Hypnotism--The Answer For Future Problems?

A Kent State University professor advocates hypnotism to improve student study habits.

About 90 per cent of all college students can improve their study habits, according to Professor Stanley Krippner, a reading specialist, who has just completed a five-year hypnotism study.

Krippner said hypnotism also helped students on exams and strengthened the desire to study.

The professor says that only a light trance need be induced for improvement to take place.

He cited one example where a student was told while hypnotized that he could ignore room temperatures, his feelings of thirst and hunger, and the telephone, radio and record player.

Within three weeks the student was spending several consecutive hours each night studying without the interruptions that had interfered with his homework in the past.

Krippner's findings could revolutionize future plans for Michigan State.

Can you picture a student hypnotized to ignore his 13 roommates? Or a student who doesn't notice temperature changes, so we can turn off all the heat when the power plant fails?

Other students of the future could be hypnotized not to notice dorm food so they could live on fish meal. Spartan Village residents could be conditioned not to notice train sounds. A hypnotized student might not notice our late

The Remarkable Cassius Clay

Call him cocky, egocentric or overly self-confident. Regardless how you describe him, Cassius Clay means what he says.

The 20-year-old boxer is the most exciting professional athlete to come along in years. As a heavyweight he's won all of his fights.

Impressive, indeed. But that's only part of the story.

What's even more amazing is that the Kentuckian makes it a habit of predicting publicly the exact round in which he will knock out his opponent.

Young Cassius has carried out his predictions 13 times in 14 fights including the fourth round knockout of Archie Moore.

He did it again two weeks ago when he told the press the day before the match he would put opponent Chafley Powell to sleep in the third round.

Sure enough, along came the third round. Before the round ended, the referee was counting to 10 while Powell was on his back counting sheep.

Fans are flocking to see Clay. They boo him because of his cockiness. But he doesn't break his promises.

If it is possible to save boxing, Cassius Clay may do it.

Reds Everywhere

To the Editor: Yesterday I woke up with fear that I had my "Red" neighbors. I was sure that there were some Communist agents in my neighborhood. After all, J. Edgar Hoover in his "Masters of Deceit" wrote "The Communist is in the market places of America; in organizations, on the street corners, even at your front door. He is trying to influence and control your thoughts."

I ran out of my house to consult God's oracles--the Birch Society, the Manion Forum, Young Americans for Freedom, and the Conservative Club chartered by the Manion Forum. I queried, "Who are the Communists?" I was promptly told that any one who thinks the UN, UNESCO, UNICEF, federal aid to education, graduated income tax, TVA, WHO, NATO, U.S. savings bonds, urban renewal, federal aid to housing, taxes on corporate dividends, mental health programs, and integration have merit is obviously a dupe of the Communists or is a Communist in person.

My fear subsided. There were no Communists under my bed; they were in bed with me. Funny thing--I sleep alone.

Where, Oh Where

To the Editor: It is almost with glee that I discover that the comment "there is no god" has led someone to the extremity of exclaiming the perfection of the universe. Aside from the total incoherence of the term perfection, the assumption of figurative perfection is at best wobbly wonder.

We may briefly examine the past 60 years to discover all the manifestations of perfection. Two world wars and countless smaller ones have resulted in the loss of more than 100 million people, most of whom were noncombatants. But perhaps my understanding of war's piteous in the perfection of the universe is incomplete.

Most of the world's population is underfed, ill housed, and in poor health. The "essentials" of American life are mere dreams that float about in rarified atmosphere of hope. That means so many Americans live like the like. Many Americans make the monumental assumption that these people just don't want anything more, and if they did they would have them. But anyway perfection must be hiding somewhere in the slums just waiting to display itself disguised as an American Bald Eagle. Now how about "the beautiful perfection of God's greatest creation, the mind of man." Again perfection seems somehow to elude us. The concept of love, which remains one of the few grand creations of man, can easily be matched by the abundance of hate that permeates our society. Even though we are to love our neighbor, this command is conditioned by so many socially dictated ifs that love is somehow lost and can only be found by suggesting that we all act in a manner appropriate to that which we are accustomed to. Turn around all our heads, and there is love. We do love ourselves, but love skin be orange or his religion pagan then we are permitted to hate.

If there is perfection in our world then you must surely look beyond the pervading air of tragedy that has accompanied man since the Greeks. If there is a god, and I KNOW THAT THERE ISN'T, then you must find a new role for him. He must be assigned to the post of chief reconciliation officer. You must become accustomed to the fact that the world is imperfect and that misery and suffering exist without justification. God cantell us that suffering has meaning and because it has meaning it is good. In fact suffering is perfection. You might even say that god is bad and peace is war.

Iranian Farce

To the Editor: In responding to the AP news story in the State News Jan. 25, I would like to explain and clarify the students' position in opposing the so-called referendum in Iran by the Shah.

Why are Indian students across the world and at home, together with all aware public reacting so violently to this referendum? Since the military coup of 1953, the Shah has ruled as an absolute dictator. He has usurped the power of Parliament. The Shah's army and secret police have violently suppressed all forms of freedom and opposition. Even though Iran has received $1.3 billion during the past six years and $300 million annually from her oil fields, Iran's coffers are empty.

Why the Shah is holding this referendum at this precise time, can more readily be understood in the light of current world affairs. The World Bank has refused his request for $650 million loan on the grounds that such a loan in the absence of parliament is an explicit violation of the Iranian Constitution. Thus no future government would be obligated to the terms of such a loan. Washington's new thesis -- "We will help those who help themselves," has caused the Shah to offer this referendum as a gesture of good intentions to Washington.

Shah's land reform is not a genuine one. His estates that were given supposedly to farmers, were taken by force from the people by his Father, the late Reza Shah, who was an absolute dictator. The lands were sold to the peasants on long term basis, but the Shah has sold all obligatory notes from the peasants to government banks, and pocketed the cash value of the land. Now the poor peasant has to pay all his life the installment and the interest to the banks. The news agency said the labor unions at the University of Tabriz because the students were opposing the forthcoming referendum.

I would like to mention this is not the first time the Shah invaded the University under different disguises. Only last January he sent the paratroopers to the University, causing two deaths, hundreds injured, and destruction of labs and libraries.

The Iranian students believe the Shah, who is constitutionally irresponsible, is not in a position to submit issues to the people for referendum. Such actions should be instituted by the Parliament or by a legal prime minister.

We would like to reiterate our belief that the Shah's referendum at this time is presented merely for propaganda purposes to get United States' aid, loans from the World Bank and more privileges.

Plenty Of 'Joiners' Are Working Their Way Through College

Let's jump ahead in time. Imagine that it's the first week of June. Early summer.

Schoolwork over the past term, though difficult, has not been as hard as that of winter and fall terms, and is now nearly over. Enjoyable moments of golf, tennis, softball, canoeing, and swimming soften the long periods of study. A hot sun tickles your skin.

Now imagine that you're a senior--next week you graduate. This is the last of your college days. It's clearly a time for reflection, and, if it is your looking back you reach some conclusion, this is your last chance to say it.

On June 4th, 1962, the following letter to the editor appeared in the State News. It was given the lead position in the column, but somehow in the substance of that last week, few took notice of it. It's like to present it to you again, here. The author was Del Bagnock, since graduated.

To the editor: Here's to all the seniors of whom we never hear. They're the ones who've worked their way through college.

Here's to the seniors who spend their "spare time" working as busboys or waitresses, rather than on "Wagner Carnival" committees. Here's to the students who spend 20-25 hours or more a week working in the dingy basements of the various colleges rather than in making "games" for themselves on campus.

Here's to the seniors who were too concerned with where their next meals were coming from to ever entertain the thought of becoming rush chairmen.

Here's to the students who worried about being able to complete their education as their money ran out, rather than whether or not the "hair" dance at the Union would be a success. Here's to the seniors who were too concerned with putting clothes on their backs to be bothered with whether they could make AUSO or be voted class officers.

Here's to the young men and women who never had Mom and Dad to depend on when the going really got rough.

Here's to the seniors who were too busy studying for scholarships to have time to run for the chairmanship of the J-Hop.

It is not likely that you will ever see these students shining as "Seniors of the Week." Nor do they usually appear as "Mr. or Miss MSU." They don't have what it takes.

I wish there were special recognitions for them.

Here's to the students who are never applauded. Here's to the seniors who have never become BMOs. Here's to the graduates who've worked their way through college.

And that was the letter. Strong feelings, and well written--so much so, in fact, that not until now have I stopped to consider whether or not they're true. They are not.

His conclusion is that "joiners" can be joiners only if they are in a favorable economic position or if they have modest academic goals. Yet, for example, many AUSO representatives have held part-time jobs. Last year's junior class president worked part time, as did last year's Speaker of Student Congress. Most of those individuals mentioned in the letter hold full time summer jobs. Some find a way to combine work with activity or education--I'm thinking here of a communications major I know who works part time at WKAR, of the paid student secretaries working in the AUSO offices, and of the economics majors who have served as AUSO treasurers.

And, for another thing, if one were to glance at the records of those selected for Senior of the Week, he would find few with averages below a 3.0. Do you remember the fellow who served as both sophomore class president and president of IFC and who graduated last year with near a 4-point? His major? Electrical engineering. But it's unfair to go on, for there are too many other examples.

So my point is that those who are joiners are so because they want to be, not because of a common financial or academic situation. We all find time to do what seems necessary, whether it's playing baseball, doing three times a week, or planning a dance. And that's that.

Senate To Examine Canadian Situation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Chairman George D. Aiken, R-Vt., of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Canadian affairs said Sunday the present U.S.-Canadian rift "appears to be a case of dissonance that is unnecessary as well as unfortunate."

In a statement broadly implying the State Department bungled, Aiken said his group intends to find out why the dispute arose and to "bring about a prompt solution to the controversy to restore the mutual confidence and trust that are essential to both Canada and the United States."

The subcommittee meets in closed session today to study the controversy about whether Canada should employ nuclear weapons, as the United States Government wishes, or stick to conventional weapons as it has been doing.

Aiken said in a statement prepared for the opening of the hearing "We wish to have explained the reasons which led the State Department to express its dissatisfaction with Canadian views on continental defense by a public statement rather than through

LOOK MA, NO CAVITIES--Stuart Marks, North Carolina graduate student, inspects a walrus skeleton.

Grad Gathers Data For Masters Thesis In Alaska

Stuart Marks, North Carolina graduate student, has Alaska study for the distribution of the walrus to the Chukchi Sea.

Living with Eskimos in a one room shack, Marks gathered the data for his master's thesis. Concerned over the declining number of walrus, Marks found that the population of the walrus has gone from 200,000 in the 16th century to 45,000 to 47,000 today.

He also took part in the brown bear census at Mt. Veniamov, spent two and a half months at the game check station at Denali, and participated in the moose check at Kenai Peninsula.

Marks donated his collection of bear skulls, bird skins, and seal skulls and skins, collected on the trip, to the MCI museum.

Marks explains how he acquired a seal skin. The seal became caught on the ice at St. Lawrence Island during the walrus harvest and had trouble getting off. An Eskimo caught it and asked him if he wanted it alive.

"While in the boat, I was trying to keep it calm," he said. "When it reached up and bit me, I suppose you could say I was kissed by a seal."

He remarked, "The people were friendly, interested in my work, and especially responsive to a smile."

He complained about the weather emphasizing the force of the wind. "I didn't see the sun more than once in the three months I was there," he said.

Marks drove alone up the Alaskan highway in April and then flew to his area of study. He was raised in the tropics and is specialized in African studies. He says he was curious about the continent which the Arctic offered. He says he was curious about the continent which the Arctic offered.

Canada

vention. On the other hand, there were indications that Diefenbaker was already planning to campaign on a hands-off-Canada platform, even if the controversial U.S. nuclear statement had never been issued.

The State Department apparently was aware of the possibilities when it acted, although it is doubtful anyone in Washington expected such a violent reaction.

Canadian correspondents said the Kennedy administration had just run out of patience after waiting four years for Canada to make up its mind on accepting nuclear warheads.

The fact is that as far back as 1959 Canada committed itself to use nuclear weapons. It has spent $700 million on missiles and planes capable of carrying nuclear warheads.

Delay after delay, however, has held up final agreement with the United States on delivery of the warheads and on training Canadian units to use nuclear weapons.

One of the issues is: Who would control the weapons? There is no simple or clear explanation of the government's reluctance to accept nuclear weapons after having committed itself to missiles and planes designed for the purpose.

The Canadian public, as well as political leaders, is divided on the issue, and this could be one reason for Diefenbaker's hesitancy.

In the past few weeks a number of developments brought the nuclear crisis to a head. One of these was a public opinion survey which showed 54 per cent of the population in favor of Canada acquiring nuclear weapons and only 32 per cent against it.

Even in the Prime Minister's own party there was a split. The Young Conservatives Association and the Conservative Students' organization both went on record in favor of nuclear weapons for Canada.

Then came a new position in the Liberal Party, which had not pressed very hard in the past to make a major issue of the defense problem.

The Liberal shift, unveiled by Pearson in a Toronto speech Jan. 12, apparently worried the government. The plan calls for acceptance of nuclear warheads for those defensive tactical weapons which cannot be used effectively without them and which Canada has committed itself to use.

Pearson's problem is how to push his new policy without getting tangled up with conservative charges that he is allowing Washington to call the tune for Canada. He got a taste of this in parliament last week when some back-bench conservatives heckled him with such remarks as "go ahead, Yankee," "you want to dance to Uncle Sam" and "when are you going back (to Washington) for further instructions?"

Morrill Language Facilities Increased

Interested in learning more about a foreign language? Foreign language students now have the opportunity to listen to material in languages they are studying without a printed text in 10 Morrill Hall.

The room has been set up as an addition to the listening center where students may hear speeches, radio broadcasts, and other spoken material in the foreign languages offered by the department.

Individual students may obtain permission from the language lab to use the listening center for personal enrichment.

The Listening Center has 20 seats with writing arms and high-quality sound reproduction equipment for taped material.

Students on assignment or the foreign language clubs may use the room upon request.

Loan Demands Up

The authority makes $10 in available for every $1 demanded by a university. Students apply for loans through income tax books rather than the usual.

Students may borrow $500 in loans participating in the program. $650; juniors, $800; seniors, $950 and graduate students, $1,100.

Students do not have to begin payments until after graduation. This is one of the greatest features of the MHEAA loan program," Dykema said. "It enables the student to be free of worries about repayment until after he has begun earning a living."

MHEAA loans were not included in the $1 million figure for loans at MSU last year. Dykema said similar loan authorities exist in several other states, including New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts. He urged students to investigate programs in their own states.

"Some students have the mistaken idea that they have to attend college in their own states to obtain loans under the various authorities. This is not always true. The New York Higher Education Assistance Authority is a case in point."

Approximately 750 MSU students are receiving loans under the National Defense Loan Act, passed by Congress in 1958.

Funds totaling more than $275,000 are available to MSU under the Defense Loan Act. The University contributed $27,770.77 to obtain federal funds last year.

The present Loan Act places a ceiling on funds which may be obtained by any university. According to Dykema, the present act discriminates against schools with the largest enrollment.

A bill will be re-introduced in Congress this session to raise the Defense Loan ceiling to $500,000. The additional funds could double the number of MSU students aided by the fund, Dykema said.

The present Loan Act gives special consideration to elementary and secondary education majors in loan granting and repayment terms.

Destiny To Destitution In Seven Seconds

Wolverines Nip Cagers In Frenzied Finale, 72-71

By JOHN VAN GIESON
Of The State News

Michigan State and Michigan have had many a wild, exciting game in their long basketball feud, but it is doubtful that any left the winners as elated as the losers at the end of Saturday's thriller.

Frankly Anderson's team will have little time to look its wounds, for the team will travel to Lafayette, Ind., to meet the Purdue Boilermakers tonight.

Michigan, apparently doomed to defeat with a seven-point deficit to make up in the last 14 seconds, miraculously came up with the three and two free to erase the game away from the stunned Spartans, 72-71.

It was the second single point loss in a row for the Spartans at their home floor, loss dumped them 30-28 here on Jan. 11th. The seven State regulars were victorious by 16.3" loss at Jenison and a regional television audience estimated at over a million.

State, which had been down by as much as six points in the second half, put on a brilliant show in a seven second period to take a 71-67 lead with 32 seconds remaining. Doug Herner, a long shot with 29 seconds left, and Bill Strack, who played a tremendous game in relief, intercepted the pass from out of bounds and scored a easy lay-up.

The Spartans three point lead looked evanescent as Michigan put the ball in play, but even if the Wolverines scored just one, State would still have a six point lead with only seconds left to play.

Then the real act began. Michigan's John Harris was fouled under the key basket, in a wild scramble that nearly turned into a "boxing match" the referee in the line with 14 seconds left. State took two free throws to make a 71-70.

With some rapidly changing hands, the Spartans got the ball in play, but State drove west again, and Michigan's answer came in the form of a on the loose ball. He fired a quick pass to Doug Herner who tossed in a perfect southpaw jumper from six feet top of the circle.

Suddenly the Wolverines were in front with only nine seconds left! State called time with six seconds remaining to set up a last gasp shot. Schwartz took the desperation heave from just inside the midcourt line, but it ricocheted harmlessly off the backboard as the buzzer sounded.

Protestations broke loose on the Michigan bench as Herner's teammates mobbed him. The disbelieving Spartans fled from the other end of the court in a state of shock.

Neither team could mount more than a six point lead and, very seldom a point, in 120 of each other most of the game. State led at halftime, 33-31.

It was an exceptionally hard fought game. A total of 48 personal fouls were called as the teams each picked up 24. Two Spartans, Lamarck and Bill Berry, fouled out and State's Fred Thompson, Michigan's Harris, Bill Horton and Bob Cantrell all had four personal fouls.

Buntin played with his entire leg hinged and wasn't at full effectiveness. The big forward hit a career low of five points, but he did give the Wolverines valuable support under the basket picking off 12 rebounds in the 32 minutes he was in the game.

The game's other struggle, Pete Gent, limped throughout the contest but played like he was fighting a war. He scored 20 points and tied Ted Williams for team rebound honors with 10. High scoring Louisa went to Cole who scored 22 points. He added 17 rebounds to pace that department also. Harris scored 15 markers and pulled in 12 rebounds.

The most impressive performance turned in by a Spartan was Schwartz's. He came off the bench to hit six in six in eight tries from the field. Schwartz totaled 15 points, nine of which came in the second half drive that nearly gave State the victory. He was also brilliant on defense, twice converting stolen passes into Spartan baskets.

NOT BOTHERED BY INJURY—Pete Gent (30) drives for a two-pointer against Michigan Saturday. The Bongor junior paced the Spartan's attack with 20 points, but to no avail. Watching is Bob Cantrell, Michigan guard.

Spartan-Reject Returns To Haunt Homeowners

By CARL FERIN
Of The State News

Doug Herner, 5-foot-10, junior guard from Lansing Sexton, was the toast of the Michigan locker room after the Wolverines narrowly 72-71 victory over the Spartans.

"It was just like someone wrote the script for the old story of home town boy comes back to beat the home town team," said Michigan basketball Coach Dave Strack.

With 12 seconds on the clock and the game apparently settled away by the Spartans, Michigan forward Tom Cole intercepted the Spartans in bounds pass, after two free throws by Wolverine forward, John Harris, and fed it to Herner.

The score was 71-70, favor of State, with nine seconds showing, when Herner took the pass from Cole, and sank a 15-foot, left-handed jump shot from the top of the circle to give Michigan the win in one of the wildest games ever played in Jenison Fieldhouse.

Saturday was the first time Herner had been in Jenison, since three winters ago when he led Sexton to a second successive high school championship.

"It was the greatest feeling I've ever had," the little guard said. When asked why he went to Michigan instead of State, Herner said he had always been a great fan of the Spartans, but was told he was too small to play basketball here. When the Wolverines came up here to recruit him, he didn't turn them down. "It seemed that nothing was going our way during the whole game, he said. "We got a break when we needed it most, when Tom (Cole) grabbed that pass-in."

Strack was full of praise for both teams and said that he couldn't blame Coach Forckdy Anderson for being dejected, because they gave us the shot when they had the game won.

"It was a helluva game," Strack said. "It was a real hard fought game. We weren't ready for Detroit Wednesday night and we showed it, but we were ready today, and so was State."

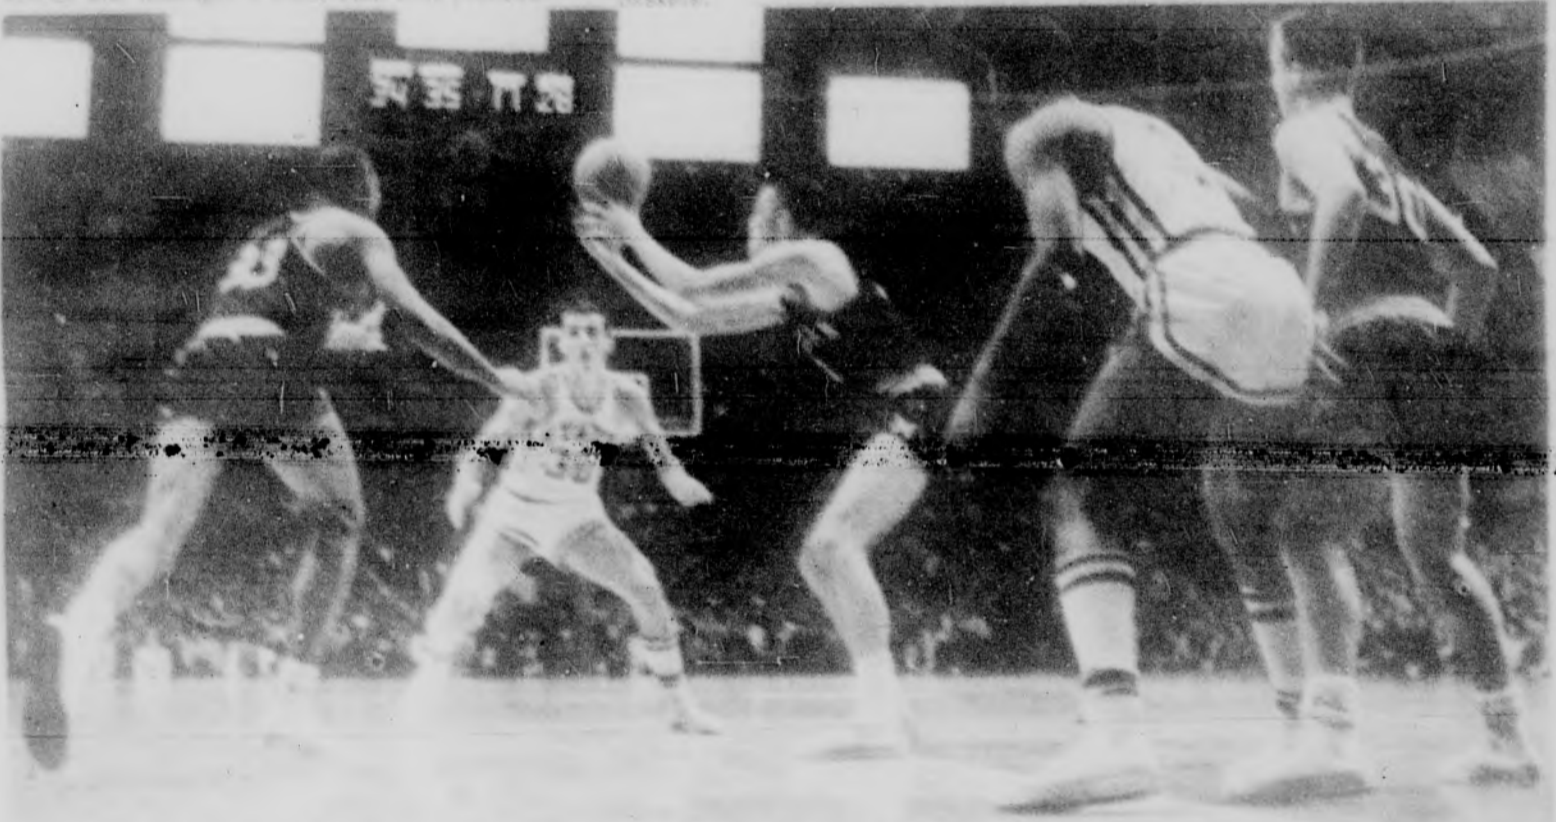

"Herner showed the home town fans the real guts shot and it paid off. "Center Bill Buntin really helped us even though he only scored five points. He, Cole and Harris were great under the boards."

"That injured man of yours Pete Gent, really hurt us - every time he shot we were in trouble."

Before Herner dropped in the fatal blow, he had hit only one field goal and three free throws, all in the second half.

LIEUTENANT JERRY HOLLMAN, PH.D. IN ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

"If I had it to do over again, would I take Army R.O.T.C."

You bet I would, and I'll tell you why. Army officers are better than I expected. Take me. At the Army Staff Research Lab in Fort Monmouth, I get a chance to use my engineering background to good use. I keep on top of new developments. The experience is terrific, and going to pay off whether or not I stay in the Army. From Fort Monmouth, I can go to Washington to see the President, and visit Washington the next. On my off-duty weekend, and visit Washington the next. On my off-duty salary I can afford it. Of course I have an active social life on post, too. Officers' club. Parties. Dances. You name it. My advice to you is this: if you have only two years to go for a commission, get it. Once on active duty you'll be mighty glad you did."

Fencers Split Opening Meet

Spartan fencers topped Chicago 19-8 in their season opener, while bowing to Illinois 17-10 on the same Chicago meet.

Dick Schloemer had quite a day in full competition by winning 11 of 12 matches in MSU. Three of the 11 wins came against the Illinois defending Conference champions.

Following Schloemer's second win over Chicago, coach Charlie Schmitter substituted sophomore Steve Vore who was upended 5-4 in his first collegiate start.

It was the one point margin that spelled the difference between victory and defeat for the Illini as they captured five decisions in the same manner.

Foll was the top weapon for State with an over-all record of 11 wins and 2 losses. Sabre and epee sported 9-9 totals.

In the sabre event with Chicago, Nels Martin led Bryan Karcher recorded undefeated tallies of 3-0. State tallies routed their Windy City opponents 8-1. Schloemer accounted for the entire MSU fall output in a 6-3 loss to Illinois. Bill Olson, Bill McDevitt and Cliff Dammers capped two spurs for the victors.

In epee, John Pelletier, Spartan co-captain, finished in spectacular fashion, registering 3-0 and 2-1 win-loss records against Chicago and Illinois.

Gymnasts Handed First Loss By Iowa

Misfortune struck hard at Spartan teams this past weekend and the gymnastics team was no exception.

Coach George Szypula's gymnasts invaded the campus of the Iowa Hawkeyes hoping to capture their third consecutive victory of the season.

But the Hawkeyes had plans of their own, and the disappointed Spartans left Iowa City with one more defeat than they had when they arrived.

The Spartan's phenomenal Dale Cooper failed to escape unscathed either.

The still ring performer had his brilliant record slightly tarnished, but saw his undefeated streak remain intact.

Entering the meet with 13 consecutive dual meet victories in his pocket, Cooper had to settle for a tie with Iowa's Glenn Galis, each receiving 94 points. The 94 point total was high for the afternoon.

Latin Labor Authority To Deliver Kellogg Lecture

Robert J. Alexander, director of the Latin American labor movement from Rutgers University will deliver an address on "The Latin American Labor Leader" tonight at 8 in Kellogg Center.

The address is the second in a series of lectures dealing with social change in Latin America sponsored by the MSU School of Labor and Industrial Relations in cooperation with the Office of International Programs.

Alexander, a professor of economics at Rutgers, is the author of numerous writings on the Latin American labor movement. They include "Communism in Latin America," "The Bolivian National Revolution," "The Struggle for Democracy in Latin America," and "Labor Relations in Argentina, Brazil, and Chile."

Alexander has been the technical adviser on Latin American labor matters to the American Federation of Labor since 1948.

Labels Agriculture Top Industry

Robert C. Liebenow, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, labeled agriculture, "our greatest industry" in a speech to the Michigan Farm Managers Banquet Friday in Kellogg Center.

He said some federal control in agriculture is necessary, but should become more flexible in the future.

"There are 3.7 million farmers in this country, all acting independently. In this situation, policing of the industry can never be fully developed. Agriculture is the last stronghold of small enterprise."

Our farm problem is not due to poor management by the farmer, Liebenow explained, but rather an overabundance problem.

"We simply cannot eat all of the food that we produce."

To alleviate this problem Liebenow proposed a program of direct subsidy to the farmer, coupled with a massive land retirement program to keep the prices of American produce competitive with those of other countries.

These programs should be aimed at the larger commercial farmer, he said. The problem of the small farmer is more a welfare matter.

Liebenow is the youngest to be named President of the Board of Trade, a post he held since 1956.

Also included in the program was the presentation of the Managers of 1963 Awards to Farm Factor Efficiency Award presented by Everett M. Egan, farm management specialist in the agricultural economics department.

The Farm Managers Banquet is an annual affair of Farmers Union and is sponsored by the Agricultural Economics Department of the Michigan Association of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers.

Institute To Aid Future Engineers

A unique program to introduce new concepts in science, engineering to high school students will be sponsored this summer by the College of Engineering.

The Junior Engineering Scientist Summer Institute, scheduled for June 16-29, will be open to boys who will complete the 11th or 12th grade by September or who will graduate in June.

Harwood Phend, assistant dean of engineering and coordinator of the seminar, said the institute is "first-time" to explore engineering and science areas in science which are taught to promising students in high school.

Students will attend classes with University faculty members in groups of 25 to 30 students daily and will have private conferences with faculty members during free afternoon hours.

The program is entering its eighth season and is held on college and university campuses across the nation.

Limited funds are available to assist student aid. The granting of aid is based on financial need and academic achievement.

Varied Events Keep Chem Wives Active

The Kédzie Chem Wives of MSU aim their activities at gaining greater understanding of their husbands' field of study and support of their graduate work with a varied social program.

The group has been organized for several years. Officers for 1962-63 are Mrs. George Bary, president; Mrs. David Taft, vice-president; Mrs. Jerry Peppener, secretary; Mrs. James Hand, treasurer; and Mrs. Melvin Anderson, hospitality chairman.

Activities of the Kédzie Wives include programs ranging from flower arranging to study of atoms.

Their next meeting Feb. 12 will feature Carrick Wildon of the Horticulture Department who will give clues on flower arrangements for the home.

Another February meeting will be strictly social. Each couple will bring a dish for a pot-luck supper Feb. 23.

A meeting in March will feature special films on chemistry aimed at acquainting the chemistry wives with atoms, molecules and solvents.

All wives whose husbands have finished their research at the end of the year receive a "Ph.D." degree for "putting hubby through."

Parmelee Supports DDT For Elm Protection

The use of DDT to control Dutch Elm disease on campus was defended by George W. Parmelee, professor of biology, in a planning of a recent ecology seminar.

Parmelee admitted that DDT, used against bark beetles which carry Dutch Elm disease, also kills robins. However, he entered a strong plea for the preservation of the Dutch Elm, pointing out that the elm has contributed a great deal of the scenery of the campus.

MSU has an excellent control program for Dutch Elm disease, Parmelee said. Only 1.7 percent of the trees sprayed during a five-year period have been lost. More than 1,800 trees were sprayed last year.

Spraying costs about $2.30 each year per tree. While removal of a diseased elm cost $200.

Evidence is sparse as to what would happen if the spray program were cut out. Parmelee said Detroit estimates that 50 to 90 percent of the elms in southern Michigan cities would be lost in 10 years.

A controversy has developed over whether DDT or a newer insecticide, methoxychlor, should be used in the program.

"We might compare DDT to a shotgun, which kills more than we ask for," he said.

"When we read is a rifle to aim at the bark beetle which will spare wildlife."

Ornithologists say methoxychlor will kill the bark beetle and spare wildlife.

DDT has kept losses under two percent. Its effectiveness is due to long lasting residue deposited by the spray on elms, Parmelee said. The residue of methoxychlor has been shown not to last more than 150 days.

The grounds department favors DDT because it can be sprayed in the fall when weather conditions are most favorable. Methoxychlor must be applied in the spring when weather is often unfavorable and machines and men are needed for other work.

Parmelee said methoxychlor costs two to four times more per tree than DDT.

Sci. To Face Problems Growth Hits College

Newly-organized College of Social Science is trying to solve problems caused by an enrollment boom.

L. McCuttry, dean of the college, hopes the enrollment problems can be met by a gradual development of a faculty elected curriculum committee.

The College of Social Science, which is its first year, has an enrollment of 2,437, 17 per cent more than last year.

"We plan to solve the problems through sound educational theory and philosophy, rather than just meeting it in terms of numbers," McCuttry said.

McCuttry, chairman of the department of psychology before becoming dean, came to Michigan State in 1956 from the University of Illinois.

Assisting the dean is an Advisory Committee, a Faculty Advisory Committee and a Committee of chairmen and directors.

"We're developing tentative policies in the Advisory Committee," McCuttry said. "We will probably formulate more permanent policies at a general faculty committee conference in the fall."

"The progress of 'The College of Social Science can be noted in the increased graduate fellowships awarded our departments," McCuttry said.

Twelve graduate students have received National Science Foundation Summer Fellowships and the departments of political science and psychology have received four National Defense Fellowships each.

Deer Starve, Food Shortage Creates Crisis

Severe winter weather has once again precipitated a severe food shortage for Michigan's deer herd, according to Charles Shick, specialist on game management.

Shick, a member of the Co-operative Extension Service and the fisheries and wildlife department at MSU, travels throughout the state lecturing on conservation.

He stressed the importance of harvesting antlerless deer from areas where food is scarce in winter.

"It is good conservation to harvest these deer from areas where there is a scarcity of food," Shick said.

Shick said harvesting only bucks is not effective because one buck can mate with several does.

"To assure sufficient food for the deer during these winter months, it is advisable to cut trees of commercial value," Shick said. "The buds and twigs on the cut-down tops can be used as food by the deer."

Shick suggests habitat management activities including planting portions of large open land tracks with pine trees and shrubs, encouraging native shrub reproduction and saving acorn-producing trees close to winter deer herds.

AUSG Resolution Favors Library Improvements

All University Student Government unanimously passed a resolution which may brighten student hopes for vending machines and improved lounge facilities in the library.

The resolution, introduced by the student rights and welfare committee, asks that soft drink and coffee machines be installed in the library. It is directed to the library staff and William Combs, dean of university services.

Combs has been apprehensive about the installation of the machines in the library's basement lounges.

The committee met with Richard Chapin, director of libraries, to discuss the installation.

He said that most of the library staff members are in favor of vending machines, but that the final decision was up to Combs. Chapin had previously advocated converting the basement hall area into a student lounge.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to President John Hannah, Jack Breslin, secretary of the Board of Trustees, and Combs, AUSG administrative vice president. Tom Rasmussen said that he and the committee will continue to press for the improvements.

There are 270 miles of book shelves in the Library of Congress in Washington D. C.

Domestic Peace Corps Analyzed By Adrian

R. Adrian, director of Institute of Commercial Studies, said that if Congress approves a domestic version of the overseas peace corps students will have an opportunity to participate in it.

Adrian said the proposed corps will be a national program and new community needs. The program will share the cost of the program.

Adrian said the program will function in economically depressed areas of the country, including Kentucky, West Virginia, and cities with a high rate of population, Ad-

Adrian said that Flint, Muskegon and other areas of Northern Michigan are most likely to have a corps if one were requested because these are areas of need.

Adrian gave three reasons for the opposition to the production of the introduction of another Federal program, indoctrinating participants to support the administration and federal expenditures are involved.

The original peace corps was a "political gimmick," Adrian said. "Its success, however, won us good will abroad."

If the present plan is successful it will benefit the administration and will fulfill a prevalent social need, he said.

Riviera Atmosphere Pervades Dinner Dance

Nearly 800 people were transported to a French Riviera atmosphere at a dinner dance held at the Kellogg Center, 1000 S. State St., last night.

Party-goers ate French food served in a continental style and viewed French entertainment by students in the Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional School.

This year the students departed from custom in presenting the continental dinner, which they felt fit in better with the theme, "Kendevous a la Riviera," Dan Robertson, Park Ridge, Ill., senior, was chairman.

The cuisine, the main feature of the dinner, was prepared and served by the lead committee headed by Ron Prevus, Highland Park, Ill., junior.

The dinner featured such French delicacies as flavored butters on canapes, mushroom consommé and caviar as appetizers; Chicken Cordon Bleu in the entree; and assorted French pastries and candied strawberries for dessert.

A highlight of the dinner was a demonstration of how to make a Caesar's Salad, given by chef Dick Setzer.

Following the dinner, partygoers danced to the music of Polka, where Joseph Polka and gay music prevailed. Richard Paulino, Auburn, N.Y., senior, was master of ceremonies.

Folies numbers included a French horsecap dance by a Lansing dance studio; and magician's act by Ray Olson, Detroit junior; and a French pantomime by Dean Kyburz, Lansing sophomore. The dance studio also presented a French apache, or soft shoe dance, and a lively Can-Can.

ICED FISH—Roger Shouder, Baltimore, Ohio freshman, points out a fish which he designed and made from a block of ice. The work took four hours to complete.

The evening at the French Riviera continued after the Polka with dancing.

The decorations will go to the Catholic League of Women, who will use them at a party for the orphans at St. Vincent's Home.

Les Gourmets chairman Dan Robertson expressed special gratitude for the assistance William D. Stafford, faculty adviser and instructor in Hotel Management, had given students.

"Les Gourmets dinner dances have always been acclaimed a big success," he said. "We feel this one was right in line. Mr. Stafford has done a lot in helping us with it."

A three-car collision resulted in injury to two University residents Friday night at Haslett and Grand River. A car, driven by Richard Paulino, Auburn, N.Y., senior, ran a stop light at the intersection, striking a car driven by Thomas Gowell, 1116-H University Village.

The Gowell car spun around striking a car driven by Richard Harrison, 1140 Hitching Post Road.

Mrs. Gowell, riding with her husband, was taken to Sparrow Hospital, she suffered minor bruises, and possible internal injuries, police said.

Museum Exhibit Shows Colorado Plants, Animals

The museum has a new exhibit of Central Colorado mountain plants and animals.

"We have tried to show the typical plants and animals that are peculiar to this area," said Victor Hogg, museum curator.

A raven, elk, bony mammoth, and rock badger are the representative animals shown in the exhibit.

The Driscoll Cone Pines, oldest trees in the world, are from the Timberline, California has one over 5,000 years old.

A tree stump in the exhibit was recovered from this mountain area after a forest fire years ago, said Hogg.

William Neiksen, museum

artist, did the art work in the exhibit. Each exhibit in the halls of North American Life will represent a different life zone and its peculiar animal and plant life.

Population May Run Out Of Room Says Pro

If the earth's population continues to increase at its present rate, in a thousand years there won't be enough room for all the people, a professor of zoology, said Friday.

The present earth population of three billion is increasing at an exponential rate of 2 per cent per year.

At this rate the population in 2963 would be one and one-half billion billion.

Unlike animals whose numbers have been limited by insufficient food, man has learned to increase his food supply, he said. Food production has increased at a greater rate than the population since 1880.

The population in highly developed countries have adopted their own growth control. In these countries the birth rate is correlated with the ability to support a family, Clark said.

This relationship does not exist in the poorer nations. The inevitable reduction in the growth rate must take place by increasing death rates, he said.

"Increased death rates would have a profound influence on the political situation in these countries," he said. "Democracy would have less of a chance, and more and more countries might experiment with totalitarian governments."

No democratic government has yet demonstrated the ability to reduce birth rates in underdeveloped countries, he said.
