4 Senate Candidates Are Battling

By BEN BURNS
Editor-in-Chief

Four Republican choices for 14th District State senator will confront MSU voters when they go to the polls Tuesday.

Ted Swift, Okemos lawyer, Paul Chien, East Lansing management consultant and Larry Munro, Fenton businessman are contesting incumbent Paul Younger's right to the 14th senatorial district seat.

Younger, a Lansing attorney, is campaigning on a "no income tax" platform. It was his amendment which brought MSU's two year medical school into existence.

"I feel the legislature was right in denying the Communist speaker a place to speak on college campuses," said Younger, in reference to the spring term controversy at MSU. "It shakes the public confidence in tax-supported institutions when they allow something like that to take place.

"The public will assume that the university sanctions the speaker. Why shake the public confidence?"

Speaking about the senate resolution opposing the Labor Industrial Relations Center, which he supported, Younger said, "The LIRC is a good idea if it is properly handled. We can't let the CIO or any one side take over something like that."

Ted Swift, a University of Michigan law school graduate, is opposing Younger on the grounds that is time a more progressive branch of the party revitalized Michigan Republicanism.

"The LIRC action was none of the legislature's business," said Swift. "I also oppose their interference in the Communist speaker controversy and agree with the State News stand that he couldn't have harmed the student body.

"If, as a legislator, I am allowed to control a Communist speaker one day, what is to prevent me from censoring the editor of the student newspaper the next day?"

Tuition increases should be studied closely, according to Swift. So far there has been no effort on the part of the colleges to show exactly how

Shaw Lane Due To Open Aug. 15

Construction work on Shaw Lane is expected to be completed by Aug. 15 unless bad weather interferes, said Harold W. Lautner, campus architect. The road is being converted to four lanes.

Widening Shaw Lane between Harrison Road and Power Plant Road is part of an overall plan to surround the campus with

Charles Cioffi, A Standout

MSU's Best Actor Active

By BOB ROSS
Of The State News Staff

In every theatre group there is one actor who stands out; draws the crowds time and again; whose name becomes synonymous with the "lead" role, and whose departure leaves a hard to fill gap in the lineup.

For the past few years Michigan State this man has been Charles Michael Cioffi. And he is leaving.

Recipient of the MSU Best Actor award for 1959-60, the Best Supporting Actor award in 1957-58, and now the McKnight Fellowship for doctoral study at the University of Minnesota, Cioffi has averaged better than two productions a year.

Lansing audience's will remember him most recently for his hilarious interpretation of Bohun in Shaw's You Never Can Tell with the MSU Circle theatre.

With the Community Circle this past spring he played the lead in Christopher Fry's The Lady's Not For Burning.

A native of New York City, Cioffi is 26, holds the BA and MA in speech from MSU, is married and has one son, Stephen, aged 20 months.

Over the past five years he has been seen in such famous plays as Time Limit, Death of a Salesman, Mister Roberts, The Glass Menagerie, Darkness At Noon, Macbeth, Kismet and Dr. Faustus.

His favorite role was Hector

THE ACTOR AS PAINTER is Charles Cioffi portraying the role of husband making a living. Besides scraping and painting the fences around University Village, Cioffi is also an announcer at WKAR and a graduate assistant in speech.

Free Congress Concert Tonight

Three unusual and rarely played musical works will be performed by faculty members of the A. F. of M. Congress of Strings at 8:15 p.m. today in the Music Auditorium.

The program by the distinguished musicians from various parts of the nation will be offered to the public without charge.

Married Students Can Vote

Michigan State students who live in the three married housing villages are eligible to vote in Tuesday's state primary election if they are registered, East Lansing elections officials said Wednesday.

All of Michigan can go to the polls in the voting which will select the final Republican and Democratic candidates who will oppose each other in the final run-off Nov. 8.

East Lansing officials say students not registered for Tuesday's election and who are eligible to register in East Lansing can begin registering for the November vote starting Aug. 8 to Oct. 8.

Persons 21 years old and older must live in a district six months to be eligible to vote in that district. Otherwise, students can vote in their hometown district either directly or by absentee ballot if their legal residence is maintained there.

Residents of Spartan Village, which is in the 10th precinct, and University Village, in the 8th district, must vote at Red Cedar School.

Cherry Lane is in the 7th district and vote at the fire station on Shaw Lane.

The polls are open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The most interesting local race is the battle among four candidates for Republican nomination as state senator candidate from the 14th district, which includes Ingham and Livingston counties.

Incumbent Sen. Paul Younger of Lansing is facing Ted Swift of Okemos, Paul Chien of East Lansing and Lawrence Munro of Fenton, James F. McClure of Okemos is opposed on the Democratic ballot.

Another local contest is the 1st district state representative race in both parties. Incumbents Marie Hager and Harold W. Hungerford of Lansing are seeking nomination along with William Mahoney and George B. Phillips in the race in which two persons are nominated.

On the Democratic ledger are Bruce S. King and Manfred Lilliefors who are unopposed.

Spartan Village residents vote for first district representative while Cherry Lane residents must vote in the 2nd district race in which State Representative

Ted Swift Better For University

The Republican primary for the 14th senatorial District boils down to a race between the conservative and the liberal wings of the party.

The two serious candidates are Paul Younger, incumbent Lansing attorney, representing the conservative point of view and Ted Swift, Okemos attorney, representing the liberals.

Other candidates in the race are Paul Chien, East Lansing management consultant and Larry Munro, who operates a claim service in Flint.

Neither of the latter are in serious contention. Swift and Younger have both been interviewed on questions dealing with Michigan State.

Younger's main claim to the votes of Michigan State personnel is that he supported the two-year medical school by introducing the amendment which created it.

Younger opposed a Communist speaker and voted for the right-wing sponsored senate resolution attempting to abolish the Labor Industrial Relations Center.

Swift says that the legislature has no business interfering in the affairs of the university either in regard to the LIRC or the Communist speaker.

This newspaper feels he is right. We feel that Swift is more realistic and sympathetic toward problems facing the university than Younger.

Younger's record in the senate does not indicate a careful analysis of the merits of each issue, but shows blind party-line opposition to the labor wing of the Democratic party.

There is no party in Michigan that is completely right. It is time that we started electing intelligent concerned persons instead of politicians.

four-lane roadways, he said.

Ultimately, Bogue Street, at the east end of the campus, will be linked up with Shaw Lane. The Bogue Street bridge, which is to be built jointly by MSU and East Lansing, is now in the planning stages. Upon completion, the main campus will be surrounded by Grand River Avenue, Michigan Avenue, Shaw Lane and Bogue Street, all four lanes.

Approximately three-fourths of a mile of Shaw Lane is being converted to four lanes. From Harrison Road to Chestnut Lane, the road will be divided by a medial strip and from Chestnut Lane to Power Plant Road it will be four lanes, but undivided.

The widening of Shaw Lane is one of the most important construction projects on campus because of increasing amount of traffic at MSU each year, Lautner said.

Richard O. Bernitt, director of the Department of Public Safety, said that dividing Shaw Lane by a medial strip near Case Hall will be important to pedestrian traffic crossing the road.

With a new dormitory being completed this fall and another

Charles J. Davis is unopposed on the Republican ballot. Voters must choose between James J. Cavanagh, Okemos, and Howard L. Jones, Webberville, a Con-Con delegate.

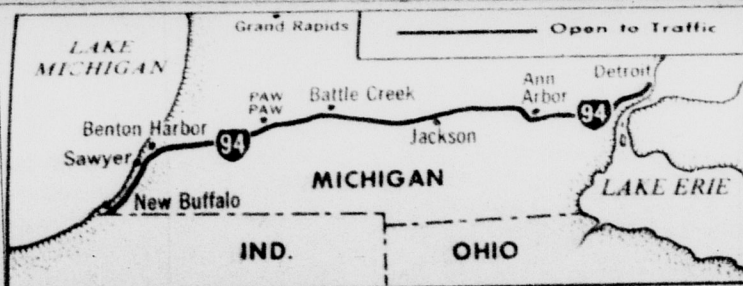

Only two other contests are on the ballot--for Republican Lieutenant Governor and Republican Ingham County Treasurer. Sen. John Stahlin of Belding, former Lt. Gov. Clarence A. Reid and Rockwell T. Gust of Grosse Pointe are seeking to become the running mate of George Romney, who is unopposed for nomination as governor candidate.

Governor John Swainson and Lt. Gov. T. John Lesinski are unopposed on the Democratic ballot for their present posts.

Hubert Ellison and Harry A. Spenny are seeking nomination as Republican county treasurer.

Performing this work will be Mishel Piatro, former concertmaster of the New York Philharmonic and conductor of the Longines Symphonette; Robert Jamieson, solo cellist of the Minneapolis Symphony; and Warren Benfield, string bass of the Chicago Symphony.

The "Sonata for Cello and Piano in D Minor, Opus 40," by Shostakovich will be the second work on the program. It will be performed by Theo Salzman, principal cellist of the Pittsburgh Symphony; and Dr. Paul Oberg, pianist, Dean of the Congress of Strings and chairman of the Music Department at the University of Minnesota.

Beethoven's "String Quartet in F, Opus 135" will be the concluding work. Performing will be Frank Houser, concertmaster of the San Francisco Symphony; Hyman Goodman, concertmaster of the Toronto Symphony; William Lincer, solo violinist of the New York Philharmonic; and Robert Jamieson.

Life Saving Lessons Free

Free junior and senior life saving instruction will be available at MSU this summer.

The Lansing Red Cross has announced a program in conjunction with MSU to start Aug. 6.

Junior lifesaving instruction will continue from 8 to 9:30

Harriet Young of the local Red Cross chapter said boys and girls from 12 to 15 must enroll in the junior course while persons 16 and over will be admitted to the senior program.

Letters to Editor on Ross, Garbage

Ross

To the Editor:

Something new has been added to the State News. We now have a drama critic, someone who has taken a position for strict interpretation of scripts by the director. Someone who denies (sic) the rights of the directors and actors to be creative and artistic. The person of whom I speak is none other than Bob Ross, the Brooks Atkinson of The State News.

In his last two critiques Mr. Ross has shown himself to be completely incompetent as a critic with little insight as to the functions of various members involved in the production of a play. Everyone has the right to an opinion, but when put in print the critic must defend his ability to render this "objective" judgment.

How does Mr. Ross defend his opinions. He comes to a dress rehearsal, script in hand, and follows the play word by word, paying careful (sic) attention to the author's suggested stage positions. He is so pre-occupied with the script that he barely has time to watch the play, least of all retain the mood created. If the action or format of a play vary with what is in print, Mr. Ross points to the director and says "Mr. Rutledge failed to do this, Dr. Brandon did that. Or, "The stage directions call for him to address the audience." It is in making statements like these that Mr. Ross shows us that he has little understanding of theatre as an art.

Mr. Ross views each production from the literary point of view. He bases the value of a production on his interpretation of the play. The director too, interprets the play and it is through this interpretation that the critic must base his judgment, not on his own preconceptions as to what the play should be like.

To quote Mr. Charles McGaw, (from his book Acting is Believing): "An audience can never see a character on the stage as the dramatist conceived him. They always see whatever truth and significance a particular actor has been able to find in the character. And the person who prefers reading his plays to seeing them is merely substituting his own interpretive abilities for those of the actor."

Garbage Pits

To The Editor:

Directly across from towering Beal's Pinetum, bordering S. Hagadorn, is one of the most disgraceful garbage pits in the East Lansing area.

The College woods, once noted for its natural scenic wonderland of flora and fauna, has literally become a dumping ground for local editions, drained liquid refreshment bottles, and hand-outs announcing grand sell-outs of used cars, of which, I am sure, will be soon followed by other ornaments of American civilization.

We have, or we are in the process of, destroying a natural route for relaxing from the mobile societal pressures of our industrial complex, leading to the degradation of a Sunday stroll of a couple holding hands, as they walk and coo among the many varied paths, seeking facial expressions of love.

Under the dynamic leadership of President Hannah, Michigan State has expanded its unnatural brick and mottled creations into the eastern frontage, leveling tree and brush in order to build phthisic piazzas, the grounds of which are kept emaculate by the Grounds Department. But the same department has forgotten to extend its man power into the woods.

Such disrespect and ignorance brings to mind Van Paassen's observation that "Half of our misery and weakness derives from the fact that we have broken with the soil and we have allowed the roots that bound us to the earth to rot. We have become detached from the earth, we have abandoned her. And a Man who abandons Nature has begun to abandon himself."

John Gustafson

Africa

Dear Editor:

On page 11 of the July 17, 1962, issue of the State News, there appeared a filler stating that "Two African languages, Temainian and Teis-um-Danab, have vocabularies of only 20 words."

This statement is not only untrue but absurd. If there were any peoples in the world with vocabularies of less than 20 items, these peoples would have a more restricted communicative system than do gorillas and chimpanzees.

As a matter of fact, most linguists are agreed that the number of words in the total vocabularies of all the languages of the world is the same -- to wit, infinity. The only reason why some languages, such as English, appear to have larger vocabularies than other languages, especially unwritten languages, is that more words have been recorded for them. However, if someone wished to take the time and trouble to compile it, there is little doubt that he could draw up a bulkier dictionary of Swahili or of any other extant African language than the current multi-volume New English Dictionary.

If one wishes to make sense of your filler, he must assume that what is meant is rather that the two languages you mentioned are no longer spoken and that only 20 words from each language were recorded before they became extinct.

Skaters Practice 17 Hours

By SUSAN JACOBY
Of The State News Staff

Golf clubs, swimsuits, sand and sunshine typify the summer world of most young people.

However, 120 boys and girls attending MSU's Summer Ice Skating Session know a different world—one of wool tights, steel blades and blue-white glints, lit only by artificial spotlights.

In its 14th year, the summer session annually attracts top amateur and professional skaters from the United States and Canada. According to ice rink manager Norris Wold, MSU's program is one of six major summer sessions in the United States.

Professionals this year are Jack Jost and Beryl Williamson, Lansing Skating Club; Montgomery Wilson, Skating Club of Boston; Pierre Brunet, Skating Club of New York. Brunet coached famous world and Olympic champion Carol Heiss, who also attended several MSU summer sessions.

Other world champions who have studied here include Maria and Otto Jelinek, 1962 pair champions and Donald Jackson, 1962 mens' champion.

Several members of the ill-fated U.S. skating team which was killed in a plane crash over Brussels February 15, 1960, also attended MSU summer sessions. Since that date, much of the rebuilding of figure skating in the United States has been carried on at MSU. The revitalization has been sparked by sacrifice and expense on the part of young skaters and their parents.

The life of a skater is exemplified by red-headed Albertina Noyes of the Skating Club of Boston. The 13-year-old Eastern Senior Ladies' Champion and 2nd national junior runnerup has been skating since she was eight.

Miss Noyes rises at 4:30 each morning to obtain a patch at five. The patch is a marked portion of ice upon which a skater practices variations of the well-known figure eight. These are known in Tiger At The Gates.

 Although his first dramatic experience came in the sixth grade, nothing serious came along until a friend "shanghaied" him into the local drama group. Unfortunately, things came to a sudden halt, he says, when two months before graduation he got the old "heave ho" and never did graduate from high school. Cioffi decided on a dramatic career while in the Marines. Three years on active duty gives a man time for such thought. While in the Mediterranean area, he conducted an on-board ship radio program for the fleet. As he spun away he asked himself what life he had enjoyed the most. The Marines lost; the drama won. Following the service, Cioffi said he needed a school that would "fit my pocketbook" and thus he came to MSU. Commenting on State, Cioffi said: "It has helped me a lot. The more I got into drama here, the more I realized I didn't know." The McKnight Foundation of New York, in its first year of operation, has awarded 15 fellowships for advanced study in drama. Five were given to men, three to women and the rest to production personnel. Cioffi was selected as one of the five men to receive a grant, subject to renewal in succeeding years. The reason Cioffi chose Minnesota is Sir Tyrone Guthrie, the noted director from England, who Cioffi modestly refers to as "the greatest director in the English speaking world." Guthrie was director of the Old Vic for eight years and helped get Stratford, Ontario, on

Women Choose Science Snap Domestic Bonds

"The pleas for more women students to enter scientific professions give striking evidence of the distance women and the colleges have traveled in the past 100 years," a U.S. Department of Agriculture home economist said Tuesday.

Eunice Heywood, director of home economics for the Federal Extension Service of the USDA, explained that women made this progress because they did not confine their interests "to the courses designed for them"—the original college-level "domestic economy" courses.

"Gradually, able women students proved they could hold their own in any courses the universities had to offer," Miss Heywood asserted. She spoke before 1,000 women at the 35th annual Homemakers' Conference, "College Week for Women."

She pointed out that many of the men of our nation once argued that higher education for women would destroy the "delicate bloom of womanhood"; destroy romance, create disillusionment, result in fewer marriages and lead to race suicide; and lower our intellectual standards because of women's weaker brainpower.

These same men also doubted woman's ability to absorb abstract ideas.

Women have disproved a lot of these old fears and ideas, Miss Heywood said. The fiery little home economist particularly emphasized the advances of higher education for women during the past 100 years because 1962 marks the centennial of the legislation that established land-grant colleges in the United States.

She asserted that it is largely because of the land-grant movement, which stresses education for the common people, that women are now an accepted part of higher education.

Outlining the educational pro-

Prof Attends Workshop

William Marshall, MSU associate professor of home management and child development, attended a workshop on family relationships at Iowa State university July 16 to July 28.

Sponsored by the Home Economics Education branch of the U.S. Office of Education and the Home Economics Department of Iowa State, the workshop offers consultants in family relationships, psychology, sociology, anthropology, biology, and home economics education.

gress of women in this country, she said that the difficult task of settling colonial America first forced equal responsibilities upon both men and women. Elementary schools for girls as well as boys became fairly common.

"The trek west further strengthened women's right to recognition," she went on. "The industrial revolution provided an opportunity for women to earn a living and challenged the idea of limiting their education to homemaking activities."

She called women who belong to home economics extension clubs "off-campus students" of Michigan State University and explained that the home economics programs of the extension service are an integral part of the land-grant system.

Traditionally, county extension agents have helped homemakers and farmers improve their home economics and agricultural skills.

Now, Miss Heywood said, "extension has been moving gradually but definitely toward programs that are concerned more with the why and wherefores, with the production of ideas, and less with the teaching of skills or of communicating facts about home economics and agriculture."

"Continued learning is a must for all of us today," she concluded. "They say knowledge is doubling every 8 to 10 years. Like Alice in Wonderland, we must run very fast to stand still."

Describes Nigeria

It is up to the family to give the individual the emotional warmth and support he needs to adjust to a rapidly changing Nigeria.

This was the analysis of Nancy Axinn, wife of the coordinator of MSU's Nigerian Project, as she spoke Thursday to nearly a thousand Michigan women at MSU's 35th annual Homemakers' Conference.

In showing how the family can offer such support in any culture, Mrs. Axinn explained that there is quite a difference between Nigerian families and families in America. For example, it is common for one man to have several wives in Nsukka, home of the 2-year-old University of Nigeria where the MSU project is located.

Mrs. Axinn has spent some time with her husband in the Nsukkan district and is involved in an MSU home economics research project aimed at learning more about the Nigerian homemaker's activities.

The husband may have his own house and each wife may have her own house with her own kitchen, Mrs. Axinn explained. Each wife has a four-day turn to be responsible for taking care of the husband and his house.

"It is hard for us to understand how such an arrangement so different from our way of life can be happy. And it is true that some are not happy, just as some families here are not," Mrs. Axinn said.

Gives Paper

Stanley Stark, MSU associate professor of personnel and production administration, presented a paper Monday at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association in St. Louis.

The subject of Stark's paper was "Time, Intelligence and Research Movement Responses."

"But," she added, "it is important for us to understand that this system, developed in their culture and tradition, does make possible a happy home—one where there is love, thoughtfulness for each other, and a willingness to abide by the traditional pattern of life."

Mrs. Axinn also described the newly-developing home economics extension program of the University of Nigeria, similar to programs at MSU and other land-grant colleges where home economists go out into the community to teach homemakers.

Mrs. Axinn said one of the extension classes she attended had to be held at 6:30 in the morning so that a school building could be used.

The teacher, she said, "was taking attendance with a flashlight, and as it grew lighter, I discovered more than 25 women had walked from their homes, some several miles away, to come to class. Many had their babies with them, and they all sat quietly, giving their complete attention."

"Like mothers the world over, these mothers want to learn how they can have healthier children," Mrs. Axinn said. She explained that in the Nsukkan district, 50 per cent of the children die before they are 5 years old.

She also explained that most of the women want to learn to sew. In Nigeria, sewing is a man's profession and most women do not know the first thing about it.

Ionia Fair Exhibits Crafts

When the Hobby Craft Department of the Ionia Free Fair opens Monday, no one will recognize the rough animal hides and old tin cans. But they will recognize expert leather and tin crafts during the six-day display and judging.

"We will have some of the best exhibits in Michigan at our fair this year," said Mrs. Bea Marble, department supervisor, who has taught college courses in leathercraft and has helped set up local classes in co-operation with the MSU Extension Service.

The leathercraft entries include a complete ladies walking ensemble, valued at near $400, and delicate leather jewelry and moccasins.

Old tin cans will be fashioned into decorative wall plaques and hammered or cut kitchen wares, trays and lamp shades.

Unique exhibits will also be seen at Home Arts Department of the Michigan State Fair, which will run from August 24 through Sept. 3.

The exhibits will include doughnuts, jule kake (a Scandinavian bread), kolachy (a Bohemian bread) and streusel (a German bread), said Mrs. Polly Luers, Home Arts director.

Majorie Gibbs, of the MSU Extension Service, will be one of the judges who will be judging these and other entries.

Editor Appointed

MSU graduate David H. Tefft, 45, has been appointed news editor of the Ann Arbor News. Tefft received a journalism degree from MSU in 1940. He later served as graduate manager of the State News.

500 Young Musicians Practice

The 17th annual MSU Youth Music Program has attracted over 500 outstanding high school musicians from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania, and Tennessee.

Students are selected for the program by local music teachers and school officials. According to director Robert Sidnell, "about 60 per cent of the boys and girls received scholarships from home-town organizations."

The program, which began Sunday and continues through August 18, offers instruction in orchestra, chorus, ensembles and symphonic, concert and training bands. Private lessons will be given in music theory, composition, literature, conducting, accompanying, instruments and voice.

A staff of 52 musicians from the MSU Department of Music and schools throughout Michigan will direct the 9th through 12th grade students. Sidnell said,

The Brazilian seaport of Manaus is situated a thousand miles from the ocean up the Amazon River.

"The enrollment and staff are the largest in our history."

Michael Bistrizski of Cass Technical High School, Detroit, will direct the orchestra. Harry Begin of Cass Technical and Gerald Winters of Holt will direct the symphonic and concert bands, respectively.

George Cripps of Jackson will lead the chorus. The two festival bands will be directed by Rex Hewlett of Mt. Pleasant and Ronald Phillips of Belding.

The complete group will present two major concerts. The first one will be held on the music grounds Wednesday, Aug. 8, at 6:30 p.m. Another formal concert will be presented Saturday, Aug. 18, at 1:30 p.m. in the Men's Intramural Building. Both concerts are free and open to the public.

According to Sidnell, several smaller recitals "too numerous to mention" will be held in the MSU Music Auditorium.

the Shakespearean map. Cioffi claims it was Guthrie, who in the first three or four years of the Stratford Festival, got such people as Alec Guinness and James Mason to head the casts.

Minnesota is building a special Tyrone Guthrie Theatre which will be the first national repertory theatre in America.

In an age where the Ph. D. is becoming necessary in an increasing number of fields, the question arises whether or not drama is now one of the fields.

Cioffi says he does want the doctorate for "dramatic teaching" but his immediate aims are the professional stage.

"So many people," he said, "go to New York and are a flop at 35. They have no ace-in-the-hole. Too many of these people don't know their craft from the academic standpoint.

"They criticize directors and don't know what they're talking about themselves."

"The theatre is the most highly competitive field in the world," he continued, "25,000 people are in New York City alone trying to break into professional theatre."

Commenting further on drama

as a way-of-life he said:

"There is a bit of playacting in everyone. Acting is the most socially centered of all the arts but is the least helpful to the individual artist.

"The musician has his instrument, the painter his easel; but the actor goes on stage with only himself."

Cioffi feels there are more interesting people in the theatre than are usually found in other walks of life. Also, he says the theatre is very gratifying in terms of "money and power."

"Coffee, cigarettes, tension," he said, "all these belong; you become addicted to them. You have a 40 pound theatre bug on your back when you're bitten.

"The field is unlimited as to how far you can go. A person's success is limited only by his or her dreams; if you have 'it'."

While an undergraduate at MSU Cioffi received the Senior award of Merit for 1961 from the speech department. He was president of the Theta Alpha Phi dramatic honorary society.

A member of the Blue Key, he was also president of his fraternity, Sigma Chi.

His wife, Anne, a fine actress in her own right, received the BA in speech education this year. She received the Best Actress of the Year award for 1962 for her roles in A Street Car Named Desire and The Man Who Came To Dinner. She succeeded her husband as president of Theta Alpha Phi. They were married in Cioffi's junior year.

Actors such as Cioffi who, at 26, have such a range of experience and academic background, are found on college campuses once in a blue moon.

To be regretted is the current scarcity of blue moons.

Fall Books Lively

We're only a few scratches on the calendar from Labor Day, school bells - and a lot of fall reading. September promises to be a lively month in the book publishing business.

But first a glance at some interesting titles which are coming up in the waning weeks of summer.

In fiction, there will be Jerome Weidman's "The Sound of Bow Bells," which isn't cockney, but a story about a writer and the publishing industry. Random House is bringing it out.

Also John Kerouac's "Big Sur," from Farrar, which will be about a king of the beatniks fleeing to a refuge in the mountains. There are supposed to be some autobiographical overtones in this one.

A long Civil War novel from Don Robertson, "The River and the Wilderness," published by Doubleday, will be a story on a large canvas, with a big cast of characters. It is reported to chronicle the seamier side of the occupation of fighting a war.

In nonfiction we are about to have John Steinbeck's "Travels With Charley," published by Viking. Charley is a poodle. He and John rode a pickup truck westward across the northern part of the country and back by way of the Deep South.

Then we get into the September rush.

"A Shade of Difference" is Allen Drury's sequel to "Advise and Consent," and some of the same characters appear in it. A major figure this time will be a Negro congressman from California, and there is an uproar in the United Nations involving a representative of an African nation. Doubleday is the publisher.

Another sequel is John Braine's "Life At The Top," from Houghton Mifflin, following up his "Room At The Top."

WHAT THEN ARE WE TO DO?
This question is asked every Sunday: the worship service of Central Methodist Church, Lansing. In fact, "What Then Are We To Do?" Sheets are prepared for every sermon. The minister offers five or six suggestions for study and application during the week. Approximately half the congregation takes a sheet home.

If you wish to worship where persons desire to "Apply Christianity," we invite you to worship with us next Sunday. Communion 8:30 in Mary Sabina Chapel

Minister Gets New Post

After seven years as the minister of University Lutheran Church here in East Lansing, Pastor Charles T. Klinksick will become pastor of Clinton Heights Lutheran Church in Columbus, Ohio.

Pastor Klinksick will leave on Sept. 1, to begin his new job. During his years with University Lutheran, the membership of his church doubled with help from sister congregations. In 1957 the inside of the church was completed and a $110,000 educational building was finished in 1959.

The church is also faced with the loss of their organist, Mr. Ralph Renwick, who will resign in August. No replacement has been named.

While awaiting a new minister, University Lutheran will have a guest pastor each Sunday.

MSU Skaters

in skating terminology as figures.

The young Miss Noyes works on her patch until 9:00 a.m. Following patch, she dances on ice through 10:45. The next 45 minutes is devoted to free style. Free style is comprised of the intricate jumps and spins which can be seen at ice shows.

Tina Noyes spends another hour and three-quarters on the ice during the afternoon. She skates from 5 till 10 in the evening with only a 45 minute break. The young skater then returns to Gilchrist Hall for some sleep before the start of another 17-hour day.

Cost is another factor in the making of a skater. Joya Utermohlen, 15-year-old North Atlantic Senior Ladies' Champion from the Skating Club of New York, takes two lessons daily from her coach. The cost of skating lessons lies within the area of $6-$10 per half-hour.

Miss Utermohlen and most serious skaters own one pair of custom-made skates for figures and one for free style. Boots cost around $100.00 and blades run close to $50.00

What keeps Tina Noyes and Joya Utermohlen and their companions on the ice in spite of great personal and financial sacrifice? One factor is the desire to obtain the gold medal of the United States Figure Skating Association. To obtain this medal, a skater must pass a series of nine tests.

Another basic factor is pure love of the sport and competition. Vera Wang, 13-year-old Middle Atlantic Junior Champion from the Skating Club of New York, says, "You can't help but love it. Once you get started in competition, you have to keep going."

"I just like to skate and do my best," affirms Tina Noyes. "I can't imagine any other kind of life."

Misses Noyes, Utermohlen and Wang were featured in the show "Talent on Ice" Wednesday night at the arena. Some masculine

Stories About Love

"Love and the Frenchwoman," seven stories illustrating the findings of the French Institute of Public Opinion in its study of love in the life of the Frenchwoman, will be shown in Fair-

Senate

The various colleges ought to be coordinated more to provide an accurate picture of needs.

Paul Chien, an East Lansing management consultant, has spoken out against tuition increases for Michigan State.

"They are pricing good students out of an education," said Chien. "The trustees ought to study a tuition cut instead."

Chien favors study of the income tax situation and fiscal reform of state government.

Larry V. Munro, the fourth candidate for the state senator post, has made no specific statements regarding Michigan State.

One of the main planks of his platform, however, is a proposal to declare a moratorium on Michigan debts--cancel them all.

The Democratic candidate for senator is James F. McClure, a social science instructor at Lansing Community College.

An Okemos resident, McClure is running unopposed in the primary and will face the winner of the Republican primary in the Nov. 8 elections.

child Theatre on Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The seven stories are: "Childhood." A little girl begins to become inquisitive about the facts of life and her parents embarrassedly give her an explanation.

"Adolescence." A rebellion of an adolescent girl begins with a forbidden romance, and her parents struggle to find the right way to behave as the gulf widens between their daughter and themselves.

"Virginity." A young girl is under pressure from her fiancé to engage in premarital relations, since they cannot marry immediately because of economic reasons.

"Marriage." A pair of young newlyweds on their honeymoon trip experience jealousy and other tensions that marriages have to withstand.

"Adultery." A wife's extramarital affair receives surprising counter-measures from the husband, whose own dalliances, meanwhile, go on.

"Divorce." Strained though it might have been, a marriage could have been saved for a husband and wife, if they were left alone by others and not goaded to precipitate action.

"Women Alone." Bypassed for years by men, a plain bachelor woman has a chance of marriage, when suddenly her suitor, genuinely in love for the first time, is exposed for his previous preying on lonely single women.

Skaters

members of the company were Eastern Junior Champion Paul McGrath, Michael Marino of the Chicago Skating Club and Gary Clark of the Lansing Skating Club.

Last night's show was typical in that it simply featured fine skating. MSU's shows do not rely on elaborate properties and costumes as do professional performances. The quality of the skating renders such distractions unnecessary. The final ice show of the summer session will be held next Wednesday at 8:15. Tickets may be obtained at the ice arena. Balcony seats at $.75 and rink-level are $1.00.

Willie Kirkland, Cleveland Indians' slugging right fielder, is one of baseball's more consistent performers. In four seasons he batted .258, .272, .262 and .259.
