Citizens Commission for the Public Schools, will start the afternoon session at 2.

Larsen and Stanley Rutenberg, the CIO's director of research, will talk on "Citizen Participation in the Improvement of Education."

The two men will be interrogated by four Michigan superintendents of schools.

Both the morning and afternoon sessions will be held in Fairchild with Mrs. Fred L. Keeler of Grand Rapids, president of the Michigan Congress of Parents and Teachers, the moderator of the morning discussion.

Bishop G. Bromley Oxnard of the Methodist church will speak on "Education for All the People" in the evening session at 8 in the auditorium. Centennial awards will also be presented.

"The Influence of Philanthropic Foundations on Education" will be discussed Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. in Fairchild by two men well qualified to speak on the subject: John W. Gardner, president of the Carnegie Corporation and Emory W. Morris, president of the W. K. Kellogg Foundation.

At 2 p.m. Prof. Paul R. Mort of Columbia University is scheduled to speak on "How Research in School Administration and in the Reorganization of School Districts Has Improved Education."

At the same session, Mrs. F. Sear, the Kellogg Foundation's division of education director, will talk on the "Education of the Future."

Big Three Oppose Red Moves

Russians Not Ready to Change Policy

GENEVA, (AP)—Soviet policy in the "summit" conference may be aimed at freezing the East-West division of Europe for an indefinite period of peaceful stalemate.

Key Western diplomats say privately this may well be the common purpose running through several moves by Premier Bulganin in the Big Four meetings to date.

These moves are:

1—Bulganin's making clear Thursday that the Soviet government is unwilling to reunify Germany unless it has no chance of military links with the western powers. West Germany is now a member of the North Atlantic alliance and the West wants a united Germany to have the option of joining NATO.

2—Bulganin's statement in the Big Four discussion Tuesday that the Russians know it is unrealistic to expect the President Eisenhower, Ambassador to Russia Charles Bohlen and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles huddle at the Geneva conference.

Western alliance with Bonn to be broken at this time.

3—His proposal in his opening speech Monday of a two-stage disarmament program, the first stage of which could take years to develop.

President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Eden and Premier Faure are firmly opposed to these Russian policies.

They also differ among themselves about the problem of European security. Bulganin knew their attitudes before he made his speech, making it plain that little will change.

He may be doing this not because he likes the status quo, but because he is playing a waiting game.

The great prize in the power struggle that lies beneath the affability of the summit meeting is Germany. The larger part of the divided nation is now securely in the western camp.

Duty Calls

30 Athletes Travel To RO Summer Camps

Michigan State coaches are fairly sure that at least 30 athletes will report back in good shape next fall.

This number, and a few to spare, will make annual ROTC summer encampments for the next month and a half.

Heading the list is the football team which will send fourteen present and past players to Ft.
Campbell, Ky. Included in this group are Jim Hinesly, Morley Murphy and Leo Haidys, all of Detroit; Carl Diener, Saginaw;
Don Kauth, Paducah, Ky.; Alvin
Lee, Gary, Ind.; Joe Badaczew-ski, Seaton, Pa.; Travis Buggs, East Chicago, Ind.; William Lucy,
Chicago; James Neal, Muskegon;
William Smiley, Bay City; Vic
Postula, Marshall; Ed Zalar, Barberton, O.; and Charles Alden, Milwaukee, Wis.

Ft. Campbell will also "host" basketball players Duane Peterson, Elkhart, Ind.; Dan Morrissey, Farmer City, Ill.; Duane Olson, Detroit; and Bill Werner, Alpena, along with tennis veterans Jim Beach and Dave Brogan, both of East Lansing.

Jim Sinadinos, Lansing, will be the only Spartan wrestler and the only track man at Ft.
Campbell.

Swimmers attending that camp are Bob Dust, Saginaw, and Frank Puginini, Battle Creek, while Jim Sack, Grand Rapids, and Bill Mansfield, Madison, Wis., represent the baseball team. Others are boxers Herb Odum, Flint; George Sissini, Milwaukee, Wis., and Jim Buck, Detroit, along with hockey players Karl Jackson, Calumet, and Stan Dubois, Detroit.

Kawal Takes Illinois Job

Al Kawal, former line coach at Michigan State, resigned as head coach at Temple University and took a similar position at Eastern Illinois University at Carbondale, Ill.

A former Northwestern athlete, Kawal has been a head football coach eight years and his teams have won 32, lost 38 and tied once.

Last season the Temple team won three and lost five.
In addition to his football coaching job at State, Kawal also served as the head boxing coach.

18-Hole Course in Planning Stage Golf Course May Open in '56

Although work on Michigan State's new 18-hole golf course is still only in the planning stage indications are that the course may be ready by next summer.

The intention to build the course was announced several weeks ago but no date had been tentatively set for completion.

Athletic Director Biggie Munn has tentatively approved a layout of the holes by Bruce Matthews, of Grand Rapids, who is the course architect.

The actual construction will be the charge of Harold W. Lautner, head of the department of landscape architecture and urban planning.

Matthews said the tentative plans call for a 71-par course, with the first nine with a par of 35. The course will measure approximately 6,750 yards from the back tees.

"We will have to hustle and also have perfect weather and good work-progress conditions to make it by next summer," Munn said, "but that is our goal. And we don't want any temporary nine-hole arrangement. We will have the entire 18 holes available."

Michigan State, at the present, is the only Big 10 school without a university-owned golf course.

"First and foremost, the course will be for the benefit of the students," Munn stated. "Faculty and alumni will enjoy it, too. Details of operation haven't been worked out yet, but we have a survey of other college courses under way."

Munn said the cost of construction is to come out of sports receipts.

"Football, of course, will be making the major contribution to it."

The 144-acre plot is located at the corner of Harrison and Mt.
Hope Rds., just south of the Michigan State Police headquarters.

Construction of a clubhouse will be undertaken as soon as possible after the course is developed.

Matthews said that as proposed at this time, there will be three par-five holes, five par-fours all of which will be 400 to 450 yards in length, and four par-threes.

22 Die in Chicago

MSU Senior Killed In Braniff Plane Crash

James A. Whipple, 21, a social science major due to graduate in December, was killed Sunday morning as a Braniff Airways Convair dipped into a gasoline station sign while coming in for a landing at Chicago's Midway airport and crashed.

The State senior from Northville was returning from summer training with the Air Force ROTC at Webb AFB, Big Springs, Tex.

The total death toll of the crash, only Braniff's second in 25 years of operation, is 22. Twenty-one survived the foggy morning mishap. Most of the dead were in the tail section of the two-engine plane enroute from Houston.

Whipple completed his AF-ROTC training Saturday with 37 other MSU students. None of the others were aboard the plane.

Jay N. Mossman, a Coldwater MSU student, suffered a fractured skull in an automobile accident near Springfield Sunday. One person was killed in the accident.

Federal Road Aid Increase Predicted

Federal aid for building highways will be increased this year by congress, Elmer J. Hanna, administrative assistant to the state highway commissioner, predicted last week as he outlined a $265 million annual road program for Michigan.

Since July 1 states have been receiving $60 from the federal government for every $40 they spent on inter-state highways Hanna predicted the matching will increase to $75 of federal money to $25 from states and may reach a $90-$10 ratio.

The state highway official made these predictions July 14 while appearing on a panel discussion of the forum in state and local government in the Union.

Hanna said the recently announced highway construction program was designed to relieve inadequacies in handling traffic. The project calls for four-lane divided highways which will be eligible for federal aid.

The highway program passed by the 1955 legislature will add $27 million annually to the $36 million previously used for highway construction. Maintenance of Michigan roads costs $22 million annually, Hanna said.

11 'Volunteers' Help

Polgar's Hypnotic Feats Delight L-C Audience

By MAL DELANO

"Tonight you are going to see an entirely different kind of show," said Dr. Franz J. Polgar at Fairchild theater Thursday night.

Opening the show, entitled "Miracles of the Mind," with a few memory feats, the heavily-accented performer amazed the audience with his seemingly insatiable capacity for mentally retaining numbers and phases thrown to him from various parts of the theater.

"Although we know comparatively little about the human mind, I maintain that the mind can be trained like any set of muscles," he said.

As the show progressed it became obvious that Dr. Polgar's mind was capable of performing mental gymnastics.

With 10 volunteers onstage and the house lights dimmed, the Hungarian hypnotist put the 10 to sleep, as well as one who was sitting in the audience.

Bidding the prodigal to come onstage the sleeper shambled up the aisle, much to the amusement of the audience, not realizing that he was making a highly unorthodox debut as a performer.

For the next hour-and-a-half, the 11 participants were put through various stages of hypnotic trances, performing diverse feats suggested by Polgar.

The "Doctor" in front of Polgar's name does not stand for doctor of medicine, he earned degrees in psychology and economics in his native Hungary.

After practicing hypnosis for 35 years Polgar is convinced of its potentialities in the field of medicine.

In 1947, when his wife gave birth to their second child, Dr. Polgar successfully used hypnosis in place of an anesthetic.

During the course of his 22 years in this country Polgar estimates he has hypnotized more than one million people, usually with their assistance.

The Hungarian performer's tools are relatively few, consisting of a pair of waving hands, a snapping finger and a wide-open pair of grayish-green eyes.

"Younger people are my best subjects and New Yorkers the most difficult," said Polgar, who performs before about 300 audiences a year.

Summer Lawn Sprinkling Limited By East Lansing

Following Detroit's example of the odd-even system of lawn sprinkling East Lansing will begin strict enforcement of their water use ordinance this week.

City manager John M. Patriarche said there is no water shortage but the demand has been taxing the production facilities of the water system.

Residents with even numbered houses are restricted to watering their lawns on only the even numbered days of the month and the odd-numbered residences on odd-numbered days.

The law was adopted June 13.

In Saudi Arabia, the air scoops for the ventilation of railroad passenger cars are put on the roof rather than underneath as in the United States, because blowing sand clog them when they are near the ground.
