Lumumba's Death Announced

Space Station to Probe Planet

Meeting Expected By May

Life on Venus, Radio Test Aims of Shot

MOSCOW, (AP)—A Soviet space station bound for Venus may pierce that planet's perpetual cloud cover and reveal some of her secrets, scientists said Monday. One aim of the spectacular space probe is to shed light on whether there is life on that neighbor of earth.

A rendezvous with Venus about 26 million miles out in space sometime between May 15 and 21 was predicted by Prof. Ar. Shvedtsov, a top Soviet space scientist.

The U.S. Naval Observatory, however, said Venus would be 12.9 million miles away on May 20.

THE BIG QUESTION, Steward added, is whether the space station's radio can send back over the vast reaches of space the data as eagerly awaited by scientists.

"It is this that the experiment is designed to show," he said in an interview with the news agency TASS.

Oleg Melnikov, physicist at Leningrad observatory, said it is likely the station will pass through the thick clouds that blanket Venus and obtain first-hand evidence of the planet's atmosphere.

THIS MIGHT show whether Venus, often called the earth's twin, could sustain life. Most scientists believe Venus is too hot to sustain life because it is about a third closer to the sun than is the earth.

In various interviews, Soviet scientists said the space vehicle should provide more exact measurements of the solar system, and furnish answers for problems of man's flight into space.

The probe should show, for example, whether greater hazards from meteorites await the traveler farther out in space, said President Yevgeny Krinov of the International Meteorite Commission. He noted that Soviet and U.S. space probes have shown the meteorite hazard insignificant closer to the earth.

There was speculation whether the space station carried cameras, but Director Victor Bazukin of the Moscow Planetarium refused to join in the speculation. He told reporters there has not yet been an announcement on this.

Five Candidates Seek Position Of Next Mr. MSU

Five candidates were selected last week at a "Spinner Spin" rush to compete for the title of Mr. MSU at the "Spin" Friday, Feb. 17.

The new Mr. MSU will take the title over from Robert "Chick" Chickerin, Ridgewood, N.J., senior. The new Mr. MSU will be introduced and presented a trophy during intermission by the reigning Miss MSU Arlyn Greifendorff, Chicago sophomore.

Richard Malby, who's band is playing for the "Spin," will lead the special entertainment during the intermission.

The three winners in the message contest will also be announced at this time. Their prizes will be free photographs taken at the dance and donated by Kappa Alpha Mu, the photography honorary fraternity.

Tickets for the "Spinner Spin" are $3.75 and may be purchased at the Union ticket office.

'Need Is Urgent' Health Bill Goes to Congress

WASHINGTON, (AP)—A bill to provide social security health insurance for the aged, one of President Kennedy's most controversial proposals, was introduced Monday.

In the House, the measure was referred to the ways and means committee, where a similar bill died last year.

Some Kennedy advisers, however, are predicting that committee opposition will soften if the administration takes its time, letting other elements of Kennedy's bulky economic package come to votes first.

THE BILL, came to Congress with a letter in which Kennedy said, "I believe the need for such insurance is urgent."

It was introduced in the House by Rep. Cecil King of California, the second-ranking Democrat on the Ways and Means Committee. Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who under House procedures would have first opportunity to sponsor the bill, has made no public comment on the Kennedy proposal. Mills opposed last year's counterpart.

In the Senate, the administration bill was introduced by Sen.

Clinton Anderson, D-N.M., who with Kennedy co-sponsored a similar proposal last year when the President was a senator from Massachusetts. That proposal was beaten in the Senate 41-44.

THE KENNEDY administration plan would begin providing hospital benefits Oct. 1, 1962, nursing home services the following year.

Estimated to cost initially $1.1 billion, the program would be financed by increasing the social security tax 1.5 per cent on each employer and employee, by one-fourth of 1 per cent on each, and also by extending from $4,800 to $5,000 the annual wage base on which the tax is levied.

At the target, an estimated 142 million social security and retired pension receipts would be covered. Sponsors estimated that enactment of the measure, added to existing programs, would provide some form of health protection under public programs for all but about one-half million of the 16 3/4 million Americans 65 or older.

The benefits—subject to a maximum 490 deductible factor—would include hospital services up to 90 days, nursing home services up to 180 more days, and various outpatient hospital and nursing services. No primary doctor bills would be paid.

Hearts, Life Mended Of Pain, Remembered

NEW YORK, (AP)—Thirty-eight little boys and girls, who once gave their hearts to their doctor to be mended, for life, gave them back again Monday—at a Valentine party for him.

It was a hugging, kissing and truly heart-warming occasion for Dr. Alvin Bakst, a New York pioneer in open heart surgery.

Dr. Bakst was almost speechless as the youngsters surged around him, laughing, chattering and jumping as normal children do.

Up to four years ago—when the surgeon began his career of open heart operations—there wasn't a normal one in the group.

In fact, every single one was doomed to death before maturity. They were a pitiful collection of little human beings.

Some were too weak to move. Some were bedridden. Others would faint every few minutes. A few were already at the edge of death.

Looking at them Monday, even Dr. Bakst had to shake his head in awe and pleasure at what medical science had enabled his strong hands to do.

"Isn't it marvelous?" he murmured over and over.

There hopping about, the picture of liveliness, was 7-year-old Echele Hausman, of 259 New York ave., Brooklyn. Only five weeks ago she was on the operating table.

There was 10-year-old Richard Zweig of 80-23 180 St. Jamaica, Queens. Richard had his operation two years ago.

"Hey, Ritchie," called the doctor. "I hear you're the champion athlete of the summer camp. And I want to thank you for that wonderful letter you wrote me about your operation."

Richard couldn't admire the doctor more. He is a font of the surgeon he decided to become a doctor himself.

The party was staged at Brooklyn Jewish hospital, where Dr. Bakst has performed most of his 200 open heart operations on both children and adults.

Today Is

Valentine's Day

Nobody really knows who started Valentine's Day. But as long as love exists, the day devoted to it will be acclaimed by poets and plain people all over the world. It has no real connection with St. Valentine, a religious saint, and yet it is celebrated on his feast day.

New Threat of Civil War Stirs in Congo

UN Chief Urges UN Peace Bid Full Investigation Hit by Massacre

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Dag Hammarskjöld urged Monday a full and impartial investigation into the killing of former Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba—and defied the United Nations or any other quick support from one also to do anything about it.

The office of President Mobutu Sese Sese, arch-foe of Lumumba, said the deposed ex-premier was buried in an unmarked grave and the African government was offering $5,000 as a reward for the capture of criminals who shot Lumumba.

After listening to several speakers, the council decided to adjourn until Wednesday in order to permit private consultations and to assess further the gravity of the new developments.

Hammarskjöld referred to the slaying of Lumumba and two of the Congolese leaders associated as news of a "most serious and tragic nature."

He said it was of such significance as to require, necessarily, a full and impartial investigation.

Adlai E. Stevenson, the chief U.S. delegate, welcomed a suggestion from Hammarskjöld that the UN investigation already ordered into Lumumba's reported escape be continued.

Stevenson called the killings "distressing and deplorable news," but expressed hope that "men of good will everywhere join together with sober resolve not to seek revenge, but to seek reconciliation."

"Now, more than ever is the time when we must proceed in the council to find a consensus on constructive measures which will help restore peace and stability to the Congo."

Kennedy Shocked By Announcement

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Official Washington reacted with shock and dismay Monday to the death of Patrice Lumumba.

An immediate fear was that the Kremlin would seize on the death of Lumumba as a Communist ploy.

Through Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson at the United Nations, the United States renewed its push for UN handling of the Congo problem as the best way to avert meddling by outside powers.

President Kennedy "expressed great shock" when he heard the news of the death of the Congo leader, White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger reported.

Stevenson termed the news "distressing and deplorable" and gave U.S. support to UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld's call for a full and impartial inquiry into the circumstances of Lumumba's death.

Professional Frats Form New PFC Governing Body

Applications Ready Today For Program

A new governing body for professional fraternities which removes them from the Interfraternity Council (IFC) has been formed on campus.

The organization will be called the Professional Fraternity Council (PFC). It will become active as soon as its constitution is recognized by the Student-Faculty committee on Student Affairs, according to Gerald Babcock, Detroit junior, president of the PFC and Delta Sigma Pi.

MEMBERS of the PFC are Delta Sigma Pi, business and public service; Alpha Kappa business and public service; Alpha Chi Sigma, chemistry and Phi Mu Alpha, music.

OFFICERS of the PFC are Babcock, president, and Tim Durbin, Michigan junior, secretary. The executive board of the PFC consists of two representatives from each fraternity. The board elects its officers from the group.

Formation of a PFC was first suggested last spring term. According to Babcock, the professional fraternities felt that a more specialized council could more effectively serve the professionals.

The professionals are interested in more specialized fields than the social fraternities. Members of the PFC will operate with more autonomy than they could in the IFC so we can focus our energy more on activities within the scope of our specialized interests," Babcock said.

THE PFC will operate mainly as a advisory body leaving its members free to pursue programs oriented toward their professions.

Babcock said that the houses will not have house mothers, but graduate students acting as resident advisors. No social functions will be held in the house without permission from the University Social committee.

Fraternities belonging to the PFC will have no "fraternity week" dining institutions, but will be required to meet and become an active member will be the same as the IFC.

For a fraternity to qualify for membership in the PFC it must be recognized nationally as a professional organization and have a house on campus, according to Babcock.

No coordinated programs are planned between the PFC and IFC president, but future programs are a possibility, according to Larry Osterink, Grand Rapids junior, president of the IFC. The IFC will give the PFC any help it can in getting started.

Michigan Unemployed Reaches 320,000 as Situation Worsens

By LANE WICK
State News Staff Writer
First of Three Parts

The long lines of the unemployed are getting longer again. In Detroit, Bay City, Muskegon and Port Huron the jobless workers shuffle silently into the unemployment offices to pick up their checks.

In Battle Creek, Grand Rapids, and Jackson others do the same. In Michigan's upper peninsula, the largest of our so-called depressed areas, the jobless workers have come to accept as fate the slowly moving lines and the meager subsistence.

It happened in 1953 when an estimated 400,000 unemployed had stood in line, and now at the start of a new decade Michigan has 320,000 unemployed.

Today in Michigan, 320,000 men are idle. The prospects of a business spurt and job opportunities are hoped for but not seen, and our 11.5 per cent unemployment will likely give way to a higher figure. The director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission says the outlook between now and March is "very grave."

ON THE NATIONAL scene, the new U.S. secretary of labor says "the situation is 'very grave.'"

And on Feb. 10, the third time in three years Michigan's seemingly annual unemployment crisis appears. From December 15 to Jan. 13, over 30,000 men are estimated to have been told to "take a walk." Many more will follow.

Is Michigan to become a chronic unemployment area, like West Virginia? Must we accept the long lines of jobless as unfortunate but unavoidable? Why does our state enjoy the dubious honor of a jobless estimate far above the national average of 7 per cent?

THERE ARE some five definite reasons for Michigan's sick economy.

They are the impact of automation, our dependency on the durable-goods industries, transfer of national defense needs from aircraft and motor vehicle to missile production, our tremendous population growth, and the decline of our farm economy.

Of the five, automation is the major factor according to Asst. Professor Roger L. Bowley of the economics department. Bowley is an economist with the university's Bureau of Business and Economic Research.

"Automation has hit Michigan harder than most states," says Bowley, "because of our dependency on the auto industry. The auto industry has pioneered automation and finds it particularly advantageous. The car-builders have used machines in place of men wherever possible, to eliminate jobs and expense."

SINCE 1953, the number of men employed by the auto makers has dropped from 503,000 to 299,000—a loss of over 200,000 jobs.

"The new jobs that automation has created," continues Bowley, "are in other states, primarily in the far west. Automation hasn't hurt other states, such as Massachusetts and California, as much as it has hurt Michigan."

Because we lack a healthy diversification of industry, I am skeptical of economic progress in the future. I see nothing in sight that will take up the slack caused by automation in our durable goods industries," he said.

Bowley feels that the auto industry cannot make the comeback that would be needed to lower our unemployment substantially.

"I suspect that 1958 may have marked the turning point in Michigan economic development," says Bowley, "we will likely cease to grow industrially and economically at our present rate."

Antitrust Violators Begin Terms

NORRISTOWN, Pa., (AP)—Four high-salaried electrical executives began serving today jail terms Monday for their conspiracy in the national respect Federal Antitrust case.

Handcuffed to each other in pairs, they strode up the stairs of the Montgomery County prison in the heart of this community near Philadelphia, and disappeared behind an iron-barred door.

One of the executives, William Ginn, 45, a $135,000 a year general Electric Co. vice president from Schenectady, N.Y., owned as he walked past a battery of photographers outside the prison and snapped, "get a shot, boys."

Ginn was handcuffed to Lawrence Burger, 48, of Fort Wayne, Ind., a GE division manager, who was handcuffed together with Jung, 58, vice president of Clark Controller Co., Cleveland, and George Burens, a GE president who lives in Cleveland but who had been on bail in Louisville, Ky.

The four surrendered Monday morning to U.S. Marshal William O'Brien at the federal building in Philadelphia. They were fingerprinted and sat for a spell as O'Brien checked their office routine.

Then they were put in two cells for the 45-minute ride here and a deputy rode with them and Burger. He said they talked to each other on the way.

Two deputies in the other cell said their prisoners—all dressed conservatively, dressed and talked about the other, which was overcast and cool.

Today the new prisoners will be issued the blue denim prison jumpsuits and take physicals. Then they will join in the prison with two others involved in the conspiracy who began their jail terms last Friday.

The men don't want to talk, they don't have to. Ward Andrew White said that if they wanted, the men could do legal jobs.

Hughes Chosen By Democrats For Governor

TRENTON, N. J., (AP)—Former Judge Richard Hughes of Trenton Monday was chosen by the Democratic organization to be candidate for governor of New Jersey.

Gov. Robert Meyner announced choice of Hughes at a news conference in the state house after a meeting with party leaders at his executive mansion in Princeton.

Meyner said he does not expect any major opposition to Hughes in the April primary election.

The Republicans have three candidates in the field, former Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell and state Sen. Walter Jones and Wayne Dumont Jr.

Hughes, 51, a lawyer, ran for office only once before. He was defeated for Congress in 1938.

Rock 'n Roll Reflects Mediocre Tastes in U.S.

Rock 'n roll is the music world's answer to the mediocre taste of the American public. Just as so much of the mass media is geared to the mediocre taste of the public, rock 'n roll was designed to sell more records, and make the fastest dollar possible.

This is the opinion stated by the university's new professor of jazz, Dr. M. E. Hall, associate professor of music. "Dr. Jazz," as he is called by his students, is the only educator in the nation with a degree for teaching this specialized form of music.

"If we were to raise the American musical taste above the mass, coarse sounds people are listening to today, the best way would be to educate people in the field of popular music," he said.

"THE PUBLIC schools are providing students with training only in marching and concert bands. So how can we really expect young people to have good taste in something about which they have no knowledge?" Hall asked.

Dr. Hall suggested that every high school have a school stage and dance band. By playing new arrangements of good dance songs, students could learn to appreciate good blending of instruments, intonation, and tonal color, he said.

This, in turn, would lead to greater appreciation of the concert band, symphony, and opera, he said.

SCHOOL DANCE bands also provide training for the field in which many music students will work, he said.

Hall also said that educators have always presented students with European "classical" music, thinking that this is true art, and left the student completely uneducated about the music to which he is most subjected—namely popular music, movie sound tracks, and jazz.

We should try to promote our own form of music—jazz, he said. As much as we respect European culture, it is the European who really appreciates and respects good jazz," he said.

MANY PEOPLE think of jazz in terms of Harry James, Jonny Jones, Glenn Miller, or Buddy Morrow. These are good dance, rhythm and blues, or swing bands, Hall said.

He said that record companies, in their effort to make more money, have reached the lowest common denominator in reaching the public. The public should be exposed to "real" jazz greats, such as Art Pepper, Don Fagerquist, Zoot Sims, and Art Farmer.

Hall said that by educating students about the music around them, Americans taste in music may improve.

Enemy Within To be Movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The 20th Century Fox Studio announced today it has purchased "The Enemy Within," a novel by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, and will produce it as a motion picture.

Producer Jerry Wald will make the movie, executive producer Robert Goldstein said. Wald hopes to start production by summer.

The novel was an outgrowth of Kennedy's experience as chief counsel for the Senate Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor-Management Field. The story highlights problems and abuses uncovered by the committee.

Kennedy, a brother of President John F. Kennedy, wrote the book before his appointment as attorney general. Harper Bros. published it a year ago, with the author's proceeds going to aid of retarded children.

Goldstein said the cast has not been determined.

Knapp's to Salute Brides At Civic Center Fashion Show

It will be June in February this month when the brides over at the Civic Center.

J. W. Knapp company will give a special fashion salute, "To the Bride," there Feb. 23 just for brides, as coeds from all central Michigan universities and high schools model wedding finery.

Miss MSU, Arlyn Greiffendorf, and Miss University of Michigan will star with over 20 other coeds as brides in the gala. They will be complimented by whole wedding parties, complete with bridesmaids, flower girls, mother of the bride, mother of the groom, and that forgotten member, father of the groom.

The show will not be just satin and lace, however. Allied Florists of the Capital area will furnish elaborate bouquets and floral stage settings.

The main auditorium of the Civic Center will hold displays of sterling crystal, china, linens and gifts for the bride. Starring here will be a $4,000 hand-crafted silver tea service.

The editor of The Bride's Magazine will narrate as the models parade down a 100-foot runway into the audience.

Bridal gowns will be the big attraction but "brides" will get equal attention. They will model bathing suits, ensemble and gown, away fits.

Knapp's has set aside the of the show as Brides. Tickets for "To the Bride" be bought at the Lansing Music temple, Knapp's or the Bookstore.

Coeds may register in the show as Knapp's coeds will go to charity.

England is now a partner of the England - Cook Chevrolet Dealer in Lansing. Don Pears (Rep.) Speaker of the House of the State Legislature, will speak to the Young Republicans next Tuesday.

Candidates for City Offices Ready for Primary Monday

4 Newcomers, One Vet Seek Council Seats

Four new names and one old one will be on the ballot at East Lansing City Council primary election Feb. 20.

Four of the candidates are political newcomers, the fifth, Max R. Strother, assistant purchasing agent at MSU, served on the city council 1947-59, six of those years as mayor.

"I didn't pean in 1959 because I felt I had a ne my civic duty," he said, "the positions on the council should be passed around."

Strother plans no campaign at all but says he will leave it up to the people to elect him if they wish. He said that he agreed to be placed on the ballot only after numerous requests for him to run again.

Although not actively seeking the post, he said, "I believe I would be an asset on the council, rather than a liability and would also be of assistance from a university standpoint, particularly concerning the MSU-East Lansing sewerage program."

A resident of East Lansing for 10 years, Strother is presently a member of the downtown planning and advisory committee and is active in other community activities.

Other candidates for the council seats are: George W. Cawood, 915 Darlington drive, gave his views on East Lansing problems.

"I think I can be helpful in solving some of the city's problems because of my knowledge of these problems."

Cawood is a building contractor and has worked closely with the city in his business.

Kenneth B. Dillinger, of 824 Chittenden drive, said he is confident of the growth and progress of the city and promises efficient services and policies promotion and a fair distribution of the economic burden.

He is director and secretary of the East Lansing Savings and Loan association and a member of the city planning commission.

George G. White, of 172 Spartan avenue, has been living in East Lansing for the past five years and says he wants to be elected to the council because he believes "my considerable experience as a businessman and professional engineer well qualifies me to intelligently discharge the duties of councilman."

White is vice president and engineer of the Whitehalls Development company and for seven years was an assistant city engineer in Jackson.

Donald A. Barrett, of 1444 Gilecrest avenue, became a resident of East Lansing in 1959 when his area was annexed.

"I feel we need representation for our area in the city council," he said. "Also, the city has increased to such a size it should be divided into wards. 30 councilmen could be familiar with the property and citizens living there."

Barrett, who is owner of Don's Auto Trim, also promises more government economy and expanded services.

Four candidates will be picked Feb. 20 to face off for the two places left by Mayor Harold Pletz and Mayor Pro-tem Arthur Powers, who are not seeking reelection.

Pletz, in refusing to run for reelection pointed out that he had already served 12 years and had recently taken on an official position with the Kiwanis club.

Powers cited increasing pressures of business as his reason for refusing to seek re-election.

Gubow to Speak On 'Rule 9' to Campus Dems

The MSU Democrats for Liberal Action will present Lawrence Gubow, Commissioner of the Michigan Corporations and Securities Commission, Thursday at 7 p.m. in 21 Union.

Gubow will speak on the controversial "Rule 9," which prohibits realtors from acting as agents of discrimination in real estate transactions.

Rule 9 has been disputed by various real estate organizations and is now awaiting judicial review. Gubow, as chief spokesman for Rule 9 will present his side of the issue.

Gubow has been commissioner since 1956 when he was appointed by Governor Williams and prior to that served on numerous study groups. He held the position of Deputy Commissioner of the Michigan Corporations and Securities Commission between 1953 and 1956.

The meeting Thursday is open to everyone.

Both Fallon and Wayland P. Smith, associate professor of mechanical engineering and JETS national secretary-treasurer, will attend.

Dr. John D. Ryder, dean of engineering, is President of JETS.

The 2nd annual Eastern JETS leadership conference will be held Feb. 25. Members of industry, educational institutions, and JETS chapters will meet to discuss operations, aims, objectives, and future plans of the society.

JETS was founded at this university in 1950, by Dean (Emeritus) L. G. Miller of the College of Engineering.

The society has 772 chapters throughout the United States and several foreign countries. It is composed of high school and junior college students interested in engineering and technology.

JETS provides materials, services, awards for projects, and engineering scholarships to its members.

The ninth annual JETS National Engineering Projects Exposition will be held here May 12-14.
