LIRC Now School In Social Science

Hannah's Proposal Adopted Flouting Senate Amendment

By JIM WALLINGTON
State News Managing Editor

The Labor Industrial Relations Center (LIRC) is today an official member of the MSU academic family.

The Center, which previously operated independent of any college within the university, was ushered into the College of Social Science last week by the Board of Trustees.

The Trustees Thursday adopted a recommendation of President John A. Hannah to move the controversial LIRC under the wing of Dean Louis McQuitty's newly organized Social Science college as the School of Labor and Industrial Relations.

A difference of opinion has developed over the Trustees' action. One source has hailed the move as a blow in favor of academic freedom against legislative infringement.

Another school of thought claims moving the LIRC into MSU's academic sphere is a victory for state senate forces who attacked the center as pro-labor.

The LIRC was established to promote better relations and understanding between labor groups and management through publications and special programs.

The Board's action flouted section 16 of appropriations bill which gives the school operating funds. The section, written by Sen. Lynn Francis, R-Midland, ordered MSU not to use any funds for operation of the LIRC or a similar program.

In view of this, those who say the Board protected academic freedom may be right.

However, section 16 is generally regarded by most lawmakers as being unconstitutional because the university is itself a constitutionally independent body and

'Our Town' Due Next For Players

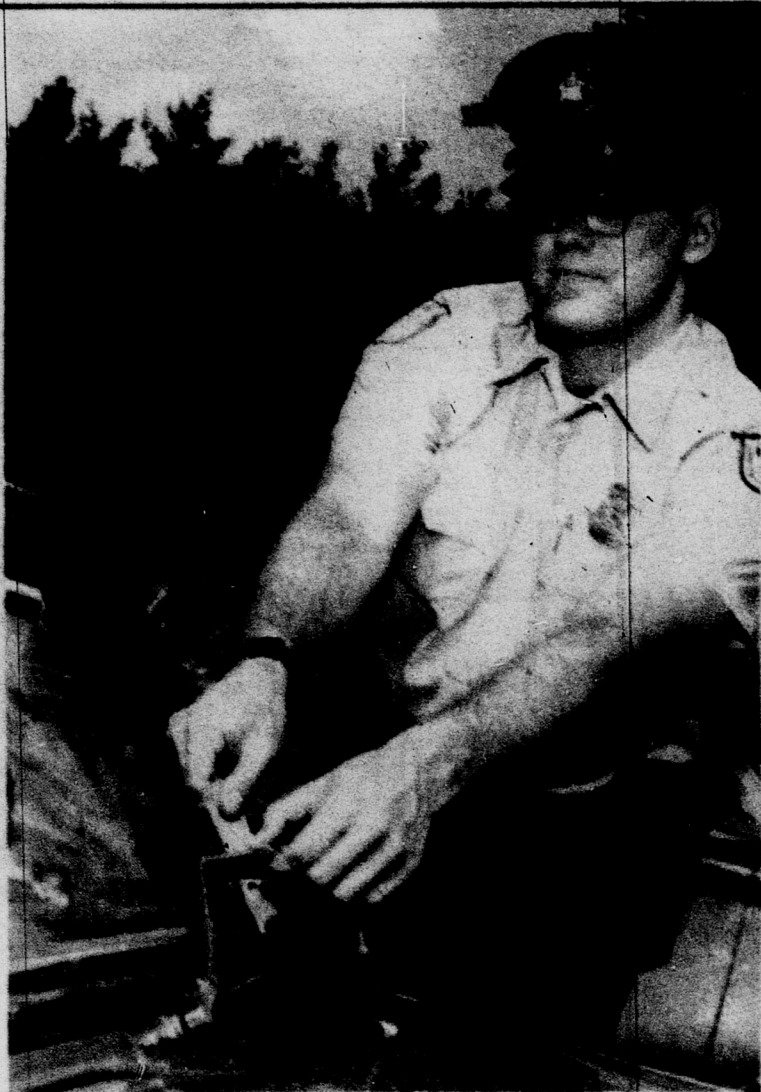

One of the most familiar plays to the layman, even high school students, "Our Town," will be the final Summer Circle Theatre presentation this week.

Thornton Wilder's 1938 Pulitzer Prize winner runs Wednesday through Saturday in the arena theater in Demonstration Hall.

"Our Town" is an honest and American life. Its three acts are concerned with daily life, marriage, and death, and Emily, George, and the others in the play give a far more genuine insight into what most twentieth-century Americans are really like than do most studies of neurotics, psychotics, gangsters, and beatniks.

The Stage Manager, the person who introduces and comments upon the small town and its inhabitants, will be Donald F.

EXPENSIVE TICKET--Parking fines for students shoot up this fall, to a whopping $25 dollars for frequent offenders following a ruling by the Board of Trustees. Officer James Auten, Department of Public Safety patrolman, tickets an offender who still will get away with a $2 fine. The new rates begin fall term.

Parking Fines Go Into Orbit This Fall

Better find another parking place this fall, buster.

You could be fined $43 or more by the university for parking a car in zones restricted against students on North Campus.

The Board of Trustees Thursday approved changes in the student motor vehicle code which calls for increased fines with each parking ticket issued to a student.

The new rule says starting fall term there will be a $2 fine with the first ticket. Then $4 for the second, $6 for the third, $8 for the fourth violation, $10 for the fifth, and a whopping $25 for the sixth and subsequent fines. Students are now charged $2 for each violation.

President John A. Hannah said the new fine schedule is designed to end the increasing number of tickets to repeat offenders.

Lieutenant Allen Andrews of the campus police said the purpose of the rule is to serve as a deterrent.

"The hope is there will be less tickets, not more money," Andrews said. "The system is used at several schools. We have better things to do than write tickets."

Police issued 1,131 parking tickets to students in May 1962 compared to 907 tickets in May

Reaction To Hikes Varied

By BEN BURNS
Editor-in-Chief

The tuition hike of $15 a term for in-state and $40 a term for out-of-state fees by the Board of Trustees Thursday, came as no surprise to the Michigan State student body.

Michigan residents must now pay $324 a year and out-state students $370.

Although the action had been anticipated for some months, reactions ranged from: "that's not too bad" to "$120 a year is a lot of money."

The fee increase makes Michigan State the most expensive University in the Big Ten for in-state students and one of the highest in the country. The University of Michigan trails State by $14 dollars with a $310 charge each year for juniors and seniors.

The jump in out-of-state fees puts MSU second in the Big Ten behind U of M. U of M now charges $900 a year to our $870.

"I think that they are freezing out a lot of good students, especially out of state students," said Bob Howard, AUSG president.

"It is my impression that the reason for high tuition is the larger number of students which increases costs," said Howard, "I feel they should be stricter in their drop-out and flunk-out regulations."

Trustee Don Stevens, who registered the only dissenting vote to the hike in in-state fees, introduced an alternate proposal calling for a free education for students whose families earn less than $5,000 a year.

The proposal failed to get off the ground, but received some support from Trustee Warren Huff of Plymouth and President John A. Hannah said it would be given some study.

According to the Stevens plan, family incomes of $5,000-$7,000 a year would be charged $279 a year tuition and a $600 deduction would be given in each category for additional dependents attending school.

If the family income was between $7,000 and $15,000 the student would be charged $324 a year and if the family income was over $15,000 the charge would be the same as that for out of state students.

Hamlet on Detroit Stage

By BOB ROSS

Of The State News Staff

William Shakespeare and the Michigan Highway department have combined their talents.

The former placed his pen to paper back in the Elizabethan age and wrote Hamlet, a mighty psychological drama for all ages; the engineers have provided miles of superhighway between Lansing and Detroit in order that local residents may get to the Motor City in less than an hour and a half.

And 'get to the Motor City' should be the cry of every person here to see the University of Detroit's production of Hamlet.

Rich, colorful costumes; the best actors of the Detroit amateur stage; sets unique in design; and a hardworking backstage crew present a drama that does credit to the Detroit stage.

To attempt Hamlet is a hazardous undertaking. Not only is the play complex in plot line and dialogue but by now the audience knows the lines almost as well as the actors.

Macbeth shares much the same fate.

Fresh interpretation of the Bard is a must in 1962. The Old Vic gave such interpretation to Romeo and Juliet during their spring visit to the MSU auditorium.

The Detroit university players give the same uniqueness to Hamlet which will continue to run on July 26 and 28 and on August 1, 3, and 5.

"To be or not to be" was getting to be almost trite until Robert McGill, the university's brilliant young actor, turned the phrase into near comedy last week.

The memorable speech was uttered during one of Hamlet's mad moments with Ophelia on stage, reading a book and un-ware of his presence until the following scene.

Fresh and welcome are the words for such staging.

Worth the trip alone to Detroit's McNichols campus is the sight and sound of Polonius portrayed by Thomas St. Charles, a regular in their lineup.

His lecturing of his wayward children, Ophelia and Laertes, is uproarious. He makes the pompous prime minister into what Shakespeare wanted him to be: verbose, funny, - but tragically loyal to his king. He died for the crown.

Turning Ophelia into a soap-opera heroine is an easy task but Emily Giacobazzi used restraint and wonderful skill to balance off the funloving, flirty lass of the first act into an insane, hopeless wreck of a woman later in the play.

Also impressive is the obvious labor that has gone on behind the scenes.

The costumes are majestic in color and style. The production halts twice for grand entrances by Claudius, his queen and his court.

A large canon, perhaps too large, booms thunder several times during the play in moments of dramatic crisis. Elizabethan guitar is strummed off stage.

A trap door opens on center stage for the gravedigging scene and dirt flies all over as Yorik's skull is resurrected.

The performance takes place under a tent 20 feet high that seats 450 people. There is

THE STORE WITH THE RED DOOR

Merriman Might Have Hit Tuition Nail on Head

The tuition hikes of $15 and $40 per term announced by the Trustees came as real shock to most students. It comes as a mild shock to the State News, although a hike was anticipated.

What frustrates us the most is fixing the blame on the legislature, the Trustees, President John A. Hannah, or the people of Michigan.

Trustee Warren Huff, who was bitter about the hike, said the university could not have operated this coming year without it. He said that the legislature did not provide enough appropriations to run the school.

We feel that President Hannah is just as sorry over the hike as are the students, some of whom may not be able to afford to go to school this fall.

Thus most accusing fingers are pointed toward the state legislature which holds the purse strings for this university and all state supported schools in Michigan.

Certainly the senate and the house did not give the school as much money as it asked for or as much Governor Swainson requested. But the legislators didn't see enough money coming in to give higher education all the money it wants and needs.

However, the health department, the mental health department, local school districts, the conservation department and dozens of other state agencies did not get all the money they wanted.

There is not enough money to go around. That shows a weakness in the tax structure, which the Republican controlled legislature must set out to solve. Perhaps a Republican governor next fall could mean more cooperation in the Capitol and allow some constructive work to be done.

The legislature, especially the senate, has come in for much abuse in the last few weeks. First there was the crying of all the state agencies needing money; then the heap of deserved criticism for giving themselves $2,000 yearly wage increases.

And the state Supreme Court ruled last week that the senate was not constitutionally set up nor properly representative of the people of this state.

Even after considering all the legislators problems and drawbacks, they can't be blamed completely. We think Trustee Frank Merriman hit the nail on the head when he said higher education must do a better selling job.

He apparently believes that the people should be shown that education merits all the money that it needs invested in it.

Merriman points out that education is having trouble at the local level, also. Bonding issues for home town school construction and increased teachers wages are being turned down right and left.

The legislator theoretically reflects thinking of home areas.

Apparently the sputnik panic of the mid-1950's is over.

Letters to the Editor Top Seniors

To the Editor:

Here's to the seniors who never make the "big news" columns of the papers. They're the ones who've worked their way through college...the ones who never had time to make names for themselves.

Here's to the seniors who were too worried about where their next meals were coming from to ever bother working on Water Carnival.

Here's to the seniors who were working too hard for scholarships to be able to sit in on AUSG.

Here's to the seniors who put clothes on their backs but never were chairmen of J-Hops or Snow Sculpture committees.

Here's to the students who spent their energies working in cafeterias or basements of the various colleges rather than as rush counselors or social chairmen.

Here's to the seniors who never had Mom or Dad to count on when the going got rough.

Here's to the seniors whose tiredness at night comes from hard work for the necessities of life rather than busyness with committees, where "everyone who is anyone" will be able to admire them.

These are the Joe Colleges and Betty Coeds whom you will never see as "Seniors of the Week." It is doubtful that many will turn up as "Mr. or Miss MSUs"... they don't have enough to back them up. These are the seniors I salute.

principle," said Huff. "Our completely reactionary legislature is telling us to take the money out of the hides of the youngsters."

"It's a tragedy that we are foreclosing education to youngsters. Even this increase will not improve our situation. We have fallen behind the parade because of the legislature."

Republican Frank Merriman of Deckerville said he disagreed with the plan.

Merriman defended the legislative appropriation of $31,170,401 to the university, which represented an increase of almost $1,500,000 over last year.

"We have to do a better sales job on education," said Merriman. "The legislature is reflecting the thinking of local areas where they are turning down bond issues right and left."

A record budget was approved by the Board of $44,665,105 as compared to $40,606,213 for the 1961-62 fiscal year.

Student fees are expected to amount to $9,000,808 compared to $6,666,300 for last year. MSU expects an increase in student body of 2,390 to a 26,600 figure and MSU expects their student population to jump from 1,069 to 1,400.

The university plans no increase in dormitory or married housing rates.

Another new source of income is the estimated $100,000 which will be received from the $10 application fee to be charged all students applying for admission for the first time.

According to university officials, the budget placed heavy emphasis on the need for faculty salary increases with a little over $900,000 being reserved for this purpose.

The library budget was set at $1,858,451, some $95,663 over 1961-62. Academic departments have been allocated an additional $697,000 for new staff, supplies and equipment.

Eleanor Thinks Boxing Good Sport

NEW YORK — Eleanor Roosevelt today struck a blow for boxing. She called prizefighting a "good sport" that needs some rules revisions and indicated disagreement with those who urge banning it.

Mrs. Roosevelt gave her view in response to a question in the August issue of McCall's magazine. Asked whether she thought boxing should be outlawed, she said:

"I have always felt that prizefighting was a rather good sport, but I think that the rules should be revised and the referees chosen with greater care."

City Plans Sewage Plant

By C. LEWICKI
Of the State News Staff

East Lansing is scheduled to have a new sewage disposal plant built about a mile down river from the present plant and maybe the Red Cedar River will sparkle again.

Robert W. Parker, state district engineer of the Michigan Water Resources Commission, said the new plant is still in the planning stage.

"The present disposal plant on the Red Cedar is not adequate to handle the new Meridian township sewerage system which is to be linked to the East Lansing filtration plant," Parker said.

"The new sewerage system will include Okemos and Haslett." The cost of the new plant will be around $3 1/2 million, he predicted. The sewage disposal plant superintendent, Edgar Sneyders, said that when the Meridian township sewerage system goes into operation after construction of the new plant, the Red Cedar River should become one of the cleanest streams in central Michigan. Stream pollution, Sneyders pointed out, "is not only caused by communities but by rainfall which washes an enormous amount of loose residue into the storm sewers emptying into the Red Cedar."

According to Sneyders, the proposed plant will be able to treat 7 million gallons of water per day. However, it will be designed to readily increase plant capacity to 14 million gallons per day depending on community growth.

"The present plant has a daily capacity of 4.6 million gallons, Sneyders said, "and it discharges about 1,000 pounds of filtered solids per day."

Asked if the new plant would be able to filter out detergents which are among the prevalent water pollutants, Sneyders replied:

"At the present time all efforts by industrial and government laboratories to separate detergents from water have failed. All disposal plants would adopt a practical detergent filter when made available."

The detergent pollution, Sneyders said, is especially heavy on Mondays. At times the pools at the sewage plant are covered with white detergent foam.

The present plant, according to Sneyders, does a good job in cleaning polluted waters for the Red Cedar, employing the primary and secondary filtering treatments.

He explained that the primary treatment consists of two processes: running the raw sewage through a screen to remove part of the solid matter, then allowing much of the remaining sewage to settle in basins. The primary treatment may remove from one-half to three-fourths of the solid matter in sewage.

Sneyders said the secondary treatment includes filtering the sewage through a bed of crushed rock, adding bacteria to digest the sewage, and agitating it with air.

"The secondary treatment," Sneyders said, "usually removes 95 per cent of the solids and bacteria from the sewage before the filtered water is returned to the Red Cedar River."

Million And A Half Dollars Given To MSU

Gifts and grants of $1,466,806.05 were accepted Thursday by The Board of Trustees.

The largest grant, $610,000, was made by the U. S. Agency for International Development. It will be used for cooperative research on education in Central America where a center will be established at the University of San Carlos, Guatemala, with participation of the national universities of Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras and El Salvador.

The National Science Foundation made grants totaling $194,025. Included were two grants to be used in the School for Advanced Graduate Studies under the direction of Milton E. Muelder, dean.

One, for $86,200, affords fellowships for graduate students. A second one of $8,337 provides summer fellowships for graduate teaching assistants.

Two grants of $37,500 each were made by the Henry and Anne Ford Fund and the Benson and Edith Ford Fund. These will be used under the direction of Ronald H. Nelson, chairman of animal husbandry, for the support of the Endocrine Research Unit.

David Gottlieb, associate professor, and Wilbur B. Brookover, assistant dean for research, College of Education, will undertake a study of the elementary school teaching system and its effects on teaching techniques through a $63,089 grant from the U. S. Office of Education.

Observers will be placed in eight Michigan schools to study the ways in which teachers carry out their daily duties. Plans also call for a survey of a national sample of 3,000 teachers.

A grant of $60,000 from the U. S. Department of Agriculture will be used under the direction of Willis W. Armistead, dean of veterinary medicine, in continuing the extensive research

Phil May, vice-president of university finance and business, said his business office still had to set up methods to keep track of repeat offenders.

The faculty-student motor vehicle committee regulations prepared the new rule and sent it to President Hannah for approval.

Other changes in the motor vehicle regulations approved by the Trustees were:

All persons registered for credit or living in married housing must register their cars with the school if it is operated within the MSU boundaries.

And allowing assistant instructors who are enrolled for less than seven credits to receive a temporary employee parking permit. They must register their vehicles.

Previously only students carrying seven or more credits had to register motor vehicles if they were operated in an area bounded by Clinton and Eaton county lines, Holt Road in the south and Meridian road in the west.

project in bovine tuberculosis started at MSU in 1959.

Nathan E. Tolbert, professor of biochemistry, will use a $50,000 grant from the Herman Frasch Foundation to do research on the chemistry which causes dormancy in seeds at the time of harvest.

A grant of $49,140 from the National Institutes of Health will be used in the Department of Food Science by Bernard S. Schweigert, chairman, to further strengthen research. The grant provides for graduate and post-doctoral training and also equipment, supplies and travel for research.

Schweigert is also in charge of a $28,400 grant from the Federal Extension Service, USDA, to conduct a pilot educational program for Michigan meat and poultry processors. Emphasis is to be on improving aspects of handling and quality control. The program will be carried out jointly with MSU's Department of Agricultural Economics.

An institutional grant for $32,318 from the NSF will be used for scientific needs. Grants of this nature are made by NSF to strengthen abilities of universities to create new scientific knowledge and to educate scientists and engineers.

The amounts are based on a percentage of total NSF grants made over a year's period. This year's grant to MSU is more than double last year's grant of $13,705. It will be administered by Milton E. Muelder, vice-president for research development.

Gabel H. Connor, professor of surgery and medicine, will use a $32,185 grant from the NIH to study the incidence of bovine leukemia in Michigan. The project has the cooperation of 150 veterinarians who will report cases of the disease to Connor. Emphasis will be on trying to determine whether or not bovine leukemia is caused by a virus and can be communicated from one animal to another.

A grant of $28,875 was made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for research by three MSU scientists on a new beta-carotene product extracted from grains. This new product may be a valuable animal feed supplement if it will readily convert to vitamin A, as beta-carotene usually does when consumed by animals.

Picnic on the Grass

Pianist Does Well By Chopin, Arne

By JOSEPH EVANS
Associate Professor of Music

An enthusiastic audience greeted Bruce Simonds, pianist, at the Fairchild Theatre, Monday, July 16.

An exceptionally versatile musician, Simonds has long been known for his scholarly lectures on music history and his administrative skill as Dean of the Yale University Music School, as well as a concert pianist of distinction. Simonds was invited to our campus for the dual purpose of presenting a piano recital during the Fine Arts Festival and to act as Leader for the Piano Teacher's Conference at Kellogg Center.

Opening with the Sonata in A Major by the English composer, Thomas Arne (1710-1778), Simonds immediately revealed his impressive musical sensitivity and delicate nuances in this slight but charming eighteenth century work. Especially apparent was the artist's unusually beautiful legato and "singing" tone quality.

One could now almost sense the eagerness of the audience to hear the majestic third Sonata of Chopin, Op. 58, in B Minor. The first movement is rather loose in form and it requires the imagination of a superior musician to give it the necessary unity in performance.

Simonds accomplished this by emphasizing the skillful interplay of the heroic moods and the contrasting lyrical lines. The following movements - the joyous Scherzo, the dreamy, nocturnal Largo and the exciting, brilliant Finale - all received an intense reading which fascinated the audience. Especially commendable, as in the Arne, was the polished phrasing and the unusually lovely tone quality.

Then followed three Mazurkas by Szymanowsky (1883 - 1937), perhaps the greatest Polish composer since Chopin. These short dance forms revealed the composer's interesting textures and individual harmonic style. One wished that the music of this truly creative artist were not so neglected.

Prior to concluding the final section of the program, Ravel's Gaspard de la Nuit, Simonds read an effective translation of Bertrand's prose poems which inspired the three pieces of this work.

The Ondine suggests a longing spirit of the deep. Le Gibet the sinister horror of the gallows; and the third, Scarbo, describes the antics of a dwarfish, elusive imp. Ravel has never surpassed the formidable technical feat and imaginative content of this opus, and the demands on the performer for a proper Simonds perhaps exhibited his greatest artistry of the evening in depicting the varying moods of these tone poems with technical ease and an infinite wealth of subtle sonorities seldom heard on the concert stage.

New Dorm Called Wonders

Wonders is the name of the new dormitory now under construction opposite Case Hall on Shaw Lane.

The Board of Trustees Thursday approved the naming of the $5 million dorm after Grace and Wallace K. Wonders of Detroit, who are friends of the university. Mr. Wonders received his bachelor's degree here in 1902. Construction of 1,100 capacity coeducation structure which will contain academic facilities began early this summer. It is expected to be ready for fall term 1963.

Despite the addition of the Wonders dorm and Wilson Hall this fall, Hannah said many rooms would have three roomers living in them.

"We could build a dorm a year for several years and still not catch up with the number of rooms needed," Hannah said.

The Board approved purchase of $181,659 worth of kitchen and cafeteria equipment for Wonders. Great Lakes Hotel Supply Company of Detroit was the successful bidder.

Approval for removal of another temporary building located behind the Education building was granted by the Trustees. Mead Building No. A-6 will be removed by the Gable Wrecking of Lansing, which will pay the university $250.

Officials said all the temporary buildings would be torn down as soon as departments and offices located in them were relocated elsewhere. They were constructed for emergency classrooms during the flood of veterans into the university right after World War II.

The Board also okayed the installation of a three ton air conditioner in room 203, Kedzie, and the placing of closed circuit television outlets in rooms 24 and 44, Case Hall.

Construction of sanitary and storm sewers to the new science area on the east side of campus north of Shaw Hall will be done by Mead Brothers, Springport, the Board ruled. The sewers will be extended from the new Engineering building.

The Board approved alterations of laboratories in the Electrical Engineering building into classrooms and paving of roads at Hidden Lake Gardens in the Irish Hills.

Olivet Gets Grads

Three MSU doctoral students will be teaching on the staff of Olivet college this fall, that school has announced.

Dae E. Chang, a Korean, will assist in sociology, Glen Stewart will teach piano and organ, and Mrs. Jane Porter is on the staff of the education faculty.

Dean's Offices To Open In Berkey

The second floor of Berkey Hall is getting a new look as workmen hasten to finish offices for the Deans of the new colleges of Social Science and Arts and Letters.

Paul Varg, Dean of Arts and Letters and Louis L. McQuitty, Dean of Social Science are scheduled to move into their new offices around August 15.

"The new offices will take up rooms 200 to 207," said Harold Dahnke, director of space utilization. Three classrooms will be used for each office, according to Dahnke, and the remaining room which will separate the two offices will be used for a seminar conference room for both colleges.

LIRC Moved

can use its funds in any way it wishes.

The university has asked the state attorney general for an opinion on the constitutionality of the Francis amendment.

Those who claim the university bowed to legislative pressure point to a report issued by Francis as chairman of a special committee which investigated the center after the firing of Charles A. Rogers, who handled the LIRC's management program, and the issuance of a film which put businessmen in a bad light.

Beside charging the center as pro-labor, the report suggested "in order to salvage original goals and to promote constructive efforts in labor-management relations which will serve to promote good for Michigan, the committee recommends that the LIRC be placed under normal academic supervision and made a part of the regular university program."

It was signed by Francis. After learning of the Board's action,

Francis said Friday, "Changing the name of the center doesn't necessarily clean up the mess out there. If they are going to incorporate the same program and staff, then they've got their center and I disagree entirely. All I'm concerned with is that they correct that imbalance."

Indications are that retention of the center in face of section 16 would not hamper the university in seeking appropriations next year.

Francis is not running for reelection. Jack Breslin, secretary to the Board and liaison man with the legislature, said he did not expect any trouble.

"I'm not looking to any particular problems concerning this program in the future," he said.

Sen. Frank Beadle, R-St. Clair, former senate majority leader, said despite "strong feelings this year, I don't think grudges will carry over, although some of the boys have feelings against it (LIRC)."

Rep. Russell Strange, R-Clare, reflected House feelings when he said, "Unquestionably, Michigan State will get away with it. Maybe it's the best way to do it. However, a lot of legislators thought the institute wasn't doing the job it was designed to do."

Moving the LIRC into the school of Social Science will put it directly under the supervision and responsibility of Dean McQuitty. Previously, it was responsible to a policy board made up of three deans and the center's director, Jack Stieber.

Stieber and Jack Killingsworth, a member of the center and a university professor, reportedly are not happy with the change in status. Trustee Don Stevens, Okemos, said he abstained from voting for the move for that reason.

Mr. Hannah said he recommended the center's change because it was, "in my view in the best interest of the program without reference to legislature and outside influence."

Mr. Hannah's proposals which the Board accepted with a 3-0 vote, in addition to creating a School of Labor and Industrial Relations in the College of Social Science, were:

--transfer the staff, budget and program from the LIRC to the school.

--determine whether on campus, courses, programs and degrees should be awarded by the school.

--have the new school conduct the same off-campus educational activities LIRC conducted.

--and advisory committees representing labor and industry will be requested to consider appropriate activities for the school so it may offer effective and useful service to labor and management as well as the general public.

Farm Exhibit Approved

Technorama, a new-type learning resource center for science and technology, was given final approval by the University's Trustees Thursday.

The unique center, scheduled to open in 1963 on the MSU campus, will focus on farm progress and the agricultural industry. It will be dedicated "to better living through new ideas in science and engineering."

Funds for construction and operation of the new technological center, only one of its kind in the country, will be provided by agricultural and allied industries.

The modernistic, circular structure will house more than 300 exhibits—constantly changing to enable visitors to view the latest scientific advances in the production, processing distribution and utilization of food and farm products.

Site of the new building, with a diameter of 232 feet and a central, elevated mezzanine, will be on Farm Lane, immediately south of Anthony Hall which houses the College of Agriculture's animal science departments.

Arthur W. Farrall, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Engineering, heads the planning committee for Technorama. He predicts that as many as half a million people will visit the center each year upon final completion.

"Education and industry will join forces to unfold a dramatic story of agriculture and agribusiness," Farrall says.

He adds that collectively these industries represent a $100 billion annual business in the national economy.

Technorama was conceived during the planning of the MSU Centennial of Farm Mechanization in 1955. The week's event attracted nearly 300,000 visitors—a part of the one hundredth anniversary observance of the founding of the Michigan Agricultural College.

"It seems fitting," Farrall explains, "that a new venture such as this should take place on the nation's pioneer land-grant university campus, and during a year when we join with our sister institutions over the country in commemorating the first century of "the people's colleges."

In making plans for the center, for which ground will be broken this fall, campus leaders point out that Technorama will be yet another way to serve people by extending education as science unveils new developments through research.

The educational center will contain hundreds of exhibits which will relate the stories of food and health, food production and processing. Included in the displays will also be areas demonstrating the role of power, transportation, manufacturing and communications in the far-flung agricultural industry.

Dollar Devaluation Undesirable

"Devaluing the dollar would be undesirable," Mordechai E. Kreinin, professor of economics at Michigan State University, said today in commenting on the dwindling gold reserves of the U.S.

"Not only would devaluation be bad, but there is a far better solution to the problem of our unfavorable balance of payments," he said in an interview.

"We should encourage European countries such as France and Germany to increase the value of their currencies. The policy would benefit the European countries themselves as well as the U.S. and many other countries.

"We have a favorable balance of trade that has given us a healthy surplus of exports over imports. The difficulty is that our favorable balance is not large enough to cover the flow of U.S. capital and gifts to foreign nations.

committee for the Institute of Biology and Medicine before receiving the acting director's appointment in November 1961.

He received his A.B. degree at Wabash College and his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois. Before coming to State, he was a research associate at the University of Chicago and had worked for the Army Chemical Corps.

The appointment of Byerrum as Natural Science head fills the top positions formed when three new colleges were created out of the College of Science and Arts July 1.

Paul A. Varg, professor of history, was named Dean of Arts and Letters and Louis L. McQuitty, chairman of psychology, was appointed Dean of Social Science earlier.

The College of Natural Science includes the departments of botany and plant pathology, entomology, zoology, chemistry, geology, mathematics, physics and astronomy and statistics.

Faculty Recital Reviewed

By JAMES NIBLOCK

Assistant Music Professor

The opening work on the Thursday afternoon Congress of Strings Faculty Recital was the brilliant Quartet in E-flat, Opus 51, of Dvorak. The work was written on order from the famous violinist Jean Becker of the Florentine Quartet, who requested a predominantly "Slavonic" composition. This accounts, in part, for the profusion of spirited dance-like characteristics in the fast portions and the rich, song-like melodies of the slow sections.

composition performed was the Quartet for Piano and Strings in F-minor, Opus 34, of Brahms.

The Adagio is a beautiful movement built upon a single melodic idea that expands into a variety of extended lyric passages. This is followed by a Scherzo that again exploits interesting rhythmic changes and the work then closes with an extraordinary Finale that opens with a tranquil and sustained atmosphere, which bursts into a brilliant conclusion.

The performance of both works were characterized by a high degree of technical proficiency, mature musical understanding and a sensitivity to the demands of ensemble performance. Especially noteworthy was the tonal balance, the clear and meaningful projection of individual phrase lines and the sensitive handling of the intricacies of the many complicated textures.

The performers participating were: Rafael Druian, Hyman Goodman and Frank Houser, Violinists; William Lincer and Louis Krasner, Violists; Theo Salzman and Robert Jamieson, Cellists. The featured pianist in the Brahms Quintet was Paul Oberg.

Bentley Sees At-Large Vote

Former U.S. congressman Alvin Bentley, R-Owosso, predicted an at large election of all 32 Michigan Senators this fall in a talk before the Midway Optimist Club of Lansing Thursday.

"It seems crystal clear to me," said Bentley, "that the legislature will not be able to come up with a proposal that will satisfy the governor in the time allotted to them."

Bentley is campaigning against Neil Staebler, University of Michigan political science professor, and former chief of state Democratic party for a Congressman-at-large seat.

"If the election is thrown into an at-large situation," said Bentley, "you might see the damndest turnout of votes in the up-state areas that Michigan has ever seen."

Bentley, a Constitutional Convention delegate said that the voters in northern Michigan would realize that they would lose their representation if they didn't vote and suggested this would cause a record turnout.

The legislature convenes today to begin discussion on proposed solutions to the State Supreme Court 4-3 decision that the 1952 apportionment was unconstitutional.

Meanwhile George Romney, Republican candidate for governor, proposed that the apportionment article be pulled out of the proposed new state constitution and be voted on separately by the people.

"The governor and others have already strongly urged a separate vote on the apportionment provisions of the new constitution," Romney said. "Here and now I pledge my efforts to help bring about this separate vote in November, and I invite the governor's cooperation."

Governor John B. Swainson, in answering, flatly rejected the proposal and said:

"The Michigan supreme court decision provides for 32 senatorial districts as nearly equal as possible in relation to population and using as population

Ag Editors Rewarded

MSU Agricultural editors were awarded special honors at their recent national convention in Columbus, Ohio.

Mark Allen, editor for MSU's Agricultural Experiment Station was program chairman for the 46th meeting of the American Association of Agricultural College Editors held on the Ohio State University campus.

Staff members of MSU's Department of Information Services won fine national awards in the communications contest.

Earl C. Richardson, information specialist for the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service was cited for "conspicuous service to agricultural communications" at the association's annual banquet which climaxed the four-day session.

Three entries of the Cooperative Extension Service were awarded blue ribbons in the publications contest. All were edited by Donald M. Gregg.

A technical bulletin published by the Agricultural Experiment Station and edited by Allen received a "good" rating.

A red ribbon award was also earned for MSU's agricultural and family living news service sent each week to Michigan newspapers.

Grad Gets Juvenile Post

A graduate student in crime and delinquency prevention has been appointed assistant county juvenile officer for St. Clair county by Governor John Swainson.

Richard A. Padgett, a Lansing resident, received the nod last week from the chief State executive. He will replace Peter Harmom who transferred to a juvenile court position.

Padgett has worked in various police youth bureaus and in the Oakland county juvenile court.

Knobloch
Co-Writes
Fern Book

Irving W. Knobloch, MSU professor of botany and Donovan Correll, of the Texas Research Foundation, are co-authors of a book describing and illustrating the ferns of the state of Chihuahua, Mexico.

The book had its start five years ago when Knobloch set out to collect all of the ferns in the state.

In this quest, the authors traveled by foot, pick-up truck, rail airplane, horse and mule from the humid heat of tropical canyons to the chill of high mountains. The mountains were stalled in the middle of rivers by flash floods and traveled over mule trails where a misstep would mean death on rocks 3,000 feet below.

They found 138 species of ferns. Surprisingly, Knobloch notes, this is more ferns than there are in the entire state of Texas which is three times the size of Chihuahua.

Student Gets Large Grant

A former student has been named recipient of a National Foundation of Health scholarship in the field of medicine, the St. Clair County chapter of the March of Dimes has announced.

Carl G. Benner, a Marysville junior recently accepted into the University of Michigan medical school, will receive $2,000 over the four year period.

The grants are made annually to encourage young people to enter the medical profession, the chapter said.

Spartans Drilling Today With Detroit

DETROIT -- Four former Michigan State football players are among 17 veterans, 21 rookies, 11 draft choices and 10 free agents joining the Detroit Lions "rookie camp" today at Cranbrook school.

Earl Morrall, an All-America in 1955, is getting an early start in a bid to knock Milt Plum, recently acquired from the Cleveland Browns, out of a starting job.

Sam Williams, an All-America end in 1958, seeks to take the position vacated by the trade of defensive lineman Bill Glass to the Cleveland Browns.

Defensive halfback Gary Lowe is out to maintain the first string defensive back job he has held several seasons. He last played here in 1955.

John Sharp, who was on Duffy Dougherty's team last year, was signed as a free agent and is seeking a defensive halfback job.

Plum and Morrall, actually got a head start on the others by reporting Monday to the Lions office for a day of review and indoctrination.

Among the veterans reporting will be one who is planning a comeback after a year's retirement, 250-pound tackle Jim Weatherall of Oklahoma. Weatherall advised Wilson of his desire to play again in '62 and was invited to come to camp along with the rookies. The former All-America can play both defense and offensive center.

EARL MORRALL

a spot that currently is open because of the military service status of Bob Scholtz.

Eleven rookies are tentatively slated for offensive team trials, while ten more will be tested primarily on defense.

Wilson tabs the rookie crop as "untested, but promising."

"The group seems to have a lot of size and all will get a real chance to prove themselves" says Wilson. "There are some spots open on our squad, despite the presence of 34 veterans, and any rookie who proves himself can get a job."

A veteran Detroit Lions flavor will be added to camp when ten of last year's club check in for early drills. Morrall, Lowe and Williams will be joined by end Glenn Davis, tackle Dan LaRose and Willie McClung, linebacker Max Messner, guard Dick Mills, flanker Pat Studstill, linebacker Wayne Walker, tackle Paul Ward and guard Bob Whitlow and defensive halfbacks Bruce Maher.

KNAPP'S DOWNTOWN, FIFTH FLOOR

GYMNASTIC TYPE: Mary Margaret Revell, 24, of Detroit and Miami believes this exercise strengthens her wrist and shoulder muscles. She is preparing to make three long-distance swims in Europe.

Swimmer Chides American Women

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

"It's pathetic," winsome Mary Margaret Revell began as she talked about her favorite subject—swimming. "Some of our women are in terrible shape.

"Now don't get me wrong, I'm not knocking the housewife's shape or mothers who go off to work to help the family income. "But I'm really concerned. When I say shape I mean physical ability more than size.

"On my first trip to New York I met two women. One said she 'couldn't swim across the hotel pool,' and the other lady said 'why I can't even swim a stroke.'"

Mary Margaret Revell, 24, from Detroit and Miami, would like nothing better than to conquer the world of water. Meeting her for five minutes is electrifying. She rattles off her endurance swimming ambitions as though you were in the water with her.

"I'm planning to swim the Straits of Gibraltar, a distance of 24 miles, round trip," says Mary Margaret. "I know I can do it. I have a good trainer and will have a male manager with me."

What? No chaperone?

"Well, I think having two men along will give me more confidence."

Confidence is something Miss

Ex-Spartan Held In Strangling

Arthur Gowens, who played basketball at MSU for a season, was being held on a charge of murder Monday by Lansing police in the choking death of his wife, Mrs. Joan Gowens, 25.

Mrs. Gowens was found strangled Saturday morning by her mother at 1407 Olds Ave. Gowens, who played center for the Spartans in 1959 and 1960, admitted choking the mother of three in an argument Friday night.

He said he did not know she was dead until Saturday morning.

IM News

Clifford Little, a visiting lecturer in physics from Pottstown, Pa., won the student-faculty golf tournament over a weather-beaten Forest Akers Golf Course Saturday. He carded a 94, three strokes better than runner-up Don Smith Flint senior.

Members of teams in the IM open softball tournament are asked to contact the IM office for all schedules. Opponents are determined too late for publication in the State News.

Our Town

Kiel. The gentle tale he weaves concentrates upon two of the prominent families, the Gibbs and the Webbs.

The part of Dr. Gibbs will be played by John Weaver and his wife will be Mary Miner. Their two children will be impersonated by George Sollo and Linda Strandness.

Over across the street in the Webb household, the audience will meet John Rashid, as the local publisher; Bee Vary, as his wife and George Brookover and Barbara Smith as the children.

Tickets for "Our Town," "a supreme adventure in play-going," "one of the most important theatrical experiences of this generation," are available at the Summer Circle box office in front of Demonstration Hall from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. through Saturday. Phone reservations are accepted at 355-0148.

3rd Congress Concert Thursday

The third conductor in the Congress of Strings series of concerts appears 8:15 p. m. Thursday in the Auditorium.

Joseph Krips of the Buffalo Philharmonic, who arrived over the weekend from Vienna, Austria, where he conducted the Vienna opera, will conduct the congress musicians who are here for the summer.

Swimmer

Revell has in spades. And beside she's a well-stacked 5-foot-9 with measurements of 36-24-36.

Mary Margaret, a native of Fort Lewis, Wash., who lives in Detroit and has an office in Miami, Fla., will train for her long distance swims with a gadget tied around her waist. She calls it a power stroke swimmer.

"It measures the amount of your arm pull and leg kicks," says Miss Revell, "plus the fact that it tells you the steadiness of rhythm and pace. It will be a boon to swimming. You can use it in any pool."

"I can swim 64 strokes a minute. It's tops. I can maintain that pace for six to nine hours. Physical fitness helped me to attain that figure."

Mary Margaret claims she has run up 33 flights of hotel stairs.

She could easily say "up and down 33 flights" but there's no chicken in this chick. After she ascends 33 flights she takes the elevator downstairs and retraces her steps roofward.

Her longest swim was 11 hours and 56 minutes, she says. She was in the water that long for 25 miles of the Catalina channel.

On a visit to Long Island, Mary Margaret talked to 150 teen-age girls at Plainview High School.

"I told these girls not to waste so much time on their hairdos, that they had to swim or get some kind of physical exercise," says MM.

"Girls spend at least one day a week looking at their figures. They skimp on food at breakfast time so they can spend more time primping in front of a mirror." I told them, "If they would take 15 minutes of the time they spend on their hair to eat a proper breakfast they'd be better off."

"Apply 45 minutes a day to good solid exercise — some kind of athletics — and by all means learn to swim."

Ag Teachers Meeting Here

"Vocational Agricultural Education -- Builder of Men" is the theme of the 43rd annual Conference for Teachers of Vocational Agriculture, scheduled for Michigan State University which started here Monday and lasts to Friday.

More than 200 vocational agriculture teachers from Michigan high schools, along with a number of school superintendents and principals, directors of vocational education and teachers of institutional on-farm training, are at Kellogg Center.

Objectives of this year's conference are to promote an understanding of the teacher's responsibility in the broad field of agriculture, to promote the agricultural education profession and to increase the technical knowledge of agricultural teachers in Michigan.
