

Two Arab Diplomats Speakers At Arab Convention

Mahmoud Riad, United Arab Republic ambassador to the UN, will speak on the Algerian independence question at the opening banquet of the 11th annual Arab Student Convention Monday at 5:30 p.m. in the Union Building.

About 400 Arab Students, including 45 Algerians, are expected to attend the conference. Ishaq Qutub, graduate student from Jordan and local convention manager, says the convention's purpose is to strengthen bonds between students from different Arab countries. It will feature educational and recreational aspects.

Students attending workshops will discuss and adopt resolutions on Arab problems in the modern world. The resolutions will be voted on at a general meeting. Those passed will be sent to leaders of concerned Arab countries.

The seven workshop topics are Arab National Goals, Algeria, Palestine, United States Press and the Arab World, Evaluation of the Organization of Arab Students in America, Arab Common Market and Arab Education and Culture.

The common market workshop will treat effects of various countries' trade policies on the Arab market. The effect of the European common market upon Arab trade, oil pipelines and shipping companies will be examined.

Prime topics for the education and culture workshop will be the Arab lack of higher education institutions and the problem of accepting women in Arab colleges. The Arab world and U.S. press workshop will consider questions such as U.S. coverage of the Algerian problem.

The fourth annual Public will be held this week in conjunction with the Arab Student Convention.

Harold Minor, former American ambassador to Lebanon and Farek Jabri of the Arab Information Center, New York City, will present keynote addresses at the speaking seminar and act as advisors.

A wide range of recreational and entertainment activities is planned for the convention.

An amateur music talent show including Arab and U.S. students is scheduled for 9 p.m. Wednesday in the MSU Music Auditorium.

A picnic will be held 1 p.m. Thursday in Francis Park. Movies and sports are planned for the afternoon. A movie

KRESGE ADDITION--Janice Obenour, Lansing senior, takes a second glance at the wood carving recently implanted in the Kresge Art Center gardens. The unique statue is carved from a walnut tree stump found at the University dump. Located on the river side of Kresge, the figurine depicting two women was carved by Chris Papadopoulos, an art student who graduated from MSU at the end of spring term.

Butcher Boys Down Biology for IM Title

By JIM OLMSTEAD of the State News Staff

Butcher Boys defeated Biology Institute, 5-1, behind the tight pitching of Ron Marshall for the IM Softball Championship.

Marshall allowed one run and only four hits in the seven inning game as he struck out nine and walked three.

Biology Institute scored its first and only run in the first inning when Dan De Lange was given first on a tipped bat. Calvin Moore then gained first on an error and Charles Hampton singled in DeLange.

Butcher Boys threatened in the top of the third when they had the bases loaded with two out. David Topel and Elton Aberle started the inning with walks. Robert Deans then struck out, Marshall flew out, and Harold Swainsgood singled to load the bases. Harlin Ritchie then flew out to end the inning.

In the top of the fifth, Butcher Boys broke loose with four runs in an inning which saw nine men bat. Ritchie and Topel lead off with walks. Aberle flew out, Deans walked, and then Marshall was called out on strikes.

Scoring began when Leamon Williams was hit by a pitched ball and Ritchie was forced in for the first run. Topel and Deans then scored on a single by William Magee. The fourth run came when Jack Lamers singled to score Williams. Swainsgood then bounced out to the pitcher to end the inning. The last run scored by the Butcher boys came in the seventh inning. Scoring came when Williams singled, Magee was hit by a pitched ball, and Swains-

Council Approves Wet Law Proposal

The East Lansing city council voted Monday to place a proposal revising the dry act in the city charter on the Nov. 6 ballot.

The petition, introduced to the council by Councilman Max R. Strother on behalf of citizen's committee, must also be approved by the city attorney and Governor John Swainson before it is put before East Lansing voters.

It is the aim of the petition, backed by the East Lansing Chamber of Commerce, to repeal this ordinance and permit the sale of liquor, beer and wine on a take out basis inside the city limits.

Acceptance of the petition by the council was almost automatic, as was explained to several persons speaking against the petition. It is a state law that the council has to accept a properly signed and worded document concerning a charter amendment.

The council referred the petition to the city attorney, Raymond R. Campbell, for approval of the document as to its legal aspects.

The next step is to send the petition to the state attorney general and then to Gov. Swainson. If approval is given on these levels, the petition will then be placed in the hands of Mary Slavik, city clerk, to be printed up and placed on the Nov. 6 ballot.

The portion of the city charter, Chap. 18, section 18.1, prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages in East Lansing, was passed under the State Legislature Act #526 of the Local Acts of 1907.

But just where the sale will take place, if the voters pass the petition in November, is a problem.

The Michigan State Liquor Control Commission says the state law requires that any proposed establishment desiring to sell liquor, beer or wine must be at least 500 feet from a school or church.

3,000 4-H Members Here Next Week

Michigan's annual 4-H Club show to be held here August 27-30 will feature events ranging from automobile driver skill contests to dress revues.

Over 3,000 4-H members will participate in the 47th annual show which is one of the highlights of Michigan's 4-H year.

While the 4-H show has a traditionally rural flavor, many of the exhibits displayed will be those of city and suburban youngsters. Many city and non-farm young people are now enrolled in 4-H classes ranging from gun safety to handicrafts.

The traditional livestock show will include horses and dogs as well as lean hogs, blocky lambs and prize steers. This indicates a departure from a program which was once strictly for farm youngsters.

Other special programs include landscaping, electricity and a tractor operator's contest.

The Cooperative Extension Service at MSU sponsors the annual 4-H show in recognition of the necessity of development of youth.

In its half century of existence, 4-H has grown into an organization of over 70,000 members. Its programs now reach into every county in Michigan for both rural and non-rural youngsters.

New Constitution Gives Pay Veto

(One of the controversial sections of Michigan's proposed new Constitution is discussed today in this the final installment of a nine-part series reviewing the document. Associated Press newsmen Gene Schroeder and A. F. Mahan sum up their series with a report on the proposal to give the Legislature authority to veto pay raises for State employees.)

LANSING (AP) -- While Michigan's Constitutional Convention may have picked up courthouse support with four-year terms for county officers, another change very likely cost its new Constitution votes it might have got otherwise from the State's 31,000 civil service employees.

Now the State's four-member Civil Service Commission has exclusive power to fix pay rates, and the Legislature is required to come up with the necessary money for any raises.

Under the proposed new Constitution, the Legislature may within 60 days by a two-thirds vote of each house "reject" or reduce increases in rates of compensation authorized by the Commission.

Immediately thereafter, however, it is specified that the Legislature may not reduce pay rates in effect before the recommended increase. In other words, while it could veto any increases it couldn't cut pay.

Another item of controversy inserted in the article on public officers and employment gives appointing authorities (department heads) the power to create or abolish positions "For reasons of administrative efficiency without the approval of the Commission." Prior Commission approval now is required.

"Any employe considering himself aggrieved by the abolition of a position shall have the right of appeal to the Commission through established grievance procedures," the article continues.

James K. Pollock, a Republican delegate from Ann Arbor and the principal architect of the constitutional civil service section which the voters approved in 1940, and 35 dissident Democrats joined in opposing the changes. Both contended they would weaken the system.

Final Examinations

Final examinations for the full-term will be given in accordance with the following schedule:

The time of the examinations in University College courses is given below. Examination rooms will be announced by the instructor during the last week of classes.

American Thought and Language	Saturday, August 25, 10:15-12:15
Natural Science	Saturday, August 25, 1:30-3:30
Social Science	Monday, August 27, 10:15-12:15
Humanities	Tuesday, August 28, 10:15-12:15

The time of examinations in sections other than University College courses is determined by the days and the time the class is scheduled during the term. Examinations will be given in the same classrooms used for class meetings during the term.

If at least two of the days and hours follow the regular pattern, all students, instructors, and room schedules will automatically clear. In a few courses at the request of the department concerned, the final examination has been scheduled by the single hour lecture section, and in some instances students may encounter conflicts. In that event, the examinations scheduled by the class meeting two hours each week will take precedence over the examination scheduled by the single hour lecture. The examination will be arranged between the student and the department requesting the special scheduling of its examination.

All instructors having examination from 8:00-10:00 a.m. and from 1:30-3:30 p.m. are requested to terminate their examinations promptly so that rooms and buildings may be cleared for the examination periods which follow.

Professor Writes Water Booklets

Water--one of Mother Nature's best helpers--receives little attention in many school science curricula. An MSU professor of resource development has written a series of booklets to help teachers fill this gap in schools of the Water Wonderland.

Each of nine brief booklets relates an animated story of water. Chief characters include "Slinky," the ground water; "Bright Eyes," the lake; "Tinkle," the brook; "Slicker," the ice sheet; "Ike," the icicle; and others.

"Our purpose was to show how each water form fits into Mother Nature's pattern and into modern living," Clifford R. Humphrys, the author points out.

One booklet tells how ground water, though not generally appreciated, helps supply our wells, lakes and streams. Another explains that Julie, the snowflake--one of nature's prettiest creatures--includes around 1,000 crystals.

Big 10 Signs Rose Bowl Contract

CHICAGO--(AP)--The Big Ten and the Athletic Association of Western Universities formally bonded themselves with a continuous Rose Bowl game football contract Tuesday.

The contract has no fixed terms of years to run, but either party may cancel it by giving two years' notice.

The signing climaxed nearly two years of maneuvering by the Big Ten to marshal the required majority vote from its membership to put the New Year's Day spectacle in Pasadena back on a contract basis.

Willie Stars In Sweden

GOTEBORG, Sweden--(AP)--Willie Atterberry, former Michigan State ace, captured two events Monday as Americans completely dominated an international track and field meet here.

Atterberry whipped to a 46.7 victory over Ullis Williams of Arizona State in the 400-meter run.

Then Atterberry came back to win the 400-meter hurdles in 52.2 easily outdistancing Ove Andersson of Sweden, who finished in 53.8.

Rough Riders

Cut Rocky Ryan

OTTAWA, Que.,--Rookie line-backer Ed (Rocky) Ryan from Michigan State university was placed on waivers Monday by the Ottawa Rough Riders.

The 215-pound griddler joined the Eastern football conference team 10 days ago from the Toronto Argonauts but failed to appear in either of the Riders' first two games. The cut brought the team down to the 33-player limit.

Spartans

Get Texan

Alton "Buddy" Owens, an all-district guard from Texas, has decided to accept an athletic scholarship from the Spartans instead of Texas Tech, the UPI reports.

Owens, a 6-1, 195-pounder, played guard on Paschal's 4-A state semifinal football team, was an all-district pitcher in baseball and was a letter winner in track.

HAMILTON, AFB, Calif. -- Michigan State students--Cadets James A. Saur, Livonia senior, and Gilbert M. Johnson, Cassopolis senior--trained for the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps summer encampment here, Air Force officials said today.

Both are members of the AFROTC program at Michigan State and will be eligible for appointment as Air Force second lieutenant when they graduate.

Hathway Veep

STORRS, Conn. -- Dale Hathaway, MSU professor of agricultural economics, was named Tuesday as one of two vice-presidents of the American Farm Economics Association meeting at the University of Connecticut.

Hathaway will serve with president-elect Dr. Lowell Hardin, of Purdue University in heading the national farm economist's organization.

The pact, first signed for the 1947 game, ended with the demise of the Pacific Coast Conference after the 1960 contest.

Effort to renew it with the new AAWU (now consisting of Stanford, UCLA, Southern California, California, Washington and Washington State) were blocked by a tie-killing 5-5 Big Ten vote.

Last winter Minnesota changed its stand to the affirmative, providing the required 6-4 majority authorizing negotiations with the AAWU.

While coaching at Waynesboro (Pa.) High School, Penn State's Rip Engle compiled 86 wins, 17 defeats and five ties in 11 seasons. Three of his teams were unbeaten.

Add Animals To Mountain Habitat Display

Several new animals will be added to the Rocky Mountain Habitat exhibit on display at the MSU museum.

A mountain rabbit, hoary marmot, golden mantle ground squirrel and Clark's nutcracker will be added to the American elk and raven already exhibited.

A part of the museum's North American Wildlife series, the Rocky Mountain group opened early this summer. The exhibit duplicates an actual timberline scene at Mt. Evans, Colo.

"An exhibit such as the Rocky Mountain group takes from one year to 18 months before completion," said Victor Hogg, curator of the museum. "We have to bring in materials from the field, paint background and construct some scenery."

The museum gathers actual materials such as rocks and leaves in its attempt to duplicate particular settings.

"If you went to Mt. Evans, you would see a scene nearly identical to the one in our Rocky Mountain showcase," Hogg said.

Museum teams take field trips during the summer to obtain materials for exhibits. The new animals for the Rocky Mountain group were collected by the University of Colorado and shipped to MSU in dry ice.

Before the animals are placed in the showcase they must be stuffed and mounted. Small animals may be mounted in a matter of hours; large animals like the American elk take as long as two months to mount.

"Mounting time depends largely on the size of the animal and method used," Hogg explained.

"An animal such as the American elk weighs so much that stuffing and mounting must be a slow, careful process."

Finished exhibits in the wildlife series include Great Plains and tropical groups.

Booklet Portrays Cathcarts

"Patriotism now is not what it was 50 years ago, it has degenerated to mere pretext to promote personal interest, it is merely a war of the In's and Out's," James Leander Cathcart, a 60-year-old veteran of the Revolutionary War, wrote to his sons on the Michigan-Indiana frontier in 1833.

Cathcart's comment on patriotism is one of many personal views quoted in "The Cathcart Family," a booklet by Marvin R. Cain, curator of history at the Museum.

"In the lives of the Cathcart family one may follow a narrative of events from the American Revolution to the end of Reconstruction," Cain says in the introduction.

"No great effort has been made to relate these family experiences to accepted historical interpretations of either the period or the people. Instead, an attempt has been made throughout the narrative to let the Cathcarts speak for themselves, or to describe the events as they experienced them."

"The Cathcart Family" is the second in the MSU Museum's series of cultural publications. The first report on the archaeological excavations at Fort Michilimackinac, Mackinac City, Michigan.

MUSEUM VISITORS view new additions to the Rocky Mountain Habitat exhibit, a part of the North American Wildlife Series.

The project is called "ABCD," the abbreviation for "Accelerated Business Collection Delivery" system.

Frederick C. Belen, assistant postmaster general, explained the details of the program which went into effect Aug. 14.

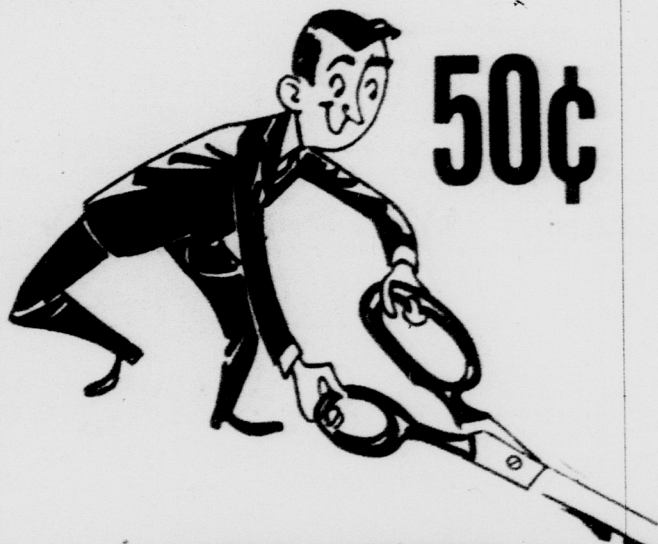

A special truck will pick up the mail from 38 specially marked boxes in the downtown area beginning at 11 a.m. Mail will then be put into high-speed canceling machines by noon and ready for the second delivery at 1 p.m.

Lansing was picked because it is a typical medium-sized city, Belen said.

Frat Hosts National Swim Party

The East Lansing chapter of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity will host members of the National Pi Kappa Phi Convention today at a swimming party and banquet.

The swimming party will be held this afternoon at the MSU Men's Intramural Pool, followed by a banquet at the Pi Kappa Phi house, 121 Whitehills Drive.

The 29th annual convention at the Lansing Jack Tar Hotel is being attended by general alumni, alumni chapter representatives and fraternity members from 50 active chapters throughout the United States. Attendance (including wives) is expected to reach 350 by Saturday evening.

The convention will be climaxed Saturday evening by a dinner dance at the Jack Tar. The National Rose Queen of Pi Kappa Phi will be crowned at the dance.

Becky Newsome, a junior at Salem College in North Carolina, is this year's queen. She was chosen from entry pictures submitted by all active Pi Kappa Phi chapters.

Prospective Nurses Warned On Time

The Board of Nursing, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the Attorney General issued a joint statement today cautioning Michigan citizens against mail order nurses' training courses offered by Nurses Training Schools, Inc., a Philadelphia, Pa. corporation now soliciting Michigan residents.

This mail order training program is not accepted by the Michigan Board of Nursing as qualification for licensing; it is not approved by the Superintendent of Public Instruction of Michigan for license of solicitors under the Private Trade School Law; its activities in Michigan are in violation of the laws of this state.

Representations being made by the school that legal qualifying demands of the state have been met and that graduates of the course can be employed as nurses in Michigan are false.

Michigan citizens are warned to check with the Board of Nursing before signing up for any nursing course. Any contact with this or similar organizations should be reported to the Michigan State Board of Nursing, the Superintendent of Public Instruction of Michigan, or to Attorney General Frank J. Kelley at once.

EXOTIC UPPER AFRICA

THE BLUE NILE. By Alan Moorehead. Harper & Row. $5.95.

A companion volume to the author's "The White Nile," this thoroughly researched book encompasses some fantastic scenes and adventures in the exploration of upper Africa between 1798 and the latter part of the 19th Century.

It is in four parts. "The Reconnaissance" is about a quixotic figure named James Bruce, a red-haired, 6-foot-4 Scot who penetrated into primitive Ethiopia late in the 18th Century. He was a lone explorer who brought back the earliest modern account of the strange people he found.

"The French in Egypt" is a study of Napoleon's temporary conquest of that land, and his visions of many projects that eventually were carried out by others; and particularly it is about the campaign of the French commander Desaix against the Turk, Murad. It was this gruelling campaign that carried the French to the upper reaches of the river.

"The Turks in the Sudan" is mainly about little Muhammed Ali, a violent man who brought modern techniques of control to the wild country he dominated. There is a fascinating chapter on Shendi Market, at the crossroads of the trade routes.

"The British in Ethiopia" is perhaps the most fantastic of all these accounts. It tells how the British mounted a tremendous expeditionary force to rescue a handful of prisoners from an utterly insane black emperor named Theodore.

There are detailed descriptions of battles in the deserts and the mountains, stories about odd explorers and weird, brutal native customs. In some passages the reader may find the minute accounts of military campaigns a little tedious. But there are many exotic passages that will stir the arm chair adventurer.

Altogether, it is an admirable performance in bringing to life a strange land in a strange time.

State's Second Five-Year Road Plan
DETROIT—The second half of the Michigan State Highway Department's $2 billion road-building program got underway here recently at ceremonies also marking start of construction on Detroit's $150 million Fisher Freeway.

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie, Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, and nearly two dozen Detroit area officials took part in ceremonies to launch the Highway Department's second five-year program.

Mackie recently announced completion of the Highway Department first five-year program which was highlighted by construction of 702 miles of freeway, giving Michigan more than 825 miles of superhighway.

The entire freeway, from Outer Drive to a connection with the Walter Chrysler Freeway, is expected to be completed by 1967.

Polley Gets Executive Spot

Ira Polley, state controller, has been named executive director of the Michigan State Council of State College Presidents. Polley will head a study program to produce accounting, instructional, enrollment, and space utilization data to aid higher education in Michigan.

MSU is a member of the council, which was originally formed to improve relations between Michigan state-supported colleges and the state legislature.

Legislative Pay Veto

The Republican majority argued that the Legislature was entitled to at least some restraint on Commission-recommended pay increases, and insisted if two thirds of both houses agreed to veto any they likely weren't justified in the first place.

These delegates also said department heads, in the interest of administrative efficiency -- and, only for that reason -- should have authority to make changes without first having to go to the commission for authority.

The number of exempt or non-civil service jobs is raised to eight for the Governor's office but the commission would recommend the rate of pay for them.

The head of each principal department, including such elected officials as secretary of state and attorney general, would be entitled to two exempt employees each, and the Commission is empowered to exempt up to three more in each department if their jobs are of a policy-making nature.

The limit now is two per department. But the new Constitution directs reorganization of 100-plus "administrative offices, agencies and instrumentalities of the executive branch," into "not more than 20 principal departments."

Reorganizations of various departments subsequent to the first would be submitted to the Legislature by the Governor, and would become effective 60 days thereafter unless a majority of both houses voted to veto them. Approval would not be required.

The Legislature would be given more authority over State agencies having power to promulgate rules and regulations with the full force and effect of law.

These now are subject to approval of the attorney general and to court review, but the new Constitution would provide:

"The Legislature may by concurrent resolution empower a joint committee of the Legislature acting between sessions to suspend until the end of the next regular legislative session any rule or regulation of an administrative agency promulgated when the Legislature is not in regular session."

Democratic dissidents complained that "An administrative agency could find its hands tied indefinitely by summary interim committee suspension, even though the Legislature had never, by formal action, approved this suspension."

Republicans contended that rules and regulations with the effect of law should be subject to legislative restraint, even if the Legislature were not in session at the time. They denied the provision was aimed at so-called Rule 9 of the Corporation and Securities Commission banning discrimination in real estate sales.

One of the proposed new Constitution's shortest sections got the convention into one of its knottiest parliamentary tangles.

It reads, simply:

"The Legislature shall not authorize any lottery nor permit the sale of lottery tickets."

Irrked because a majority refused to include a proviso that would have legalized bingo sponsored by charitable or religious organizations, some delegates succeeded in selling the Convention temporarily to "Go all the way" and include a ban on parimutual betting which brings the State $8 million a year from the horse and harness tracks.

A few days later, with some delegates referring to "Previous hasty and precipitate action," the Convention voted to take out both bans and then re-inserted, 80 to 48, that covering only lotteries.

The new Constitution would continue a rule that banking legislation require a two-thirds vote in the Legislature.

Authority of the Legislature, by a two-thirds vote of each house, to order an election on constitutional amendments also is continued. So is that by which voters may force an amendment on the ballot by a petition signed by 10 per cent of the total voting in the last preceding general election.

The new Constitution would require submission of the question of calling another Constitutional Convention in 1973 and every sixteenth year thereafter.

Under terms laid down in the new Constitution any subsequent Convention also would be made up of one delegate from each house and one from each Senate District, chosen in partisan elections.

In the event of a vacancy occurring in any subsequent convention, the Governor would be required to appoint a replacement from the same political party as that of the departed delegate. Democratic Gov. John B. Swainson drew Republican fire for naming Democrats to vacancies left by resigning GOP members.

In any elections, 21 would be continued as the minimum voting age.

While the new Constitution would provide four-year terms for State senators and officers, it specifies that those chosen in 1964 shall serve only two years, "Notwithstanding any other provision in this Constitution."

It also spells out under "temporary provisions" that the first four-year elections shall be in the 1966 general election. The new Constitution in connection with elections, would bar incumbency designations for legislators and other partisan candidates.

The new Constitution would continue Michigan's long-time ban on the death penalty and would bring itself right up to date by providing the legislature with authority to "Enact laws on safety and use of atomic energy."

In one of its very last sections, the new Constitution empowers the Legislature by a two-thirds vote to refund bonds of the Mackinac Bridge Authority, which delegates estimated would save $1 million a year in interest charges.

4 Tukey's Attend Horticulture Meet

An East Lansing family is sending four of its members to the 16th International Horticultural Congress at Brussels, Belgium, August 31-September 6.

Harold Tukey, who recently retired as head of the MSU Department of Horticulture, is vice-president of the Congress and president of its fruit commission. Tukey and all three of his sons, Harold Jr., Ronald and Loren, will present papers during the congress program.

The boys all received B.S. and M.S. degrees in horticulture at MSU. Harold Jr. is now at Cornell; Ronald is at Purdue; Loren is at Pennsylvania State university.

MSU staff members who will appear on the program at Brussels are Shegmi Honma, bean breeding; S. H. Wittwer, effects of Kinins and Gibberellins; M. J. Bukovac, isotopes in foliar absorption and transport of nutrients.

Donald Dewey, controlled atmosphere storage; Robert Carolus, nutrients and paper mulch for vegetable crops; Stanley Johnson, peach breeding and Norman Thompson, breeding potatoes resistant to virus disease.

Lead To Talk On Chromosomes

Lee Virn Lead, assistant professor of biological sciences, will discuss his observations of chromosomes involved in the reproductive cycle of cells at the International Congress for Electron Microscopy in Philadelphia, Aug. 29 to Sept. 3.

The paper is co-authored by G. B. Wilson, professor of botany and plant pathology.

Ernestine Russell Carter, two-time Canadian Olympian and former MSU student, says gymnastics are "gaining in popularity in the United States, but the Russians and Czechs are still ahead."

Mrs. Carter, now a physical education instructor at Lansing Everett High School, is teaching here this week at the fifth Annual National Summer Gymnastics Clinic.

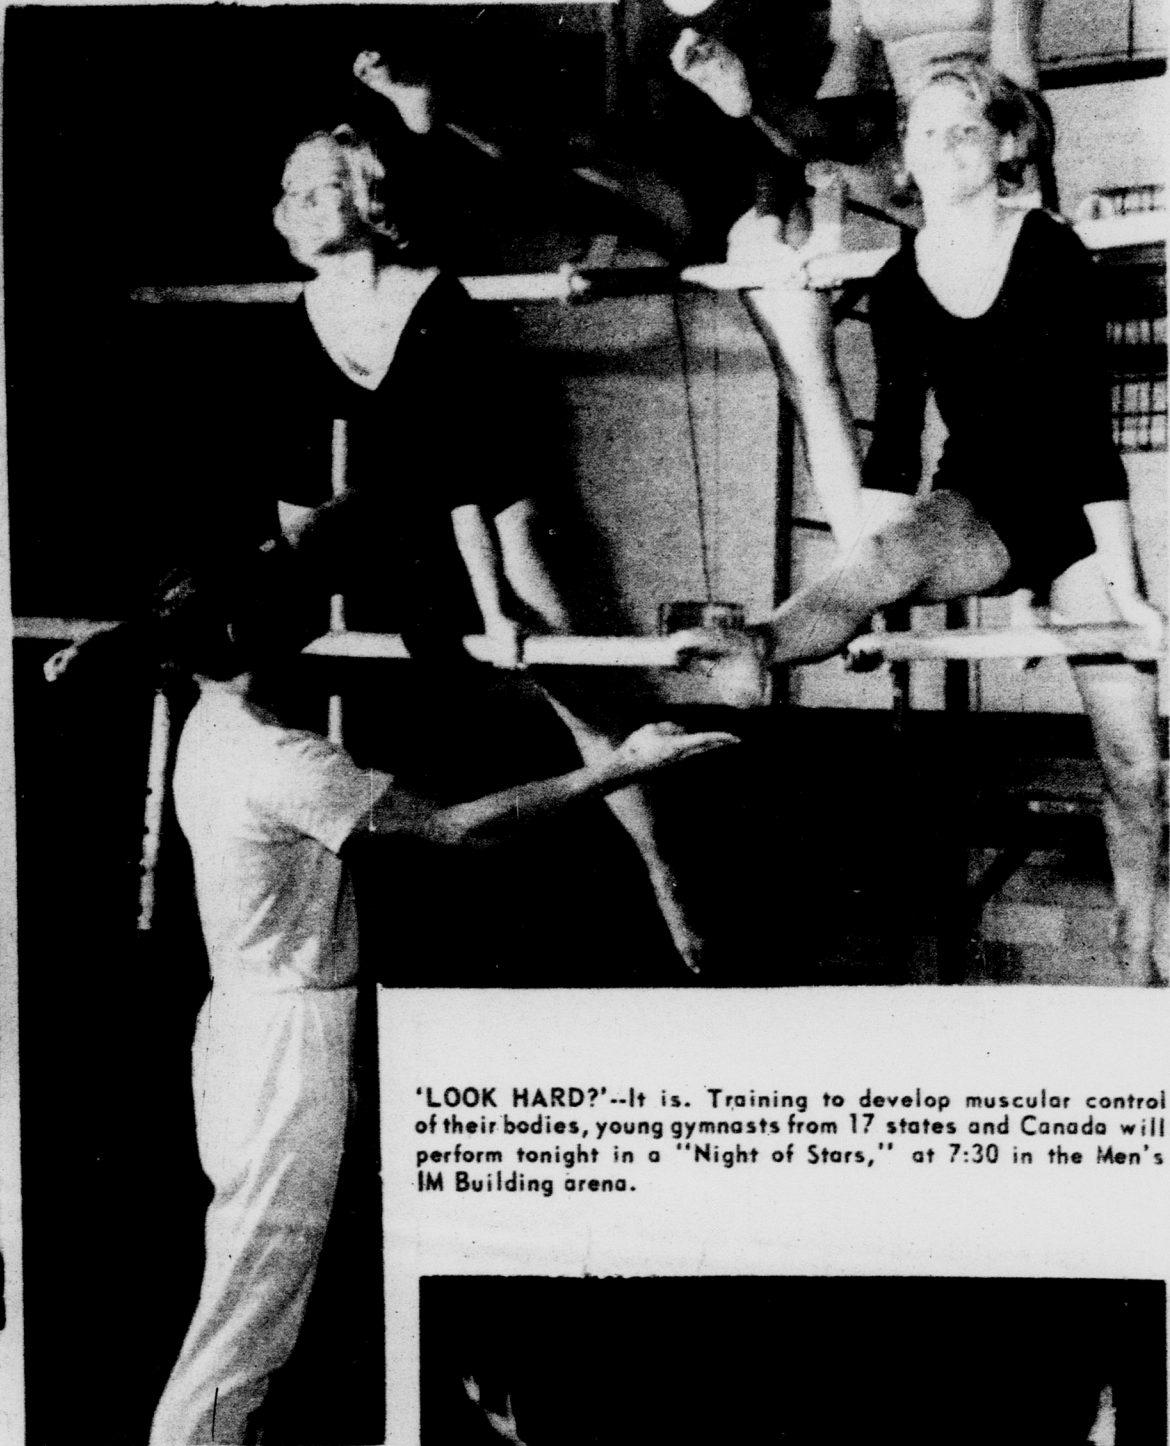

The petite, ash-blonde gymnast says that gymnastics in the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia are comparable in popularity to football in the United States.

"Gymnastics are still very new here," she said. "However, new studios for gym instruction are opening all the time. The Midwest is fairly well populated with them now."

Over 100 young people are participating in the clinic at Jenison Fieldhouse, directed by MSU gymnastics coach George Szypula. Most of them are elementary or high school students.

Traffic Pilots Meeting Here

Some 38,000 Americans met violent death on U.S. highways in 1961, according to National Safety Council statistics.

More than one and one-half million persons suffered disabling injuries in auto accidents last year, the figures reveal, and in the first six months of this year, the toll of dead and injured is running higher than in 1961.

Now joining the battle against this indiscriminate slaughter is the Pilot Club International, a service club of professional women. The organization will sponsor its first highway traffic safety conference Friday to Sunday at MSU's Kellogg Center for Continuing Education.

In three days of concentrated work, state safety chairmen and presidents from many states will study the Action Program of The President's Committee for Traffic Safety to lay the groundwork for safety campaigns within their individual states.

The movie features the well-known Arab poet and permanent Jordan representative to the UN Abdel Moneim Rifai. Rifai recites his new poem in Arabic dedicated to Algeria.

"Arabian Nights," a festival of music, songs, folk dances and sketches will end the week's entertainment at 8 p.m. in the Music Auditorium.

Students will meet throughout the week with Arab ambassadors, UN representatives and cultural attaches. American representatives will also be present.

MSU students, faculty and staff members and the general public are invited to attend the various convention events.

Hold Picnic

MSU Employees Local 1585 will hold its annual picnic Saturday at Lake Lansing Amusement Park.

The executive board of the union voted against speeches at the annual picnic. President David Thocher says:

"We decided that people come to a picnic to relax—not to hear speeches, political or otherwise."

Graduate Student Killed in Fall

Christopher James Stringer Jr., a graduate student working toward his M.A. in social work at MSU, died Sunday in a hiking accident in California.

Mr. Stringer, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Stringer, 420 Northlawn, East Lansing, was employed as a social worker in a Mendocino, Calif., mental hospital this summer.

He was hiking near Gaberville, Calif., 200 miles northeast of San Francisco. The Associated Press said Mr. Stringer apparently fell 150 feet from Redway Bluff, located in a redwood forest. The accident occurred Sunday morning and he died later in the day at Gaberville.

Funeral services will be held 1 p.m. today at the First Presbyterian Church in Lansing.

Paint Crews Active In Village

The slap of paint brushes and the pound of hammers are heard daily in the MSU's married housing areas.

"While necessary maintenance work is carried on at all times, the bulk of preventive maintenance is accomplished in the summer," said John Roetman, assistant manager of married housing.

"From 20 to 25 students are employed to help the 33 regular maintenance men in the summer," he said. "During the rest of the year about eight students work with the married housing maintenance crews."

MSU has 2,056 student apartments with one or two bedrooms, and 184 apartments for faculty and staff in 199 brick buildings which require the basic maintenance work that confronts any home owner, he said.

"Some crews are occupied in painting exterior trim, doorways, railings, and stairways," Roetman said.

with many repair projects which include stoves, refrigerators, plumbing, and floor work.

According to Roetman, paint is issued to residents who wish to paint their units if they need it.

He said that apartment items which are broken or damaged as the result of general use will be repaired without charge.

The occupant, however, must pay labor, repair or replacement cost of items if damaged or broken through negligence.

The costs of maintenance are paid from housing income.

Roetman said that the date of application determines an applicant's position on the married housing waiting list.

Car Phones Common In 10 Years

Car telephones will be a common accessory within 10 years, according to a communications expert.

And the monthly cost will not be much more than that of a home phone, reports H. E. Wepler, head radio engineer for the American Telephone and Telegraph Corp., New York.

The main roadblock to the service, he notes, has been the limited number of frequencies allowed by the Federal Communications Commission, and this is now being worked out.

Speaking at a Telephone Engineering Conference July 1-20 at Michigan State, Wepler revealed other communication devices now in the experimental or testing stages.

A personal, pocket telephone, something like Dick Tracy's "two-way wrist radio," is a real possibility in a few years, he said.

Greater use also will be made of a new "wireless extension phone" -- a small, portable unit which offers two-way conversation within a limited area.

Now in the experimental stage, but soon to be put into general use, Wepler adds, is telephone service for airline passengers

WHAT THEN ARE WE TO DO?
This question is asked every Sunday in the worship service of Central Methodist Church, Lansing. In fact, "What Then Are We To Do?" Sheets are prepared for every sermon. The minister offers five or six suggestions for study and application during the week. Approximately half the congregation takes a sheet home.
If you wish to worship where persons desire to "Apply Christianity," we invite you to worship with us next Sunday.

iously interested in gymnastics varies with the individual and his coach," Mrs. Carter explained. "I started my training in 1952 and attended my first Olympic Games in 1956.

"Some of the students here are as young as eight, and they will have to wait several years for the Olympics. The minimum age for gymnasts is 15."

Mrs. Carter, a former resident of Windsor, Ont., noted that gymnastics at an early age are more common in Canada than in the United States.

"However, the trend here is toward starting youngsters at an earlier age. Gym instructors are trying to foster this trend."

The gymnastics clinic offers instruction for girls in horse vault, tumbling, trampoline, uneven parallel bars and balance beam.

Classes for boys include tumbling, trampoline, horizontal and parallel bars, side and long horses and stationary rings.

Free exercise, a form of gymnastics which is executed to music, is offered for both boys and girls.

The uneven parallel bars and balance beam are strictly for girls.

"Some coaches start their students with exercises on the floor," Mrs. Carter said. "The balance beam is always quite a change because it's only four inches wide. Naturally, this requires more precision than similar movements on the ground."

Mrs. Carter was trained in ballet to back up her gymnastics instruction.

"We're encouraging more gymnasts to take ballet," she said. "It increases the grace and control which is essential."

A highlight of the clinic will be tonight's "Night of Stars" revue scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Men's Intramural Building Arena. All types of gymnastics offered at the clinic will be presented by the youngsters.

Performers appearing in the revue include Ron Aure, 16-year-old Michigan free exercise champion from St. Clair; Sally Noble, 16-year-old Michigan AAU horse vault champion from East Lansing and Susan McDonald, 16-year-old senior provincial gym champion of Ontario and Quebec.

Clinic coaches will plan and evaluate tonight's show.

Peace Corps Needs Athletes

The Peace Corps is looking for boxers, wrestlers and judo experts. It also wants swimmers, basketball players and track and field athletes.

In all, the Peace Corps is seeking about 50 athletes, both men and women who have participated in college sports, for projects in Morocco, Senegal and the Ivory Coast.

The athletes, who need not be college graduates, have been invited by newly independent African nations to coach and assist in the training of regional and national teams.

The African governments are keenly interested in sponsoring and fostering the tremendous interest in sports in their countries.
