Nigeria Wants Lumumba

Campus U.N. Considers Congo

A resolution of Nigeria asking for the return of Congo government to Patrice Lumumba, was the main business of the two-day meeting of the Campus United Nations Friday night.

The resolution stated in part that the Republic of the Congo, Leopoldville, as an independent nation headed by Patrice Lumumba, invited the UN to help solve the Congo problem and some large nations seized on this opportunity to interfere in the domestic affairs of the nation, by supporting different political rivals.

The Belgian government ignores the request of the UN and still remains in the Congo to carry out actions blocking UN action, the resolution said.

The present dictatorial regime of Mobutu and Kasavubu refuse to reopen parliament and to permit the functions of a representative government creating a situation such that active war may break out at any moment.

Nigeria presented five resolutions to cope with the problems in the Congo.

1. Remove the Congolese Mobutu dictatorial regime.
2. Set free Lumumba and all political prisoners.
3. Specifically ask Belgium, United States and Russia to withdraw representatives and stop aid to the Congo.
4. Permit the Congo parliament to reopen within three months with an attempt to establish a provisional government.
5. At the end of six months the UN should withdraw its troops and turn over the government to the Congolese government offering such help as may be requested to the Congolese central government.

The Belgian government still wants control of the Congo Republic, a Nigerian representative said in defense of the resolution. The independence of the Congo was a triumph of treatment continued.

The UN was a big blunder by not recognizing Lumumba and dealing with the present situation at Kasavubu, he said.

Give the democracy to one who has popularity—Lumumba, a delegate from the United Arab Republic said in defense of the Nigerian resolution.

New Zealand, in a speech against the motion said that some evidence was given to support the resolution.

There is no evidence that Lumumba is capable of keeping law and order and we would not be putting the Congo back into "original chaos," the representative said.

A motion by China to require the two-thirds majority vote sometimes used when world peace is involved was turned down by the assembly to avoid setting a precedent.

Early Sunday Morning

Fire Guts Phi Psi

By BILL COFF
State News Staff Writer

An early Sunday morning fire in Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house, 224 Abbott rd., gutted the building and destroyed the contents of the building, which is estimated to be worth $12,000.

Members of the fraternity were awakened by the fire and fled the building. The fire was caused by a gas leak in the kitchen area.

Baptists Arrested

In Congo

ESSEMBERG, Bando-Union, P. — Six American Baptist missionaries and their families have been arrested by Congolese troops while seeking to save the Congo, rebel-held, Kivu Province, white refugees said Sunday.

Dr. R. H. Balthasar of the Bando-Union, Mo., said he had been arrested by the Congolese troops on Jan. 12, 1961, and the United Nations gave them support of U.N. troops to a bridge opposite the frontier of Ruanda-Urundi, a Belgian trust territory.

But the refugees and the Congolese soldiers barred the way when the Americans arrived yesterday at the frontier bridge, leading over the Ruanda river in the Ruanda town of Shungu.

The six missionaries, their wives and 12 children were reported to be in complete arrest, the provincial capital now run by followers of ousted premier Patrice Lumumba.

Their six wives and twelve children were driven away by the Congolese.

Cuba Smith, a Bando-Union engineer who has lived in Kivu for six years, said:

The party had been arrested by two jeeps with Nigerian troops of the United Nations from their station a few miles from Bukavu. I understand they had been given passes signed by Annet Kashamura, local government chief in Kivu, and they passed through Bukavu all right. But when they reached the frontier the Congo troops refused to recognize the passes and put them under arrest. Kivu government officials were called in after the U.N. failed to get anywhere with the troops, but even the government people could not persuade the troops that the missionaries had been given permission to leave.

Busy Weekend For E. Lansing Fire Dept.

Fire Dept.

The campus unit of the East Lansing Fire department made three calls over the weekend.

A fire in a lounge chair cushion in West Mayo hall was reported at 8:25 p.m. Saturday. Hall residents put out the fire and moved the chair outdoors. Firemen doused the chair again as an extra measure.

At 1:13 p.m. Saturday Mrs. Iris Gay, 1551 Spartan Village, reported a gas leak in her home. Firemen found a kitchen gas line was disconnected and called the Consumers Power Co. to repair the hose.

Firemen answered a call to the Agricultural Engineering building at 11:57 p.m. Friday. A cardboard container holding a soil sample in the northeast section of the research laboratory caught fire. A student put out the fire which was limited to the container.

Ike Sends New Budget To Congress

WASHINGTON, P. — President Eisenhower will send Congress a new budget proposal and a modest request for the coming fiscal year.

President Eisenhower will forward a budget of about $14 billion for the 12 months starting July 1, 1961. The budget will be a balanced budget and will be a modest request for the coming fiscal year.

The outgoing President will assume that economic conditions will get worse and that a gradual recovery will begin soon.

The budget will represent the budget of Eisenhower's final year in the White House, before he leaves office. It also will represent the programs he would want to follow after he has left office.

Defense expert President-elect John F. Kennedy also will make some drastic revisions, but probably an important reduction in the budget program by Eisenhower.

Of the eight budgets which Eisenhower has drafted, three produced deficits totaling $19.4 billion. These ranged in surplus from $4.4 billion, and the fate of the last two will be determined by time and circumstances.

For the current fiscal year, Eisenhower is sticking to his prediction of a budget surplus, though he will tell Congress the margin will be paper-thin. A year ago he looked for a surplus of $4.4 billion but that was offset by the effects of the business slump on tax receipts.

Vandals Dynamite Synagogue

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, (AP)—Vandals dynamited this city's main synagogue Sunday, smashing the plate glass doors of the nearby Central Baptist Church and damaged two other houses of worship which police declined to identify.

The dynamite charge, which police estimated at up to 10 pounds, was placed in a ventilator shaft and blew a hole in the synagogue wall, wrecked an office, shattered windows and sections of the roof and damaged nearby buildings. The blast occurred at about 3 a.m. and no one was injured.

With Court Aid

Negroes Attempt U of Georgia Re-entry

ATHENS, Ga., (AP)—Armed with a new set of court orders, 15 young Atlanta Negroes will make another attempt to attend classes at the previously all-white University of Georgia today.

Charlayne Hunter, 18, and Hamilton Holmes, 19, first Negroes ever admitted to the 175-year-old university, were suspended following rioting last Wednesday night at the dormitory where Miss Hunter was quartered.

However, both have 9 a.m. classes today and it was considered possible they might not come back to Athens until this morning.

Their second start at the first Negroes among the 7,500 students at the university will be made in circumstances different from those that prevailed last Monday.

Progressives Aren't Pinks

In an editorial Sunday, the Lansing State Journal warned of the danger of "pinkish" professors and the insidious influence on the pliable minds of college students. We agree that professors who are members of the Communist party, and therefore would believe in the advocacy of the subversion of state and national government of the United States, would be a menace to education.

Every educational institution in this country is aware of this danger and is careful to prevent such people from being members of its faculty, if it knows the political leanings of such members. And we do feel it difficult to realize the political leanings of those people once they begin espousing their doctrine in public. The college student's mind might be pliable, but it is alert.

However, the State Journal made the words "pinkish" and "leftist" synonymous, which they are definitely not.

"Pinkish" is a polite way of saying someone is a Communist.

"Leftist" is a derogatory term for one who is not a conservative, a reactionary or a middle-grounder. A leftist is, in short, one who leans to the more progressive way of government.

A leftist in the 1930's was one who was a strong advocate of social security. Today the man who believed in social security is no longer a leftist, but in many cases a conservative. Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Stanton were "leftists" when they argued for women's suffrage. Certainly no one can say allowing women to vote is a Communist idea, as the terms as used by the State Journal imply.

We do not believe there is any more danger in being acquainted with, or influenced by leftist thought, any more than being influenced by conservative or reactionary theories.

Withhold 'Name Withheld' Letters

It has recently become the practice for letter contributors to request "Please withhold my name."

The State News reserves the right to select the letters it will print. We cannot help but doubt the motives and the accuracy of letters when the writers refuse to allow their names to be published.

We could understand this attitude in regard to letters on highly controversial subjects. When an individual might subject himself to persecution by signing his name, it is sometimes wise for him to remain unknown.

But when the letters are concerned with perfectly legitimate views on perfectly legitimate subjects, as most letters are, it seems more an act of cowardice than of caution to withhold one's name.

Paradoxically, those individuals who write the most controversial letters are the very ones who are not afraid to print their names. Their convictions are sincere and strong enough to overcome any fear of criticism they might have.

The letter writer has a duty both to the reading public and to the group or individual he is criticizing to print his name. The general reader will detect a kind of phoniness in the unsigned letter. And the person who is publicly criticized has a legitimate right to know who his critics are, in order that he may meet them on their own ground.

The State News will be increasingly more reluctant to publish letters requesting "name withheld," unless the contributor presents a very convincing and legitimate reason for concealing his name.

U of M Considers Medical Institute

Reprinted from the Michigan Daily

There are two problems involved in the foundation of MSU's two-year medical school. One is the professional medical aspect, the other a political-prestige angle. The two questions are not wholly separate.

The overall argument appears to be not so much MSU's desire for a two-year non-clinical program as the implication that the East Lansing university wants to do all the state, eventually, and establish a regular four-year program.

Last year, leading doctors and medical educators in the state labeled a four-year medical school as the most expensive way to increase the number of Michigan graduate physicians. They stressed expansion and strengthening of present medical education facilities. The expansion would come at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Michigan has a state system of education. The individual system, however, should complement each other. It is mostly up to MSU to insure this is done in the area of medical education.

Michigan has a state system of education. The individual system, however, should complement each other. It is mostly up to MSU to insure this is done in the area of medical education.

AT THAT TIME, two-year medical schools were suggested as one of the several answers to the need for additional doctors. Graduates of the two-year programs would fill the vacancies that result from drop-outs in the four-year schools.

Which all means that the present MSU intention may be a good idea. Right now it is in the early planning stage, and will not be ready for perhaps 10 years, an MSU official points out.

Which all would seem to point to the fact present MSU plans may not be a bad idea, since MSU probably has a sufficient base of faculty and facilities to run the program.

But a four-year program is a different matter. Whether MSU should eventually build such a school is a matter for the medical experts. Opinion is divided, but it leans a little like MSU against the world. In any case, the medical experts say they are a number of things to do before building a medical school, and then the best place for this institution may be Detroit or Grand Rapids rather than Lansing.

Republicans Believe In This

By JACK KNICK, President of Young Republicans Club

THE POLITICAL PRESTIGE problem now enters in. Though MSU presently disclaims desires for a four-year program, the editorial response in the state newspapers was apparently not prompted by any great faith in these professions of innocence. Simply a medical school is a good thing to have, prestige-wise. While not as glamorous as advanced science work, say, it is still sought for status purposes among great universities' a stigma to which MSU aspires.

But the good to MSU from this acquisition must be balanced against the needs and the resources of the entire state, a desire by MSU to have a medical school is not enough. Rational discussion is necessary.

The University can take a patriotic attitude about the whole thing, provided it gets the promised second part of the Medical Science Bldg. Vice-President and Dean of Faculties Marvin L. Niehaus says the University has no desire to expand its already large school, and the new building is simply needed to accommodate present students.

We believe in opportunity for the individual, the right to prosper according to his ability and effort with minimum interference from government.

We are not anti-union or pro-labor business, but feel that both need certain governmental restrictions to retain individual initiative and personal liberty.

We believe every individual is entitled to an old age free from worry, the need for medical attention, and that this should be done by the government which is closest to the people and which can most adequately do the job, be it the local, state, or the national government.

We believe in minimum government based on only the most necessary functions with the records open to public inspection. We feel that this government should endeavor, except in time of crisis, to have a balanced budget in order to maintain the stability of the dollar.

We feel that education is a function of all the people and that it must be locally controlled in order to maintain equality of educational opportunity and to meet problems of the local area.

We are proud as Republicans to say that we have the foresight and are not so self-centered as to advocate one economic policy during our working years when we are debaters and then another when we retire and are living on a fixed income.

We are internationalists who are concerned with the threat of world communism and do not believe that the freedom of all the people of the world. We must join with other peace-loving nations to make the United Nations a body which can effectively protect world peace.

We believe that we should not concern ourselves quite so completely with our own minor internal problems, but rather we should direct our attentions toward helping underdeveloped nations so that someday their problems may be almost as minor as our own.

We do not mean to turn our back on groups within our own society, but rather we feel that by legislation and education of the blacks, whites and reds alike that we will evolve into a country in which all have an opportunity to acquire as much of the good of life as is possible.

I prophesy in closing by saying that we the American people are our own worst enemies because of our greed, which has fomented everyone's desire to get more and more without giving more, to going to drive prices so high as to put us completely out of the world market.

This will ruin our international trade, which is one of the best ways of promoting good will, and will necessarily bring about nationalization of our own industry and rigid controls on all segments of our society.

FURTHER STATE FUNDS will doubtless be needed but apparently nothing on the order needed to start a new medical school.

This is a parenthesis, for the politics point. What

"It Must Be Fine To Have A College Education"

It Seems to Her Pornography? It's Up to Reader

By MARY BASING

It seems to me, Pember, that a college is responsible for what he reads. If he chooses to stand in a drugstore looking through magazines picturing near-nudes, it's his choice. Perhaps he doesn't know the exact nature of the female.

As city editor of S'News I think you should be concerned with freedom in communication. I think instead of condemning a group of magazines you should consider why their sale is so significantly large.

WHAT MAKES PEOPLE, while they buy sexy photographs "dirty", buy enough of this literature to make it worth putting together?

By banning what you consider pornography, are you going to make all magazines, clean place to live?

What about language? How interesting is one of the local civic-minded pastimes come up to the S'News offices some afternoon and catch the sweet clichés as a editor asks a photographer where his picture is or a beatman why his story isn't in them too? Ever try to get in a women's magazine at 1 a.m. on a Saturday night? Ever see any bushes in the spring by the Red Inn? Where are you going to draw the line?

TO ME THIS IS the most important question concerning censoring. Who is to judge what the public should read and see? Societies, in my mind, are made up of individuals. What magazines a person reads is his own business—and responsibly.

You write of the "far reaching" effects of "girlie" magazines; the increasing crime rate—"six murders in Detroit in the month of December alone" and the "damage done young minds" that "consume" this trash.

Who's to say that there wouldn't have been 12 murders in December in Detroit if there were no magazines?

You claim that "pornography" has infected the nation within the last two decades. To date it is beginning to sell about 1940.

What was the crime rate in Chicago in the Thirties?

And damaging young minds! It's a reasonable damaged mind to me that can't read the effects of censoring by present day double-critical ethics.

Sure, I think magazines devoted to pictures of undressed women in seductive poses are trash.

But according to Dr. Berlo and other communication, meanings of words and pictures are in people.

Maybe you like spinach. To me it is less and looks like hell.

So you don't like the picture of a censored nude. Maybe to someone else it's You don't have to look.

If a person is overly concerned with taking nude pictures off news stands, let's lessen his concern; it may heighten it.

If he tends toward a mama come sex, he would probably draw his own picture if they weren't on the market. At least he doesn't have to make illusions.

I share in a different way your concern for young minds.

They should be taught early to accept responsibility that every human has to make his own decisions in all things and keep elements of life, biological, intellectual and spiritual, in proper balance.

If the parent would accept responsibility seeing that his child is satisfied in questions of sex and morals, the need for these magazines would vanish.

The child should be taught the proper use of sex in his life, its importance and importance. He should be taught that sex is neither clean nor dirty, but what the man makes it.

He should be taught that sex is a concern of the young in body and mind, important, that life perpetuates itself in phases of the universe. Man has no meaning on creation.

American life will be easier to bear if individuals are aware that sex does not demand the high place in life that it is given.

On Junior Taxes and Algeria

Junior Taxes

To the Editor:

I am a junior this term and will still be one next term. I would really like to know what the J-Hop committees have planned for their dance on Jan. 28.

Last year they hired a society orchestra. They hired Ed Sullivan set decorator and put up expensive decorations to a pretty tune of money. They put a fountain in the middle of the floor and hooked plumbing to run it for one evening. By the way, where is that fountain now—perhaps someone tried to sell it to reimburse the Junior class for the assessment last year.

Speaking of the assessment, is it legal? I understand that you can still register without paying it, and if there is one imposed next term I will certainly not pay it. Perhaps the rest of the Junior class should do the same and stop this silly business.

I should like to suggest to the committees working on the J-Hop that rather than depend on assessments they reduce their budget and stop being as extravagant. Other organizations on campus have good dances and make money. A couple of them will follow the J-Hop and I intend to wait for these.

His Column

To the Editor:

Don Pember in his column "Korea, Laos, For what Purpose?" started well, but seemed to dissolve about mid-column in many incoherencies about democracy and its ambiguous and elusive essent, freedom.

Excuse me if I tread on the toes of the Victory at Sea set for a moment, but the question of "should I go?" comes a little closer to the dilemma of some of the readers of this paper than the cry of the bewildered ground-pounder lamenting the loss of his happiness of pursuit.

If G. I. Joe leaves any little minds behind, I'm sure he'll rest easily in the knowledge that they are being militantly molded through a one-sided policy of education.

Perhaps some of the future columns will scare more than a bully in the tail end of a problem that threatens to gore many of us.

Headline Error

Dear Editor,

This letter is in reference to the news you had on January 10, about Algeria. The headline read, "75% Approve Algerian Policy."

The information you said was reported to you, and to many other papers, by the Associated Press. This was indicated in your article.

The same day, the New York Times had this to say:

"Final figures on the balloting in France and Algeria showed that 54.3 per cent of all those eligible to go to the polls had cast 'yes' votes and 45.3 per cent had voted 'no.' The combined abstention vote 25.8 per cent. I think that this quotation is self explanatory for the way that your headline read. Also it is my belief that you should have known that the abstention vote at this particular election was really a boycott for de Gaulle."

Another point is to the statement in your article "Most Moslems who voted yes followed the directions of the French army, which once again proved it effectively controls vast portions of the Algerian interior." Doesn't this statement throw any suspect in your mind on how the elections really took place? (Especially with the past actions of the French army.)

The first reason for mentioning these two points is to indicate that many articles and headlines appear which fool the people. Can all of these articles be accidental? The second reason is to show our American friends the "process of demo-

Red Speakers

To the Editor:

Ever since Provoost Miller stated his opinion on the lifting of a ban on communist speakers there has been a constant running battle in this section over the merits of such a position. Throughout this verbal battle I feel the main point has been completely overlooked, and that is, what are the underlying implications of each stand.

The first stand—the one that has appeared innumerable times—states that a Communist speaker is the agent of international communism and seeks to undermine and overthrow our country. By his twisting of facts and use of half-truths he will paint a picture in which listeners will have a difficult time discerning truth from fiction.

Therefore, the advocates of this stand conclude, this speaker is a menace to our society and should not be allowed to voice his opinions.

The second stand does not attempt to refute the correctness of the ideological goals that are stated above. They, in turn, confront it with the ideology of democracy. The question of freedom of speech is a valid objection to the first position but there is still a more cogent position: democracy must have at its foundation an enlightened and educated public.

Therefore, the supporters of the second position conclude that a democracy can stand up to any challenge if it has fulfilled its obligations to its people and that a democracy need not fear the very freedom it stands for.

That, the issue boils down to the question of whether or not the United States is a strong enough democracy—a country that has faith in its people, a country that feels it has provided its people with the facts—to confront any opposing views.

At a university, one of the highest levels of learning, it appears that the students, in respecting Provoost Miller's stand, do not feel the United States is a strong enough democracy with a people that can meet and triumph over ideologies that pose a threat to their freedom.

If this is true, then freedom of speech must be limited to protect the unenlightened and all opinions must be screened to protect the "truth."

With such recourse, however, the United States will also be forced to lower its banner of freedom and democracy.

WHEN WILL AMERICANS realize there are other things in life not so important but as important as sexual activity?

Who are you, Pember, to judge others should sell and read?

You, who had to learn from doctors "sex is normal, healthy and clean thing."

Your editorial offends me.

It reflects the present tendencies in American thought that strives for the Utopian nice, clean life where everyone alike, reads alike, drives the same type car, lives in the same type of house, submits to the will of the whole and joins in communion of the deviator.

Someday I may want to write a Pember. You don't have to read it but I would be able to write it.

Venezuela's President Hits Red Chinese Interference

EDITOR'S NOTE—William I. Associated Press news item making a fact-finding mission to Latin America. Here is the dispatch.

CARACAS, Venezuela, (AP)—President Romulo Betancourt today attacked Cuba against intruding in Venezuela's affairs. He vigorously denounced Soviet-Latin American interference in Latin America.

The president's attack came in the wake of a report that the American nation intended to send an expedition to Cuba and Europe to study a program aimed at ending the formidable Venezuelan economic problems in a bid for stability.

The president's attack and intercession in a significant international matter.

He accused the incoming U.S. administration of lack of interest in Latin America and urged the incoming Kennedy regime to devote much more attention to the United States' Latin American neighbors.

Venezuela is a target of heavy and increasing Soviet aid from several sources, the president said. He also accused the U.S. State Dept. of being "friendly" to Cuba's Yankee-baiting Fidel Castro, and the Venezuelan Dictator Rafael L. Trujillo.

But a press of this strategic nature indicates Betancourt and his followers are meeting the threats head-on in a bid to create a climate of political stability.

Trujillo, a Latin American, and his followers, feeling the pressure of passing the Cuban torch, are wary of becoming themselves on the wrong end of the stick.

At AUSG Meeting Library, Campus Chest Muddled

Student officers took no decisive action on any resolution at the first winter term meeting. The library checkout resolution and Campus Chest were the topics of what debate there was. The checkout debate was marred by members' confusion over the operations of the Organization committee.

A motion by Barry Boughton (Lansing) to bring the checkout proposal out of committee for a vote was overwhelmingly defeated after much involved parliamentary maneuvering.

Several members of the Organization committee spoke during the debate. One member, indicating the bill was to be brought out favorably and another that it was to be brought out unfavorably.

Bruce Lassman (East Lansing) at the Wednesday night meeting that members of the committee had visited the library and felt the library planned a change of its own.

Dan Riedel, AUSG president, in opening remarks, called for close cooperation between congress and the executive branch. Riedel said this cooperation was necessary because of the important issues facing congress this term, such as the drinking resolutions to be considered, the question of joining the National Student Association.

The class officers bill introduced Wednesday night called for the elimination of class officers because they are "ineffective and meaningless."

REDS SEIZE OFFENSIVE IN LAOS CIVIL CONFLICT

VIENTIANE, Laos, (AP)—Pro-communist forces have seized the initiative again in the Laotian Civil War. The rout of royal troops from the Ta Veng staging area looked Sunday like a major setback to government plans for a counteroffensive.

Laotian fliers carried on, however, making strafing and rocket attacks on the rebels in Ta Veng with all their air force—four propeller-driven T4 training planes recently received from the United States.

Grapplers Stop OSU: Keep Perfect Record

RICHARD ZEMMIS
State News Sports Writer

Michigan State's powerful wrestling squad swamped the previously undefeated Ohio State Buckeyes, 30-5, in a Big Ten Conference meet at Columbus, Ohio Saturday afternoon.

The Spartan wrestlers, by the way, remained undefeated for the season and are 7-0 against Big Ten teams. Ohio is now 1-1 in conference action.

MSU won eight of ten matches in the meet while accumulating a total of 20 points. The Spartans grabbed six decisions and two falls while the Buckeyes could manage just one decision. One match, the 130-pound class, ended in a draw.

State's George Helms and Bob Schuler were awarded the two falls of the meet. Helms, in the 123-pound class, pinned Buckeye Bob Moore, and the 167-pound Schuler pinned Ohio's Jay Hess. Both falls came in the third periods.

MSU's Ohio Johnson (115 pounds) and Duane Wohlfert (137) easily dominated their opponents. Johnson won handily, 8-1, and Wohlfert overpowered OSU's Ray Hess, 13-1.

HEAVYWEIGHT Mike Seng put in a fine performance, winning his match, 7-1, and 177-pound Alex Valonoff dominated Buckeye Tom Kilroy, 3-1.

Michigan State also came out on top in the 137 and 147-pound classes. Dave James (137) and Gary King (147) won close decisions, 3-2 and 7-6, respectively. King's match was one of the most exciting due to all the close scoring in it.

Jerry Hake of Michigan State was held to a draw for the second time in the 130-pound class. Hake is having a rough time with his injuries, according to coaches Tommie Collins and Grady Penning.

OHIO STATES only win came in the 147-pound class where Dave Hill dominated Spartan Merle Prebel. Prebel and Hill, old-time friends, were tied going into the last thirty seconds of the match. Then, the Buckeyes scored a take-down.

This was the second consecutive heartbreak for Prebel, who lost in the last second to Indiana last week.

MSU's head coach Collins said that the team looked a little better than they did against Indiana. However, he thought they were still slow starting.

"Hake and Wohlfert turned in very good performances," Collins said. "The girls at Ohio's team were made up of substitutes, and the meet ended pretty much as we expected," he added.

MSU Rifle Team Wins

MSU's varsity rifle team won last Saturday's match firing against Indiana and Wisconsin universities, according to Capt. Joe V. Pope, team coach.

MSU scored 2,790 of a possible 3,000 points over Indiana's 2,745 and Wisconsin's 2,671 in the second of four meets scheduled for this year.

High scorer for the MSU team was Ronald Haugen, who fired a 571 of a possible 600 points. Team members were close behind with Julian Donahue scoring 560, Alfred Stocki, 556, William Johnson, 552 and Jerrold Nye, 551.

Capt. Pope said that MSU is now competing with Purdue University for first place. The team will meet Purdue Feb. 11

Winter Sports Activities

Pro season estimates by the state board suggest that more than 10,000 skiers will make a winter of snow this year. In Michigan ski centers this winter, if overall conditions are as good as last year, this would be an increase of about 10 per cent over the number of skiers in Michigan during last winter. They are expected to spend some $15 million on the sport of winter recreation, according to a recent ski industry survey.

The year's winter sports have been booming throughout the state in recent years, particularly since 1953 when a total of 20 ski centers catered to about 65,000 skiers. In seven years, the number of ski areas has almost doubled and new members have swelled the growing ranks of ski enthusiasts.

The three winter sports centers opening this winter are:

Alpine Valley, on M-59, 10 miles west of Pontiac. This new area plans to feature four slopes up to 1,300 feet in length, two T-bar lifts, and six rope tow, a ski shop with rental equipment and instruction, a snow-making machine, and night skiing.

Grandview Orchards Ski Area, four miles north of Easton on Fenton Road. Plans for the area include five rope tows, a lodge with snack bar, rental equipment and instruction, a snow-making machine, and skating.

Birch Hills, six miles north of Big Rapids. This new area announces seven slopes with rope tow, warming shelter with snack, and rental equipment and instruction.

A new statewide winter vacation guide, pinpointing and describing each of Michigan's 74 winter sports centers, is available from the state tourist council. Free copies can be obtained by writing to: Ski Map, Michigan Tourist Council, Lansing 26.

The 74 areas, dotting the Michigan map from the far reaches of the upper peninsula to the fringes of metropolitan Detroit, offer a variety of slopes for beginners as well as experts and intermediate skiers.

In addition to downhill skiing, Michigan's winter scene features cross-country trails, slalom bowls, toboggan runs, skating rinks, ice fishing, ice boating and hunting.

Indoor facilities at many ski centers include lodge, dormitory and motel accommodations, restaurants, snack bars, lounges and warming shelters. Skis, boots and poles can be rented at most Michigan areas, and several centers offer ski week and weekend "package" vacations that include lodging, meals, equipment and instructions.

In addition to the three new Michigan ski areas, winter visitors will find facilities improved and expanded at several other ski centers.

CARL SHARR breaks record...

Swimmers Win Two Against Iowa Squads

Michigan State's powerful swimming team swam to two easy victories this weekend. The Spartans beat Iowa State University Friday, 74-27, and University of Iowa, Saturday, 71-21.

Carl Sharr, butterfly, broke his own MSU record Friday with his 2:01.9 time in the 200. According to swimming coach Charles McCaffree, Sharr's performance was phenomenal and placed him in the top group in the nation. In 1959 this performance would have put him second in the nation. He was sixth.

SHARR SWAM to a new pool record on Saturday at Iowa with his 2:57.7 time. He had little competition here and ran away from the field, said McCaffree. Capt. Billy Stewart swam the 200 individual medley on Friday, but lost by a touch to Iowa State's Paul Withersell. Saturday against Iowa Stewart was going away and broke a pool record and his own varsity record.

Jack Brackett won out over Art Peterson in 200's and Dick Blazewski came home strong to take second place.

In the 410 Brackett and Blazewski came in one, two in the last 150 yards to win in 4:13.9 to set a new pool record.

IN THE 200 breaststroke Danny Ruppert swam in 2:25.1 time to establish a pool record Friday.

Other Spartan swimmers to win in Friday's meet were Jeff Mattson, Ruppert, Sharr, and Jones, in the 400 medley relay. Mike Wood won the 50 with a 23.3 performance.

Bill Williams, out dove the field and scored 250.3 points. Paul Johnson was third.

Paul Withersell won the 300 yd. freestyle and Bud Stone won the 200 yard back stroke.

McCaffree said his five sophomores, Wood, Bill Wood, Jeff Mattson, Williams and Dan Jamieson gave the squad new blood and the veterans did a good job.

Mike Wood led all the way in the 200 on Saturday, only to stop short of the finish mark without realizing it. He barely discovered his error in time to win with a 2:06.5 time, according to McCaffree.

Wild Card Substitution To Remain

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The "wild card" substitution rule will remain in the book for 1961, with one minor alteration.

The Football Rules Committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association made that announcement Sunday at the close of a two-day meeting which produced no startling developments.

Most of the action was on the negative side. There will be no change in starting the goal posts and kicking the same size and in the same position, and a ball kicked by a kicking team without the opposing team's 10-yard line remains a touchback.

The substitution rule was the major issue, and the committee members obviously decided the rule as it stands basically is okay.

The proposal for unlimited substitution was overwhelmingly defeated. General Robert R. Nevard of Tennessee, committee chairman, said. "There was no disposition on the part of the group to go back to the two-position system by means of free and unlimited substitution."

The alteration in the 1960 rule is of a technical nature and would go unnotified by the fans.

Hockey Squad Loses, 8-1, 3-1 In Weekend Series With Tech

By Paul Schmitt
State News Sports Editor

Michigan State's hockey team ran into some stiff competition this weekend—namely a tough Michigan Tech squad and were beaten twice, 8-1 and 3-1.

Sparkling the victory Friday night was Lou Angotti, tallying three goals. Angotti struck quickly, driving the puck into the net only 13 seconds after the initial face-off. With less than a minute left in the period, Angotti scored again.

TOM LACKEY scored the lone state goal and that was in the final period. Meanwhile, Tech had rolled up an unimpressive 6-0 lead after getting four more goals in the second period.

Saturday night, MSU played a strong game against Tech's team of which Coach Arno Bergstrom said, "They gave a real good game with experienced scoring and smooth passing. Tech has the finest skating we will see in a year."

John Bergstrom scored for Michigan in the first period, but Tech's lead was never in doubt as they scored off their own power play in the second period.

The State put the pressure on and kept it on through the second period. Going into the third and final period, Tech led 3-0.

Michigan Tech's goalies, John Bergstrom and Tom Pettit, were excellent in both games.

Problems of Aged Wolverine Looks On WKAR AM-FM For More Photogs

A daily series of 10 radio programs concerning the problems of the aged will be heard over WKAR AM-FM beginning at 9:05 a.m. today.

Entitled "Planning Personal Futures," the series is closely related to the subject matter covered by the recent White House Conference on Aging.

The series will cover the key topics in the field of aging, such as financial planning for later years, housing, meals and nutritional needs, clothing requirements, use of time and the place of grandparents in the family structure.

The Wolverine, the yearbook publication, is again looking for photographs, according to Norm Hines, photo editor.

Wages are set by the number of prints done and are higher than the all-university wages.

Supplies and cameras are furnished but some experience is required.

Photographers may work during their free hours.

If interested contact Norm Hines at ED 7-1178, between 2 and 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday by appointment.
