France's Gaillard Fails In Tunisian Policy Vote

Liberalism Keynote For 1960—Butler

Democratic Chairman Warns This May Lose Solid South

By LYNN SHEPARD
State News Edit Page Editor

Liberalism, the dominant philosophy of the Democratic party, will lead to a 1960 victory, but possibly at the cost of losing the vote of the Democratic "solid South," predicted National Democratic Committee Chairman Paul M. Butler Tuesday night in the Union Ballroom.

Butler appeared as the first speaker on "Politics — 1960," a new program series designed to acquaint MSU with this year's political issues first hand. The series, sponsored by All-University Student Government's Academic Benefits division, brings nationally prominent political figures to the campus on speaking engagements.

The Democratic National Chairman, speaking from a prepared statement, reviewed the history, policies, contributions to national strength and leadership concepts of his party.

Emphasizing his faith in the "democratic" two-party system, Butler voiced his hope that all the approximately 150 persons listening would become a member of one of the two major parties.

Butler hit Senate Republicans for trying to revive the disgraceful and discredited McCarthy-Nixon smear tactics of the 1954 campaign last week when the Democratic party was labeled the party of "socialism," "collectivism" and "communism."

Probably the most significant comment the former Notre Dame law student made came as the result of a question posed by a member of the audience.

Asked how he believed the Democratic party would stand on civil rights in 1960 when the liberal northerners and ultra-conservative southerners met in the National Convention, Butler replied:

"I personally believe that a reorientation of political parties is taking place. I believe the Democratic party will take the strongest stand yet taken on civil rights."

"I think it is really tragic that here under our Constitutional system of government — that the Constitution should have to be implemented and supplemented by Congress as to what it really means."

Remembering that the "solid South" vote was insignificant in relation to the national vote as a whole, in 1960 Butler implied that the liberal viewpoint of the North might dictate a platform which would result in a Dixiecrat movement similar to that of 1948.

Men from four different walks of life spoke Tuesday in a seminar on economic nationalism in Latin America, sponsored by the Latin American Affairs Association.

Economic nationalism is like vinegar in the gravy," said Dr. W. P. Strassman, assistant professor of economics.

"An economic amount is necessary for economic development, but too much can spoil the gravy," he said.

A sound policy, he said, would be to integrate the islands of foreign enterprise with the rest of the economy.

"During the era from Theodore Roosevelt to Franklin D. Roosevelt, there developed a period of economic exploitation whose main concern was profit, and profit for whom?" is a question which is prevalent today," said sociology professor William D'Antonio.

Eisenhower's "Good Partners" policy could not work, he said, as long as one of the countries involved "tries to set up all the terms of the partnership."

In democratic countries in Latin America where a multi-party political structure exists, nationalism is used as a threatening weapon which if employed, can be devastating," said Miss Phyllis Peterson, of the U of M political science department.

"Technical know-how in Brazil is bursting into being," said J. W. Sundelson, of Ford International, and a large Brazilian labor force is moving forward with the industries themselves."

Anti-U. S. Sentiment Expressed

Technical Issue Defeats Premier

PARIS (AP)—The government of Premier Felix Gaillard fell tonight, brought down by a national assembly attack on his Tunisian policies and their American-British links.

The assembly, rebuffing with cries of anti-American sentiment, rejected 321-255 Gaillard's call for acceptance of a U.S.-British plan for settling the French-Tunisian dispute. Gaillard responded immediately by resigning.

Announcing his action to reporters, Gaillard said:

"In the present circumstances it is in the country's interests that the crisis which opened be closed as rapidly as possible — today we suffer of those overseas who think, who fight and who have confidence in France."

Gaillard, a 38-year-old radical Socialist who took the premiership little more than five months ago, drove hatless and coatless to the Elysee Palace and handed his resignation to President Rene Coty.

Though the vote was not on a formal motion of confidence, Coty did not try to persuade Gaillard to hold fast and ride out the defeat. The margin apparently had been too great for that.

Coty, 76, accepted the resignation. He asked Gaillard, however, to stay on as caretaker—the usual procedure in such cases—until a new government can be formed.

The issue defeating Gaillard was a technical one. It involved his bid to shove five motions from the extreme left and right which criticized his policy. Gaillard had declared he would consider the result an implied issue of confidence.

Gaillard had called Parliament to meet at 8 p.m. in the Aud. Tickets can be purchased at the Union ticket office or at the door for 90 cents.

Rocket Expert Sets Distance at 150 Miles

U. S. Could Fire Spaceman Within One Year of Approval

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rocket expert Dr. Werner Von Braun said Tuesday the United States could send a man 150 miles into space, one year from the time the project is approved.

The Russians, he said, already have the capability of shooting a man 200 miles into space. Von Braun said he is convinced that if this country doesn't get man into space soon the Russians will do it first.

As for who will shoot a rocket into space, Von Braun said Russia may well try before the U.S. He said it will be many months before this country is ready for an attempt.

Von Braun, the nation's top rocket expert who helped launch the first two U.S. satellites, applied those views with a call for vigorous action "to overcome quickly as possible the obvious lead which the Russians enjoy" in missiles.

He testified at the first public hearing of the special house committee on space problems, which elaborated afterward to researchers.

Von Braun said that while his organization has the capability to shoot a man into space now—using the Redstone missile—it could take about a year to perfect the device. He said the rocket developed about three months ago, probably would involve the use of four missiles.

The first three, Von Braun said, would be for test purposes and would carry animals. He gave no details of the rocket but did say the man-carrying capsule could weigh about a ton and

Professor Studies F. D. R.
If Franklin D. Roosevelt were returned to America today, he might view the domestic scene with satisfaction but he would be profoundly alarmed by the present situation and America's position in it.

These are conclusions drawn by Dr. Thomas H. Greer, biographer of the late president and professor of humanities at MSU. This spring, 25 years after the start of Roosevelt's New Deal and 13 years after his death (following a stroke on April 12, 1945), most of his New Deal program has become a part of American life and expectation, Greer pointed out.

"Roosevelt could note today that American business, labor and agriculture have achieved levels of production beyond the most optimistic forecasts," he said.

At the same time, the FDR biographer pointed out, "in this period of recession the economy is being protected by safeguards promoted during Roosevelt's days in the White House. These include bank deposit insurance, regulation of investment practice, social security, unemployment insurance and public spending to boost business activity."

But in the foreign field, Greer declares, Roosevelt's fervent hopes have not been realized.

Are Bigger Classes Effective Classes?

A RECURRING TOPIC among those involved in education is the problem of class sizes. Cramping the students into classes, some say, while increasing efficiency, tends to mass-produce individuals into well-adjusted machines.

Others, such as the Fordham University research group in New York, maintain large classes are every bit as effective as smaller ones. They base their statements on a year of study and experimentation. Other research groups, however, come up with opposing views as to whether or not larger classes yield unsatisfactory results.

But the crux of the problem thus far has not been emphasized in any important studies. Rather than concentrating on the hypothetical "average" or "normal" teacher, the studies may produce more convincing—or at least less conflicting—answers to the question by assuming that while some teachers perform better with large classes, some are more effective with smaller groups.

Lectures, for example, obviously work as well with 100 people as with 50. The problems involved in making lectures effective do not involve the size of classes so much as the teaching approach (such as mere repetition of text material as opposed to detailed concern with background material, etc.).

Research groups could put more of a light on the class-size problem by seeking to determine what types of courses work best in lecture form, what types are most effective when handled in small discussion groups, and so on.

Lumping each and every education course together, then trying to find whether or not one generalization holds for all of them, seems to be a case of barking up the proverbial wrong tree.

Lana's Love Letters — Her Business or Ours?

Cinema actress Lana Turner wrote a number of letters (love-letters) to her late boyfriend John Stompano over a period of several months. Excerpts from some of them made headlines in newspapers from Hollywood to New York.

There are times when everyone slips—has a bad day, makes gross mistakes and that sort of thing. Such human behavior is not uncommon to the newspaper industry though most of us will maintain we don't slip as often as some critics would have it seem.

Recently, however, someone in the news background saw a figurative banana peel and rather than junk it, threw it to the industry to skid around on for a while.

Reference is made to Miss Turner's letters. A man was killed—very well. But a slew of mushy love-letters lent nothing to the story but off-color and further suggestions of their private life.

The excerpts did nothing but provide unnecessary information to a base portion of the news-hungry public. Miss Turner, whose private love-life we feel belongs to her, had already admitted her fondness for the man her daughter killed.

It is this sort of thing that feeds innocuous gossip columns and the so-called lust magazines. It is this sort of thing that keeps newspaper readership level at age seventh grade, and causes a rain of criticism.

Had the content of the letters been pertinent to the case, and used as evidence, perhaps papers should have printed in the name of the public's right to know.

But it wasn't—and they shouldn't have—and (we feel) the public did not have that right.

Ike, Costa Rica's President Note Pan-American Day

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following are open letters to students of MSU, sent upon request from the Latin American Affairs Assn., in commemoration of Pan-American Day, April 14.

The President was glad to learn of the "Pan-American Day" program at Michigan State University. This is a splendid way to encourage a broader understanding of the Spanish and Portuguese culture and to stimulate an interest in their languages.

Last week, the President invited the Teacher of the Year to the White House. Since one of her particular talents was the teaching of Spanish, reference was made to an address Lincoln sent to the Senate, May 30, 1862, containing the phrase "good-will and neighborliness," toward our friends in South America.

In extending the President's best wishes to your students and guests, it is a pleasure to add a translation of the above phrase: "Buena voluntad y convivencia amistosa"

Gaze Into Future Made at Seminar

Cure for Cancer Predicted By Leading Science Writer

Watson Davis, director of Science Service, awed a conference on technical and scientific writing at Kellogg Center Tuesday when he hinted at some of the startling forecasts science may accomplish in the near future.

Davis, who heads Science Service—a wire service similar to that of UP and AP, which distributes exclusively news of technical and scientific nature—emphasized that compiling time-lapse for the science of the future is risky and hazardous.

He ventured a few guesses as to what might be accomplished by science in the next decade.

Among these were:

1. Cures for some of the most prevalent kinds of cancer.
2. The conquest of more fatal diseases, including the so-called common colds, either through vaccination or drugs.
3. Exploration of the moon.
4. International television through signals relayed by reflection from special TV satellites.
5. Development and application of a simple and safe birth control method that could moderate the world's population explosion.

Davis then went on to further what-advances science might make in the more distant future, some perhaps by the year 2000.

1. Approaches to the postponement of individual death.
2. Understanding of the nature of life.
3. Development of standard synthetic diets.
4. Development of artificial intelligence machines, that will do things people do now—write letters, do bookkeeping, translate languages, file and retrieve information, teach students individually, plan and operate industrial processes, cook, serve meals and clean houses, drive automobiles and airplanes, etc.

South Dakota and North Dakota were admitted to the union as states on Nov. 2, 1889.

Reporter Sees Anti-U.S. Surge in Canada

Canada's Prime Minister John Diefenbaker was swept back into office recently at least in part because of his ability to take advantage of anti-American feeling, an outstanding Canadian political correspondent said Monday night at MSU.

"A factor in the Conservative sweep in Canada is certainly the party's ability to profit by the anti-American swing," stated Blair Fraser, political correspondent.

"I don't say the Conservatives went out to exploit the feeling generally, but they certainly did enjoy the dividends of it."

It is difficult to find a Canadian who will admit he is anti-American, Fraser declared, "but the sentiment does exist at a sort of root level."

A point of focus for this feeling, he explained, is that "all Canadians share a certain feeling of anxiety over the degree to which the structure of our economy is owned and controlled by United States interests."

Fraser was one of four speakers during the last of three seminars at MSU dealing with Canadian-American relations. Other speakers included Tom Kent, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press; Raymond Daniell, Ottawa representative of the New York Times; and Lawrence Laybourne, managing director of Time International of Canada, Ltd.

"We in Canada wanted U.S. capital," Kent pointed out. "Well, we got it and it made us rich. Now all we can do is make noises about it."

Daniell, who described much stronger anti-Americanism in Europe, described the Canadian sentiment as "not so much anti-American as pro-Canadian nationalism... a most pleasant atmosphere."

Yank's Kubek Denies Rumor That He's Destined for Army

NEW YORK (AP)—Tony Kubek, the New York Yankees' brilliant young shortstop Tuesday night branded "false" reports that he was about to enter the army.

"It's absolutely untrue," he said. "It's simply a rumor that started back in Milwaukee. I can't understand what that major is talking about."

Kubek was referring to an announcement earlier in the day by Maj. Gerald Mulrine, commander of the south side Army

Bright Future Seen In Big 10 Baseball

The future looks bright for Big 10 baseball. The race for this year's championship could be just as hectic as the conference basketball chase, as many teams are loaded with talent.

In short, there's going to be lots of good baseball being played in the Big 10 this season. It should be one of the finest years of the sport's history in the conference.

Most of the teams have veteran lineups coming back for another season, and every school is boasting of promising newcomers who are expected to fill the shoes of departed players.

Michigan State is one of these potential champions. The Spartans have veterans returning to the key positions, and the "rookies" of the squad have already proven their worth.

The Spartans kick off their season Saturday, playing a doubleheader against a strong Albion squad. These games will open a 19-game regular-season slate, which includes the Big 10 campaign.

An improved ball club will be playing for MSU this year. Coach John Kobs, usually a conservative speaker, sees a bright future for the Spartans this season. "We receive a lot of new breaks," he said.

Since returning from a layoff of the south last week, the Spartans have been holding "intense" squad games. Kobs has been juggling the lineup continually, trying to discover a winning combination.

Detroit Tigers Win Opener, Top White Sox, Pierce 4-3

Martin's Hit Scores Final Tally

Bunning Garner's Season's 1st Win

CHICAGO (AP)—New firststop Billy Martin, after three consecutive strikeouts, singled across the winning run in Detroit's 4-3 opening day victory over the Chicago White Sox before 19,119 Tuesday.

Pitching star Jim Bunning scattered seven hits and scattered two doubles to score two, while Detroit's Ray Kinsinger and Harvey Kuenn scored none on homers. Chicago's Sherm Lollar hit a two-run homer in the third inning. The White Sox scored three runs, all unearned. The game started as a duel between Bunning and Billy Pierce, American League's only two game winners last season, and in the seventh when Bunning's second two-bagger chased Kinsinger.

Pierce, who had won two previous opening day assignments and was making his sixth opening day start, bore the brunt of Detroit's 14-hit attack. He yielded nine hits, Detroit clinched in the seventh when Bunning's second two-bagger blossomed into the winning Tiger run on Frank Bolling's sacrifice and Martin's single.

Detroit took a 1-0 lead in the first on Boone's leadoff home run to the left field upper deck. In the White Sox third, Lollar misplayed Pierce's drive left for a two-base error. In two out, Billy Goodman led across Pierce and scored on Lollar's 420-foot drive to the center field bull pen. Detroit peeked away at Pierce's second run in the fifth on Bolling's double and Bolling's sacrifice and a third run in the sixth to tie. Kuenn, who shifted to center field, hit a shot at his old firststop spot, was a fielding

Yanks Top Boston on Yogi's Hit

BOSTON (AP)—Yogi Berra hit a two-run homer on a two strike pitch as the New York Yankees defeated Boston 3-0 Tuesday in opening defense of their American League championship.

The stocky New York backstop spoiled what had been a fine pitching job by the Sox' Willard Nixon and decided the contest when he pulled the ball into the screen near the top of the right field foul pole.

Bucs in 14th

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Rookie R. C. Stevens singled home Dick Groat with the winning run in the 14th inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the World Champion Milwaukee Braves 4-3 in the season opener.

Garver Downs Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ned Garver pitched a seven-hit shutout as the Kansas City Athletics defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-0 before an opening day crowd of 35,307. Herb Score, making his first appearance since a batted ball struck him in the eye last May 7, left the game in the third after giving up three runs.

Fullmer Seeks Title Fight

WEST JORDAN, Utah (AP)—Former middleweight champion Gene Fullmer's manager will leave for Florida today to seek a title bout for his boy, not knowing if the West Jordan cyclone will be ready to keep a Kentucky derby fight date.

Mink farmer Marv Jensen has had an appointment to meet Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club ever since Sugar Ray Robinson won the middleweight title back from Carmen Basilio last month in Chicago.

Jensen claims he has a written promise from Norris for a title scrap for Fullmer—who also lost the title back to Robinson a year ago.

Fullmer is scheduled to fight German middleweight Frank Scuzina in a 10-round nationally televised bout in Louisville, Ky., May 2, the eve of the Kentucky Derby. But Jensen said Fullmer has been unable to completely recover from a kidney infection and if he doesn't get a doctor's approval to continue training by Thursday he'll have to pull out of the Kentucky fight.

Jensen said he is to meet Norris in Miami Beach.

Bruins Even Series; Down Habs, 3-1

BOSTON (AP)—Boston winger Don McKenney scored the first two goals and Fleming MacKell set a playoff assist record Tuesday night as the Bruins defeated Montreal 3-1 in a bone-rattling Stanley Cup hockey battle.

The Bruins triumph squared the best of seven championship series at two games each. The Bruins jumped into 1-0 lead in the first period on a goal by McKenney while Montreal's Doherty St. Laurent was serving a holding penalty. McKenney took a pass from MacKell and connected with a neat backhand from a sharp angle at 5:35. The assist was MacKell's.

Boston went ahead 2-0 while outplaying Montreal by a wide margin in a heavy checking second period. McKenney was credited with his second goal when Vic Stasiuk's 15-foot backhander bounced off him into the net at 3:30, just four seconds after St. Laurent had returned from a tripping penalty.

The two teams matched goals in the third period and time ran out on a 3-1 Boston victory.

ment into special session in an attempt to win backing for his acceptance of the British-American good offices mission aimed at restoring French-Tunisian relations.

He said the terms were acceptable and added there was really no alternative except to send French troops back into the former protectorate of Tunisia.

Gaillard proposed leaving the question of control of the Tunisian-Algerian frontier for handling outside the good offices procedure.

That was something the right-of-center independents in his coalition refused to accept. They already had threatened to pull their five ministers out of the cabinet over the same issue a month ago and this time they could not be brought in line with the government policy.

Their vote, coupled with those of the extreme right wing Poujadists, the Gaillard Social Republican and the Communist, spelled Gaillard's defeat.

The government defeat came after a stormy day of debate in which both French houses of Parliament sang to an outburst of anti-American attacks.

Coeds to Guide

World's Fair Near Start

BRUSSELS (AP)—The United States and Britain rustled up some beauties and beer at the Brussels World Fair preview Tuesday and stole the show from Russia.

The Russians got the propaganda jump Monday by unveiling their spectacle for the press—a model of Sputnik II.

The United States came up with some models of its own Tuesday, shapely and smiling U.S. college girls who will escort visitors through the ultra-modern U.S. pavilion.

Then the British won a point with the press. Commissioner General Sir John Balfour hailed the foot weary newsmen at the British pavilion.

"Come," he said, "there's nothing like a good glass of beer in a British pub."

The newsmen stormed the place. More than 2,000 of them had been trooping about the fairgrounds because their automobile train got stuck in the frantic traffic of work vehicles rushing to get exhibitions ready for the formal opening Thursday.
