Count Basie and Band 'Hep' to the Twist

By JACKIE KORONA
Of the State News Staff

Count Basie likes the twist! During intermission at the J-Hop Saturday, the master of the top jazz-big band in the country said, "I don't do the twist myself, but I like the music and I like to see the young people taking an interest in this music."

Grinning broadly the Count said, "We did a twist record ourselves a couple months ago."

Basie said he feels such an interest in music with a beat will possibly help in the revival of the big band sound.

"A liking for this twist music will lead to a liking for more types of music," he said. "Then an interest in big bands may follow."

The Count's point was verified after the dance when numerous autograph seekers couldn't voice enough compliments about the band's fabulous music.

Basie also said he likes playing for university audiences of dancers. He said, "This is another way to get the young people interested in music."

He said he feels that the big band sound will come back if the younger bands are given a chance. On college campuses, he said, there are many good groups just waiting for the chance to prove their worth. If they are given this chance, he continued, then the big band revival will be a reality rather than a topic of conversation.

Basie's drummer, Sonny Payne, reputed to be one of the best in the business, also likes the twist, and he dances too.

Backstage Saturday night, Sonny said, "Me, like the twist?" and stood there dancing like a champ.

The little man who's played the drums since he was six years old said he enjoys playing for college groups too. But, he said, the young people don't seem to feel the music as much at dances as they do at concerts.

Ocie Smith, the Basie singer, explained the lack of feeling for the music. "It's the clothes that make the difference," he said. "Everyone's afraid to let themselves go when they're all dressed up." But clothes don't make any difference to Detroit's Ocie. Complete with tux, the young singer expressed his feeling for the twist. He just stood there and wiggled.

Dr. James Joyce Praises African, Asian UN Roles

The United Nations is the only hope for the world, but the United States and Great Britain are blocking it, says Dr. James Joyce, internationally-known English author and lecturer.

During talks and discussions at the Wesley Foundation Sunday, Joyce said it is the Africans and Asians who are saving the UN and the world.

"These emerging peoples see themselves as the links across the world," Joyce said. "They won't tie in with alliances with the West or the Communists because they know where it would lead—war and destruction."

"Every African leader I've talked to said he needed the United Nations in order for his country to survive. And I heard hardly a reference to either Russia or the United States. To them the world must be one of cooperation and technical assistance and peace."

Joyce said even though Russia and the United States fight each other on most matters, when a vital question of outlawing atomic weapons is raised in the UN, "You find the two voting together—against the rest of the world."

Joyce said Russia's influence itself is small in the UN and the real challenge in the world is not Communism, but how the West reacts to the emerging African and Asian peoples.

"Western civilization lived on the backs of other peoples for two or three centuries," he said. "The question now is what are you going to give back for what you got."

"The real revolution is not going on in Africa or Latin America or wherever but inside us. The U.S. revolution, begun in 1776, is still going on and I wonder how many editors know it."

Joyce charged several times in his talks that the press of America and Britain is fighting against world peace and understanding by playing up hatred and crisis and slighting or distorting significant news.

"To belong to the world, we have to teach it as a world citizen," he said, "but how can our students understand that when they are surrounded by the type of press and general literature we have."

The British lecturer did praise the Peace Corps as a

"beginning toward world peace." "It will give young Americans a chance to do what they always want to do—help world peace and prosperity. The thing that is needed is to get the Peace Corps under the United Nations."

Joyce was in East Lansing as the first stop on a national tour for the General Board of Christian Social Concerns of the Methodist Church. He arrived from New York, where he serves as a consultant to the UN Economic and Social Council.

He also recently served on the staff of the International Labor Office at Geneva, Switzerland, where he lives much of the year when not on tour.

Michigan Republican election year hopes will be boosted by a series of Lincoln Day banquets now underway in key counties of the state.

The "emotional lift" is coming from top national and state party officials who are appearing as headline speakers at some 30 dinners planned between now and March 24.

Lincoln Day banquets are traditional "pep rallies" and fund raisers for the GOP.

Heading a roster of national speakers at the dinners will be national GOP Chairman William Miller (New York); U.S. Senators Barry Goldwater (Arizona), John Tower (Texas), and Carl Curtis (Nebraska), and Wilbur M. Brucker, former Secretary of the Army.

Robert P. Griffin, August E. Johansen and Elford Cederberg, members of Michigan's Congressional delegation, complete the speaking teams from the nation's capitol.

State GOP Chairman George M. VanPeuren, Vice Chairman Ely Peterson and Executive Assistant Jack A. Gibbs will represent the State Central Committee at banquets.

Speakers from the state legislature and Constitutional Convention include William G. Millikin (Traverse City), Con-Con President Stephen Neilsbit, and Edward Hutchinson, Con Con vice president.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY MOM!—This king-sized birthday present never quite got to an E. Lansing mother, but then, it's the thought that counts. Note the stitches on the boa constrictor's back, where the snake's supposed meal took a bite out of it.

Boy's Surprise Foiled; Snake Dies, Rat Survives

The spirit of giving caused an East Lansing boy a lot of trouble recently, when he bought a 5-foot boa constrictor snake as a gift for his mother.

To insure surprising his mother, he hid the tropical creature in his unheated basement. Snakes get hungry like all other animals, so he bought a rat and threw it in with the snake to feed him.

The cold of the basement had caused the snake, who is used to 75 degrees Fahrenheit and above temperatures, to become sluggish and inactive. Thus, after a few days, the rat began to eat the snake.

Discovering the damage to his mother's present, the boy brought the boa constrictor to Dr. Aaron Leash of the small animal clinic in Giltner Hall, where his wounds were treated and stitched.

Leash warned the boy of the harmful cold temperatures in his basement, but it was too late. For soon after the "present for Mom" died of pneu-

Press Told Of Role in Peace Corps

"We have 6,000 jobs on file at national headquarters and not enough volunteers to fill them," he said.

What of the future? Shriver said he will ask Congress for $63 million for the Corps next year. If this is appropriated, he expects some 58,000 people to be in the field by December, 1963.

Right now, Shriver said the Peace Corps showed signs of internal expansion - he reported six marriages of Corps personnel during the past year.

Other speakers at the conference included Edward Ware Barrett, dean of the graduate school of journalism at Columbia University; James A. Wechsler, Editor of the New York Post and Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Illinoisian Art Schwarm Leads Cagers

Hailing from Evanston, Illinois, and called popular and conscientious by his fellow teammates, senior Art Schwarm leads the Spartan cagers this year as captain. Two teammates typify the feelings about the guard captain. Pete Gent said he thought Schwarm was "the most popular man on the team—all the men respect him." Bill Schwarz called Art a very conscientious person and one who takes basketball very seriously. The six foot one inch captain played basketball throughout high school and was captain of the Evanston High School team in his senior year. Schwarm considers the Big Ten the toughest conference in the country. "All the Big Ten teams are tough," he said. "You can't let up on any one team. Any team can beat any other team on any given night," he said. "In high school," Schwarm continued, "there might be only two or three good men on the entire team, but in college competition, every man is tops or he wouldn't be there." "The reason for Illinois basketball being considered better than Michigan basketball is probably due to the fact that Illinois is more basketball conscious," he said. Schwarm feels that the reason for the consistent rise of basketball scores is due to better shooters and to the fact that the game is faster-moving today than in the past. The recipient of State's Most Valuable Player award last year, Schwarm said that he hadn't thought seriously about playing professional basketball after graduation. His interests in basketball stems from its fast moving action. He feels that basketball is more keenly competitive than any other sport. Schwarm believes that there is a good possibility for team improvement next season because of the many capable junior men returning to the team. These players include Gent, Schwarz, Fred Thomann and Bill Berry. When asked why he chose MSU over his other college offers, Schwarz, who has a full basketball scholarship, said he thought he would be able to work easily with coach Freddy Anderson, and wanted to play for a Big Ten school.

After playing Michigan Monday night they had a Saturday date at Michigan State.

SUGAR RAY ROBINSON is going to give Denny Moyer another chance Saturday night at Madison Square Garden. The 41-year-old ex-champ beat 21-year-old Moyer last October but the decision was split. TRAFFIC JAMS up regularly every morning at 8 a.m. at Spartan Village. East Lansing police are trying to solve the problem by developing a plan to convert the corner of Harrison Road and Crescent Drive into a merging street. —State News Photo by Skip Mays.

Spartan Village Boils As 8 A.M. Traffic Snarls

By BEN BROWN
Of the State News Staff

Spartan Village residents may begin their class days or work days in a less than cheerful mood, because of the early morning traffic at the north Crescent Drive exit at Harrison Road.

Several hundred cars pour out of Spartan Village shortly before 8 a.m. every Monday through Friday. Most drivers bottle up at the N. Crescent Drive exit, which is the most direct and shortest route.

"It would help more if people would use the S. Crescent Drive exit," said police Lieutenant Charles A. Wibert, of the East Lansing police department.

"Some could even use the exit leading to Mt. Hope where they could drive east on Mt. Hope to Farm Lane," he said, in an interview Tuesday.

East Lansing police have been trying to help solve the traffic congestion by directing traffic each morning from 7:45 a.m. till a few minutes after 8 a.m.

"There are only 18 uniformed police on the whole force, and at that time of morning we only have three squad cars covering the entire East Lansing area."

"This means we can help with the traffic only on mornings we aren't tied up with accidents or other police calls," Wibert said.

Until a few weeks ago the police were using traffic cones to divide the oncoming traffic from the merging traffic coming out of Spartan Village.

"We aren't using them anymore," he said. "Within the last year at least 50 of the cones were stolen. Some of the stolen ones were even chained down."

What about installing a traffic light at the corner?

"For a traffic problem which lasts for only 15 or 20 minutes a day, it wouldn't pay to spend $2,500 or more for the installation," he said.

What about the MSU Department of Public Safety police helping?

"They have nothing to do with the problem because Harrison Road is an East Lansing street," Wibert said.

He said there is a plan presently being developed by the City Planning Department to convert the corner of Harrison Road and Crescent Drive into a merging street.

The center piece of Harrison at the corner will allow Crescent Drive to merge into Harrison Road leading north, he said.

"The southbound traffic going to the Many Miles building will make a U-turn at the intersection," Wibert said.

He said the plan won't be scheduled for construction for two years.

Girl Watcher's Guide

Presented by Pall Mall Famous Cigarettes

First field trip

LESSON 7 - Keep moving

One of the most important rules of girl watching is this: keep moving. In fact, it is always a good idea not only to move, but to appear to be going somewhere. (This is especially important on group field trips.) Beautiful girls, although they enjoy being watched, are instinctively suspicious of strollers and downright fearful of loiterers.

The man who is walking briskly, who looks like he's "going places," makes a better girl watcher. For one thing, he sees more total girls and in the end he enjoys his hobby more. (If you are planning an extended field trip—to Paris and Rome, for example—be sure to pack a couple of cartons of Pall Mall.)

UN Will Be Seminar Subject

The United Nations is passing through a critical period in its short history.

Because of the current importance of the UN, civic leaders, professors, and student leaders here at MSU will hold a seminar in which the role of the UN, its problems, and its future will be discussed.

The UN's financial stability is currently threatened because many of its members are not paying their debts; nations are critical of the steps it took in the Congo; its effectiveness in solving the world's problems is being questioned; and the world is wondering if it can possibly be effective in the future, and if not — what's the substitute answer.

The seminar, "The United Nations in the World of Tomorrow," is scheduled for this Wednesday in Fairchild Theatre at 7:30 p.m. and is open to the public.

The United Nations will be discussed from various points of view including those of the philosopher, the historian, the political scientist, and the mass media.

The seminar will start with talks by the following:

Professor John F. A. Taylor (Philosophy): "The Future of the UN"

Professor Herbert Welsinger (English): "A Critic Takes a Fresh Look at the UN."

Professor Paul A. Varg (History): "The UN and Nationalism."

AWS Committees Opened; Petitions Now At Union

Petitions for AWS Activities Board committees will be available in the Union and Women's Division Monday.

Positions are available on these committees: Lantern Night, Who's Who and What's What, Activities Carnival, STUN, Blood Drive, Big-Little Sister Program, Publicity, and Queens Petitions.

AWS Activities Board will hold an open meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in 328 Student Services. All interested women are invited.

Professor Alfred Meyer (Political Science): "The UN and the World Government."

Larry Campbell (President, AUSG): "The Students and the UN."

Marcia Van Ness (Editor-in-chief, State News): "The UN and the Mass Media."

A panel discussion, based on questions from the audience will be held after the talks. Panelists will be Dr. Gordon Thomas, mayor of East Lansing; Dr. Leonard Rall, chairman of the American Association for the UN; and Reverend Truman Morrison of Edgewood Peoples Church, who has been active in work with foreign students.

Assistant Dean of International Programs Homer Higbee will act as moderator.

Professor Paul Varg, scheduled to discuss nationalism and made this comment on the UN relationship to the UN world organization:

"Many historians in the 1920's, 30's and during World War II argued that if the United States had joined the League of Nations, there would have been the possibility of avoiding World War II. They tended to raise false hopes for the UN when it was established.

"These false hopes," Varg continued, "were based on the illusion that the UN is a kind of world government rather than an organization of sovereign states.

"The UN," he said, "can do only what these sovereign nations permit it to do and can only be as strong as the strongest powers let it be."

"We cannot judge the UN as a possible ideal, Varg commented, we must look at it with realism—and if we do that, it has performed remarkably well."

The seminar is being sponsored by the Campus UN.

DR. JAMES H. ZUMBERGE

U of M Prof. Made Head Of Gd. Valley

Dr. James H. Zumberge, professor of geology at the University of Michigan, has been selected the first president of Grand Valley State College by the college Board of Control.

Veterinary Needs Are Cited by Morris

In the next 30 years, 40,000 additional veterinarians will be needed in the United States to fill the rapidly increasing demand for the services of veterinary medicine, said Dr. Mark L. Morris, president of the American Veterinary Medical Assn. Thursday evening.

Speaking before the assembly of the student organization of the AVMA, Dr. Morris explained the urgent need which is arising throughout the United States and in foreign countries for veterinarians, and the fact that present educational facilities cannot accommodate the students needed to meet the demand.

The enrollment in the College of Veterinary Medicine must be increased by 50%, which will mean the creation of at least five new colleges in the country.

Besides the veterinarians needed in private practices, they are needed in the field of veterinary pathology, space medicine, biochemistry, and nutrition, industrial veterinary medicine, clinical evaluation, pharmacology and education. Morris urged students to participate in an effort to recruit students to the field of veterinary medicine; to speak to high school seniors in home towns, as well as to inform high school counselors of the urgency of the need.

"The counseling field seems to have the conception that veterinary medicine is a dying field, which needs to be corrected. As a result, the AVMA is concerned with an all-out effort to inform the public of the field which has increased meteorically in its prestige among the professions," said Morris.

He also urged the graduates of the college to go on to specialized training. "There are funds available to assist qualified candidates in post-graduate work," Dr. Morris said.

"Doctors are especially needed in research, in which the Bio-Medical Research center to be built on the campus is a tremendous innovation," Morris said.

Morris is a graduate of Colorado University and the school of veterinary medicine at Cornell University. He is among the first to initiate the use of laboratory research and diagnosis in the private clinic.

He is a pioneer in the field of veterinary nutrition, as well as one of the first to organize a small animal clinic.

Admen work awfully short hours ... and a lot of them.

A lot of us in advertising just can't seem to switch off our enthusiasm when the clock hits five. But our hours go by with astonishing suddenness when we're wrapped up in an intriguing problem. Which is almost always. (Oh, we've got our share of clock watchers, and their work shows it. But their number is dwindling, because people don't pay attention to their ads. That's fine with us.) If you're a little bit interested in working very, very hard to develop an effective piece of advertising, drop us a line. Any time. We'll be happy to answer, no matter how late we have to stay.
