Grace Becomes Princess

'Oui' Brings 138 Titles

MONACO (AP) — Grace Kelly, "princess" with tears in her eyes Wednesday and became the wife of Prince Rainier of Monaco.

The civil wedding ceremony was brief and dignified. Surrounded by families, friends and television cameras, the couple exchanged vows to Judge Marcel Portanier.

Miss Kelly and the prince sat in the throne room of Rainier's palace—she statue-still and he looking nervously—while Portanier recited the provisions of the Monacan marriage law.

Then Portanier, speaking slowly in French, said: "Miss Grace Patricia Kelly, do you consent to take as your husband, His Serene Highness Prince Rainier III Grimaldi, here present?"

"Oui," Grace replied softly but firmly.

Portanier asked if Rainier consented to take Miss Kelly as his wife.

"Oui," answered the prince in a low voice.

Then both signed a book and Miss Kelly officially became Princess Grace de Monaco and holder of 138 titles.

They did not kiss as they rose to lead the procession from the room. Nor, said Grace afterward, did they likely to kiss in the church ceremony Thursday.

"It is seldom done," she said of kissing at civil ceremonies, and, she added, "often not in religious marriages either."

Despite the exhausting bustle of wedding preparations since her arrival here a bare week ago, Grace still could smile radiantly at her guests, beam into the glaring camera lights, and almost laugh at her tense new husband.

Grace and the prince sat about three feet apart on arm chairs upholstered in red silk. He was on the right, nearer the battery of cameras and hot floodlights.

On his right, to sign as witnesses, were his estranged mother and father, Prince Pierre and Princess Charlotte, and friends and notables of his realm.

To the left, near Grace, were her father and mother, John and Margaret Kelly, and their friends and relatives.

When she learned of the 138 titles, she gasped.

"Oh, no," she said, scanning the list of names offered her. "I've never seen them all in one place before."

Grace wore a rose beige silk suit.

Ten hours after their civil wedding the couple drove in the evening to Monaco's ornate opera house in their wedding gift Rolls-Royce.

In the opera house, richly dressed spectators stood, bowed and applauded as the couple entered the royal box, high above the audience. The prince and Grace bowed back.

After the show they went separate ways for the last time. The prince drove Grace back to the palace. He went on to his villa at St. Jean-Cap Ferrat, just outside Monaco.

Just before noon Thursday, Grace, wearing a fabulous white silk gown studded with pearls will take her marriage vows at the Roman Catholic cathedral amid all the pageantry her husband's realm can muster.

After more ceremonies, the prince and princess plan a Mediterranean honeymoon in Rainier's yacht.

"No one in any official capacity has approached me about the job," he said.

Approves $4 Thousand Budget

Congress Hands Out Bouquets

By SYLVIA DE STEIGER

Student Congressmen spent at least half of the humble one hour meeting Wednesday discussing, explaining and then passing three resolutions thanking, expressing gratitude, complimenting and congratulating individuals and organizations.

Since no new bills were introduced, congress proceeded to quickly pass three of the four bills introduced last week. These included the approval of a $4,000 spring term budget.

Three resolutions passed were introduced by Congressman Ed Quinones, Bronx, New York. Junior. They resolved that the All-University Student Government:

1. Thank the organizations which sponsored the recent visit of Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel for the NAACP, because of the "valuable knowledge and experience received" from Mr. Marshall.

The resolution also expressed indebtedness to Mr. Marshall for his "untiring efforts in enlightening students."

2. Congratulate the Inter-Dormitory Council of MSU and its delegates for its outstanding performance in representing Michigan State University at the Big 10 Residence Hall Council conference at Purdue University recently.

3. Congratulate the MSU debate team and the speech department for winning the "sweepstakes" trophy in the Phi Kappa Delta Debate Tournament.

The fourth resolution approved was introduced by Barry Grant, Detroit Junior. It resolved that government encourage the student body to donate to the armed forces blood drive May 11-14.

Since this money had been donated by local residents as well as students an faculty, congress decided it would be unfair and unwise to transfer this amount to a fund which would also help pay expenses for a student sponsored project.

Two other bills passed approved the Fresh-Soph Council's revised constitution and the extension of a final payment of a loan to Alpha Epsilon Rho, television honorary.

Air Force Secretary Apologizes

Forced Landing In Canada

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Air Force Donald Quarles today expressed regrets to Canadian Defense Minister Ralph Campney over an incident which followed the landing of a U.S. globe-master transport near Hamilton, Ont., Tuesday night. Quarles handled the matter by means of a personal telephone call to Ottawa.

The incident involved a Canadian newspaper photographer and an American Air Force officer who drew his pistol at one point to prevent the newsmen from getting too close to the damaged aircraft.

The Air Force, after checking with the Canadian commander of the Mount Hope, Ont., airport, said that about an hour after the accident two or more newsmen entered the field by means other than the regular entrances and approached the plane to photograph it.

The unnamed American lieutenant, one of three security guards posted around the aircraft with the approval of the airport commander, was said by the Air Force to have told newsmen "courteously that they could not take pictures" except from a distance. The assigned reason was danger that a spark from a flashlight might cause an explosion around the aircraft where the "fumes were very strong."

The Air Force version, supplied by the Canadian commander of the field, conceded that an argument ensued and that when the photographer went closer to the aircraft the lieutenant drew his pistol but did not point it at the photographer.

The official version of the incident said also that when the photographer asked the lieutenant to holster his gun, the officer did so.

In a written statement Quarles expressed "the extreme concern over any possibility of injuring the traditional good relations between the United States Air Force and the Canadian government and people."

Quarles pointed out that Air Force regulations specifically permit news reporters to photograph accidents involving American military aircraft.

The Air Force secretary added: See AIR FORCE, Page 6.

Democratic leaders, who are knowledgeable in advance that they were merely going through the motions, failed to get even a simple majority on their motion to override.

The roll call vote was 202 to override and 211 against. This left the leadership 74 votes short of the two-thirds majority needed to pass the measure over the President's objections.

The vote definitely killed the bill, no Senate action on the veto will be taken in view of the House vote.

Michigan's representatives in congress followed strict party lines. Voting to override the veto were the seven Democrats—Rep. Diggs, Dingell, Griffiths, Haysworth, Lesinski, Rabaut and Machrowicz.

Voting to sustain were 10 of the state's 11 Republican representatives — Bentley, Bennett, Cederberg, Dondoro, Ford, Hoffman, Klox, Johansen, Meador, and Thompson. Rep. Wolcott, Republican, did not vote.

"This is the end of it," said Rep. Cooley (D-MC), referring to prospects of any general farm legislation at this session of Congress. Cooley is chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

Republicans and other Democratic leaders, however, indicated they would continue to struggle with the politically important farm issue and might come up with something to help the farmers before Congress adjourns in midsummer.

Sen. Aiken of Vermont, senior Republican on the Senate Agricultural Committee, announced late Wednesday that more than 40 senators, including 31 Democrats, were joining in an effort to enact the separate soil bank bill requested by Eisenhower.

Eisenhower sent the farm bill back to the House without his signature Monday, declaring it would do harm to every agricultural region for the country and also to the interests of the consumers. He objected particularly to its provisions for high, rigid price supports for basic crops.

A total of 189 Democrats and 48 Republicans voted for the bill when it passed the House on a 237-181 roll call a week ago. The opposition was made up of 146 Republicans and 35 Democrats.

Wednesday's test found only 20 Republicans voting with 182 Democrats to override.

Good Word Offered By Nixon for Dems

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Nixon, who seldom had a good word for the Democrats, Wednesday night admitted that helping achieve "America's great prosperity."

He still gave Republicans the credit.

Nixon enraged Democrats, from President Truman on down with his 1952 and 1954 campaign speeches. He was partisan of the most vigorous.

None it was somewhat of a surprise for him when he made a speech Wednesday.

We know that, in all fairness, credit for America's great prosperity today must be shared by Democrats and Republicans, labor leaders and business executives, farmers and city folk.

The willingness to find merit in political opposition was in line with the speech with which President Eisenhower opened his re-election campaign Tuesday night.

U. S., Reds Agree On Atomic Agency

Draft Charter Goes to UN, Peaceful Purposes Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, Russia and 10 other nations Wednesday reached agreement on the text of a basic charter for a proposed international atomic energy agency.

The proposed agency would be designed to promote and foster the use of atomic energy for power, medical research and other peaceful purposes.

The draft charter will be presented for further consideration at a general international conference on peaceful uses of the atom to be held at United Nations headquarters in New York in September.

A communique announcing the agreement said that "while several delegations participating in this meeting reserved their positions on certain details, all delegations voted in favor of the statute as a whole."

Russia was reported to have made a substantial concession which facilitated the final agreement.

The Soviets were said to have given up their earlier insistence that the agency should be subject to the Big Power established in such a way as to give the U.N. Security Council.

The proposal for an international atomic energy agency was first made by President Eisenhower in a speech to the General Assembly of the U.N. in December 1953.

For a year and a half efforts to obtain Soviet co-operation were unproductive.

Officials did not immediately disclose whether the new agency as now projected would operate as a pool or as a clearing house. But earlier reports said the charter was so drafted that it could function in either manner.

As a clearing house it would receive requests for assistance in the development of atomic power from countries like those in Asia, the Middle East and pass them on to countries like the United States and Britain which would be able to fill the order.

The 12-nation group which put the charter draft into its now agreed form was composed, in part, of the atomic powers and in part of countries like Australia and Belgium which produce the raw materials of atomic energy in the form of raw uranium.

An overcrowded classroom in the Home Economics building shows the need of expansion. A proposal to appropriate $11,000 for an addition will come before the State Legislature in May.

Middle-Age Bulge Seen In Home Ec Building

Michigan State's Home Economics Building, now 31 years old, is developing a middle-aged bulge at the seams.

To remedy the situation, an $11,000 capital outlay item has been included in the proposed budget for the Michigan government, which will be considered by the State Legislature when it reconvenes in May.

The $11,000 would pay for the first plans for enlarging and remodeling the present Home Ec Building.

When the five-story building was originally constructed there were 350 home economics majors. No non-majors were enrolled in any home ec courses.

Today, 925 majors and 2,000 non-majors crowd into the building from 8 in the morning until 9:30 at night. Last term's enrollment was so large that it necessitated the use of the food laboratories for the full 13-hour period.

Although classrooms and laboratories are needed, the most serious problem is the lack of faculty office space and graduate research facilities must also be expanded.

The proposed addition will extend eastward from the present building and almost double present floor space. It must meet the university's needs for the next five or 10 years.

Spurring the expansion plans is the increased shortage of home economists throughout the country. Last year, Michigan State had to turn down nearly 300 requests for home economics graduates.

These graduates are needed not only for extension work and business and home economics research, but also within the education field itself at the junior high, high school, and college levels.

Also suffering are the adult education programs operated by the state home economics extension staff. Three state vacancies and 17 county vacancies are expected this year.

Navy Unwraps Model Cockpit For Bailing Out

CHICAGO (AP) — The Navy Wednesday took the wraps off a model of an ejectable cockpit capsule designed to permit survival plane bailouts at several thousand miles an hour.

The airtight cockpit, which has reached the development stage, will be interchangeable on fighters, bombers, interceptors and possibly even the atomic-powered planes of the future.

Because of the tearing action of rushing air, 300 to 400 miles an hour has been the survival limit for over-the-side bailouts. The development of ejection seats and pressure suits has boosted this limit to around the speed of sound.

The ejection cockpit is designed to be shot free from the plane frame by an explosive charge. It can be brought to earth—or sea—by its own parachute.

Minors Dying Via Radio?

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK (AP)—The president of a minor league baseball league who watched it dwindle from eight clubs to six, and finally wither and die, puts the blame largely on radio and its tendency to make the fans major-league minded.

Judge Emmet Hart, president of the Cotton States League, which folded after the 1955 season, in a letter giving his views on the troubles of minor league operation, lists other factors, but radio is the major culprit.

"The failure of the Cotton States League was not any sudden affair but the result of a gradual decline," he says.

"The scarcity of players due to the Korean War necessitated the use of an increased number of veterans and, while attendance held up very well, it was not sufficient to meet the increased cost of operation and from that time on all the clubs lost from $10,000 to $25,000 annually and after a while the people tire of meeting the deficits.

"The major cause of the failure of the league was the same as that of other leagues in the lower classifications and that is radio. With the area being saturated with major league broadcasts the people become major league minded.

"The sportswriters and sportscasters, of course, have to give the people what they want and consequently the scores in the Cotton States were given and the rest of the column or period was devoted to major league news.

"It reached the point where the only baseball discussed was major league baseball with no interest whatsoever in the local clubs."

Other factors sharing the blame to a lesser degree are listed by Hart. They include the hesitancy of the people to leave their air-conditioned, television-equipped homes to fight the insects and suffer the heat of ball parks; the inroads of competing sports such as golf, boating, swimming and fishing, and even the supreme court segregation decision resulting in controversy over the pros and cons of using Negro players, resulting in resentment and loss of attendance either way.

"Finally," he adds, "for several years after World War II there was not a high school or sandlot team in the area, with the result that patronage was largely from older people.

"With all the kids now playing ball from the Little League to the American Legion, I anticipate a great revival of interest in the game within the near future. The trouble with this is that the various plants occupy space too valuable to remain idle and will probably be dismantled. If this happens the present cost of replacing them will be prohibitive.

Coach KobsIndoor Practice
Poses Problems

By JERRY ROBBINS

Although the Spartan baseball squad has been hammered by bad weather conditions, Coach John Kobs is still impressed by the condition of his club.

"Our team is rounding into very fine shape," he stated. "The hitters are hitting the ball better and the team looks a lot steeper in the field."

Kobs pointed out that outfielder Frank Franchi has been "red hot" at the plate.

"He has been our leading hitter in practice games lately and has looked very good."

Reserve catcher Barry Fullerton has also been hitting the long ball. Twice during an intra-squad game last week Fullerton slammed out round-trippers. "He is showing a great deal of power," Kobs said.

Jimmy Sack and Ray Collard have continued to hit the ball well and shortstop Earl Morrall is also improving.

The Spartans were forced indoors Monday and Tuesday, and practiced outside for a limited time Wednesday.

"It's a problem keeping the pitchers in shape while inside," Kobs stated.

"When we're outside they're able to throw in practice games and get the experience of pitching hitters. In the fieldhouse, however, they're unable to do this."

The outfielders have also suffered due to the limited amount of practice in the outer gardens. "Inside the light is not the same and of course they can't acustom themselves to the winds they get outdoors," Kobs pointed out.

Gary Warner is still suffering from a strained leg which he suffered when he caught his foot on the bag while rounding the bases during a practice game.

Pitcher Jon Davis hasn't been able to throw outside since early last week. Davis complained of an aching arm after he received shots from his physician.

He has worked out inside and Kobs reported that he should be in condition for Saturday's tilt.

Third sacker Bob Bird has not suited up since the Detroit contest. Bird received notice Wednesday that his father had passed away. He immediately left school to join his family in Romulus.

Filling in at third have been catcher Al Luce and reserve in-fielder Dick Schiesel. However, Bird is expected to rejoin the team and be ready for action by Saturday.

A Proven Veteran

Good Season Seen for Collard

By HARDY CHRIST

Ray Collard, 21-year-old Flint senior, is one of the Spartan baseball team's top performers. An outfielder, he has already been awarded two varsity letters and is heading toward a third this season.

Collard is a product of Flint Northern High School where he starred in both baseball and basketball, receiving two letters in each sport. His high school baseball coach was Burt Smith, who is now serving as line coach for the Michigan State footballers.

Last summer he spent his vacation in the north while playing on a baseball team in Kentville, Nova Scotia.

Collard's performances on the 1955 Spartan nine were very impressive. He batted .289 and had 56 total bases which included four doubles, five triples and three homers. He was second on the team in runs batted in with 23.

On the Southern trip this spring he led the Spartans in almost every batting department and was an important cog in all of the team's victories.

No one game really stands out in his mind as one that he will remember always, but such games as the one against South Carolina on the recent spring trip are not easy to forget. In that contest he collected two home runs and a triple.

Collard has his own philosophy concerning reasons why many Michigan State players continue to rank at the top of the Big 10 individual statistics every year, such as the fact that last year both George Smith and Bob Powell led the conference in hitting, and Dick Hiskowski led all Big 10 pitchers.

Here at State we have better hitters because they are continually facing top-notch pitchers who play in intra-squad games where we don't have a regular game scheduled," stated Ray. "And the pitchers are better because they are throwing against good hitters every day."

Ray doesn't have any definite plans for the future. He would like to enter professional baseball after graduation, but realizes that he will have to spend two years in the armed forces first.

Available Scholarships Listed

Application deadlines for 1956-57 scholarships has been set for May 11. Those applying for summer school scholarships must also notify the scholarship office by May 11.

Students with entrance scholarships, who plan on attending the summer session, must notify the office one month in advance of enrollment for the session so that it can be arranged through the records.

Before a student is eligible for a scholarship he must have completed three terms at MSU and be of sophomore standing. A transfer student may apply after he has completed one term at MSU. Third term freshmen are also eligible to apply.

All awards are to be put on a yearly basis, and all recipients must reapply during the designated dates for the following year.

The types of scholarships offered are the superior student and the Heiman awards. In one out-of-state students are eligible for the superior student scholarship which pays the tuition fees.

The Heiman awards are given only to Michigan resident junior and senior students. The awards offer $50 a term. Students already holding one scholarship are eligible to hold and apply for the Heiman award.

In order to qualify for scholarship application a candidate must have an academic standing of at least 2.6. He should have shown leadership ability in class, situation, extra-curricular activities and part-time employment.

Applicants must also be in financial need. The scholarships are designed to benefit those students who have exhibited academic ability and leadership, and who would find it difficult to remain in school without some assistance.

It is expected that all scholarship recipients will utilize careful budgeting of their expenditures, and that they will forego luxuries in order to attain their primary goal—a university education. It is also expected that all applicants will be earning a portion of their college expenses.

All candidates are judged on a comparative basis.

Students who have made application for financial aid will be notified as to the results of their consideration by the scholarship committee on or before July 1.

The program has been arranged by J. Murray Barbour, music professor, who will also comment on the various numbers.

A great deal of fascinating music, from the historical point of view, was written during the early days in America. Sunday's concert will include such early American composers as William Billings, Alexander Reinagle and Francis Hopkinson.

Of interest are the "Fuguing Tunes," some of which will be sung along with two Moravian Anthems, by the Madrigal Singers, directed by Richard Klaus, assistant professor of music.

The "Sonata in E Major" by Alexander Reinagle will be played by Ernst Victor Wolf, pianist, and Joan Pierce, soprano, will sing four songs of the period.

Romeo Tata and James Niblock, violists; Lyman Bodman and Helen Niblock, violins; and Louis Potter, Jr., celloist will play the "String Quintet in D Major" by John Frederick Peter to conclude the program.
