All-About Confusion In the Bookshelves

There's been a lot of grumbling lately about the state of the library assigned reading room, mainly on the theme that when a person gets up enough energy to go over to the library the books should be readily accessible, not lost, strayed or stolen as they so often seem to be.

A variation of the theme is the complaint on the often long lines at the checkout desk and the search-and-seizure policy sometimes in force.

The assigned reading materials were moved to the ground floor of the library at the beginning of last term from their quarters on the second and third floors. This term there have been three changes in procedure.

All of these changes have added to the confusion. The stacks were previously closed to students and call slips had to be filled out for the desired book. The call slips were abandoned and the system of filling out a slip from the back of the book was tried. Finally the stacks were reopened.

When the library was planned, the assigned reading was divided between the two rooms on the second and third floor so that books would be near the collections that they came from. A very convenient plan but it didn't work out. Why?

Last year the assigned reading room had a circulation of a quarter million—more than all the other departments of the library combined. Circulation, which stood at 150,000 when the assigned readings were put on the second and third floors, climbed to 242,000 last year and is expected to hit 300,000 this year. There are 15,000 books housed in this department.

For consideration of space alone, it was necessary to move the collection. Increases in the amount of books handled and in circulation were planned for, but not to their present extent.

Librarians lay the abnormal increase in the use of the assigned readings by the instructors. They anticipated that with the new facilities the faculty would encourage their students to browse through the appropriate department and select their own readings. Instead almost all instructors have increased their use of the assigned reading room, making the selections there almost additional textbooks.

This increase meant that money had to be spent not only on the additional books ordered but on an increased personnel, so there were also big budgetary considerations involved in the move.

This term's experiment with closed stacks was brought about by the students themselves, according to library spokesmen. Previously several readers would take several books off the shelf at one time and either leave them on tables when they left or shove them incorrectly. All of these practices tied up books that others could have been reading.

Further, students who couldn't find the books they wanted in the proper places, reported to their instructors that they were stolen. Actually, less than two percent of all the books housed in the department were stolen and some of these have been returned.

To ration the amount of books one student would have at a time and to have a check on where the books were located, the stacks were closed at the beginning of the term. However because of the enormous circulation volume, this was found to be impractical and the stacks were reopened.

The main problem that the room faces now would seem to be the congestion at the sign-out table. This might be partially eliminated by the installation of a turn-style system. However, so far no funds have been appropriated for such a project.

The overcrowded assigned reading room would be improved if the faculty took up the library's plan of using assigned readings merely as a supplement to textbooks and encouraging their students to browse through books which are contained in the departmental libraries.

Ike-Benson Farm Program Receiving Its Just Deserts

By RICHARD McRANE

The Eisenhower-Benson farm program for 1958 is perhaps one of the most short-sighted pieces of legislation proposed seriously by any administration in the history of this country. It was immediately suspect on when Benson presented it to the Senate Agriculture Committee last Friday and the prospect for better treatment in the House are dim.

The program, in brief, is supposed to shift the emphasis from price supports and production control, to a search for expanding markets. In itself this is a noble idea, but the points against it, in the form proposed, are many and damning.

The expanding market concept itself is a problem. Although finding a market for all that is produced is the ultimate answer in agriculture, it is not open to easy solution. Obviously, the United States itself consumes all that it needs. No one really suffers from hunger in this country. A program of supplying extra food on a bonus system to needy families might make some surplus but it is not a marketing answer by any means.

Must Go Abroad

This means that the market must be found abroad, and immediately diplomatic problems set in. All the staple crops supported in this country are also produced abroad, and as in the case of cotton and wheat, some of the foreign nations have severe surplus situations of their own.

While the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations was stating just two years ago that the world as a whole was no more than three days ahead of starvation, virtually nothing can be done toward supplying underdeveloped countries like India with grain. Unloading the American surplus into a market of that kind means, by and large, that

Letters Old Saying Gets Another Origin Claim

To the Editor:
Apposited to the debate in your columns concerning Hobson's Choice, I call your attention to the following which I found in my odd moments of reading here in Cambridge. It is from "The Charm of Cambridge" by S. C. Roberts. The conduit (a stream through Cambridge) will for all time be associated with Thomas Hobson, the university carrier immortalized both in Milton's epiphany and in the Spectator.

"Mr. Hobson," wrote Steele, "kept a stable of 40 good cattle—always ready and fit for traveling, but when a man came for a horse he was led into the stable where there was great choice, but he obliged him to take the horse which stood next to the stable door, so that every customer was alike well-served according to his chance, and every horse ridden with the same justice; from whence it became a proverb when what ought to be your election was forced upon you, to say, Hobson's choice."

Originally "Hobson's Conduit" stood on Market Hill, but since 1855 it has stood for all to see at the end of Brookside near the Botanical Gardens.

Announces U. S. Ahead in Missiles

Officials Believe Moon Accessible

WASHINGTON (AP)—Military experts have told Congress the United States could sustain an initial surprise attack by the Soviet Union and still recover sufficiently to annihilate Russia.

The experts believe this country is ahead of Russia in the missile field and can get pretty close to sending a probe to the moon by the end of 1958 if Congress is willing to spend enough money.

Presidential Race Held Ydrigoras Leading In Guatemalan Vote

GUATEMALA (AP)—Gen. Miguel Ydrigoras Fuentes, a 62-year-old rightist, held a strong lead Monday in the race for President of Guatemala on the basis of unofficial count returns.

The unofficial counts also showed his two closest rivals were running almost even and there were indications Congress would have to elect one of the two final front runners, President.

Ydrigoras said he expected Congress to elect him. Otherwise, he warned, there would be trouble.

"I would not make trouble," he said, "but the people would."

Charges Riot Incitement Two Klansmen Indicted By North Carolina Jury

LIMBERTON, N.C. (AP)—A Robeson County Grand Jury Monday indicted two Ku Klux Klansmen, and others allegedly of their group "unknown to the state," on charges of inciting a riot in connection with a Klan rally which was broken up Saturday night by Indian gunfire.

Solicitor (Prosecutor) E. Maurice Braswell issued a capias for the arrest of the Rev. James Cole of Marion, S.C., self-styled leader of KKK groups in both Carolinas.

Superior Court Judge Clawson L. Williams recommended that bond of $1,000 be set for Cole if and when he is apprehended. Under a capias, Cole cannot be extradited, but South Carolina lawmen could arrest him and hold him for North Carolina officers, or Cole could be arrested if he enters North Carolina again.

James Garland Martin, Reidsville, N.C., tobacco plant worker, is free under $500 bail on charges of drunkenness and carrying concealed weapons.

Sheriff Malcolm McLeod said he called the Rev. Cole at Marion, S.C., Monday and asked him to appear here at noon today to post $1,000 bond. The Sheriff said Cole told him he'd been warned he'd be killed if he returned to North Carolina, but McLeod rejoined that if Cole returned under arrest he'd be under the Sheriff's protection until he posted bond.

The indictments charge that Cole, Martin and others planned to hold the advertised rally near Maxton last Saturday night, to which the general public allegedly was invited, and that they had been warned "their prior conduct and pronouncements against the Indians of Robeson County had incited and inflamed" the Indians.

Prof Pens Story On Noted Author

The interesting story of the American newspaperman and author, Henry George, who sparked the rise of Britain's Socialist Party, is told by Dr. Elwood P. Lawrence, professor of English, in a new book, "Henry George in the British Isles," just published by the MSU Press.

The work tells of the evangelical spirit in which George's book, "Progress and Poverty" was written, how the book influenced a social movement which aroused the British public and finally was thwarted by external forces after near-success.

Dr. Lawrence, a member of the faculty since 1927, did much of his research in England while on leave from Michigan State. He is currently preparing a book on the political and social satire of the famous Gilbert and Sullivan operettas.

Threat in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A stick of dynamite, uncapped and unfrused, was found in an empty locker at integrated Central High School Monday. Supt. Virgil Blossom called it a weapon of terror "to force us to close the school."

The dynamite, relatively harmless in its unfused, uncapped state, was found after an hour and a half search by city police and Federalized National Guardsmen. An anonymous telephone call to a local radio station manager, Ray Bartlett, started the search.

Bartlett said the caller asked for him by name and told him there were two sticks of dynamite planted in the basement of the 2,000-student school "in a locker." No second stick was found.

The search for the dynamite was carried out while some students were attending classes and others were lunching in the basement cafeteria, just a few yards from where the stick was found.

SUSPENSION STORY—Chuck Steger, M.E., 32, finding dynamic properties of new Air Spring developed by Van Peltburg, I.I. A nationally recognized authority on suspension systems, Mr. Peltburg directs Steger and Suspension Development Group of GM's Engineering Staff, helps guide Chuck in his professional career.

Because engineering is a profession at GM

-we offer you a career—not a job

ONE REASON engineering standards at General Motors are so high is that GM recognizes engineering as a profession. And the men who engineer the many different products made by General Motors are respected for the profession they practice.

That is why, when you are invited to join General Motors as an engineer, you don't simply take a job—you start a career.

It is a career that is rewarding both professionally and financially—starting on your first day of association with General Motors at any one of its 33 divisions and 126 plants in 70 cities and 19 states.

During your early days at GM, for example, you work with a senior engineer who guides your career along professional lines.

You are also actively encouraged to pursue your education towards an advanced degree. For we at General Motors recognize that, in doing so, you will become more valuable to us and the engineering profession.

You are given the opportunity to obtain professional recognition through participation in engineering societies, forums, presentation of technical papers, winning of patents and other recognition of your accomplishments.

And you are also encouraged to take an active role in your community's affairs—because a truly professional man is a good citizen as well as a good engineer.

All this is for a reason—and a good one. Many of the men who will fill the key positions at GM in the future are the young engineers joining GM today. This is not theory, it is fact. For 14 of our 33 Vice Presidents are engineers, 23 of our 42 Division General Managers are engineers, too.

Today we are looking for young engineers, such as you—who may fill these positions tomorrow. The rewards—both professional and financial—are substantial. If you feel you have the ability, write us. It could be the most important letter of your life.

June graduates!

A General Motors Representative will be on hand to answer questions about job opportunities with G.M.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—West Coach Alex Hannum is doing some "hard thinking" about how to win the National Basketball Assn. All-Star game tonight over an East squad which he admits is superior.

Glen Chapin paced the Emmons 3 squad with 10 points, all of them field goals, while Al Muta was top man for the losers with eight points, 1/2 of them coming on free throws.

More Rivals In Davis Cup Competition

MELBOURNE (AP)—The United States will be faced by its way through a larger list of rivals this year in the American zone of the Davis Cup tennis competition.

Six countries which had applied for the European zone could not be accommodated in that zone. These are Argentina, Brazil, Lebanon, New Zealand, Norway and Romania.

Normally, Mexico, Canada and the British West Indies are the only competitors in the Yanks' zone, but they have a challenge round since Mexico has been invited to the European zone.

The draw for the European zone was made Monday by Don Ferguson, president of the Lawn Tennis Assn. of Australia. Thirty nations were invited, but there was room for only 16.

Bvies were given to Italy, Great Britain, Spain, Mexico, France, Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Brazil, Hungary, Germany, the Netherlands, Chile vs. Turkey, Italy vs. Spain.

Cagers 15th in AP Poll

W. Virginia Maintains Top Rank

Kansas Climbs Back into 2nd

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.—West Virginia's Mountain State basketball team will take over the top ranking in the AP poll this season, ranked up from 14th straight last week and took a firmer grip on first place in the weekly Associated Press ranking poll.

The Associated Press ranking poll is taken 10 days off from the season while the two major basketball associations, the Missouri Athletic Club and the Missouri Athletic Club, scheduled Pittsburgh 71-50 victory over Kansas on Jan. 17. It was then a decisive victory after a squeaker against Villanova Jan. 8. They return to action next Saturday against Miami.

In the voting of 97 sports writers and broadcasters in the AP poll, West Virginia drew 71 votes for first place and 13 for second, Kansas returning to second place in the balloting with the return of Will Chambliss to the lineup, drew seven first place votes. Cincinnati drew seven.

The point scoring on the basis of 10 for each first-place vote, nine for second, etc., placed the Mountaineers' domination of the poll. West Virginia received 925 points out of a possible 970. Kansas drew a second-place total of 728 while Kansas State took third with 624 points.

Kansas, after losing two games, Chamberlain's injury-free absence, bounced back to top Colorado and Missouri in Kansas State, scored last night, knocked off Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Another switch in the standings saw Cincinnati's Bearcats move ahead of idle San Francisco into fourth place. While the Sox were resting on their 12-1 record, Cincinnati routed Houston and St. Louis in the tough Missouri Valley Conference and set their season record 12-2.

Cleveland, taking over the Atlantic Coast Conference lead as North Carolina suffered its third defeat and its second conference loss moved up from eighth to fifth in the ratings. North Carolina suffered a corresponding loss in Kentucky ninth, and Wake Forest 10th, retained their spot.

The standings with points on a 100-0-0-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis are as follows:

West Virginia (74) (13-0)	925
Kansas (68) (12-1)	728
Kansas State (52) (11-2)	624
Cincinnati (42) (12-2)	610
San Francisco (31) (13-3)	511
Missouri (21) (13-2)	349
Oklahoma State (21) (11-3)	336
North Carolina (11) (12-1)	287
Kentucky (12-3)	273
Wake Forest (10-3)	235
St. Louis (10-4)	197
South Carolina (10-3)	181
St. John's (10-3)	165
Missouri State (9) (11-3)	157
SHRIMAN STATE (9-3)	140
Tennessee (11-2)	127
Dartmouth (11-3)	126
Wichita (11-2)	118
Arkansas (10-3)	112

An irate fan smashes referee, John Thomas, on the canvas following the fifth round of the Alvarez Gutierrez fight at the Olympic Auditorium in Los Angeles. The unscheduled action happened as some fans became enraged when Moran, groggy, stumbled across the ring and secured a right to Gutierrez' chin after the fourth round ended. The fan waited a round, then attacked the referee following the fifth. He was pulled off by handlers and police. Moran lost on a TKO when he was unable to get off his stool for the sixth.

NEW YORK (AP)—Leading National League pitchers issued a loud lament Monday over the Dodgers' 250-foot left field fence in the Los Angeles Coliseum and blasted what they called a growing tendency to build tall fences at ballparks.

"It's the biggest fence I ever heard of," said Johnny Antonelli, the San Francisco Giants' ace pitcher, "and it's a disgrace for the National League. Staff, burned the situation [in Cleveland]."

Complaints also were heard from Warren Spahn of the world champion Milwaukee Braves and other pitchers, past and present, who said the game was turning into a "batters' paradise and pitchers' nightmare."

Spahn, who won 31 games for the Braves last season, said he believed the Los Angeles park will affect the fastest pitcher more than the slower ball thrower, of which he is one.

"I don't like to see the Dodgers' fans go to the park and not see the ball in play," Spahn said. "I don't like to see the fans go to the park and not see the ball in play."

More and more, it's being put on hitting strength, and I think it's a shame. A pitcher has to change his entire style in a park like this. I am in favor of uniform parks, wherever possible, and I personally like to see all of them measure about the same. Milwaukee's which is around 320 feet, and the Dodger's which is 250 feet.

Kristof said the height of the Coliseum should give the Dodger a distinct advantage in the park. It's ridiculous to build every park has good fielding but the Dodger's have the best. It's going to be tough on pitchers.

Like baseball, Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies refused to be too concerned about the short outfield target.

"I don't worry particularly about the fence," Roberts, who's called the center ball king because he has given up more home runs in one season (46) than any other pitcher, said.

"I'm happy the Dodgers have found a place to play, and we have to remember that is an emergency. I'm just that I don't want to see some uniformity in ball parks, but I'm not worrying about the emphasis now being given to hitting places of the game."

If the fans want home runs, let them have on in every game, there's nothing to be done about it, he said.

Akins, DeMarco Meet Again in 'Must' Match

BOSTON (AP)—Virgil Akins and Tony De Marco, two of the welterweight division's most explosive punchers, meet tonight in a scheduled 15-round bout which shapes up as a repeat performance of their terrific battle three months ago.

Akins, a 29-year-old slouchy decision in St. Louis, will be defending the Massachusetts version of the world's 147-pound championship which he won by knocking out De Marco in the 14th round last October.

De Marco, who turned 36 a week ago, finds himself at the crossroads, needing a decisive triumph to stay among the big contenders, and to continue as one of Boston's greatest ring attractions.

Akins also has plenty to lose—a probable shot at the title to be recognized by the National Boxing Ass'n.

The NBA recently gave title sanction to a bout between Leo Logan and Vince Martinez, who defeated Gil Turner for the opportunity, and ruled that the Logan-Martinez winner must give Akins, an any fighter who beats Akins, a "championship fight."

Despite Akins' impressive performance in knocking out De Marco in their first meeting, the boxmakers have installed the Boston slinger a 7-5 favorite for the return engagement at the Boston Garden.

The reasoning apparently is that De Marco was winning the first fight until he ran into a

Bobsledder Is Reinstated

GARMISCH PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany (AP)—Stanley Benham of Lake Placid, N.Y., returns to international bobsledding after a three-year suspension later this week in the World Bobsled Championships.

The veteran American pilot, who bobsleds virtually every North American bobsled in one of the 19-competitor who will be starting Saturday and Sunday in Garmisch's broadhouse continuing through Feb. 2.

Benham was suspended for three years by the International Bobsled Federation in January, 1955, after he had withdrawn from the International Meet because of a controversy with Don Fox, then an International official.

Benham was offered reinstatement if he would apologize to certain officials; he made no request.

Ike Tells of Security Strength

Launches 1958 Drive For GOP

'Keep Security Out of Politics'

CHICAGO (AP)—President Eisenhower, launching the 1958 drive for a GOP Congress, told the nation Monday America's security has been "markedly strengthened" during his five years in office.

In an address prepared for a $100-a-plate party dinner and for a coast-to-coast television-radio audience, the President pledged his administration "will keep the nation's defenses strong" to deal with the Soviet threat.

And Eisenhower, who started his sixth year as President Monday, called for election in November of a GOP "team of all-stars" in culmination of the party drive to take over control of Congress from the Democrats.

But even while the President was taking issue with the Democrats who contend America's defenses are becoming weaker under his administration, Eisenhower insisted the matter of United States security—and differences over it—must be kept out of politics. Eisenhower, speaking in Chicago's International Amphitheater, where he was nominated in 1952, put it this way:

"Our first objective—security and a just peace—is not a partisan or political matter. Americans must never and will never let the issue of security and peace become a pawn in anyone's political chess game."

In his speech the President took no note of Democratic criticism of his defense policies in this dawning space era. But he said in looking back at his five years in office:

"The nation's security has been guarded and markedly strengthened. Prosperity has risen from peak to peak. A record-breaking tax reduction was granted. The economic security of all our people has risen."

President Hannah Meeting in Cuba

President John A. Hannah is currently meeting with the Permanent Joint Board of Defense at the U.S. Naval base in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Dr. Hannah is chairman of the U.S. portion of the joint U.S.-Canadian Board.

The purpose of the board, which has five U.S. members, including Dr. Hannah, a representative from the three major armed services and the State Department, is to coordinate the defense efforts of the two countries.

Dean Edward A. Carlin of the Basic College announced that the Lansing student's name would be inscribed on a special plaque which hangs in the Basic College building.

Named on the plaque are the 12 students who have achieved perfect academic records during two years of Basic College work since 1944 when the college was instituted.

Soms, 19, is a veteran stamp collector, likes to play tennis and says he has no special system for getting those top marks.

The Lansing student, a physical science major, is not worried at all about becoming the "unlucky" 13th on the Basic College honor list.
