Syria Set To Merge With Egypt

Nasser Will Head United Arab State

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—The Syrian cabinet today gave final approval to union of Syria and Egypt.

President Shukri Kuwaily, expected to be vice president of the new state under Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser, said reporters "God be praised, everything's completed."

Syrian Premier Sabri Assali said the approval was given at a two-hour session of the cabinet presided over by Kuwaily, a veteran Arab nationalist who served time in prison for his role that helped bring Syria to independence.

"Agreement has been reached on all stages of the union and the necessary steps to realize it," Assali declared.

He added that the cabinet will meet again today to set a formal date for the proclamation which would link Egypt, astride the Nile and Suez, with Syria, a key in the land bridge connecting Europe, Africa and Asia.

Assali predicted the proclamation would be issued within the next few days. There was speculation it would be timed before the decisions of the current Baghdad pact conference in Turkey have time to cool.

Kuwaily and members of his government are expected to fly to Cairo for the joint proclamation. Foreign Minister Salah Bar returned from Cairo Monday with a final draft for merging the states, and it was presented to Tuesday's cabinet session.

Earlier Kuwaily had been quoted saying he was ready to merge, See ARAB MERGER, Page 3

In Farmers' Week Event

Frosh Coed Takes First In Fitting, Showing Contest

By RAY PIERCE

Carol Payne, 18, pretty, pre-freshman from Galien, took the measure of more than 60 competitors in the Little International livestock fitting and showing contest Monday night with an Angus heifer.

Carol said she was "very much surprised" to win the grand champion honors, although she has had the grand champion at the Detroit junior livestock show and other 4-H Club showing events.

The second spot, reserve champion, went to Fred Sher, 19, a short course student from Coldwater. Other finalists were Gary Seavers, Jonesville junior, and Gene Kanitz, short course student from Alma.

Farmers' Week got going in earnest Tuesday with farmers showing up in considerable numbers to listen to specialists and see exhibits of research.

Lee McConnell, of the Indiana Michigan Electric company, gave his Farmers' Week audience a brief look into the crystal ball by mentioning "disposable" farm buildings of the future.

McConnell said the farmstead of the future may be only a few paved lots surrounded by plastic radiators held up by air pressure created by fans.

Among other speeches was one of rather startling statistics by C. E. Staff of the Bakelite company. Staff said the use of a plastic film as a mulch around vegetables can increase the yield from 50 to 200 percent for some plant types.

As part of the sugar beet program, Dean Thomas Cowden of the College of Agriculture presented Outstanding Grower awards to nine sugar beet producers.

The top producer of the nine was Irving Lavoie of Erie, with 23.3 tons per acre. Second was Raymond Veltengruber of Frankenthum who had a 22.3 ton average per acre.

Entertainment highlight of today's program will be the "Academy of Youth" 4-H amateur talent program on the stage at the Aud at 3:15.

A special program at 1:30 p.m. in 206 Horticulture bldg. will be devoted to Gibberellins, the much celebrated miracle substance which speeds the growth of plants in spectacular fashion.

Counterspy Jolts Listeners

By ED SCOTT

Boris Morros, who for 12 years played the role of a Red spy for the FBI, held a near capacity crowd spellbound with some telling facts about Communism, as he lectured at the Aud Tuesday night.

Morros, who during his entire 12 years as a counterspy refused to accept pay from either the Russians or the U.S., warned the audience of the Communist ruthlessness, and lack of principle.

He told how the Communists had killed two of his brothers and a sister in order to "laugh at him up." They then mentioned it to him as a matter of ordinary conversation.

Morros said the first lesson the Communists had tried to teach him was what he termed "self criticism" from a Communist point of view. "This means, he said, one has no father, no mother, no feelings of emotion whatsoever."

He emphasized, at the same time, that it was within this very philosophy that Communist weakness lay. He said the Communists are perfectly willing to follow this principle of self-criticism, so long as it doesn't involve their own skin. But when it does, said Morros, they are usually not capable of the test.

The extent of Communist infiltration in the U.S. was also emphasized by the ex-Kremlin baiter. He said 55 firms in the United States are Red covers.

Morros related a conversation with the second in command in the Russian Secret Police in which he was told that 53 percent of the people the Russians send to the U.S., including students, actors, etc., have already been indoctrinated by Russian Secret Police experts.

Further stressing the point, he emphasized that he had met the chief of the Russian Secret Police in the U.S. and not in Russia.

Asked if he feared for his life, Morros said, "In this country we are safe, thank God." When he said he had so much confidence in the security of this country that he was not afraid of anything, the audience burst into spontaneous applause.

Morros said, "We'll have our satellite soon. Khrushchev only put his up for political reasons," and added, "and he won't be around long."

In reply to a question concerning the chances of the Communist party losing power, Morros said, "I expect a counter-revolution by the Russian youth sometime in the next three or four years."

Boris Morros, ex-counterspy who lectured at the Aud Tuesday, chats before the program with Dr. Lawrence Roger, head of the department of agricultural economics and chairman of the evening, and Dr. Wilson B. Paul, lecture-concert series director.

Nikita Wonders:

Why Aren't You Turnink in Your Cows?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In proposing to take their private cows away from Soviet collective farmers, Nikita Khrushchev is running the risk of incurring the displeasure of Russian peasants, but he may get away with it.

This has been tried on several occasions—always with dire results in the form of a sharp reduction in the cattle population. Peasants slaughtered their animals rather than surrender them to the collective farms for nothing or next to nothing.

Yet Khrushchev, who knows the psychology of the Russian peasant very well, may be able to carry out this measure successfully where Stalin failed miserably. He may manage to sugar coat the pill sufficiently with material incentives to gain acceptance of the program.

Khrushchev made his proposal that collective farmers turn their private cows over to the collective farms in a speech in Minsk last week which was published in Moscow Saturday.

He made two basic points in arguing for the suggestion—that privately owned cows produce less milk per head than collective farm herds and that it's too much to expect Russian women who look after the cows to take care of them and their families as well after returning from a hard day's work in the fields.

There are a lot of cows involved in this proposed transfer. On Oct. 1, 1955, out of 29 million cows in the U.S.S.R. over 12 million were privately owned by collective farmers, compared to about 11 million in the collective farm herds.

There are a lot of peasants involved in the transfer too. In late 1955 about 60 percent of the 20 million peasant households on collective farms owned one cow of their own.

This was an important mainstay of their household economy giving them not only milk and other dairy products but providing a bit of cash from the sale of milk.

Air Force Launches Satellite's Rocket

Nike Sites Disclosed By Army

Installations Due For Use in June

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army disclosed Tuesday night the first four locations for its new Nike Hercules anti-aircraft guided missile, which can carry an atomic warhead.

They will be in the New York, Washington-Baltimore, Chicago and Philadelphia areas. Due to go into use in June, the Hercules installations will be at present Nike Ajax sites.

Nike Hercules is a 100-mile range missile for blasting enemy bombers with other conventional or atomic explosives.

An Army statement said:

"Nike Hercules will give the North American Defense Command, of which the Army Air Defense Command is the United States Army element, its first operational surface-to-air missile which can use an atomic warhead."

The Air Force also has announced it will build the first four of a series of sites for launching its long range interceptor missile, the Bomarc.

The Bomarc has a range about double that of the Hercules and can work effectively at more than 60,000 feet altitude.

Construction of the four Hercules sites, the Army announced, will be the beginning of a nationwide program of converting the Army's surface-to-surface missiles sites to the dual capability of firing both Nike Army Hercules sites go into operation in June.

Rushes talked to Water Carnival committee members, left to right, seated, April Cameron, Grosse Pointe junior; Jeannine Blutz, Fremont, Ohio, junior, and Kim McKiver, Brimley senior, in the Union Tuesday night. Over 500 rushed for positions on early committees and about 150 will be selected by the end of the week, according to Miss McKiver.

267 Use New Offices

Record Number Seniors Jam Placement Bureau

Two hundred and sixty-seven seniors crammed their way into the plush new offices of the Placement Bureau Tuesday to set a new record for interviews in a single day.

Panama City Clothes Drive Gets A Boost

The Panama City clothing drive was given a boost Tuesday when the Sigma Alpha Mu colony arrived, and pledges campaigned the East Lansing area for clothes. They collected two carloads to send the goods to the refugees.

The clothes are being collected for the 3,000 Panamanians left homeless when a fire destroyed three city blocks.

The refugees are being sheltered in the city's baseball stadium, according to Augusto Zambrano, Panama City junior.

Most of those housed in the wooden rooming-house area work as maids, laundresses and in similar domestic jobs, he said.

Zambrano pointed out the seriousness of the disaster by comparing the 3,000 refugees with the country's total population of a million.

Organizations supporting AUSA in the clothing drive are the Association of Off Campus Students, Men's Inter-Dorm Council, Women's Inter-Residence Hall Council, men's groups and Alpha Phi Omega.

Anyone having questions concerning the drive should call Kinen at Ext. 2651.

Station manager Fred Schmidt, Saginaw grad student, said the student engineering crew has been unable to locate a "bug" in the transmitter causing communication breakdowns.

Record Number Seniors Jam Placement Bureau

Twenty-one interviewers representing 12 different companies spoke to job hunting seniors in the technical and business fields.

The new Placement Bureau offices located in the Student Services Building have facilities to accommodate 21 interviewers, and the bodies were filled to capacity Tuesday.

The amazing thing about the record is the fact that the bureau did not expect to use the entire complement of booths until sometime in 1965 or 1970.

The old offices located in Merrill Hall accommodated only eight at a time, limiting the number that could be served by the bureau. This also limited the number of fields which the bureau could consider in placing students.

The bureau will now be able to consider students in fields such as liberal arts, previously left out of the program.

Jack Kinney, director of the placement bureau, said regarding the new offices, "The physical facilities here are the best in the nation, bar none."

Interviewers Tuesday represented firms such as DuPont, IBM, which interviewed 70 students, another new record; American Oil, Alcoa, General Motors, and Lever Brothers.

The bureau expects to be handling an average of 14 to 15 interviews daily for the next few weeks, but may equal Tuesday's record Friday when General Motors will have representatives of 15 different divisions on campus.

Huge Thor May Soon Go to Moon

Rumor Jupiter-C To Be Fired Next

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force Tuesday successfully test-launched a Thor—the 1,500 mile range rocket with which it plans to try first to hit the moon and then to put a satellite into orbit.

It was a beautiful launching of the 60-foot long ballistic missile, a launching which the Army may well try to emulate in its own forthcoming attempt to send up the Jupiter-C satellite vehicle. That attempt is expected within a day or so.

It also may have been the first launching of a completely assembled Thor, one complete even to the nose cone which is essential to protect the missile's warhead upon its return into the earth's atmosphere toward its target.

The Thor, more than 50 tons of fuel and metal, blasted off its launching pad at 3:16 p.m. Eastern Standard time in bright sunshine.

Within half an hour, the Air Force announced formally that the Thor flew its prescribed course and landed in the pre-selected impact area.

That meant in general terms that it was a success all the way—at launching in flight and on impact.

Major Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, told the senate preparedness subcommittee earlier this month that the Air Force plans to put a recoverable satellite into an orbit with a "respectable payload" with the Thor as a booster.

Using "existing second stage hardware," this could be done by the spring of 1959, Schriever said.

The Jupiter-C and Vanguard satellites would weigh 297 and 214 pounds respectively, compared with the half ton of the Soviet dog-carrying Sputnik II. Schriever said the Thor could be used for satellite launching "with existing second stage hardware."

He said that by adding existing third-stage hardware to Thor and the second stage, it would be possible to "perfectly unmanned reconnaissance of the moon at a relatively early date."

Soph Injures Arm in Door

Severe lacerations of the right arm of Sanford Siegel, 18, of Union, N.Y., sophomore, to emergency surgery at Sparrow Hospital Tuesday at 7:40 p.m.

Siegel, a Bailey Hall resident, pushed his arm through the glass door on third floor B-wing of his dorm. A fellow student claimed the sophomore was involved in what he termed, "horseplay."

The student said Siegel was running down the precinct hall when the accident happened. Dorm advisor Charles Blochberger refused to make comment.

A Sparrow Hospital night nurse said Siegel was shaken with the "very bad" cut but was "doing all right." Ambulance service hustled the injured man to the emergency ward.

Move to Tighten Alliance

Baghdad Pact Allies Join Military Staff

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—The Baghdad Pact Allies Tuesday established a combined military planning staff, which would serve as the forerunner to a NATO-type unified command in the Middle East.

The five-nation alliance, with U.S. backing, announced that the combined staff will be the place of the present planning organization.

Reformed sources said the move was a step toward tying together more closely the loose military organization of the anti-Communist pact. The decision was taken at a secret session of the Council of Ministers.

Earlier the Baghdad powers—Britain, Iran, Iraq, Turkey and Pakistan—approved a long-term plan for establishing a strategic system of highways, airfields, sea and radio communications from the Aegean to the Arabian sea.

The United States is not a formal member, but U.S. Secretary of State Dulles is attending as an observer.

The pact's Council of Ministers approved a report of its military committee recommending the long-term defense build-up, which would cost about $10 billion of dollars.

The United States would help in the bill.

The military committee's plans called for a communications system from West Turkey to India, with trunk and lateral lines.

Reform and storage facilities would be made available at sea on the Mediterranean, Persian Gulf and the Arabian sea. The plans also recommended civil airports which would be converted readily for military use.

Renther Requests More to Restrain Prices on Cars

WASHINGTON (AP)—Walter Reuther Tuesday called for government intervention to restrain prices.

Reuther said that Congress should take action to restrain price increases in advance of a special government price.

Reuther said the big auto makers are making big profits and that the government should take action to restrain price increases.

Arab Merger Student Court Suspends 5

The hawk-nosed 65-year-old Kuwaiti was quoted as telling the publisher of the independent daily Al Fayha of Damascus:

"As president of Syria I am pleased now to accomplish my national Arab message and hand over this dear deposit to President Gamal Abdel Nasser, the young, enthusiastic Arab who is full of loyalty to the Arab nation."

It is expected that, upon bringing together Egypt's 24 million people and Syria's four million, will have one parliament, one cabinet and one president.

It is believed the agreement on Nasser for president would be subject to a plebiscite. As the outstanding hero of the Arab nationalists, presumably there would be no question about Nasser's selection.

Five male students were suspended this week in action by student judiciary. Three others were placed on strict disciplinary probation.

The eight students, all members of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, were in violation of university regulations involving alcoholic beverages and unchaperoned women in men's residences, according to the dean of students office.

In other action this term, student judiciary suspended one male student, placed four on strict disciplinary probation, four on disciplinary, and three on warning probation.

The dean's office said that a portion of these cases were holdovers from fall term which couldn't be handled until court sessions resumed this term.

What's it like to be with IBM?

Gene McGrew won a scholarship and went through Princeton in the top third of his class . . . managed varsity track . . . commanded an artillery battery in Korea. "When you put a lot of preparation into your career," Gene McGrew feels, "you should look for a lot in return."

Out of the Army in 1953, he discussed IBM with a sales representative. It sounded like real opportunity. After an interview with an IBM branch manager, Gene McGrew was sure. Although sales was only one of many jobs he felt he could handle, this kind of selling IBM machines as much an idea as a product would enable him to capitalize fully on his education, experience, and talents. He's learned also that "no other form of training or career development I can think of provides such diversity of experience in all phases of business and industrial activity. This kind of training and experience develops top business executives."

Thus began an extensive and interesting training program marked by merit salary increases. The first three months of the training course combined introductory machine schooling and observation of branch office operations in Pittsburgh (his home town). The next three months were spent studying the application of the Company's data processing machines to major phases of accounting in business, science and government. With this background of know-how, Gene McGrew was ready for seven months of practical field training, during which he became a real contributing member of the sales team, working with a succession of experienced salesmen in a variety of situations with many different customers. With this experience behind him, he was ready for IBM's famous sales school, a final five-week polishing course in selling techniques.

Receives first assignment

Upon the successful conclusion of this course he was given his long-awaited first sales assignment, his own territory near Pittsburgh. This territory was comprised of some fourteen companies presently using IBM equipment, together with many companies who were logical potential users. Gene McGrew's job is to assist his customers in achieving maximum efficiency through the use of their equipment, as well as to help them extend its use to new applications. He is also responsible for the development of new business. His biggest sale was to a large industrial corporation. Now installed, this IBM electronic system simplifies various major phases of the customer's accounting work. His fine job with this customer resulted in the expanded use of equipment and the ordering of three additional medium-sized data processing machines. He is now working to develop the sale of one of IBM's largest computers, the 705, to another customer.

Future wide open

"Advancement opportunities in IBM," Gene McGrew says, "are excellent, as you'd expect in the leading company in a dynamic and rapidly expanding industry. Ahead of me on the sales management advancement road are nearly two hundred Branch Managerships, seventeen District Managerships, and numerous executive positions at the Regional and Headquarters level in five different divisions."

This profile is just one example of what it's like to be with IBM. There are excellent opportunities for well-qualified college men in Research, Development, Manufacturing, Sales and Applied Science. ## Sam Snead Criticises Golf Rule

NEW YORK (AP) — The professional golf tour has become a stereotyped, push-button operation without much of its old-time glamor, Sam Snead said Tuesday.

The hillbilly professional from White Sulphur Springs, West Va., in town to be honored by Metropolitan Golf Writers, added that he felt tightening rules and regulations were robbing the game of its individualism.

"When you step out on a tee nowadays you don't have to just worry about hitting the ball," Snead said. "You have to watch your 'P's and 'Q's in conduct."

"If you try a practice putt you may be fined $50. If you use a little polite profanity you get stuck for $75 or $100. Get sore and break a club and it may cost you $500."

"It's a good thing they don't have lip readers out in the course, I'd go broke in fines," Snead made his criticism of golf's "new look" in the presence of Ed Carter, Tournament Director of the Professional Golfers' Association. And the association helped install the new directives.

Carter defended the measures as necessary to protect sponsors and spectators in a sport which has mushroomed into a million dollar business. In recent years there have been repeated fines for displays of temper in tournament play.

Venezuelan Junta Gives Support to New Regime

CARACAS, Venezuela, (AP)—The patriotic junta of civilians that triggered the revolution against ex-dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez climbed off the fence Tuesday and gave its full support to Venezuela's new regime. Fortified by this civilian support, and with the all-out backing of the armed forces, the ruling junta swung into a nation-wide purge of the government machinery.

The patriotic junta, headed by the youthful newspaper reporter Fabricio Ojeda, previously had refused to take a stand behind the reshuffled junta which seized the government last week.

Apparently satisfied that the new regime was not attempting to impose a new dictatorship, the civilian group declared it was giving its full support.

In its declaration, however, it called for general elections as soon as possible and urged political parties to observe a truce in the meantime.

Venezuela appeared to have settled down to comparative peace. Only a few scattered rifle shots were heard in Caracas Monday night. Indiscriminate machinegunning by diehard Perez Jimenez adherents in speeding cars ceased.

The ruling junta was vigorously rooting out followers of the old regime believed dangerous to security. Scores of them were dismissed from government jobs.

Newly appointed governors in 20 states and two territories took over from ousted Perez Jimenez appointees in the oil-rich republic.

Say Jimenez Was Playboy

CARACAS, Venezuela, (AP)—A naval investigating commission reported Tuesday night that ousted dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez staged "Bacchanalian revels" on the island of La Orchila about 100 miles north-east of Caracas.

The commission said Perez Jimenez built a 25-room, three-million dollar palace equipped with every conceivable luxury on the island. Its report said the ex-dictator took women friends there for celebrations like a "thousand and one night of indescribable fantasy."

Workers on the island were quoted as saying the former president indulged in heavy drinking and often appeared on the beach in a bathing suit, riding a motorcyclo and chasing women.

The commission bought back five island employees under arrest and stationed National Guardsmen on the island to prevent incursions by curious on-lookers. Authorities said the properties would be confiscated for the national treasury.

The interior ministry was directed to check on 17,000 foreigners in the country believed to be persons of doubtful character.

Thousands of Venezuelans jammed prosecutors' offices with denunciations of Perez Jimenez henchmen, accusing them of murder, torture and embezzlement.

Under arrest was Maj. Juan Perez Jimenez, brother of the ex-dictator, who was held for investigation on charges of official corruption.

Twenty former ministers and officials left the Brazilian and Ecuadorian embassies and boarded a plane for New York.

Top aides of Juan D. Peron, left behind when the former dictator of Argentina quit his refuge here for the Dominican Republic, were in trouble.

President Adm. Wolfgang Larrazabal, of the new junta said, meantime, a thorough investigation would be made into reports Perez Jimenez had shipped 250 million dollars out of the country.

Gets Recognition

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Tuesday recognized the new government of Venezuela.

The state department said in a statement that Charles R. Burrows, U.S. Charge d'Affaires at Caracas, has been instructed to inform the Venezuelan government of provisional recognition.

The Senate Monday confirmed President Eisenhower's nomination of William P. Rogers as Attorney General of the United States.

Vets May Soon Have Standing Committee

Veterans, 22 million of them, should be happy to hear there may be a standing U.S. Senate committee on veterans' affairs in the near future.

Michigan Sen. Charles E. Potter, in a recent newsletter, reported a "significant forward push" in efforts to establish the committee, first since action in 1946.

It's No Dog's Life in Michigan!

LANSING (AP)—A woman legislator Tuesday lambasted Michigan's dog law as "the most barbaric in the United States of America."

"People who complain about the Russians who sent up the dog in Sputnik should look at what can happen to them right here in Michigan," said Mrs. Lucille McCollough (D-Deerborn).

"Here we have a law that lets people go out and shoot a dog for no reason at all."

Mrs. McCollough, a dog owner herself, addressed her remarks to the House Agriculture Committee in appealing for approval of a bill to give dogs a better break.
