

Registration Moves to IM

Registration will move to the Men's IM building, possibly in spring term, according to Lyb R. Lescroart, assistant registrar.

The change is definite for fall term, but may come next if some major problems can be overcome. One problem is obtaining special conveyances for those carrying books much time is required to cut, saw, and fit it.

If the move can be made for spring term, confusion resulting from the change will be reduced when new students register in the fall, Lescroart said.

Registration will be cut to three days fall term, since the larger IM facilities will allow a greater number of students to register in a shorter time.

Another new addition fall term will be the presentiment of students. All university colleges will enroll students for the next term at the end of each term.

According to Lescroart, the changes are being made to the elimination of registration as a hurdle. He said that the new IM building will do most of the work of registering students and dealing with class scheduling. Student preferences for class hours will be taken into account, but freedom to choose the final schedule will be left to the machine, Lescroart said.

Class scheduling will be left to the students, Lescroart said, "all our 8 o'clock classrooms would be empty."

Strike Halts Trains

Grand Central Station's Suddenly Too Quiet

NEW YORK (AP) — A 600-strike train was held at Grand Central Station Tuesday to help the union fight for a 10 percent pay raise.

The strike, which began Monday, has caused a major disruption in the city's transportation system. The Grand Central Station, which is one of the busiest in the world, was almost deserted.

The union, the New York Central Employees' Association, said it was willing to accept a 10 percent raise, but the management would not agree to it.

Student Congress to Decide On President's Veto Power

Student congress will have the opportunity tonight to vote on a bill giving the president of AUSA veto power over congressional legislation which would require executive action. This bill would not affect expressions of opinion such as the resolution supporting Wayne State allowing Communist speakers on the campus.

This bill is extremely important to future congress activity and for this reason we should like to comment upon its implications.

One of the major arguments given by supporters of the Presidential veto is that this will increase his interest in congress. Opponents to the bill claim that if the president's interest in congress activities has to be stimulated, the reason should be the job he is to do.

The statement has been made that the president, the only AUSA officer elected by the entire student body, is the representative of the student body and as such is the student's voice. Where, we ask, are the congress representatives elected from? And the majority vote of congress also representative of the student's opinion? And, it can also be pointed out that congressmen are, by nature of their smaller districts, in much closer contact with the student.

As things now stand, the president does not have the power to argue a bill before congress unless a representative yields his seat and the rest of Congress approves. He can only give his report at the beginning of the meeting.

If the veto bill were passed, proponents argue, after a two-thirds overriding of his veto, the president would have the opportunity to debate his reasons before Congress.

We feel, however, that the report of the president at the beginning of the meeting is likely to have far more influence than the debated opinions of the average Congress member.

Furthermore, Dan Riedel, current AUSA president, has indicated by the State News that neither he nor any other AUSA president should feel compelled to take immediate action on any resolution passed by congress.

Therefore it would seem that the passage of the veto bill would merely result in the formalizing of what is already an informal power.

We question the necessity of formalizing this power for several reasons.

Several members of congress have told us that this bill could be made to appear a "power-grabbing" move. We don't feel this to be the case. The existence of this attitude, however, would certainly lead to a great deal of friction between congress and president and easily block congress activity.

In conclusion, we see several strong reasons why the bill giving the president veto power should be defeated in Congress.

The friction that could easily result would be fatal to constructive congress activity. The president would have to decide on many issues with which he would not be familiar. And, a major consideration is that one man would be able to block legislation desired by anything less than a two-thirds majority of Congress, the amount needed to override.

Our primary argument against the passing of this bill is that it is simply not necessary. The president now has power to delay action on a bill. A veto power would have no more substantial effect than the present situation.

When Student Congress members are voting on this bill, they should ask themselves whether they really feel that Congress needs a self-imposed check on its actions.

Letter Writers Support and Condemn Views on Pornography

To the Editor

Mr. Chamberlain, I read your article in Father's State News and was glad to see that Mr. Chamberlain's views were so completely correct. I have seen pictures like those you mentioned in many ways. I would like to see them in your magazine.

Mr. Chamberlain, I would like to point out the advertisement which appeared on the back of your issue. The State News may be a contribution.

Keep up the good work.

Sex: Lewdness?

To the Editor

It is a surprise that I read Mr. Don Pember's editorial on pornography in the January 13 State News. I expect that the State News will not accept Mr. Pember's views on pornography. I think it is the duty of the State News to report on all matters of public interest. I think it is the duty of the State News to report on all matters of public interest.

Church Views?

To the Editor

Considering the esteemed position that Father Kavanaugh and his followers enjoy in our society, I find their reasoning quite... extremely questionable and most irresponsible.

In a free society citizenship is a serious question. Limiting the choice of reading material should be undertaken with the utmost care. The tools among us are not concerned with how you censor materials. Yet the wise man realizes that how you censor is as important as what you censor. The editorial always justifies his means by the ends he achieves. He will say, "Look, see what I have done. I have rid you of this plague." What he does not say is that at the same time he has also relieved you of your freedom. To be so much as to say anything which would induce a person to arouse his passion is obscene is incredible. There is

Pornography and the Law

Written by two eminent researchers in making a distinction between erotic creation and pornography in literature, the authors included samples of both so that the reader could see the difference in content and intent of both types of writing.

Mr. Pember's position, which is the dominant one, is that pornography is the word means himself. Noting the crime rate is increasing, Mr. Pember assumes that this is due to an increase in the amount of media which touch upon sex. What Mr. Pember fails to note is that the population is also increasing, especially areas of crowded living conditions known to be conducive to high crime rates.

Mr. Pember seems to see "evil and perversion" in every manifestation of that innate human quality, sex. His problem, I think stems from the fact that he needs a victim to fill him that sex is normal, healthy, and clean.

Name Calling

To the Editor

Recently I have noticed the rebirth of name-calling, especially of the names "pink, red, and communist." I have noticed also some self-appointed crusaders accusing many people of being communists and of being questionable as Americans.

Who are these crusaders? Some of the most outspoken of segregationists and other supporters of human rights number among the front ranks in this crusade.

In light of this fact and in light of the fact that the communists are spreading their ideology in Africa by showing the lack of humane racial relations in the southern United States, these would it be correct in deducing that those self-righteous crusaders against communism are actually the best weapon that the communists could use against the United States in their campaign for prestige?

Against Ad

To the Editor

The recent ad in the State News "Wolverines are Stacked and Ready to Go" was a very good double entendre. The brains tamer who conceived it could probably be found at the girls magazine rack that Don Pember so aptly spoke of.

Congratulations!

Look to Bible

To the Editor

In regard to the article "Random Thoughts" which appeared in the Jan. 11 issue of the State News, the question at the end of this editorial is to me a challenge.

"What is the answer?"

I hope you are a Christian in the truest sense of the word. If you are, you will find the best answer, and recognize it as such, in Galatians 5:13-26, especially in the 14th verse.

If you do not recognize the Bible as the source of resolution of all "inevitable conflicts," then I suggest for your consideration Harvard professor Sorokin's "Power and Morality," especially pp. 147-193. Please feel free to get in touch with me if you so desire.

No Assessment

To the Editor

All Juniors may rest at ease. There will be no assessment this year as a consequence of J-Hop financial failure. Tara through ticket sales to date has already produced a profit for the junior class.

Judging from certain statements made in a letter written by a doubting Junior (whose name was withheld in Monday's paper) I deduce that this person did not attend last year's J-Hop. This prompts me to invite him, as the guest of the J-Hop Executive committee, to attend Tara and decide for himself as to the merits of our traditional dance.

The J-Hop committees have been working for the better part of two terms to combine in one evening the best in entertainment and enjoyment. The results are a 1961 J-Hop with the following attributes:

1) Ticket price only $5 a couple.

Mass Enrollment

To the Editor

Once again the editorial staff of the State News has not looked before it leaped, and written the amount of a situation of which it obviously did not possess all the facts, specifically, mass enrollment in the College of Business and Public Service.

As a major in that college, I can appreciate that it is far superior to individual enrollment, and undoubtedly saves the student valuable time which otherwise would be spent waiting in some obscure office for an enrollment officer to sign his card.

Contrary to what was reported in this paper, the student is not forced to register late due to his participation in mass enrollment. Two sessions are set up—one of the first day for those scheduled to register early, and one during the middle of registration for those registering late. Each student has ample opportunity to enroll prior to the time he is to register.

Moreover, each department of the college conducts its own individual enrollment sessions with advisors from that department on hand to offer assistance and advice. In addition, information is distributed at each individual session which is of special interest to that particular department. The State News gave the impression that every upper-college student in the College of B&P.S. was herded into one big room for enrollment purposes. This is entirely untrue.

The State News has also confused the role of the enrollment officer with that of the academic advisor. To the best of my knowledge, each student is provided with an academic advisor from his respective college whose job it is to advise the student on his course of study.

The job of the enrollment officer is simply to make sure that the technicalities of the enrollment process are in order. He is not an academic advisor. Thus, the student who fails to consult his academic advisor in advance and waits until enrollment to organize his program, is making a great mistake.

The whole university would be well-advised to adopt the procedure of mass enrollment. It is effective, more efficient, and less time-consuming to students and instructors alike, and is a useful tool in coping with the increased numbers of students who come to the campus each year.

To the Editor

I am writing in regard to Ray Pratt's fine editorial that appeared in the Jan. 11 State News.

Your very intelligent criticism of Mr. Shapiro and his concepts of Cuba are the situation as I now know it. It pleases me so much to see it expressed.

I am a student in Mr. Shapiro's American history course at MSUO. Because of this, I feel I have gotten to know him somewhat better and can understand his concepts.

As you point out, emotion has overtaken his views in some respects. I think he truly feels a great amount of compassion for the Cubans and the South American people in general.

It is this feeling for the people that he acquired while there for the last year that makes him want to help them in any way he can. And it is for this reason that he talks of the injustices and wrongs that we as the citizenry of the U.S. have done.

In one talk that he gave to our history class, he transferred some of his emotion to us and really made us feel the need for some action to help the Cubans and South Americans.

He has made many more people aware that a problem really exists and for this he should be thanked and praised.

I thank you for your real consideration of the problem that he is facing.

But No Response Heard Sea Divers Tap Texas Tower With 26 Trapped Men Aboard

A team of divers has just again and again to strike on the sides of the sunken Texas tower No. 4. But he got no answer, not even the faintest hint of life aboard. The darkness, the silence apparently bespoke the doom of 26 men believed trapped within the storm-wrecked ocean sentinel.

"No response to tapping and report, no signs of life," was the heartbreaking message. Hatched from the Navy aircraft carrier to show station.

From his cabin aboard the Wasp, Rear Adm. Allen M. Shinn, in charge of a vast rescue effort 20 miles off the Atlantic coast, announced:

"It is now a salvage operation."

Then he handed command of the operation to the coast guard and ordered the Wasp back to regular duties, thus reluctantly writing off the lives of the 26 trapped men.

SOME of the victims were believed still alive hours after the 60-foot tower buckled and sank Sunday night in an Atlantic gale. Those had been floating southward from the tower Monday and were seen in 24-hour searches, showing a "suspicious" loss of air pockets around the ship-like tower structure.

There were 28 men aboard the tower when it fell and came to rest 30 feet beneath the surface, working among the tripod supports that gave way inward.

One body was recovered, a second sighted on the surface and held. The remaining 26 were believed trapped in the wreckage.

With dawn's first light, divers descended into icy waters, spurred by the memory of Monday's mysterious underwater deaths. But two hours later, at 8:30 a.m., a second attempt, there was little chance of anyone still alive in the wreckage.

COMMERCIAL DIVER Al Cullen, 43, of Beverly, Mass., and a crewman, just an hour tapping the tower, said the tower's personnel areas. They came in about noon with their gear report of no response.

Cullen, however, 24 hours to give up. On the theory the trapped men might be unconscious and unable to answer the tapping. He said he would not concede their doom until the interior of the tower had been penetrated.

But Admiral Shinn was apparently not the point of hours the search. It's a long time since they've got down.

He gave the Navy a verdict in quiet times. Obvious wreckage tonight sparkled on elements small boat, leaving the divers bobbed on the blue-gray water. Gray and orange helmets, hoisted overhead, trailing from air to pinpoint the tower's underwater position.

THE NAVY'S belief in inter-ship radio. Old hands still recall the brilliant rescue of 33 men from the sunken submarine Squalo in 1939. She went down in 200 feet of water off Portsmouth, N. H., and divers in bells saved the lives of her crewmen, saving bells were being moved into position here for the salvage effort.

The 4,200-ton tower, named after its rescuer, is on the edge of the Texas coast was damaged last autumn by hurricane Donna.

Hibbard stated that the frat men were better than the majority orientation tests than the previous freshmen class. This he said was an indication of the increasing importance of the increasing importance of the DFC program in student life.

Parental concern for academic achievement was noted as a most serious factor in the change.

Million Dollars Strike Sour Note

Senators Resist McNamara's Band-wagon Asking How He Spent Ford Stock Profits

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Secretary of Defense designated Robert S. McNamara, who sold his Ford stock in a move to allay fears, discovered the fears still around Tuesday among the Senators who must approve him.

Their concern focused on the position of conflict of interest. While the Senate Armed Services Committee had no question about McNamara's sale of $1.5 million worth of Ford Motor Co. stock, two members questioned him closely about what he is going to do with the money.

McNamara has put the total $1.1 million after taxes 1950 government bonds. He then plans to convert the bonds into a trust fund. Trustees would invest the money without consulting him.

"It's not my purpose to be harsh," Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said to McNamara. But Byrd said, the trust fund presented the same problem as the Ford stock for the fund trustees might invest money in companies that did business with the defense department, just as the Ford Motor Co. might do business with the department.

Byrd said the trust fund might violate the Conflict of Interest law, which was passed in 1873. "I will be quite happy to modify the agreement any way you suggest," McNamara told Byrd and the other members of the committee. The 44-year-old former president of the Ford Motor Co. suggested that his lawyers could sit down with lawyers of Congress and work out a satisfactory trust fund.

The chairman, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., told McNamara the committee had not decided yet if that was necessary. Russell added that, in any case, the committee could not act on McNamara until it formally received his nomination from President-elect John F. Kennedy. The formal nomination is expected after the inauguration Friday.

The discussion on Conflict of Interest recalled a similar situation in 1952 when President Eisenhower nominated Charles F. Wilson, President of General Motors, as Secretary of Defense.

In fact, there was some debate at the hearing Tuesday over whether the committee was asking McNamara to do more than Wilson had done.

Under pressure from the committee, Wilson sold his $2.5 million worth of General Motors stock before receiving Senate confirmation.

"It is true," Russell said today, "we forced Mr. Wilson to divest himself rather, we invited him to." The chairman's praise and change of phrase evoked laughter from his fellow Senators.

But, Russell then concluded, Senators were asking McNamara to do more than Wilson since Eisenhower's secretary never accounted to the committee for any possible investments or holdings after he sold his GM stock.

But Byrd reminded Russell that Wilson became subject to the Conflict of Interest law the moment he re-invested his money.

"So does this man," Russell said to Byrd.

McNamara agreed. "I think I've gone further than any person who has appeared before this committee."

While questioning McNamara closely, Byrd said he felt the Conflict of Interest law "should be repealed, modified, or enforced."

The first questions about Conflict of Interest were raised by Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H. He noted the trust fund would permit McNamara to change the trustee or financial advisers at any time.

McNamara said he was willing to alter or revoke this in whole or in part.

McNamara also said the committee he would serve as "Secretary" as long as he (Kennedy) felt it was effectively carrying out his policy.

In addition, McNamara said his personal and financial affairs would be an open book available to Congress, the press and the public. He said he would be willing to make public his income tax returns.

The committee also questioned Roswell L. Gilpatric, designated Deputy Secretary of Defense, and Elvis J. Stahr Jr., named Secretary of the Army.

Gilpatric was a member of the task force headed by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., which called for a sweeping reorganization of the Defense Department.

Gilpatric said he believed in the Symington report and would advocate it. But he noted that Kennedy had not committed himself about the report.

Bridges asked Gilpatric if he felt the law would permit abolition of the separate services.

"I am sure the law does not permit it and I do not favor it," Gilpatric replied.

Stahr, who is leaving his post as president of West Virginia University, told the committee:

"I did not seek this position. I felt I could not turn it down." Russell asked other officials designated for high posts in the Pentagon to return for committee hearings today. They include:

John B. Connally, named Secretary of the Navy; Eugene M. Zuckert, Secretary of the Air Force; Charles H. Hitch, Assistant Secretary of Defense and Comptroller; Arthur Sylvester, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs; Paul Henry Nitze, Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Affairs; and Cyrus R. Vance, General Counsel.

With 50 Others Former Professor Indicted On Obscene Mail Charge

William Peterson, 40, a former assistant professor of hotel and restaurant management, was one of 50 persons indicted Monday by a federal grand jury in Chicago on charges of conspiracy to mail obscene matter or of sending such matter through the mails.

Peterson was charged with sending obscene matter through the mail.

Dean Denison said Peterson resigned Oct. 24 "by request." He would make no further statement.

THE INDICTMENT came after a six-month investigation of two organizations called the "Atonis Male club" and the "International Body Culture Association."

Eight men and a woman indicted in an investigation of peddling clubs for men only surrendered Tuesday in Chicago and posted bond of $1,000 each.

Another defendant was struck down after, police said, he ran in front of an automobile.

In all, 51 men and women were indicted by a federal grand jury Monday. They were charged with sending or conspiring to send obscene material through the mails.

Charles E. Doell of Minneapolis is teaching two courses on park management offered by the resource development department.

Doell recently retired as superintendent of the Minneapolis board of park commissioners. He received several national awards for service in the area of recreation. He has also co-authored three books and numerous articles on parks.

His interests span park accounting, landscape and airport design and real estate operations as well as administration of public park and recreation departments.

This term's enrollment totals 3,786, 3,561 taking courses for credit and 225 non-credit courses, Taylor said. Last fall 4,005 enrolled for both credit and non-credit courses for a record enrollment in the evening college program.

About 150 courses are being offered for credit this term in addition to ten non-credit courses, Taylor said. Many students in the evening program have part-time jobs during the day and are still able to carry a full-time load at the University.

The total enrollment this term is seven per cent higher than the winter term one year ago, Taylor said, and reflects a steady increase in the popularity of the evening college program.

Evening College Enrollment 3,786 Taylor Says

Enrollment in the evening college program this term is the second highest in the eight year history of the program, according to Clair Taylor, director of the evening college and summer school.

This term's enrollment totals 3,786, 3,561 taking courses for credit and 225 non-credit courses, Taylor said. Last fall 4,005 enrolled for both credit and non-credit courses for a record enrollment in the evening college program.

STUDENT FUNDS STUDENT NEEDS

JAN. 25 - FEB. 1

Wolverine Needs Photogs

The Wolverine, the yearbook publication, is looking for photographers according to Norm Hines, photo editor.

Wages, which are set by the number of prints done, run higher than the all-university student wage rate.

Supplies, camera and dark-room equipment will be furnished to those interested, but some photo experience is necessary.

Photographers will be allowed to work during their free hours. If interested, call Norm Hines at the Wolverine office. His office hours are Monday and Friday, 10 a.m. to noon, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, 2 to 4 p.m.

If these hours are not convenient, call him at home at ED 7-1173 on an appointment may be arranged.

Threatened suicide when he was arraigned before a U.S. commissioner last night in Indianapolis, where he was released on $1,000 bond.

Willborn, who said he has been on the Indiana faculty for almost 30 years, has declined to comment on the charge against him.

AMONG THOSE who surrendered in Chicago were Jack Zandeveldt, editor of the magazines now out of business, and his wife, Nirvana, secretary of the Atonis Male club. They made no comment.

Others who surrendered were Rem Butterfield and Michael Corbin of Chicago, Edward Mejka Jr., of suburban Cicero, Jack Mullen of suburban Algonquin, George Lundenmeyer of Peru, Ill., and James Poulos, Lansing, Mich.

Herance B. Hart of Chicago also surrendered and pleaded innocent. His bond was set at $1,000 and the hearing was continued to March 17—the date by which federal officials hope all preliminary motions will have been made.

Others who surrendered were identified as Bobby Guin of Magnolia, a man who worked in the freight yards, and two others unloading grain from freight cars—Hansy Johns and Charles Hughes, both of Magnolia.

Early estimates placed the dead as high as nine, but the Illinois Central claims agent said he could account for only six.

The collision took place at a downtown intersection about 9 a.m., less than two hours after the streamliner left New Orleans. It was due in Chicago at 11:40 p.m. tonight.

THE TRAIN depot is in the heart of town and small shops, stores and offices line both sides of the street. The track itself is on a small neutral ground.

R. L. Williams, a Magnolia painter, was in a Main Street store when he heard the streamliner approaching, its whistle "blowing like hell."

Williams said the truck driver apparently didn't hear the train and started slowly across the tracks.

"The train smashed into the truck and shot flames as high as the trees and spread the

Passenger Train Rams Truck, Whistle Blowing Like Hell

MAGNOLIA, Miss. (AP)—The streamliner "City of New Orleans" speeding toward Chicago at nearly 90 miles per hour with its whistle blowing like hell, smashed into a gasoline truck yesterday, killing six and injuring six others.

The nine-car passenger train rammed the truck at a crossing in downtown Magnolia, a community of about 2,200, in south Mississippi about 100 miles north of New Orleans.

The truck exploded under the impact, spraying flames as high as the trees, and the length of the train. The big diesel—on four from New Orleans to Chicago—skidded about 300 yards along the track that splits the center of the town before stopping.

"Fire went everywhere," said Mrs. Wilma Gray, who works in a drug store near the crash site. "The front sections of the train were burned and killed several people. I don't guess I ever heard as loud an explosion."

DR. CLAUDE PETTEY, dentist whose office is near the depot, saw Percy Nelson, a train yard laborer, staggering down the tracks with his clothes on fire.

Petty pulled the burning clothing from Nelson, who kept asking "about the other boys." Speeds near 80 are not unusual, IC spokesmen said, even when passing through small communities like Magnolia. The city is not even a flag stop, they said.

There is a red-and-white warning motorist to stop at the crossing, but there are no flashing lights or cross bars.

Travel to Cuba Banned By U. S.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The United States Monday banned travel by Americans to Cuba because it can no longer provide protection to Americans there.

The travel embargo takes effect in about 48 hours.

An exception is provided for persons whose travel to Cuba is regarded by the state department as "being in the best interests of the United States."

This includes new and existing business interests in Cuba.

A similar off-limits ban applies to four Communist countries with whom the United States has no diplomatic relations.

Those countries are the Chinese, Albania, North Korea and North Viet Nam.

Assistant Wrestling coach Grady Peninger watches workout of Norm Young of the MSU varsity.

Peninger Likes Big 8 Wrestling

By JIM WALLINGTON

Who could blame Grady Peninger, Michigan State's new assistant wrestling coach, if he wished he hadn't left Oklahoma for Michigan State.

Behind him he left the hotbed of wrestling where wrestling matches sometimes outrivaled basketball games, where newspapers print full-page spreads on wrestling, where he refereed matches between Oklahoma State and Oklahoma universities with over 8,000 fans in the stands.

IN OKLAHOMA he was the high school coach of the air and mentor of state champion, Ponca City High School.

Grady left Oklahoma for the Big Ten where wrestling is not king. It is not even a prince. Wrestling is just another after sport along with fencing, gymnastics and swimming. Wrestling's unimportance bothers Peninger and he wants to make it important.

THE ASSISTANT to head coach Family Collins, advocates night matches, more scholarships and heated rivalry to make Big Ten wrestling a spectator sport. He said conference wrestling will never increase in popularity until night matches are held regularly.

"The Ten wrestling is static because of afternoon matches," he said.

Michigan's and MSU's natural rivalry should serve as a catalyst for the sport.

"There should be two matches a season and both at night," Peninger said.

Peninger advocates more athletic scholarships for his Spartan advocates more athletic scholarships for his Spartan advocates more athletic scholarships for his Spartan.

"The two Oklahoma schools offer as many as 10 scholarships per season," Grady said. "The Spartans get just one for the whole team."

PENINGER, who was undefeated as an undergraduate Oklahoma State, said Mid-west grappling is not dead.

He points out that twice as many Michigan high schools sponsor wrestling as in Oklahoma.

Many good wrestlers come from this state, he said.

"The toughest wrestling in Michigan high schools is at Lansing," the new assistant said. "Eight members of the Spartan grappling unit are from the Lansing area."

Another member of the Spartan squad is a fellow Oklahoman, Jerry Hoke. In two seasons—1953 and 1954—Hoke defeated a Peninger coached Ponca City wrestler for state prep championship.

Two other Ponca City High products of Peninger, Shelby Olson and Doug Blubaugh, were this country's wrestling and medal winners in the 1960 Olympic games.

Spain To Reach 300 in '61

Baltimore, (AP) — Barring the unfortunate, pitcher Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves should reach another milestone in his fabulous career by winning his 300th game in 1961.

But accomplishing that goal will be more than just another triumph for the 39-year-old left-hander. A personal trophy is at stake, too.

"I've got to get to No. 300 before Earl Spahn," referring to the late War of the Chicago White Sox, "can compete in for six to ten more years."

SPAHN WON 21 games last season, the 11th time he won 20 or more games. He finished the Major League season total of 207. When combined to 1959 and 1960, winning 22 in 1959 and 30 in 1960.

"I pitched Gus for the first time last season," Spahn said while here for the 20th annual "Days in Sports" banquet of the Michigan Professional Baseball Players Association.

"We've been kidding each other about No. 300 for quite a while," Spahn said. "When I win my 300th game in Chicago a few weeks back, I was invited to the home to celebrate with a drink from a mug he was awarded for his 200th victory."

THE RECORD book shows Spahn posted his first Major League triumph for Washington in 1941, giving him a five-year jump on Spahn who won his first for the Boston Braves in 1940.

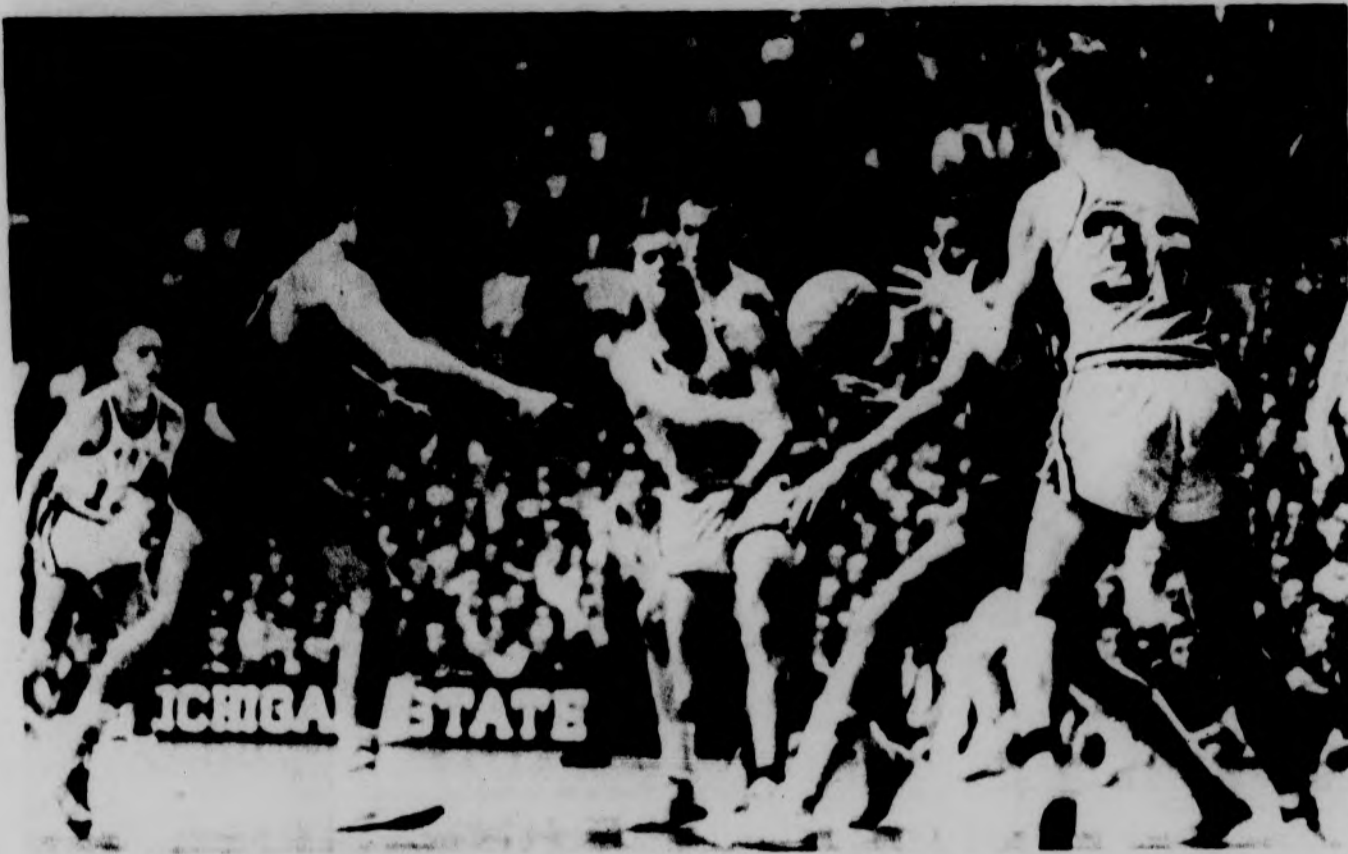

Spahn said the "element of surprise" was vital to the success of a pitcher of his type, who does not have an over-protecting pitcher to get the batter out.

Spahn said he likes to get the batter up and then come down with a pitch he is not expecting.

"In a tight situation, I would throw a pitch that has not been going so well during the game, that is, help the batter guess my next delivery."

If I can throw four possible pitches, the batter has only one chance in four to guess correctly. If I rule out one pitch, his chances improve to 33 per cent. "I don't intend to do any favors for the hitters. They don't win any for me."

Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers set a new National Football League scoring record last season with 126 points. He made 15 touchdowns, kicked 41 extra points without a miss and had 15 field goals.

Volleyball Club Faces Ann Arbor

The team representing the MSU volleyball club will travel to Ann Arbor this Wednesday night for a match with the Ann Arbor YMCA.

This is the first half of a two game series to be played on each team's home court. The Michigan State team will play the WMCA group at home on Wednesday, Feb. 1st.

This season will be the first for the newly organized Midwest Intercollegiate Volleyball conference. Member schools include George Williams, Ohio State, Detroit Institute of Technology, Calson College, Wittenburg, Earlham, Lansing Community and Michigan State.

In addition, the club will provide half-time entertainment at the Illinois-Michigan State Basketball game on Feb. 20th.

This year's Spartan team combines some veterans with some promising newcomers.

The practice schedule for the winter term is 4 to 6 p.m. Any male student is welcome to join the team.

Participants wearing glasses must have case-hardened lenses. Regular glasses must not be worn during IM contests.

Lifters Excel

Michigan State weight lifters have shown a strong display of strength in the Michigan AAF Class A weight lifting championship last Saturday.

Ted Bergman was strong in the Spartans. His three lifts totaled 614 to give him first in the lightweight class (140).

Bob Hendrick, Muskegon sophomore, grabbed a second in the light-heavyweight class (180) with a total lift of 640 pounds.

Also competing were Carl O'Neil, captain of the squad and Gordon Roche. Both men fought out on the way to the meet.

The meet was highlighted by a world record coaching success of 143 points by heavy weight Norman Szymanski.

The Cleveland Browns led National Football League teams in scoring last season. They made 262 points in 12 league games.

Jimmy Brown of the Cleveland Browns won the National Football League ball carrying title for the fourth straight season. He averaged 5.8 yards for 215 attempts.
